FIERCE BATTLE ON BORDER HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

Douglas, Ariz., April 17.—At 10.30 the firing ceased with the rebels holding every position which they occupied at the beginning of the battle. The rebels began digging new trenches at once.

"Red" Lopez, one of the rebel chiefs, reported the rebel casualties in the trenches as light.

Firing was resumed at 11 o'clock. The Federal machine guns were still out of commission.

Douglas, Ariz., April 17.—The long expected attack of the Mexican Federal troops on Agua Prieta opened in deadly earnest at 6.30 to-day. The firing was fast and furious on both sides. The rattle of musketry was continuous. At 9.30 it was evident that the rebels had repulsed the federal attack.

The hail of bullets from the Federal machine guns fell far within the confines of the city of Douglas, and both sides intended that the battle should be decisive. Each exhibited desperate courage

The Federals began by massing themselves to the south-east of the town and moved slowly within rifle range of the rebel position. The insurrectos, facing in three directions, lay low in the trenches or flat on the open ground. The Federal's fire raked over them and into both Agua Prieta and Douglas.

It was evident from the heavy firing that the casualties on both sides were destined to be very heavy.

The steel and leaden missiles from the Federal guns carried far over the international line, and plowed their way into buildings facing along 2nd and 3rd streets, and dug up the ground here and there over the whole southern end of the city.

CAVALRY ATTACKED THEM.

The Federals in moving in had advanced from the camp which they established yesterday at Sulphur Springs, a water hole five miles south of Agua Prieta, with an evident intention of gaining the border in order to attack the rebel position along the international line, but before they were able to gain this coveted position they encountered the rebel cavalry, which had galloped out to intercept them, and there was a rattle from the repeating rifles as the two advancing forces came into rifle range. The cavalry dropped back slowly, and the Federals next came within range of the deep entrenchments thrown up by the rebels during Sunday and last night, which were filled with insurrecto sharp shooters. Most of the residents of Douglas remained within doors or sought other places of safety.

MEMBER FOR WEST HAMILTON PREDICTS A LONG STRUGGLE

Hamilton, April 17.—T. J. Stewart the member for West Hamilton, predicted to-day that Parliament would do no more than give the preamble to the reciprocity pact a reading before the House prorogues.

He intimated that the Conservatives would then debate the three hundred odd clauses in the agreement until it forces the Government to go to the people.

"I don't think there is much in the annexation talk at present," he said, "but it is hard to tell what will happen with the future generations if the West becomes Americanized through immigration and we have reciprocity with the States."

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH VESTRY MEETING

Retiring Rector's Warden, Mr. W. F. Johnston, Elected People's Warden—Lay Delegates Appointed.

The vestry of St. John's Church met in annual Easter session last night, the Rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, Presiding.

The offertory on Sunday for the reduction of the Church mortgage debt amounted to $382.

Vestry Clerk, W. H. Walkey, read the minutes of the several meetings held last year, which were adopted as read.

The financial statement showed the funds of the church to be in a very healthy condition, with a substantial balance on the right side of the ledger.

The retiring Wardens, Messrs. W. F. Johnston and A. E. Coulthard, in their report, recommended an honorarium of $50 for the organist and choir master, Mr. R. J. Devey. The report was adopted as read.

The Rector's assistant, Mr. Chas. Carpenter, was re-engaged for another year. Many eulogistic remarks on Mr. Carpenter's splendid work since coming to this parish were offered by both the rector and laity.

Rev. Canon Davidson warmly thanked the retiring churchwardens for their energetic and gratifying work during the past year.

The rector will nominate his warden at the adjourned vestry meeting two weeks hence.

Mr. W. F. Johnston, the retiring rector's warden, was elected people's warden for the ensuing year.

Mr. W. H. Walkey was re-elected vestry clerk.

The vestry extended a hearty vote of thanks to the retiring people's warden.

Mr. J. A. Aylmer was appointed St. John's representative on the Protestant Home Board. This Board will be augmented by representatives from all Protestant denominations, now that a new institution for the care of Protestant poor is to be provided by the present board and the city.

At a subsequent congregational meeting, the following gentlemen were re-appointed lay delegates to the synod: Dr. Boucher, J. H. McClellan and Joseph Mills.

PETERBOROUGH MAY HAVE BIG HOLIDAY

Coronation Day and Chimes, Inauguration.

The coronation of King George V. will take place on June 22. It seems to be the general feeling throughout the Dominion of Canada to make that date a day of celebration. It is possible that it will be declared a public holiday for the Dominion. In any case we think that Peterborough might consider the advisability of having the People's Chimes inaugurated on that day. It has also been proposed to have an Old Boys' reunion at that time, which is not a bad idea. The city would receive a considerable amount of free advertising by such a celebration, and with the opportunities this city possesses it should be a big success.

CALL ON BRITISH AND DOMINION GOVERNMENTS TO SECURE CHANGE THAT WILL MAKE NE TEMERE DECREE IMPOSSIBLE IN CANADA

ASK THE REMOVAL OF LAW OF CHURCH OF ROME FROM THE CIVIL LAW OF QUEBEC.

The Committee Obtained Legal Opinion Before Submitting Declaration to Ministerial Association.

Toronto, April 17.—The General Ministerial Association of Toronto met this morning to receive a report from the committee appointed to consider the Ne Temere decree. Having obtained legal opinion, the committee submitted a declaration of what the association's attitude should be, in the following resolution:

1.—That we affirm the following principles: (a) The equality of all religions and their ministers before the law; (b) the binding character of any marriage performed according to law, by any person authorized by law to do so.

2.—That the promulgation and enforcement of the Ne Temere decree of the Romish Church, especially with reference to mixed marriages, is a violation of each of the foregoing principles. We, therefore, earnestly protest against the enforcement of this decree in Canada, especially in view of the fact that it has been successfully resisted in Germany and Hungary. It is our conviction that the Criminal Code should be so amended that it shall be made a criminal offence for any man to declare any legally contracted marriage to be null and void, or to use his influence to secure the separation of husband and wife, except on grounds and processes recognized by the law of the land.

3.—That whereas it appears that in the Province of Quebec, the canon law of Rome with reference to marriages has been made a part of the civil law, and under it the courts have annulled marriages between Roman Catholics performed by Protestant ministers, we declare that this is a condition not to be tolerated, as it is inconsistent with the principles of British freedom. We urge the Dominion and British Governments to take what steps may be required to remedy this state of affairs, even though it be necessary to seek an amendment to the British North America Act, removing marriage from the jurisdiction of the Provinces, and creating a uniform Canadian marriage law.

Your committee would further recommend that a committee be appointed to consider what steps can be taken to carry out the foregoing resolution.

PUBLIC OPINION

OLD BOYS' REUNION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—A suggestion was made in your valuable paper some time ago to the effect that an Old Boys' Reunion be held in Peterboro in June in connection with the inauguration of the People's Chimes. So far as I can see nothing has yet been done. I think it is the duty of the mayor to take the initiative in a popular movement of this kind. Let a meeting be called and the matter placed in the hands of a good strong committee. I would suggest the following gentlemen as members of the committee: His Worship Mayor Morrow, Mr. A. G. Gillespie, President of the Board of Trade; Mr. Gilcrist, Y.M.C.A.; James Lynch, G. C. Wainwright, Rev. Canon Davidson, Ald. Duncan, John Crane, Harry Cressman, Ex-Mayor Denne and W. H. Hill.

Let the ball be started at once as there is no time to lose.

Steve.

BEST IN PETERBOROUGH.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Allow me, Mr. Editor, to express my appreciation of The Times newspaper. It is, I consider, the best paper published in Peterboro at the present time, as it is fearless in its advocacy of what it believes to be right. The cartoon feature which has lately been introduced, is a good thing, and should draw the people to you. Your "Ins and Outs" column also makes a hit every time. Your attitude in regard to mixed marriages, the teaching of the French language, as well as Sectarian religion in the Public Schools of the Province, is entirely satisfactory to all broad minded and tolerant men, Protestant and Catholic alike. Keep it up, and don't forget that you have a big army of friends, who are constantly and rapidly increasing.

H.E.

RESTS ON DEVOTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—We hear a great deal nowadays on religious matters concerning the attitude of the Pope in respect to civil and religious liberty, higher criticism, &c. I have penned a few lines that I hope you will deem worthy of publication in The Times.

Since publish you did appeals in your journal
For matters to read, I compelled am to say,
That letters from donors in sentiment vernal
You would not reply to in many a day.
Believing, however, alike all are seeking
Our welfare in life, we are proud to express
Our gratitude heart-felt, collectively speaking,
And know that each one for his gift God will bless.

The creed of my choice was in youth Methodism,
Which points in my faith to a Home of Reward,
But love is too broad for the least criticism,
Which dwells in my heart in the name of the Lord.
Therefore, to my Catholic friends whom I cherish,
Permit me to say as a servant of God,
Imbued with the light of Love not to perish,
Admiring all creeds I lift never a rod.

Alike we think not of apostles of Heaven,
Yet, when with the journey of life I am through,
I'm sure among the sainted whose sins were forgiven,
Alike I will mingle with Gentile and Jew.
Regardless of creed or religious emotion,
To which priest or preacher attention may call,
Eternal security rests on devotion
To God the Great Lover and Judge of us all!

THE CHINK LAUNDRIES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would like to ask Chief of Police Thompson if the Chinese laundries in the city are subject to inspection, as provided by the Public Health Act. If we are to have a healthy town, plague spots, where disease is usually spread, should not be allowed to exist. If what I am told is true, some of these places should be routed out. Other towns have stringent by-laws in force regulating Chinese Laundries. Peterborough should not be behind hand in this regard.

One Who Knows.

Is It Any Wonder?

Chicago, April 17.—A royal flush brought an attack of heart failure to Miss Laura Cotton, and she died after showing her hand.

THE WEATHER.

Fair and a little milder.

BANNER WHEAT CROP IN THE WEST

Toronto, April 17.—Advices received in the local C.N.R. offices point to a banner wheat crop throughout the West this year. With the exception of Calgary, Lethbridge and a few other points in Alberta, no plowing or seeding has yet been done, but it is expected that by the end of this week everything will be thoroughly under way. Winter wheat prospects are also stated to be excellent, the recent heavy snow-falls having protected the plants from the cold spell which followed.

FIRE AT THE GAS WORKS

At 11.30 last night the fire department were called to a fire at the Gas Works. When the brigade arrived the building at the east end of the works was a mass of flames on the inside. Chief Howard at once put his men to work to prevent the fire from spreading to the other buildings and they gradually fought the flames into submission.

The fire was a difficult one to fight, owing to the amount of oil and other inflamable materials used around the works and which penetrated the wood work of the building, which is a frame one. However, the department was always master of the situation and the men did splendid work.

The nozzel men had to work in relays owing to the smoke and the deadly fumes from the oils. The fire was handled very skillfully by the chief, who recognized the serious situation. The interior of the building was completely gutted by the flames. The department had five streams pouring into the building until early in the morning.

TWO FIREMEN HAD NARROW ESCAPE

LATER.

The fire started from the gasometer, and threatened to be a serious conflagration. Two of the nozzelmen standing on the ladders were overcome by the fumes and fell into the building and had it not been for the prompt action of the chief would have been suffocated. Chief Howard received many commendable remarks from prominent citizens who were in attendance and watched the heroic and skilful work of the brigade.

WILL THIS CITY HAVE A LAWSUIT?

Said That Suits for Damages Will Be Entered.

The Times is informed that a suit for damages against the city over the case of smallpox which recently developed in one of the local hotels, is likely to be entered.

It appears, according to the statement made to The Times, that the party above referred to took sick in a neighboring village, while there on business. A local physician was summoned and the man was advised to come to Peterborough for treatment. He came here and was told to "move on", ten minutes being the time allotted for him to shake the dust of the city from his feet. Instead of doing this, he went to one of the local hotels and registered, and in a day or two was sent to the smallpox hospital, where he now is. The physician who was called in contracted the disease and is also in the hospital tent. The claim for damages will be against the city on account of the alleged lax manner in which the Board of Health treated the matter. It is not unlikely that the city may look to the municipality that sent him to Peterborough.

IF I WERE MAYOR
What I Would Do

Under the above caption The Times invites correspondence. The letters will appear in the Saturday edition only and must deal with local matters, and not political questions. In this way suggestions in regard to local affairs will be in order, and we are sure will be taken in good part by Mayor Morrow and the members of his Council.

TAKE ACTION AGAINST MIXED MARRIAGE DECREE

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH VESTRY MEETING

The vestry meeting of All Saints' was very largely attended last night. The Rector, Rev. Mr. Trumpour was in the chair.

The reports of the various organizations and guilds were very encouraging, showing splendid work being done during the year. The Woman's Auxiliary and the Women's Guild are worthy of special mention, the former raising nearly $400 and the latter over $1,000.

The ordinary plate receipts were over $3,000. The Building fund showed the cost of the new building to be $30,000, so far, of which half has been paid.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

People's Warden—Mr. Frank Dawson.

Rector's Warden—To be chosen later on.

Delegates to Synod—Messrs. McFadden, Spence and H. Morgan.

The Rector's stipend was increased by $200, but in view of the parish undertaking to provide a house, the Rector accepted only $100.

GRAND OLD MAN OF THE PRAIRIES

DECLARES HE OWES HIS SPLENDID HEALTH TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Suffered for Twenty-Five Years From Rheumatism and Kidney Disease—Three Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills Made Him a New Man.

Swift Current, Sask., April 17.—(Special)—Seventy-six years of age, but strong and healthy, Mr. J. Lackey of this place is one of the grand old men of the prairies. But Mr. Lackey has not always enjoyed his present health. "For twenty-five years," he says, "I suffered from Rheumatism, which I inherited. I was nervous. My limbs would swell and I had a severe pain across the back. I also had a heavy dragging sensation across the loins. I am a well man to-day and I attribute it all to three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. My Rheumatism and Kidney Disease have entirely disappeared."

Mr. Lackey is showing his appreciation of Dodd's Kidney Pills by buying them and presenting them to his friends. He has joined the great army of those who have learned from their own experience that as a giver of new life to old and young Dodd's Kidney Pills stand without an equal.

FROM GREAT LAKES TO THE ATLANTIC

Strong Appeal Being Made for the Georgian Bay Canal.

The Times is in receipt of a pamphlet, written on behalf of the proposed Georgian Bay canal. The main points in favor of this undertaking might be classified as follows:

1. A great deep waterway from the Great Lakes to Europe.
2. Being situated at a great distance from the Canadian U.S. boundary, it is free from danger of international complications.
3. Grain of the Northwest, as well as ores of northern Ontario and Quebec would be shipped to tide water without change.
4. Coal of Nova Scotia and lumber and forest products of Ontario and Quebec, to be carried to the heart of the Dominion.

The construction of this waterway would practically render the Trent Canal comparatively worthless, except for local requirements.

There is one medicine that every family should be provided with and especially during the summer months; viz., Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed. It costs but a quarter. Can you afford to be without it? For sale by all dealers.

METHODISTS APPOINT A COMMITTEE TO PREPARE A STATEMENT.

Strong Resolutions Adopted at First Avenue Baptist Church, Toronto, Recently.

Toronto, April 18.—The Methodist Church will soon speak with no uncertain sound on the Ne Temere proclamation. At a meeting of the General Conference Committee, the question was raised and discussed in all its bearings, and a large and strong committee appointed to deal with the whole question, and to issue a statement explaining fully the position of the Canadian Methodist Church on the matter.

The committee is a very representative body. Among those serving on it are Rev. Dr. Carman, Rev. Dr. T. A. Moore, Rev. Dr. Chown and Rev. Dr. W. H. Hincks. Two or three prominent laymen are yet to be added.

Whatever the finding of this committee may be it will be accepted as the position of the Methodist Church in the Dominion.

Following a vigorous lecture on "Jesuitism," by Rev. Dr. W. T. Graham at the First Avenue Baptist Church last night, the audience which filled the edifice adopted a resolution condemning the mixed marriage decree of the Pope, and ordered that the resolution be referred to the Dominion and Provincial Governments. The resolution was as follows:

"That this meeting emphatically utters its protest against the application of the Ne Temere decree in this Dominion, and calls for its immediate withdrawal for the following reasons:

"(1) That whereas many homes are being wrecked through the application of the Papal decree called Ne Temere;

"(2) That whereas the home is the cradle of the nation, and that uniform obligation to its laws are desirable;

"(3) That it is detrimental to the moulding of national life in Canada;

"(4) That the said decree seeks to avoid and nullify the laws of Canada in regard to certain marriages, and that we petition for a complete separation of Church and State, and the throwing off of the old French laws, which now bind Quebec, and of which the Ne Temere is one."

During the course of the lecture Dr. Graham, made a number of stirring statements, each of which he vouched for as fact. He said:

"The Jesuits were directly responsible for the Franco-Prussian war."

"The Roman Catholic Church is straining every effort to regain in Canada that power which she is losing in the older lands."

"Jesuitism is the quintessence of Papacy; its members number millions, and although it pleads poverty it has possessions worth five hundred million dollars."

"The dogmas of Jesuitism authorize wickedness, trickery and theft."

"Under the influence of Jesuitism the Quebec Government granted $40,000 towards the promulgation of Romanism."

"A prominent Jesuit, Dr. McCarthy, stated that the public school system was a national failure, while another said: 'Let the public schools go where they came from—the devil'"

Dr. Graham expressed it as his opinion that every Jesuit should be deported, and, referring to mixed marriages said: "Anyway, what does the Pope know about marriage?"

DR. LANGFELDT'S LECTURE.

Splendid Address at St. Paul's Church Last Night.

There was a good attendance at St. Paul's Church last night to hear Rev. Dr. Langfeldt lecture on Martin Luther. The address was a masterly one, the reverend speaker handling his subject in a way that was intensely interesting and instructive. At the conclusion of the address a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Langfeldt.

PARLIAMENT AND MARRIAGE.

Sir Allen Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, declares that marriage legislation would seem to refer to property and civil rights, and would be a matter within the jurisdiction of the Provinces. It should be made clear that the Minister did not deny the competency of the Dominion Parliament to enact such legislation, says the Toronto News. He scarcely could do that in view of the fact that the Dominion has already taken action. Chapter 105 of the Revised Statutes consolidates legislation of 43 Vic., cap. 42, and 53 Vic., cap. 36, and reads as follows:

1. This act may be cited as the Marriage Act.

2. A marriage is not invalid merely because the woman is a sister of a deceased wife of the man or a daughter of a sister of a deceased wife of the man.

If the Federal Parliament is competent to abolish the restrictions established by the Anglican Church, it is plain that it is able to curb the undue pretensions of the Roman Catholic Church in declaring certain marriages invalid.

At the time Western autonomy was under discussion the Government did not hesitate to claim rights of legislation with respect to education. And the legal basis for that claim was far more hazy and shadowy than the basis for present interference in this question of civil rights.

The protestants of the Province of Quebec are peculiarly affected by the Ne Temere decree, and surely the Federal House should be willing to give them protection against ecclesiastical domination.

REV. FATHER McCOLL.

The Orange Sentinel published the following apology to Rev. Father McColl, in its last issue:

Our attention has been drawn to the fact that we have done Father McColl of Peterboro, an injustice in accepting as true, and commenting upon a statement in the Peterboro Times of January 19. That issue of The Times contained what purported to be an extract from a letter that Father McColl had written to Canon Davidson in reply to an invitation to take tea with several local clergymen. The words used in The Times were: "There can be no compromise between the men in the church and those outside of it. The warfare between the two will be one also in which kid gloves will play no part."

"Although a prompt denial was given to this in Peterboro: the fact has not come to our knowledge until now. The Sentinel therefore frankly expresses its regret at having taken the report in The Times as true, and extends to Father McColl its sincere apologies at having unwittingly misrepresented him in this way.

The Times is also anxious to do full justice to Father McColl. The exact language used by the Reverend Father was as follows: "Against all such, (referring to those who attack and misrepresent the Catholic Church), we are ever ready to use the lawful weapon of self defence, and when we do so kid gloves will form no part of our accoutrement."

So far as this journal is concerned, we would say that the information came from a source that we considered authentic, and it was published as we got it. We regret, if in any way, we have placed Father McColl in a false position. By comparing the two statements our readers will be able to see just how far apart they are.

BRITISH MARINES ON MEXICAN SOIL

Washington, D.C., April 15.—A force of 50 men and a Maxim gun from the British man-of-war Shearwater were landed at San Quintin, Mexico, to protect that town against a threatened attack of insurgents. The revolutionary movement, however, did not materialize, and the Britishers and the gun were withdrawn. This the first actual landing of foreign forces on Mexican soil in connection with the present revolution, was reported to the State Department yesterday in a telegram from American consul Schmucker, at Ensenada. The telegram did not state just when the landing occurred.

A BIG BATTLE IS EXPECTED SOON

Agua Prieta, Sonora, April 15.—Mexican National troops, numbering it is believed, in the neighborhood of a thousand, were encamped early today at the mouth of a canyon to the West of Agua Prieta, in the first mountain range and along the route to Cananea.

They have moved up in various detachments from the Cananea and Arispe localities.

From all appearances one of the biggest battles of the Mexican revolution is imminent.

The rebels of Agua Prieta, augmented over night by the reinforcements of Garcia, number also approximately a thousand well armed men. Further reinforcements from the band still in the field to the south are expected to-day. The rebel commanders have had scouts out all night and to-day watching for the approach of the enemy. Throughout the night they burned their signal fires along the fringe of foothills South and West of the border and to-day their horsemen coursed roads leading into Agua Prieta.

The rebel chiefs have acted on the orders from the United States that they shall refrain in future engagements from firing into Douglas and declared to-day their intention of carrying the battle to the Federal troops the moment the latter appeared on the open plains surrounding Agua Prieta on the Mexican side. Whenever the Mexican troops appear, they say they will precipitate the combat out on the desert and beyond the firing range of the International line.

Sciatica

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY.

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

We have all read and heard of the agonies of Sciatica, but only those who have been tortured by this dread malady can fully appreciate what it must mean to be cured after years of suffering.

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail Service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS.

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." 25 cents per bottle or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Was Too Much Light.

From the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

"Years ago," said Guy Bates Post, the actor, "I appeared in an amateur performance of a play that had a distinct religious flavor. The leading player had studied for the ministry, and had a deep and sonorous voice. In one of the scene the lights were supposed to be turned down and a raging storm simulated. The accompanying lines were:

"Oh, Lord, deliver us from the powers of darkness."

"The leading man spoke the lines, but darkness did not follow. He spoke them again, and still the stage was distressingly light. Finally he roared:

"Oh, Lord, deliver us from the power of darkness, and also give that fool gas man sense enough to turn down zhe lights."

"The gas lights went down and the audience roared."

Logical Theology.

From the Youth's Companion.

A negro known as One-eyed Walling was, and probably is now, a preacher in Virginia. His ideas of theology and human nature were often very original, as the following anecdote may prove:

A gentleman thus accosted the old preacher one Sunday:

"Walling, I understand you believe every woman has seven devils. Now, how can you prove that, I'd like to know?"

"Well, sar, did you ebber read in de Bible how de seben debbles were cast out er Mary Magdelene?"

"Oh, yes, I've heard of that; but what does that prove?"

"Did you ebber hear of 'em bein' cast out of any odder woman, sah?" and the old man assumed a wise look.

"No, I never did."

"Well, den, sah, de odders has sure got 'em yit!"

BABIES SORES

Every mother should realize that the skin of her baby is so tender that the secretions of the body often lead to rashes, eruptions, etc., all of which may be removed by Zam-Buk and the use of Zam-Buk Soap. Scores of restless, crying babies, upon examination, are found to be suffering from some form of skin irritation or "heat." Use Zam-Buk Soap for the bath and apply Zam-Buk Balm to the sores, and the trouble will soon vanish.

Mrs L. Hood, of 475 Alexander Ave., Winnipeg, says: "Some nasty sores broke out around my baby's mouth, and despite all the preparations used, they refused to heal. I took him to St. Boniface Hospital and he remained there for two weeks. At the end of that time he was no better, and we again took him home. I was then advised to try Zam-Buk and obtained a supply. The effect of the first few applications was very gratifying and I continued with the use of the balm. A little perseverance resulted in a complete cure."

Zam-Buk Soap is sold by all Druggists at 25c per tablet and Zam-Buk Balm at 50c box. The Zam-Buk treatment quickly cures eczema, ulcers, sores, ringworm, eruptions, pimples, heat-rashes, piles, cuts, burns and all skin injuries and diseases.

"Miss Jack May" in Male Costume.

St. John, N.B., April 15.—On the arrival of the liner Empress of Ireland yesterday, a female second cabin passenger who gave her name as "Miss Jack May," was detained by the Canadian Immigration officials, she being attired in male costume. She readily admitted that she was of the opposite sex and said that she and her male companion had worked on a farm in England. She had her hair cropped short, wore leggings and tan boots and a short skirt that was not visible below a man's overcoat. Her age was about 30. They had about 11 pieces of baggage, including a rifle, and were bound for the Canadian West.

Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It's because the healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes, because its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons why Catarrhozone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Throat Trouble.

The wonderful soothing vapor of Catarrhozone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing, curative effect that is impossible with a tablet or liquid, which goes merely to the stomach, and fails entirely to help the throat and lungs.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing, and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only, 50c and $1, at all dealers.

An Interesting Lecture.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute, delivered an interesting and instructive lecture in St. James' Church last night, under the auspices of the Epworth League. The subject was "Florence, the Beautiful." There was a good attendance.

Realized $75.

The Bazaar held under the auspices of the Thinking of Others Club, in the premises lately occupied by J. D. Tully, realized $75, which was given to the Children's Aid Society. This is certainly creditable to the young girls connected with the club. Yesterday afternoon, Mr. R. Gibbs placed a bus at the disposal of the girls and they drove to the Shelter and distributed edibles and other articles left over from the sale.

A Quiet Wedding.

On Saturday last the marriage was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Shewerd, 108 Lansdowne street, of Mr. Thomas Williams to Miss Annie L. Mow Bray. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Brown, pastor of St. James' Methodist church. Miss Maggie Shewerd was bridesmaid and Mr. Walter Farr, best man. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside in Peterborough.

Hon. William Bryan Coming.

Arrangements have been completed for a visit from Hon. William Jennings Bryan to lecture here under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., on Thursday, May 18th. His subject will be "Prince of Peace." Mr. Bryan ran twice on the Democratic ticket for President of the United States, but was defeated on each occasion. He is known as the Silver-Tongued Orator of America.

A Plucky Rescue.

A very plucky rescue from drowning was made on Good Friday. It appears that three young lads were playing on the old dam above the Otonabee Bridge, when one of the number, a lad of about ten years of age, named James Dixon, of Campbellford, fell into the swift running current and was rapidly carried down stream. Mr. James Ellis, of East City, who happened to be on the shore, pluckily jumped in and rescued the boy. It was a brave act and one that should be recognized.

Rushing C.P.R. Near Bethany.

The C.P.R. is busy shipping machinery trucks, etc., into Bethany and points south of Lindsay. On Thursday last, an official of the C. P. R. was in the village and engaged nine men to unload a carload of dump cars and rails to be used in constructing the new railroad. Two or more carloads of supplies are expected next week, when the contractors will begin to build the camp and proceed with the work of construction.

Y.M.C.A. Basketball.

The second game in the series of three, for the local intermediate championship will be run off to-night when the Collegiate bunch play the Intermediates. The Collegiates won the first game handily and if the second comes their way they will trot off with the silverware.

To Our City Subscribers.

We again request our subscribers in the city to notify the office when the delivery of The Times is made after 7 a.m., and also in cases of non-delivery. Our carrier boys are instructed NOT to fling the paper over the fence, or on the verandah, but to place, if possible in the house, or where the wind cannot blow it away. The management will, therefore, feel obliged when any fault is found as above, to at once notify this office by phone or otherwise.

Pleaded Guilty.

Thos. Drain, appeared before His Worship Magistrate Dumble in the police court yesterday morning, on a charge of having stolen a sheep from Mr. Edward Fitzgerald. He pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence until the 22nd.

A fourteen year old boy was charged at the police court yesterday with running away from home. He went to Toronto some time ago, and worked there, until his guardians located him, when he was brought home. He has now been at home for about three weeks, and was caught at the station with his ticket bought for Toronto again. Yesterday morning, to see if something could not be done His Worship after giving the lad some good advice, let him go.

An Original Idea.

The attention of The Times has been called to a scheme proposed by Rev. Father Myrand, of Ottawa, who laid it before a ladies' meeting in that city the other day. Father Myrand stated that he was going to start a large sewing shop where ladies' and men's clothes would be made. This shop would provide work for the girls of the parish who belonged to poor families. He believed that the benefit to be derived from his idea consisted in two things: That many girls now working in cigar factories, mica shops and like places, by working in the proposed sewing shop would learn how to sew, a thing which every poor girl should know, and that unlike many mica shops and cigar factories, the sewing shops would be a moral and healthy place to work in. The girls are to be paid from the profit derived from their sewing. Mrs. Boivin will take charge of the shop. A sum of money was voted by the St. Vincent de Paul Society for the immediate advancement of Rev. J. A. Myrand's idea. Peterborough might with advantage, follow this example.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

HENRY MATTHEWS ACQUITTED.

The Summing Up of the Judge Was Against the Prisoner, But Twelve Men Were Unanimous in His Favor.

Cobourg, April 17.—Today Henry J. Matthews, jr., walks about a free man again, unburdened by a jury of twelve men of the charge of murdering Johanna Brimacombe in the Bristol Hotel on the 17th December last. The announcement of the verdict at three minutes after eleven o'clock on Saturday night brought to a close one of the most remarkable trials ever conducted in Ontario.

The judge summed up strongly against the prisoner. Yet it is said on good authority that the jury had reached a unanimous decision to acquit within five minutes after leaving the court room. The four hours of feigned deep deliberation it was learned on very good authority was the result of a desire to conciliate the carefully uttered adverse pronouncement of the court.

Robbers Commit Murder.

Chicago, April 17.—Samuel Meyer, a saloon keeper, was fatally wounded to-day and his porter, whose name was Ernest was killed outright by three robbers, who had attempted to seize the proprietor's cash.

This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

VOL. XXXIV NO. 86 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY APRIL 19 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

RICHARD CROKER'S DAUGHTER WANTS A DIVORCE—HUSBAND LIVING IN PETERBOROUGH

ELOPEMENT WHICH FRIENDS DENIED AND SOCIETY SNUBBED AT, IS CONFIRMED BY BRIDE'S APPLICATION FOR A SEPARATION.

Mr. Breen Now in Toronto With Mr. Stratton's Horses—Was to New York Recently and Engaged His Counsel.

New York, April 18.—Mrs. Ethel Croker Breen, youngest daughter of the former Tammany chieftain, Richard Croker, has started a suit in Hudson county, New Jersey, for annulment of her marriage to John J. Breen, the Durland groom whom she married April 28th, 1910, after having spurned an English nobleman and an Italian Prince.

It has been reported that a number of conferences took place in this city before the action was started. As recently as last Tuesday Breen came here from Canada, where he is employed, and engaged counsel to make some show of defence to the action.

Search for Mrs. Breen last night, revealed the fact that she is now living in Paris with her sister, the Duchess San Martino, who was Miss Florence Croker. They have a fine home at number 24 Champs Elysee. She sailed several weeks ago.

IS STRATTON'S GROOM.

Breen, who has been in charge of the stable of Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., at Peterborough, Ontario, has visited New York twice within three weeks the final visit taking place the day before that on which Richard Croker sailed for home in Ireland.

Confirmation of the report that the action had been started came from O'Neil Seelig, a friend of young Breen, who is employed at the Knickerbooker stables in West Fifty-Fourth street. At first he demurred to answering questions, but finally said:

"John J. Breen, who has been my friend for years, was in town, but left last Tuesday, the day before Richard Croker sailed. Breen came down here to negotiate for the sale of the horse Midget. He was here only one day. Although he planned to remain longer, he received a telegram ordering him at once to Peterborough, Ontario.

ACTION BY THE CROKERS.

"I understand the action has been started by the Croker family. My friend has made arrangements to return to New York in the early fall, and it is probable the matter will come up then for court action and disposition. He was down here a few weeks ago to attend the sale of the Paul Sorg horses, but made no purchases. Now I understand Mr. Breen has secured the services of an attorney to represent his interests in this action while he is away.

BREEN WAS SURPRISED.

"This was a surprise to Breen. Last fall he was given assurances that his wife was to join him in Canada during the winter. He went to Ontario on that assurance and took charge of the Stratton string. You recall that the bride went to Paris with her mother soon after the news of the wedding became public. They told Breen it was necessary for her to go there to get fitted out.

"For a time she wrote very friendly letters to him. Then these suddenly ceased. It looked to Breen, as he told it to me, that the Crokers were using their influence to keep his girl-wife away.

"I understand that this suit was started in Hudson County, N.J. You know that they were married in Hoboken. It has not come up in the court yet, but when it does, the proceedings will be open. I am sure, if Breen has anything to say about it, the report that there has been a secret annulment is false, I am sure.

GROUNDS OF THE ACTION.

"I have been told that the family proceeded in this step to obtain the annulment upon three grounds. First, that as Breen was a Protestant and Miss Croker a Catholic, the marriage was not recognized because she did not obtain the sanction of the church; second, that the marriage was only a civil formality, and that is not recognized by the family; third, that Breen was not a resident of New Jersey when he got the license, having merely taken a room in a hotel for the day. I am sure Breen will corroborate all I have told you."

COMING TO TORONTO.

Seelig added that Breen would arrive to-day in Toronto, where he is to show the Stratton horses in the Toronto Horse Show. He said he was confident his friend would not object to relating the facts, and he scoffed at the idea of a prearranged friendly action with the family.

MARRIAGE AROUSED AMUSEMENT.

Society refused to believe when the first report was given to the public, on May 1, 1910, that Richard Croker's daughter had eloped and married a groom. Miss Croker laughed when asked about it, and said it was ridiculous. Breen denied it vigorously, and declared he was "merely a servant in the eyes of Miss Croker." Her brothers denied it, and the justice of the peace, who had performed the ceremony backed them up by declaring that a photograph of Miss Croker that was placed before him did not resemble the woman he had married to Breen.

But May 3, the facts were made public in a sworn affidavit by Justice Samuel Enger the man who performed the ceremony. He admitted under oath, that he had kept the facts quiet at the urgent request of Breen, who told the Magistrate that he feared the confirmation would cost him his position at a local riding academy.

When Richard Croker reached New York last November he made this statement about his daughter and Breen.

"My daughter Ethel is now with her mother in Paris, and will remain there. There is no truth in the report that she has thought of a reunion. She will not return to Mr. Breen. I have nothing further to say."

DESPERATE FIGHTING ON THE MEXICAN FRONTIER RESUMED—DOUGLAS IN STATE OF TERROR—BULLETS RATTLED IN STREETS

UNITED STATES CONSULATES OFFER PROTECTION TO REFUGEES OF ALL NATIONS INCLUDING JAPS AND CHINESE RESIDENTS.

The Rebels Left Agua Prieta Secretly and the Federal Troops Moved Into the City.

Douglas, April 18.—The rebels left Agua Prieta secretly during the early morning and the federals moved in to occupy the city at dawn.

Douglas, Ariz., April 18.—Fighting between the Federals under Lieut.-Col. Raynaldo Diaz and the insurrectos defending Agua Prieta was resumed at dawn. Firing between the outposts of the two armies was kept up through the night and the bullets whistled into Douglas from the Mexican rifles.

The Federals held a more advantageous position when the battle was resumed this morning, having captured the first rebel line last night, and some of the trenches on the very outskirts of the town.

NIGHT OF TERROR IN DOUGLAS

The rebels under Antonio Garcia, Balzac Garzza, and "Red" Lopez were not allowed to sleep during the night. The two armies faced each other in the darkness, each expecting a hostile move on the part of the other. American troops under Col. Shunk, of the border cavalry patrol, were massed in Fourth and in Fifth streets to-day keeping back the Americans who insisted on getting into the danger zone.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASE SPREADING IN OTTAWA

Smallpox, Diptheria and Typhoid is Raging and Prorogation May be Hastened.

Ottawa, April 18.—The sanitary conditions of Ottawa bid fair to bring about an early prorogation. They will no doubt engage the attention of Parliament when it re-assembles on Wednesday. Typhoid fever, has been followed by diptheria and smallpox. The latter disease is so prevalent that compulsory vaccination will probably be ordered at the Council meeting to-night. Since 1st of January, twelve hundred cases of typhoid have been reported; 64 deaths resulted from these cases.

Forty-two smallpox patients are now on Poter's Island, but there are many other cases in the city.

HAREM SKIRT STARTS A SERIOUS RIOT

New York, April 18.—A special to the World from Chicago says:

Attired in a brilliant light blue harem skirt a statuesque young woman turned into State street to-day. "Pipe the harem skirt," shouted a boy.

That started the worst riot State street has seen since the teamster's strike. Before quiet was restored police reserves both mounted and foot were called out and heads were cracked with their clubs.

SCARLET FEVER AND DIPHTHERIA AT THE ISOLATION HOSPITAL

There are sixteen cases of scarlet fever in the Isolation hospital. Ald. Duncan, chairman of the City Property Committee called a meeting of his committee for last evening at 5 o'clock to get authority for the purchase of additional towels and other requisites, the need for which is created by the admission of a diptheria case yesterday, but only Ald. Brown putting in an appearance, there were not sufficient members to form a quorum. Ald. Duncan will therefore purchase these supplies needed without waiting for formal authority to do so.

BOY RUN OVER AND HIS LEG BROKEN

A Boy Named Aslag Severely Injured by Rig.

Yesterday evening about 7 o'clock, a lad named John Aslag, living on George street north was run over by a rig and severely injured. He was crossing the street when the accident occurred. The lad's leg was broken above the knee. He was picked up and taken to Dr. Morgan's surgery, where he was transferred to an ambulance and driven to Nicholls' Hospital. Dr. Morgan set the broken limb last night. The boy is about 10 years old. His father is a shoemaker in the employ of Mr. J. W. Carey, the George street shoe merchant.

PUBLIC OPINION

A COMPLAINT RE LIBRARY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I take the liberty of asking through your valuable paper, why the public entrance to the Library building on the north side is kept locked. I happen to live on Harvey Street, and on several occasions tried to get into the Public Library at that entrance, but failed. The rain was falling in torrents and there was nothing to do but to retreat and walk around to the west side. I would suggest that the other door be left open for the convenience of those living in the north east portion of the city.

CURFEW BELL FOR PETERBOROUGH.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Lately being a resident of Ottawa, I am naturally interested in what goes on in my native city. In this connection I notice by the Journal that the ladies of the capital have started a movement with the object of having a curfew bell, which would call children under the age of sixteen from the streets to their homes before 9 o'clock in the evening.

The movement will be organized on broad lines, and all Protestant and Roman Catholic churches in the city will be asked to co-operate.

Would not a similar movement be a good thing for Peterborough? I frequently see young children on the streets at 10 o'clock at night. Surely something of this nature would be a wise step.

An Anxious Mother.

TO BEAUTIFY THE ELECTRIC CITY

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY TO BOOM THE GOOD WORK.

Many Reasons Why Citizens Should Join the Society—Government Grant Based on the Number of Members.

The article reproduced below which is a portion of an address delivered before the Lindsay Horticultural Society by the President Mr. W. M. Robson, is an excellent exposition of the work and aims of the horticultural societies of Ontario. It gives some information in regard to what other societies are doing in Ontario, and shows the advantages to be derived from increasing the membership of our horticultural society. For instance, the Government grant is based largely on the membership of the society. In 1909 Peterboro received a Government grant of $104 St. Catharines, with a population considerably smaller than Peterboro, received the same year a grant of $913. This large grant was due largely to the fact that the St. Catharines Horticultural Society had a much larger membership than the Peterboro Society, there having been in 1909 a membership of 645 which has since been increased to 1000 or over. Every membership received means that Peterboro will get just that much larger Government grant next year.

In order to increase the membership of Peterboro Horticultural Societs to 500 this year, we are making special premium offers of plants suitable for bedding out or for window boxes, or if desired house plants or other premiums, which if bought at retail price would alone cost more than the price of the membership ticket. I would be pleased to furnish citizens of Peterboro who wish to become members, with a membership ticket, and would at the same time ask you to join us in this campaign to beautify Peterboro, and at the same time help yourself to improve your surroundings by getting in touch with the best information along horticultural lines.—Frank Wise, Secretary, Supt. Little Lake Cemetery.

"Horticulture is in itself a delightful subject—one that all of us are very intimately connected with, either by its sheer utility, for culinary purposes, or from an intimate love of its adaptability to the pleasures of life. The holding of public meetings is one of the requirements of all Societies that are subsidized by Government. Many of the larger and prosperous Societies in Ontario, extend (or include) in their work, assistance to their cities and municipal Councils, by way of looking after the beautification and sanitation of their respective cities or towns; often acting as Advisory Boards on public parks and school gardens, together with numerous other civic improvements. Such a work of practical patriotism must have a decided beneficial effect on the, and its inhabitants by creating a love of the beautiful in the hearts and homes of the people. "For a thing of beauty is a joy forever" as well as an asset to the town.

Just for a moment let us consider the benefit of conditions and surroundings. When ever it is desirable to realize the highest ideal in the animal or vegetable kingdom, it is absolutely necessary to provide the best conditions and environments to achieve this purpose. Therefore it ought to be one of the highest functions of municipalities to provide for the happiness and efficiency of the people, so as to inspire a love and loyalty for home and town. (as beautifully expressed by Sir Walter Scott in his "Love of Country"). There is at present sixty or more Horticultural Societies in the Province with a membership of over 10,000, receiving from the Provincial Government a grant of from $8,000 to $10,000 annually and this amount is distributed amongst the Societies according to membership. Probably the most prosperous Societies in Ontario are at Ottawa, Perth, Toronto, St. Catharines, Galt and London. These all have large grants and are doing a great work in return, by attending to civic improvements and endeavoring to remove all that is objectionable or unsightly, with the object of making surroundings in general more enjoyable. Many of the less influential or smaller societies endeavour to create a spirit of emulation by offering prizes for the best kept lawns, for public competition, thus acting as an auxiliary in assisting the Council of their respective towns.

Voluntary work of this nature is surely worthy of support at all times from Government and people alike. The City of Ottawa's Society had added to their work a Children's Flower Guild that has proved enjoyable and profitable to all connected with it being under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Grey; also many leading citizens and clergy. This branch is presided over by the President of the Provincial Horticultural Society, R. B. Whyte, of Ottawa.

This is a very brief summary of the work the majority of the Societies in both Canada and the States are at the present time doing. Under such prevailing conditions, the Directors of the Lindsay Society felt it to be their duty to try and infuse new life and more enthusiasm, by striving to get an additional membership so that they might be in a better position to take a part in the necessary improvements of the town. To the lovers of fruit, flowers and general improvements, this would be a desirable fraternity to associate with, as you receive quite a percentage on the dollar invested in the following premiums: Literature, trees, shrubs, and flowers, or whatever in thought best to distribute by the society.

In conclusion I might say that an increased membership would not necessarily help the individual member from a pecuniary stand point, but would materially add to the efficiency of the Society, by a corresponding increased Government grant.—Lindsay Post.

A TRUE BILL AGAINST DELINE FOR MURDER

The Man Accused of Killing His Wife Will be Tried To-day.

The Belmont murder case is now before the Spring Court of Assize, which opened yesterday before His Lordship, Justice Teetzel. Hugh Deline, of Belmont township, will have to answer for the murder of his wife.

His Lordship, in addressing the Grand Jury, explained that their duties would include the serious charge of murder. It was not for the Grand Jury to determine whether or not the prisoner was guilty, but to decide whether or not there was enough evidence to commit him for trial.

The public are already aware of the shocking details of this crime.

After the judge's address, the Jury retired to investigate the case, and at 3.45 brought in a true bill against the prisoner. The case will proceed to-day, a number of witnesses being on hand to give evidence.

SAD ENDING OF A YOUNG LIFE

Reginald N. Hendren Shoots Himself in Edmonton.

The sad new was received here yesterday that Mr. Reginald N. Hendren of Peterborough, committed suicide in Edmonton on the 13th. It appears that the deceased, who had only just arrived in the West, had been suffering from acute tonsilitis, which gave him indescribable pain. He went into the Express Company's office and secured a revolver from a trunk he had there, and shot himself in the temple, dying immediately. He left a letter directed to the police, asking that his body be turned over to the undertaker and sent to his home in Peterborough. He also stated that tonsilitis kept him from eating, and that he was suffering more than he could bear. Six trunks for the deceased and for his brothers, George and Fred, are now at the Express office awaiting claimants. They arrived in the city on the 10th, and indicated that the three brothers intended to take up land in the West. They have been communicated with, and it is expected they will return with the body in a few days.

FOUR NORTH-WEST MOUNTED POLICE ATE DOGS BEFORE STARVING TO DEATH

NAMES OF THE DEAD HEROES:

Inspector F. J. Fitzgerald, Halifax, N.S.
Constable Carter, N.-W.-M.P.
Constable Kiney, N.-W.M.P.
Constable Taylor, N.-W.M.P.

Sergeant Selig, who was stationed on Herschel Island, at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, is also reported to have died there.

Dawson, Yukon Territory, April 18.—The bodies of the Mounted Police of the R.N.W.M.P., who set out December 22 from Fort MacPherson for Dawson, and for whom fears have been entertained for weeks, were found not far south of MacPherson by the relief expedition which left Dawson on February 21.

The men in the ill-fated Fort MacPherson expedition, which was under command of Captain F. J. Fitzgerald and consisted of Constables Carter, Kiney and Taylor, perished on the banks of the Peel river, after their supplies had given out and they had eaten their dogs.

The relief expedition took the bodies to MacPherson and returned to Dawson, arriving here yesterday.

MOTHER HEARS OF IT.

Halifax, N.S., April 18.—A despatch was received here last night by Mrs. John Fitzgerald of this city, conveying to her the news of the death of her son, Frank, who was inspector of the Northwest Mounted Police. The despatch was from A. B. Perry commissioner of the Mounted Police at Regina. Commissioner Perry states that Inspector Fitzgerald's death occurred last January near Fort MacPherson, while making patrol to Dawson, and that three other members of the party met death at the same time.

Inspector Fitzgerald had been with the North-West Mounted Police for nineteen or twenty years and made a splendid name for himself. He was the first man to make his way to Dawson over the trail on which he met his death. The rank of inspector is equivalent to that of major in the army.

A FIFTH VICTIM.

Regina, Sask., April 18.—The R.N.W.M.P. patrol which left Dawson City in charge of Corporal Denistoun February 28, for Fort MacPherson, came across the bodies of Constable Kiney and Taylor some thirty-five miles out from Fort MacPherson, and twenty-five miles from the fort, discovered the bodies of Inspector Fitzgerald and ex-Constable Carter. All the bodies were taken to Fort MacPherson, where they were buried.

This is the official information received by Commissioner Perry at the R.N.W.M.P. headquarters here by telegraph from Dawson City.

BURT ARRESTED AT COLBORNE

Colborne, Ont., April 18.—Leslie Burt, the young man who startled the town yesterday morning with the story that he had been bound and gagged by a stranger who afterwards set fire to The Express block, was arrested this morning and charged with the crime himself, on the advice of Detective Miller of Toronto.

Burt was found with his hands and feet tied, in The Express office, about 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning, while flames were spreading through the building. He suffered several burns before being hauled to safety by a liveryman. The entire block was destroyed.

INTERMEDIATES WIN.

Defeated the Collegiate Team in the Second Game of the Series by a Score of 38—21.

The Collegiate bunch met defeat at the hands of the Intermediates last night in a swiftly contested game. This ties the two teams for the silverware, but it certainly looks good for the red and white.

The members of both teams worked like demons, playing fast and checking hard.

It would be hard to specialize, but Nicholls did some spectacular shooting as did Hastie. For the losers, Hill and Rae were the pick.

The half-time score was 20 -15 in favor of the intermediates, with a final score of 38-21.

The following was the line-up:

—Intermediates.—
Forwards—Hastie and Nicholls.
Centre—Erwin.
Defence—Hanwell and Fitzgerald.

—Collegiate—
Forwards—Hill and Laing.
Centre—Bartlett.
Defence—Rae and Stewart.

EMIGRATION FROM IRELAND.

Nearly 34,000 emigrants left Ireland in 1910—a fact which indicates that the Irish, in spite of home rule promises, see little prospect of better conditions at home in the near future. In 1909 the emigration was about 30,000; in the five years from 1904 to 1908 inclusive it averaged 32,000 a year approximately, the extremes being 23,952 in 1908 and 39,082 in 1907. The total emigration from Great Britain of people of Irish origin was much greater, and nearly all were destined for the United States. One-third of the whole number that left Ireland in 1910 are said to have had their passage paid by relatives or friends in the United States and Canada.

It is evident from the figures that there is no interruption to the decline of Ireland's population, but it is not so evident that the Irish are dissatisfied with the prospect at home. America is still the land of opportunity for them as for other people ambitious to better their condition. Further, of the 34,000 who left in 1910, nearly 14,000 were under the age of 25. The young are venturesome and eager to change in every land.

SEAMEN TO STRIKE IN COASTWISE TRADE

250,000 SAILORS TO LEAVE THEIR POSTS ON MAY FIRST.

Affects European Ports—Involves the Men Employed on Boats Controlled by the Shipping Federation.

New York, April 17.—An international strike of seamen, involving 250,000 men and eight nations, has been ordered to take effect May 1st. For the first time in the history of labor organizations American and European workmen will make common cause and strike simultaneously against the Shipping Federation, Limited, which has its headquarters in London, England.

Preparations for the strike have been under way for almost a year, but the date on which the blow would be struck has been a carefully guarded secret. Officials of the International Seamen's Union of America virtually admit, however, that May 1st has been fixed as the date when every seaman on a vessel controlled by the Shipping Federation will leave his post.

Will Not Affect Divers.

More than 20,000 deep water sailors and men engaged in coastwise trade on the Atlantic coast will be involved. Every seaman engaged in merchant marine traffic in Great Britain, France, Germany, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland will quit work as soon as the order is issued. The British contingent embraces about 100,000 men, and the number in all the other European countries is estimated at about 125,000.

Americans preparing to visit England for the Coronation exercises need not be alarmed. The passenger lines are controlled by a class of owners against which the organized workers have no grievances. The strike, it is said, will not effect the traffic on the Pacific Ocean.

No Compromise, Says Olander.

Victor A. Olander, vice-president of the International Seamen's Union, arrived in Chicago yesterday from an extended tour along the Atlantic coast and said that everything was in readiness for the strike. No compromise is said to be possible, as all the international unions of seamen have decided that the Shipping Federation must be broken up if the unions are to exist.

"Welfare Plan" Is Grievance.

The Shipping Federation, as originally organized, was confined to vessel owners in Great Britain, but within the last two or three years it has included most of the ship owners in European countries. The unions followed the same plan and held an international convention in Norway last fall, when the strike was agreed upon.

The main grievance of the seamen is a so-called "welfare plan" adopted by the Shipping Federation, which the sailors assert amounts virtually to a system of slavery. Every seaman shipping on a vessel is required to carry a "discharge book" which contains his record as to character, ability and the names of vessels on which he has been employed. The officer in charge of the ship makes the entries on the "discharge book" and the unions say if an officer has a grudge against a seaman he will make an entry that will forever prevent the man from getting employment on another ship. No man can be employed unless he is in possession of the "discharge book," and the union men claim it amounts to a blacklist and that it is used by vessel owners to break up the labor organization.

Will Push Lake Strike.

The adoption of the same rules by the Lake Carrier's Association caused the strike of lake seamen two years ago, which is still in force and is to be pushed with renewed vigor on the opening of navigation. Olander declared yesterday that the union had no idea of giving up the fight on the lakes, which will be prosecuted independent of the larger conflict on ocean-going vessels.

Some attempted to gain vantage points to view the field of battle. With the first galling fire from the entrenchments the Federals were seen to waver momentarily, but the movement was quickly checked.

WARSHIP ON GREAT LAKES

CANADA AGREES TO ALLOW WARSHIP TO PASS UP DESPITE THE TREATY.

She Has Six Four-Inch Guns—Can Throw a Thirty Pound Shell—Why Ottawa Agreed to It.

Ottawa, April 17.—Another American warship has been given permission to pass the Canadian canals to the upper lakes. She is the gunboat Dubuque, and it is said to be the intention of the United States to use her in place of the gunboat Nashville. There is now a considerable fleet of war vessels used on the great lakes by the naval militia, whose armaments exceeds the provisions of the treaty made many years ago barring warships from these inland waters. In every case Canada has waived objection to the violation of the treaty.

The Dubuque is a vessel 174 feet in length, whose regular complement is nine officers, and 149 men. She is 8 years old, of 1,965 tons, with a speed of 12 knots. She cost $442,463. She is equipped with six 4-inch rapid-fire guns, weighing about three tons, which throws a shell weighing over 30 pounds. Besides six guns of this type, she carries four six-pounders and two 1-pound rapid firing guns.

Other vessels on the great lakes include the Yantic, the Don Juan de Austria, and the Wasp.

The Dubuque is a smaller vessel than the Nashville, but has a more modern armament and is better fitted for training purposes.

The Globe in a despatch this morning explains the Government's action thus:

"It was deemed wise by the Government to permit this exchange as a matter of courtesy to the United States rather than to refuse to allow the Dubuque to pass up through the canals, thereby possibly inviting action by the American Government to abrogate the agreement of nearly a century providing for the limitation of armaments on the great lakes."

"Miss Jack May" in Male Costume.

St. John, N.B., April 15.—On the arrival of the liner Empress of Ireland yesterday, a female second cabin passenger who gave her name as "Miss Jack May," was detained by the Canadian Immigration officials, she being attired in male costume. She readily admitted that she was of the opposite sex and said that she and her male companion had worked on a farm in England. She had her hair cropped short, wore leggings and tan boots and a short skirt that was not visible below a man's overcoat. Her age was about 30. They had about 11 pieces of baggage, including a rifle, and were bound for the Canadian West.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED TO STOP ASIATIC INVASION

New York, April 17.—"The relations between Great Britain and the United States of America constitute the real key to the situation in preserving the peace of the world," said Sir Joseph Ward, Premier of New Zealand here to-day. He is making a brief stay in New York on the way to London to attend the Imperial Conference and the Coronation.

"In the British oversea Dominions adjacent to the Pacific it is recognized that one of the most important questions we have to keep before us is the preserving of our territory for the British race and doing everything in our power to prevent Asiatic immigration to any great extent," said Sir Joseph. "This problem is one which also closely concerns the United States, and, in my judgment, some well-thought-out plan of Anglo-Saxon co-operation is necessary to preserve all the countries of America from invasion of Asiatics."

LEFT BOUND AND GAGGED A PREY TO THE FLAMES

Colborne, April 17.—Interrupted in his work of robbing the office of the Colborne Express, a burglar seized his disturber, Leslie Burt, gagged and bound him and then set fire to the premises, leaving the boy helpless in the midst of the flames.

A few minutes later the youth was rescued from his terrible situation by a liveryman, but not before he had suffered terrible burns. The entire block was destroyed.

Police officers and citizens are scouring the neighborhood in search of the fiend, who attempted to add murder to his crimes of robbery and incendiarism.

The boy describes the stranger as being tall and about 30 years of age, with a black moustache.

ONE ARREST MADE.

A stranger was arrested while the fire was in progress and looked up on suspicion, but he was able to clear himself when questioned this morning.

The burned premises were The Express, owned by George Keyes & Son; branch of the Toronto Bank; Chase Bros., nursery stock; McCracken's Hardware store; and E. R. Wilson's insurance office. These premises were entirely destroyed and the total loss is estimated at about $10,000.

According to the story of Leslie Burt, he was passing the Express office about 1.30 this morning when he saw the burglar moving about inside. He entered to investigate and was at once seized and thrown to the floor. His hands and feet were tied fast, rendering him entirely helpless. Burt was also gagged. The stranger then set fire to the papers and cleared out.

The youth was found in this condition by the liveryman who was the first to be attracted to the scene by belching smoke and flames.

Leslie is a printer and has been in Colborne only two weeks. He is said to hail from Picton.

All the burned premises were insured.

JAPAN HAS BEEN SECRETLY PLOTTING AGAINST CHINA

Pekin, April 17.—The presence of the Chinese Minister to Tokio in this city gave rise to reports to-day that evidences of an intrigue involving Japan and Russia has been discovered. It was said that Japan has been secretly plotting to gain control of the diplomatic situation, and to that end has sent agents here to foment agitation against the Government. Quantities of arms and ammunition are said to have been smuggled into Pekin.

MORMONS MOBBED.

London, April 17.—The Mormons of Heywood kept their promise and left that town on Saturday.

A movement against the propaganda, similar to that in Heywood, resulted in a small riot last night in Birkenhead.

A crowd of towns people went to the Mormon Hall and demanded that the missionaries quit the town. The Mormons refused, and the crowd began to storm the hall. The police were summoned gurriedly, but they were pelted with stones and mud. In the fight that followed many persons were hurt. The police finally triumphed and made several arrests.

An Economizer of Time and Labor

FROM seed time to harvest the farmer is a busy man.

That's why the shrewd farmer appreciates the value of the Bell Telephone Service.

He may be miles from the railroad and the nearest shipping point. He is expecting a freight shipment—what does he do? With his Bell Telephone he calls up the freight agent. If the shipment has not arrived—no use in going to town.

There's always plenty at hand to do. The Bell Service gives him opportunity.

Favorable Rates and a large Exchange Service make the Company's proposition attractive.

Prepare for Lumbago

If You Have "Nerviline" Handy One Rubbing Will Cure the Pain.

THOUSANDS USE "NERVILINE."

The "strike" of lumbago is like a bolt of lightning—you never know when it is coming or where it is going to strike. Probably the one certain thing about lumbago is the fact that it can be cured by Nerviline—the only liniment that penetrates deeply enough to reach the congested chords and muscles.

"Years ago I strained my back and suffered considerably with weakness over the spine," writes Darius P. Millan, a well-known farmer residing near Kingsville. "Then lumbago attacked the weak spot, and for days at a time I would have to lie up in bed, unable to move or turn. Liniments, poultices and hot applications failed to bring the desired relief, and I was in despair of ever getting really well again. I at last decided to test 'Nerviline.' I got five bottles from the drug store and had it rubbed on three times a day. The stiffness and pain left my back quickly, and by continuing Nerviline I was completely cured of Lumbago."

This is similar testimony to that of nearly five thousand Canadians who have written unstinted words of praise to the manufacturers of Nerviline. For the cure of lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia and rheumatism there is no liniment with one-fifth the pain relieving power of Nerviline.

Refuse any substitute. Large 25c. bottles of Nerviline, or five for $1.00 at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

ECZEMA FOR NINE YEARS.

Zam-Buk Works Another Great Cure.

Another wonderful cure of the dread scourge, eczema, by the great herbal balm, Zam-Buk, is reported from Montreal by Mr. Thos. Amesse, of 600 St. Timothe St. He says:

"For about nine years my son, Emile, was a great sufferer from eczema. The disease broke out on his face and arms, which were covered with sores. These would scale over for a time, but would then break open again and cause him terrible agony. At other times they would itch and burn, and it was impossible for him to refrain from scratching.

"We tried salves and soaps, and preparations of all kinds, but it seemed that we could get nothing to benefit him. This state of affairs went on during nine long years, and you can well imagine the agony he suffered!

"Zam-Buk was recommended to us, but we feared it would prove like all other remedies had proved—useless! We got a supply, however, and it was not long before we found out its virtues. It eased the pain and removed the irritation. Then it began to heal the sores, until bit by bit the patch got less and less. The skin which was cracked and sore became soft and smooth, and in the end every trace of the disease was banished."

Not only for eczema, but for ulcers, blood poisoning, bad leg, varicose ulcers, itch, salt rheum, scalp sores, children's rashes and piles, Zam-Buk and Zam-Buk Soap constitute a certain cure. The soap is fine for baby's bath! It cures pimples, rashes and eases those chafed, inflamed patches. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c box and Soap at 25c a tablet, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Chemong Bridge Damaged.

The ice in Chemong Lake began on Saturday to move with the high wind, and crowded the bridge about 12 feet from its anchorage. It will take some days to have the damage repaired.

Another Parade.

The 57th Regiment again held a most successful drill last night, in spite of the bad weather conditions. Both bands were in attendance and livened things up to a high degree.

Men For The Drives.

Yesterday Mr. T. Cavanagh sent 20 men back to the Cresswell lumber camps, north of Buckhorn, to bring out the logs which have been cut during the winter. Wages of the men range from $26 to $35 per month.

A Small Sized Strike.

Twelve pattern makers have quit work at the C.G.E. Works, having demanded an increase in wages, amounting to 25c per day. It is likely the difficulty will be adjusted without trouble.

What Is It?

"Where is that odour coming from? Where is it? It seems familiar." Such exclaimations were heard on the main streets yesterday as the citizens again acquainted themselves with the "odourless" oil. However, the oil certainly kept the dust down and as soon as the smell blows over there is not much to complain about.

Successful At Home.

The at home given under the auspices of the "Big Five" at Havelock, on Tuesday evening, was the most successful event of the kind ever held in that village. A large number attended from Peterborough and surrounding points. The music was supplied by Dovey's orchestra of this city, while Mr. Archie Moore, of Peterborough, filled the responsible position of floor manager in a most satisfactory manner.

A Delightful Function.

The at home given under the auspices of the West End Athletic Club, at the Conservatory Hall on Monday evening, was a brilliant affair. The arrangements were perfect in every detail, and reflected the greatest credit on the committee in charge. They were: Messrs. N. W. Laing, C. A. Henry, H. M. Callaghan, E. W. Pratt T. J. Reilley and F. V. Haskill, and are to be congratulated upon the result of their efforts. The patronesses were Mrs. C. C. Graham, Mrs. E. V. Morphet, Mrs. F. McGrath, Mrs. F. Hughes, Mrs. G. H. Giroux and Mrs. J. V. Gallivan.

The New Membership Banquet.

A banquet will be given those boys on Thursday night, who succeeded in bringing in new members during the recent campaign. The new members will also be invited and the "bunfeed" promises to be a dinger.

Trains Crowded.

The outgoing and incoming trains were crowded yesterday, it being the wind up of Easter holidays. The traffic this season has been greater than ever before, taxing the ability of the railways to the utmost.

A Backward Spring.

The backward spring this year will seriously effect several lines of business, particularly the dry goods trade. There is no demand for spring garments, furs and warm wraps being still worn.

Call at the Police Station.

A gold locket, a sum of money, and a parcel are in the vaults at the police station and acting Chief Adams would like the owners to call and secure the same.

Fire Department Complimented.

Mr. W. H. Munro, the efficient manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., has written Chief Howard, of the Fire Department, conveying the appreciation of the company for the prompt and business-like manner in which the fire at the gas works was dealt with. The letter concludes as follows: "The skill and experience displayed in coping with the emergency and energy with which orders were executed reflect great credit on Chief Howard and his men."

More Arrests Made.

David and William Drain appeared at the police court yesterday morning charged with several crimes. David Drain was accused of stealing a sheep on the 15th of July last, he was remanded until Saturday. They were then both charged with the following offences: Charged with breaking into the shop of T. B. Maniece and stealing therefrom three boxes of cigars, cigarettes, maple syrup, on April 7th. VANCOUVER, B. C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

A Large Number of Witnesses to Testify—Many Medical EXperts will Testify—The Trial will Continue Today

The Deline murder case was resumed yesterday. Several witnesses were heard. The most important evidence was that of Dr. Common, who performed the second post mortem examination on the body of the deceased Mrs. Deline. As a result of his examination, he gave the cause of death as suffocation caused by unnatural causes.
some revolting details.
some tevolting details.

The Deline murder trial was begun at the Court of Assize yesterday before Mr. Justice Teetzel The court room was crowded most of the day, many being present from the eastern portion of the county, where the alleged murder was committed.

The prisoner, Hugh Deline, who looked well, pleaded "not guilty."

The following jury was empanelled: Geo. B. Hanbridge, Henry Hill, Hugh Robb, John Logan, George W. Johnston, Percy Hetherington, John Henderson, Richard Andrews, Wm. Baptie, David Fife, Jas. M. Fanning, Alex Killingbeck.

The prisoner is defended by Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, of Peterborough while the Crown Prosecutor is Mr. E. Meredith, K.C., of London.

Crown Prosecutor Meredith, in addressing the jury, outlined the history of the alleged crime. On the 15th September last, the prisoner was living with his wife. He was not in good circumstances, but was a laboring man. On the 15th September he was working at a farmer's house. It was said he had about a half mile to go to reach his own house. He started for home about 8 o'clock p.m. and went to Mrs. Newall's, and it was to her he admitted that his wife was dead. A couple of other farmers were sent for. He made no statement to Mrs. Newall how the death occurred. The two farmers and himself went to the house and did not examine the body that night. The body was lying with the limbs exposed. A two year old child was lying upon a cot dressed and the three months old babe was lying in a cradle. The remains of a supper was on the table. The woman was almost destitute of clothing and had no boots or shoes. The prisoner remained in the house, and sometime later complained of a headache and went to bed, while the neighbors sat up. He slept until the morning and never went to see his poor wife in the woodshed. Her hands had been tied together and they had been cut to the bone. There were also finger nail marks near her mouth. The prisoner was asked to go and see his wife and he would not go. Next morning a doctor came, and found the woman in the condition described. The constable came and the prisoner's trousers were found in the cellar.

Examination of Witnesses.

Mary Lane Little was the first. On being sworn she stated that she lived about half a mile from the home of the prisoner.

R. E. Wood, assisting Crown Prosecutor, conducted the examination first. To him she stated that she was called to the house of Deline on the night in question by Mrs. Newall. She saw the body of Mrs. Deline lying in the summer kitchen with only a flannel wrapper on.

Mr. O'Connell for the defence, next questioned the witness.

"How far do you live from the place of Mrs. Newall?" he asked. "About half a mile."

"It was Mrs. Newall that asked you to accompany her to the rented house where Deline lived?" "Yes."

"Who went with you to the door of the kitchen where the dead woman lay?" "Mrs. Newall."

"What made you think she was dead?" "By the way she was lying."

"You evidently had some sympathy for the prisoner, because you said it was hardly nice to let him go for assistance alone?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"Yes, I did say that."

"Did Deline complain of a headache?" "Yes he did, and laid down and went to sleep."

"The next day you helped to wash the body?" "Yes."

"From the condition of her feet it was apparent that she had gone barefoot all summer?" "Yes."

"What is this man's business?" asked the judge.

"A farm laborer," replied witness. This ended Mr. O'Connell's examination for the time.

Samuel Newall.

Samuel Newall sworn.

"You are a farmer?" asked prosecution. "Yes. I said to prisoner, 'That is an awful thing that happened over at your place.'"

"What did he say?" "He didn't say anything. Just shook his head."

"What passed between you and Deline?" The witness told of the conversation.

"Where do you live now?" "On the boundary line of Dummer and Douro, where the people have some fear of God."

"How long did you live there after the tragedy happened?" "Not very long."

"Whose field were you in when the talk took place between you and Deline?" "Between Norwood and Havelock."

"You were living near your farm in a house doing nothing?" "Yes."

"Are you living on your money?"

"Yes, so far."

"What else were you talking about in the field?" "We were talking about girls going with young fellows; he started the conversation."

"You accused the man of committing the murder when it happened?"

"Yes."

"You would hang a man by his looks, I suppose," asked Mr. O'Connell. "Yes."

"What did you see in his looks?" asked the judge. "I don't know," was the reply.

Magistrate Edmunson.

Magistrate Edmunson took the box. He spoke at being at Havelock at the time of the murder.

Mrs. Margaret Newall, wife of Samuel Newall, was prevented by serious illness from being present as a witness.

Constable Williams.

Constable Williams was sworn. He was examined by Mr. Meredith.

"Did you examine prisoner's trousers?"

"Yes."

"What were they like?"

"They were covered with human filth."

"What did you do with the trousers?"

"The next morning I took them to the coroner."

"Did you have any talk with the prisoner before the arrest?"

"Yes."

"State the conversation."

"I asked him if the clothes he had on were the same he had on at the time of the murder. He said he had a different shirt and smock. I asked him if they were the same trousers, and he said, Oh, no; the others are in the cellar. I arrested him the next day."

"Did you caution him?"

"I told him that anything he said might be used as evidence against him."

"Did he say anything?"

"He said he did not care, that he did not kill his wife. He said he did not go near her when she was dead."

"You were present when the body was exhumed?"

"Yes, but I did not look at the body."

"Later, did you find any cord on the foot path?"

"Yes, here it is." (Cord produced)

Mr. O'Connell, the defence lawyer, then cross examined the witness.

Dr. Kindred.

Dr. Kindred, coroner, was next called.

"You live at Havelock?"

"Yes, sir."

"You were at the deceased's place next day after the occurrence?"

"Yes, I got there between 7 and 8 o'clock. I viewed the body then."

"Where did you find the body?"

"In the shed, lying on its back."

"How was the body clothed?"

"An old flannel wrapper and a little skirt."

"Was there anything under her?"

"Yes, an old coat."

"What were the wounds like?"

"There was a wound over the eye about half an inch in diameter. A fall would do it. The skin was knocked off. There was some skin knocked off the shoulder about the same. There were some scratches on face and cheeks."

"Any other marks?"

"There was a mark on the left elbow."

"Any others?"

"A mark around each wrist."

"What would cause that?"

"A rope or a large string."

"Were there any other marks?"

"Some little abrasions."

"Were you afterwards shown the pants?"

"Yes."

"What did you find?"

"The legs of the trousers were covered with human excreta, which looked the same as that on and around the body."

"Where was the prisoner?"

"Outside."

"Did he say anything?"

"When I came out he asked me what I thought of things. He appeared to be weeping and bemoaning the loss of his wife, but yet was looking at me through his fingers."

"Did he say anything else?"

"He said when he came home he looked out into the shed and saw his wife there and got afraid and ran to the neighbors."

The before mentioned cord was produced.

"Would that cause the injury to the wrists?"

"Yes."

The defence lawyer then cross-questioned witness, without eliciting any new points.

Dr. Ford, who assisted Dr. Kindred gave evidence similar to that of Dr. Kindred.

William M. Millan.

William M. Millan, the next witness, said that Deline came to his place about eight o'clock and milked the cow, he gave prisoner a pail of milk and he left for home shortly after. Witness was at Deline's on the night of the murder. Deline asked him to get him a pair of pants that were in the house, that he had torn the pair he was wearing. Witness did so and Deline changed them outside, placing the torn ones in the cellar window, and they were afterwards found between two barrels in the cellar. He saw Mrs. Deline's body the next day. There was human excreta alongside of the body. It was flattened as if someone had placed their knees or something on it.

Dr. Connor.

A medical expert was the last witness called yesterday.

The witness performed the second post mortem examination. He described the condition of the different organs and said as a result of his examination he would say that deceased came to her death by suffocation from unnatural causes. He found bruises on either side of deceased's mouth and there was an incision in one wrist almost to the bone.

Dr. Connor was cross-examined at length by Mr. O'Connell, and was still on the stand when court adjourned.

THE CANADIAN CANOE COMPANY TO ERECT NEW THREE STOREY BUILDING

HAVE SELECTED A SITE ON RINK STREET.

Board of Works Will Grant Their Request for Grading of Road and Correct Levels for Street and Sidewalk.

The Canadian Canoe Company are going to erect a new building and expand their operations this year.

Last night Messrs Felix Browne combe and Morley Lisle appeared before the Board of Works and stated that they intended building a new 3-storey and basement factory on the north side of Rink street, between George and Aylmer streets, the basement will be concrete, the remainder of the building—a 32 x 114 foot structure—of brick. Behind this building there is to be a 48 x 80 foot store house, and back of that a 20 x 114 foot lumber shed. But they found that the street has been cut down in front of their proposed new site to a depth that would prohibit their building operations unless the locality is properly graded. Some years ago before the inception of a general sewerage system, a deep chasm was cut along Rink street to carry off surface water into the old Spauldings Bay, and the depression is greater than anticipated. Rink street is lower than George street at this point by four feet. Mr. Brownscombe offered that the company desire to locate here to secure ready access to the G.T.R. and C.P.R.; and as considerable freight would be drawn to and from those lines a substantial roadbed would be imperative. Excavation to the depth of three or four feet would be required for their cellar, and he thought the city might do that work and use the earth taken therefrom for filling in the road. "We want," he said, "a correct grade for sidewalk and road before building."

The Engineer offered that the soil from the proposed cellar, even though of a sandy nature would make a good bottom for a gravel surface.

On motion of Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Graham, the Canadian Canoe Company's request will be granted, and the latter will prepare to build.

CLEAN THE YARDS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In response to your invitation for contributions under the head of "Public Opinion", I would venture to suggest that the city be thoroughly cleaned this year. This is necessary if we hope to escape the epidemic of scarlet fever that is raging in so many towns around us. I am sure that our energetic medical health officer will see that this is done. "An ounce of prevention", &c.

SUPPORT THE TIRE BY-LAW.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I hope that every mechanic and working man in Peterborough will do his duty on Tuesday next, by recording his vote in favor of the Independent Tire By-law. Every factory coming to Peterborough increases the opportunities for employment, and the more "jobs" there are the better wages will be paid. It is surely in the interests of the working men especially that the by-law be carried. Therefore, let every working man who can do so, take a day off on Tuesday next in order not only to vote for the by-law himself but also to induce his friends to do likewise.

NO LAWSUIT PROBABLE OVER SMALLPOX CASE.

Statement That an Action Is Possible, Positively Denied.

On Tuesday last The Times published a statement to the effect that a lawsuit against the city was possible, growing out of a smallpox case which developed in one of the hotels here a short time ago. The information came from a reputable source, and it accordingly appeared in print. Yesterday Dr. McPherson, the city Medical Health Officer, called and stated that the report was untrue.

No one from Lakefield came here with smallpox, or was any one given ten minutes to get out of town, as reported. And furthermore, there will be no lawsuit against the city in connection with the matter.

WILL WE HAVE A BRIDGE OVER AUBURN POWER CO'S. NEW DAM?

BOARD ASK THIS PRIVILEGE IN RETURN FOR CONCESSION SOUGHT FROM CITY BY THE COMPANY.

Also Have an Eye to Running a Water Pipe Along Dam to Furnish Fire Protection to Auburn Woolen Mills.

Some years ago, the centre of the line of Water street north, opposite the Colonial Weaving Company's old building, was moved westward to an easy sweep to road and sidewalk, and also to permit of the street railway track centering the road at this point. Such diversion left a small strip of land east of the present roadway to the river, which the Auburn Power Co. are seeking the use of to facilitate their expansion operations. The company desire to erect at this point a concrete retaining wall to the roadway, substantially and permanently finished in every particular, said wall to be surmounted by a handsome iron railing, the whole to present an acceptable appearance. This retaining wall will, it is proposed, form one side of the intake canal to the company's power house, said canal to run through the strip of land left vacant when the roadway was diverted.

Mr. W. F. Munro appeared before the Board of Works last night in the company's interests.

In this connection the water commissioners had written the Board of Works suggesting that permission be secured from the Auburn Power Co. to run a water pipe along their dam, across the river, to furnish fire protection for the Auburn Woolen Mills. Mr. Munro said no objection to this.

The City Engineer also thought this a good opportunity to get a bridge across the company's new dam.

Mr. Munro was not prepared to enter into such a proposition off hand.

On motion of Ap. Bu

On motion of Ald. Buller, the Mayor, chairman and the Engineer were appointed a committee to meet the Water Commissioners and Mr. Munro, and discuss the whole situation in detail.

THE CITY BOARD OF WORKS MET IN BUSINESS SESSION

WILL GET PRICES FOR ENAMEL SIGNS, GIVING NAMES OF STREETS.

Board Will Not Pay for Broken Sewer Pipe Sent on Last Year's Contract for Same.

The City Board of Works met last night, when there were present chairman Ald. Metheral, presiding, and Aldermen Brown, Graham, Anderson, Buller and Duncan.

In taking up petitions for permanent improvements, City Clerk Armstrong drew attention to the new Act of Legislature, which requires that before undertaking the construction of sewers and sidewalks, the engineer must report to Council on same, giving full details and apportionments and method of payment for the work.

There are three methods by which the Council can build sidewalks and sewers as follows:

Sidewalks—1. In compliance with a sufficiently signed petition. 2. In one month after having published and served notice on interested ratepayers of their intention to undertake such work. 3. On a two-third vote of Council, after having published the work contemplated, but not necessarily serving notice of same on ratepayers.

Sewers—1. By a sufficiently signed petition. 2. In one month after publishing and serving notice of same. 3. On demand of the Board of Health as a sanitary measure.

The publishing and serving notice of such work, where not petitioned for, or when petitions are not sufficiently signed, is permit of opportunity for protest. And even when protested against, Council have the prerogative of exercising their own judgment in the matter.

GRADING WANTED.

Mr. Warren Hall asked that as the sewer is already on Hart Avenue, and a water main will be laid there this year, the road be gravelled and graded. This will be done in due season.

BROKEN SEWER PIPE.

The Peterboro Hardware Co. contend that $23.21 should not be deducted from their account for sewer pipe on last year's contract. The contract called for pipes in good condition F.O.B. at Peterborough, but broken pipe to the tune of $23.21 was delivered during the season, hence the deduction by the City Engineer. The Board upheld the Engineer's action, and refused to reopen the question.

THIS WORK NEEDED.

Ratepayers asked that Chambers street be graded and a pavement laid on the east side. The main need of the sidewalk is to get rid of the obstructions and rubbish that accumulates on the east side. This street is in the rear of the west block of George street from Hunter to Brock streets. This matter was referred to the chairman and the Engineer to report.

MORE PHONES.

The Bell Telephone requests to erect 10 poles to connect with the Isolation Hospital, and additional poles in South City to meet the requirements of new subscribers, was granted.

EXTENTION OF DRAIN.

Ratepayers asked that the drain on Romaine street east of Park be continued west of Park. The Board will investigate.

SEPTIC TANK AGAIN.

The Dickson Company's request for a septic tank to serve residents on Dublin and Waterford streets, was laid over for the present.

DRAINING AND FILLING IN.

The Engineer reported that it would be unnecessary to fill in and pipe Concession street ditch, as the proposed new sewer to Carlisle avenue will serve Concession street requirements.

The Engineer reported that work in connection with filling in and draining Sherbrooke street is being proceeded with.

GRANOLITHIC WALKS.

The request of property owners for a granolithic walk on the east side of Hilebrist street to a point half way between Dublin and London streets was referred to the Engineer to report.

A petition for a sidewalk on the south side of Charlotte street, from Maitland avenue to the boundary will also be reported on.

PIPE SEWERS.

A petition for a pipe sewer on Downie street, from Smith street to Victoria avenue, thence up Victoria avenue to Dickson street, was not properly signed and water has not yet been arranged for. Hence no action was taken.

A pipe sewer is asked for on Argyle street, 239 feet west, from George street to Sunnyside, 10 feet north on latter street. This work has been given notice of in the usual way.

WORK GIVEN NOTICE OF.

Ratepayers asked for a granolithic walk on the west side of Concession street, from Douro to Hazlitt streets East City. This is also on the list of work already given notice of.

STREET NAMES.

Arthur Guppy submitted a sample of wooden painted signs of names of streets, and offered to furnish and erect same at street corners for 35c each.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Duncan, the clerk was instructed to get prices of enamel signs.

SEEKING FOREMAN'S POSITION.

Two applications for the position of foreman of sewer construction were left over until the city is prepared to take up the work of sewer construction, which may not be for several weeks.

A GOOD MOVE.

Ald. Duncan offered that the Board walk on George street south, from the bridge to the McDonald estates' office, is in a wretched condition and should be replaced at once.

Street Commissioner Harry Evans endorsed this contention, and said that short planking could be secured cheap from the Cereal Company, which would do for this work.

Ald. Graham contended that Hunter street bridge must be replanked this year, the sooner the better.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Duncan, these renovations will be undertaken at once.

Ald. Brown thought the trees that are rooted in small mounds of sod above the sidewalk on Gilmour street should be removed, or the sidewalk raised if possible.

The Board decided to let these trees die out, as they are doing.

ANNUAL TOUR.

The Board will make a tour of inspection next Tuesday to see what street work is necessary.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The Master Painters and House Decorators met in their hall on Simcoe street last night and elected the following officers:

President—J. W. Edwards.
Vice-President—Ralph Carton
Secy Treas.—Andrew Davidson.

THE MARRIAGE DISCUSSION.

From The Toronto News.

A discussion on the merits and demerits of the Papal decree "Ne Temere" was to be expected. The decree predictates the supremacy of the church, and is loftily negligent of the State and its legislation. For this reason, if no other, all the evangelical churches would be hostile towards the Papal declaration. But, further, the church denies the competency of "heretic or schismatic ministers" to solemnize matrimony when either bride or bridegroom is a Roman Catholic. The law conflicts here with the church. Such marriages are solemnized by authority of the King and any ecclesiastic goes far when he presumes to declare them null and void. The criticism directed against the decree by Protestant ministers and laymen has been vigorously and well timed. The burden of reply has been born mainly by Rev. Father Burke and Rev. Father Minehan. It is significant that neither has been able to meet the charge that the church claims supremacy over the State in the regulation of marriage. But both clergymen have displayed a bitterness in controversy that was as surprising as it was offensive. The tone of their writings has not been good. Anger and arrogance were but poor patents.

Perhaps they forget several things that it will do no harm to recount. First, there are millions of people in Canada who vigorously deny the right of the Roman Catholic Church to lay down rules for their guidance. They do not believe in the religious teachings of that church and they resent the undue influence which it seems to exert in high places.

Again, this is a British country, where every man has the freedom to worship according to his conscience. That privilege was won by two centuries of strife and Canadians are not likely to endure any reactionary tendencies. In the third place the question of State supremacy and equality of sects was fought out in Canada seventy years ago. An establishment or even the first step towards an establishment would be resisted with the utmost vigor.

Let it be understood by the editor of the Catholic Register and the parish priest of St. Mary's that the Roman Catholic Church has exactly the same status in Canada as the Baptist Church or the Methodist Church. Under these circumstances there is no place for arrogance. Unfortunately these gentlemen are inclined to the belief that those who differ with them are ignorant and unworthy of serious notice. The obsession is a mistake. For example, the President of the Toronto Methodist Conference has a position in the public eye quite as eminent and even more important than that of Rev. Father Burke. With the law and a majority of the people of the Province on his side, it is ill advised for Roman Catholic clerics to assume a too haughty tone or to be too contemptuous of public opinion.

THE DREAD RITES OF THE CAMORRA

Viterbo, April 18.—The most interesting revelations made by Gennaro Abbetemaggio, the Camorrist informer, had to do with the real nature of the Camorra, the dreaded association which first found its way from Arabia to Spain and from Spain to Southern Italy, and how its adherents are chosen.

The Camarra in the City of Naples, as Abbetemaggio explained, is divided into fourteen bands, one for each region of the city. Each band is composed of twenty-four Camorrists, and forty-eight picciotti (recruits), each one of the former having two of the recruits at his disposal. Each picciotti in turn is served by five or six giovani oporati (honored youths) —the latter are aspirants for membership in the society.

Thus in Naples alone there is a body of upwards of 5,000 men determined in character, resolute and tried in astuteness and intelligence. This army, which has ramifications in almost every class of society, is practically directed by two men, the Capo in Testa, or head of heads, and the contaulio, or cashier.

The picciotti are chosen from among the "giovani oporati" and instructed in their duties by the Camorrists. They are obliged to swear perfect obedience, after which the newly admitted members kisses every Camorrist, beginning with the head of heads, in token of good faith. When the ceremony of admission is about to be carried out the society meets at the request of one of the members. The Camorrist who has called for the assembly submits the name of his candidate and enumerates the criminal services which the man has rendered. He does not forget to call attention to the afregi, or razor slashes, across the cheeks of the persons who have had to be called to order, which marks are very prominent on the faces of both Abbetemaggio and Erricone.

As in court of justice, there is a Camorrist, called the Terzo Contrario, who takes the part of public prosecutor, and advances arguments to oppose the admission of the candidate. Then the candidate must, in the presence of the members, undertake the Tirata, a kind of duel. Generally the Tirata is perfunctory, in which case it is called "of the muscle" because the combatants are allowed to wound each ather only in In a basin placed in the centre of muscles of the arm.

the meeting place, generally a tavern five knives are placed. Two of these have sharp points and double-edged blades; two have only the sharpened points, the fifth is very long. The knives are covered with two handkerchiefs, one white, the other red. The padrino and a second chosen for his adversary take the knives with the double-edged blades, the head of the Camorra takes the long knife, while the candidate and his opponent grasp the others.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY WANT 500 MEMBERS

At a meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, held in the City Engineer's office, the following members were present:

Peter Campbell, President.

James English, Jas. Edgar, Samuel Jordan, G. F. Marsh, C. F. Harding, Frank Wise, Sec'y-Treas.

The following resolutions were adopted:

It is desirable that some concerted action be taken by the citizens of Peterborough to enhance the beauty of the city that nature has done so much for by a carefully worked out plan for:

1. The improvement and beautifying of the several small parks already owned by the city.
2. Acquiring vacant lands in the several wards before it becomes prohibitive by the rapid growth the city is now undergoing.
3. The laying out of a plan for boulevard drives, connecting the several parks.
4. The improvement of waste places at several points where streets go into one another, such as now exists on Park street, at the junction of Rubidge, Reid, Downie, Donegal and Gilchrist streets, as well as the points and bays on the river at Crescent street, Wolfe street wharf, London, Dublin and Waterford, Water street, between Dublin and Antrim, the bend at Antrim and Harvey, Smith, Hunter, East and at Douro streets.
5. The encouragement to citizens to improve their premises generally by removal of unsightly fences and out buildings, uniform planting and trimming of shade trees.
6. The laying of concrete Aprons and care of boulevards by the city on local improvement system.
7. Strict regulations against vandalism in parks and that police protection be provided for. Some measures taken to prevent power lines, telephone and others from damaging shade trees.

"Miss Jack May" in Male Costume.

St. John, N.B., April 15.—On the arrival of the liner Empress of Ireland yesterday, a female sexual subject passenger who gave her name as "Miss Jack May," was detained by the Canadian Immigration officials, she being attired in male costume. She readily admitted that she was and her male companion had worked on a farm in England. She had her hair cropped short, wore leggings and ten bowls and a short skirt that was not visible below a man's overcoat. Her age was about 30. They had about 11 pieces of baggage, including a rifle, and were bound for the Canadian West.

WERE MURDERED IN THEIR BEDS

Youngstown, O., April 18.—Grant C. Rickert, a plumber, killed his wife and two children, and perhaps fatally wounded three others of his children, then killed himself, early this morning at his home on Chalmers street.

The dead—Grant C. Rickert, aged 53; Mrs. Celia Rickert, aged 50; Pearl Rickert, aged 8; Raymond Rickert, aged 5.

The Wounded—Charlotte Rickert, aged 9; Helen Rickert, aged 15; Edwin Rickert, aged 16.

HAD MADE THREATS.

Rickert had been despondent and had made threats to end his life and "take his family with him."

At 3 o'clock this morning Edwin Rickert heard two shots. He leaped from his bed and met his father coming up stairs with a revolver and an axe. The man had just killed his wife. He swung the axe at Edwin, hitting him a glancing blow on the head. Edwin ran.

The crazed man dashed into a bed room and found Pearl and Raymond asleep. He crushed their heads with the axe, killing them instantly. Then he entered another bedroom and beat Charlotte and Helen about the head with the axe. Failing to find Edwin, he turned the gun on himself and blew out his brains, dying instantly.

Edwin left the house shouting for help and passers-by and the police responded. An ambulance took Charlotte and Helen to a hospital, but they probably will die. Both are unconscious. Edwin is injured seriously, but will likely recover.

Rickert's eyesight had been failing recently and he feared blindness.

Refrigerator Contract.

The refrigerator contract for the "Chateau Laurier," the magnificent new hotel that is being built by the Grand Trunk at Ottawa has been awarded, the successful tenderer being the White Enamel Refrigerating Co., who manufacture the famous Bohn Syphon System.

The silver contract has also been awarded to the Martin Mall & Co., Shrewsbury Works, England.

Similar Weather 50 Years Ago.

Fifty years ago, in 1861, the winter season was very similar to that we are just escaping from. So far history has repeated itself. There was the same, continued cold, fairly heavy snow, and then, as now "winter dallied in the lap of spring." There was one outstanding feature of the year, which, it will be hoped, may not be repeated this spring. A very heavy snow storm set in on April 20th. Snow was on the ground on May 1st.

Music Not Appreciated.

A man named Arthur Tooey appeared before the Magistrate yesterday, charged with disturbing the public peace. It appears that Tooey with three companions were holding a musical rehearsal on the corner of King and Aylmer streets, when the police appeared and arrested Tooey, the others escaping. The prisoner claimed that he did not sing, but the magistrate replied that he would have to take his medicine with the rest. Tooey, however, was given the benefit of the doubt and allowed to go.

A New Society.

As will be seen by a notice elsewhere in to-day's Times, the inaugural meeting of the Social Order of Moose will take place at the Sons of England Hall. The motto of the Society is Sociability, Orderliness and Moderation. Its growth has been very rapid. Herds having been formed in many towns and cities throughout the country. One of the features of the Society will be dances under the auspices of the Herd, which will be held regularly at the club rooms. Another feature is the fact that members are bound to help each other in times of distress, and never allow a widow or orphan of a Moose to be in want.

Mr. R. J. Devey Honored.

On Tuesday night, Mr. R. J. Devey, the popular and efficient choirmaster of St. John's church, was presented with a gold ring by the members of the choir. The presentation took place at the residence of Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie, 600 Stewart street, who is a valuable helper in all choral work. At the conclusion of the practice, Rev. Canon Davidson publicly thanked Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie for their kindness and valuable assistance in all kinds of church work, and especially in the matter of music. The Canon referred to the splendid work of the choir, and took occasion of thanking all the members for their valuable services. He had the pleasing duty to perform in acknowledging the valued work of the organist and choirmaster, Mr. R. J. Devey, whose tireless energy had done so much for music in Peterborough. On behalf of those present he then presented Mr. Devey with a gold ring in token of the high esteem felt by the choir for their leader. Mrs. Ritchie gracefully made the presentation. Mr. Devey in a few well chosen words returned his grateful thanks.

ARE YOU USING AN OILY LINIMENT.

Beware of Any Thick, Greasy Liniment That Contains Acids and Strong Ammonia.

No doctor would think of prescribing a greasy, thick, ammonia liniment—they can't penetrate and in consequence are unable to reach the source of pain. The best liniment for general household use is "Nerviline," which is sold under positive guarantee to cure pain.

Nerviline is sure to cure pain because it is immensely stronger than other liniments, because it is more penetrating, because it relieves the congested condition that excites pain, because it restores circulation to the part. Now you understand why one person in three throughout the Dominion of Canada uses Nerviline. These people have tested it. They know how good it is, because in the hundred and one minor ailments that afflict us at all times they found Nerviline always cured. Nerviline is an absolute antidote to pain, powerful, soothing, and certain in its action.

Nerviline is inestimably the finest remedy for pain found in the world. Not an ache or pain anywhere that Nerviline does not cure.

Try Nerviline for neuralgia, headache, sciatica, lumbago, stiffness, rheumatism—wherever there is a soreness or pain, rub on Nerviline and you'll be cured. Refuse anything offered you instead of Nerviline, large 25c bottles, five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

WM. CROFT : : 259 Reid Street.

VANCOUVER, B. C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

READ EVERY WORD OF THIS
It Will Be Money In Your Pocket To Do So

Everyone is anxious to make money. Everyone has an ambition to get rich. Some men DO get rich. Others remain poor. The difference is simply a difference of methods. Nearly all of us save some money, but we do not let these savings earn anything for us. THE MAN WHO SAVES HIS MONEY AND LETS THE SAVINGS EARN SOMETHING FOR HIM is making it do double duty. Take the history of all the very wealthy men of the country and learn how many of them made their fortunes by simply saving what they earned. Not one of them did. They saved but they immediately put their savings to work for them. YOU WANT TO GET TO THE TOP OF THE LADDER, YOU WANT TO ACCUMULATE SOMETHING FOR YOUR OLD AGE. THEN YOU HAD BETTER PUT YOUR SAVINGS TO WORK AND LET THEM HELP YOU DO IT.

In almost any ordinary investment a man cannot make his money earn over 8 per cent. Mining offers you greater opportunities. I am going to offer you an opportunity that has promise of earning for you 800 per cent or even more. I want to take you into partnership with me, in an enterprise that will probably make us all independent for the balance of our lives. YOU MUST TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFERING. The Gold Queen Mining Company, of which I am president, has over 135 acres of rich mineral ground in one of the most prosperous mining districts of the world. We have already expended thousands of dollars in developing this property and we have struck ore that is very rich. We need a mill to extract the precious metal from this ore. We need a little help in building this mill. Are you willing to subscribe a portion of the amount necessary to do it? In numbers there is strength, and even though your subscription be a very small one, we are willing to give you a part ownership in this great enterprise, in return for it. We are willing to take you in on an equal basis with us and give you the benefit of all your savings may earn for you. The men behind this proposition are all successful business men. They are in this business to make it pay and for every dollar they earn for themselves they will earn one for you. REMEMBER: THIS IS NOT A PROSPECT—IT IS A MINE WITH ORE IN IT. But a small amount of money is necessary to build our mill. We have decided to offer only a very limited number of shares at the present price, and as soon as this amount is secured the price will be advanced to a much greater figure. NOW IS THE TIME FOR YOU TO ACT. YOU ARE GETTING IN WITH THE ORGANIZERS OF THE COMPANY AT GROUND FLOOR PRICES. YOU ARE COMING INTO A BONA FIDE PARTNERSHIP WITH US AND WITH NO PARTNERSHIP RESPONSIBILITIES. Read what Mr. Van Wagenen, one of the foremost mining engineers of the country has to say: "I would advise the immediate erection of a ten-stamp mill with cyanide equipment, to treat your gold ores, and a separate concentrating plant to handle your copper pyrites, thus reducing the shipping weight 6 to 1, and eventually put in a smelter in connection with the mill, with a ten-stamp mill on your property and a daily production of 50 tons of ore. I CAN PROMISE YOU A NET EARNING OF $300.00 PER DAY or $109,500 per year and that can be increased to ten times as much as soon as tunnels A and B are finished, and added milling equipment is installed. The economical method is the best. Start with a ten-stamp mill and let your stockholders be content with 10 per cent per annum until you have increased your milling facilities, and install your smelting plant to treat your concentrates. THEN YOU CAN PAY THEM 400 TO 500 PER CENT DIVIDENDS PER YEAR FOR THE NEXT TEN YEARS ON THE PRESENT VALUATION OF YOUR STOCK, 5 CENTS PER SHARE, and this out of the new discovered vein alone." Now if you want to get in with us on this proposition you must act quickly, for the present allotment of shares will not last long. The man who buys now will get his shares at the very rock bottom price. The one who waits until later will without a doubt pay many times what it is being offered for now. Arrangements may be made to pay for your subscription on the easy payment plan. Write at once for full information and detailed literature explaining all about it. Write today. Do not wait another minute or you may be too late.

WHOLE METHODIST CHURCH OF CANADA WILL PROTEST AGAINST NE TEMERE DECREE

Toronto, April 20.—The Methodist body of Canada will unite against the application of the "Ne Temere" decree to this country on the grounds that it is an infringement of the civic rights of Canadians.

The Executive Committee of the Methodist Church is preparing a protest which will be forwarded to the Government, outlining in detail the clauses of the decree to which objection is taken. This protest will be forwarded to the Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and will be followed by a campaign in support of it from end to end of the country.

A special committee of which Rev. Dr. Carman, Dr. T. Albert Moore, Rev. Dr. Hincks and other prominent officials of this church are members, will meet this afternoon to draw up the formal protest and to go over the decree in detail, incorporating in the protest those passages to which exception is being taken.

WINNING TEAM AND NEW MEMBERS WERE BANQUETTED

One of the best and most successful banquets of the season was held last night in the Boys' Department rooms of the Y.M.C.A. The spread, which was put up by Coleman's was most sumptuous and the boys did full justice to it.

The members of the winning team and their "new ones" were the guests while the losing team waited on the tables in a most pleasing manner. Between 30 and 40 new members had been gathered in, which certainly speaks well for the now booming boys' department.

After the feast, Dr. Middleton, the chairman, made a neat speech, in which he encouraged the boys in their work. Other speakers, Messrs. S. Hull, H. M. Gilchrist and F. Tate delivered excellent addresses to the interested and enthusiastic boys.

The speeches over, the boys spent the remainder of the evening in playing games, singing and springing yarns.

GRAND JURY MAKES THE USUAL PRESENTMENT

The Grand Jury made its usual presentment to Mr. Justice Teetzel yesterday, as follows:

To His Lordship, Mr. Justice Teetzel—

May it please your Lordship—We, the Grand Jury for the County of Peterborough for the High Court, beg to present briefly as follows:

We, with your Lordship, are desirous of giving expression to our recognition of the material prosperity of our County, and also are pleased to claim that this county is but one more evidence of the general advancement of our Dominion.

Occupying the position of one of the learned and able Justices of our Province, you may well feel proud of the impartiality and integrity of our Courts of Justice, largely due to the integrity of our Judges.

As directed, we visited the following institutions, namely, the County Gaol, which appeared to us to be in a condition consistent with the regulations, and we cannot speak too highly of the officials in charge.

The Protestant Home was also visited, and, although being an old building, everything was most desirable and clean, and the inmates comfortable and contented. We understand, or were led to believe, that a more modern building is now contemplated.

The Nicholls Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital we also visited; and we cannot help but feel proud of what we saw in both institutions.

The House of Providence and Children's Orphanage were also visited, and they appealed to us as being managed in a manner that should bring credit to the management.

The Children's Shelter being placarted, we were deprived of visiting it.

We would strongly urge upon the committee in charge to provide more lavatories for judge's chambers and upstairs court room.

Hoping that you may be long spared to occupy the exalted position you now so ably fill.

We also visited the County House of Refuge near Lakefield, and with former juries, were favorably impressed with the condition of affairs there, the old people feeling at home and happy and contented and we do not think it too much to say that the County Council are to be congratulated upon the provision made and we trust that the city will make like provision in the near future.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS WEBSTER.
Foreman.

His Lordship, Justice Teetzel, took advantage of the opportunity to compliment Mr. O'Connell on the clever manner in which he had conducted the defence of Beline, and the great amount of work and trouble he went to in preparing his defence.

Addressing the court officials, also, he said that he was pleased to recognize that the courts of the County were respected. He was pleased to note the prosperity of the community and to see the great progress the city was making regarding the erection of factories and other fine buildings, also the prosperity of the country in general. He also spoke of the improvements that were being made at the Court House.

Then, turning to the Jury, he thanked them for the splendid manner, in which they discharged their duties.

HE SENT HIS "BEST" REMEDY.

The young daughter of Mrs. T. S. Dougall, 523 Flora avenue, Winnipeg, was arranging some of her doll's washing on a clothes rack, beside the stove, when she fell, and her hand came in contact with the hot stove. She sustained a serious burn, and her screams brought her mother quickly to the spot.

"I sent to the druggist for the best remedy he had for burns," she says, "and he sent a box of Zam-Buk. He said that there was nothing to equal it. I applied this and it soothed the pain so quickly that the child laughed through her tears. I bound up the hand in Zam-Buk, and each day applied Zam-Buk frequently and liberally, until the burn was quite cured.

"The little one was soon able to go on with her play, and we had no trouble with her during the time the burn was being healed."

Zam-Buk Soap should also be used by all mothers for baby's bath and for skin troubles, rashes, pimples, etc.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at fifty cents box; and Soap at 25c. tablet. Post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

AN UPRISING IN ENGLAND AGAINST MORMONISM

London, April 20.—In order to bring to a focus as rapidly as possible the growing agitation against Mormonism, a demonstration representing all religious denominations will be held in Holborn Hall, London on April 28th. The Right Rev. Jas Cowell Weldon, Dean of Manchester, and formerly Bishop of Calcutta and Metropolitan of India, will preside. Addresses will be made by prominent members of the clergy and laity and the Government will be urged to take measures to prevent the luring of British girls to Utah.

There is one medicine that every family should be provided with and especially during the summer months: viz. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed. It costs but a quarter. Can you afford to be without it? For sale by all dealers.

ST. GEORGE'S DAY WILL BE OBSERVED

Englishmen to Attend St. John's Church in a Body.

It has been decided to celebrate St. George's Day in Peterborough this year by a church parade on Sunday next, when the members of the Sons of England Benevolent Society will march from their lodge rooms on Hunter street to St. John's Church, shortly before 7 p.m., where a sermon will be preached by Rev. Charles Carpenter, and a choral service will be rendered by the fine choir of the church.

On Monday evening a banquet will be held at Coleman's restuarant. A good programme has been arranged for the occasion, and an enjoyable evening is assured. The matter of forming a branch of the society will be discussed.

The committee consists of Messrs. W. Guy, S. Jay, J. Packman, F. Clarke, C. Green, A. Bogstrom, J. Common, T. Pitchford, secretary.

NO ARMISTICE UNTIL AFTER THE BATTLE AT JUAREZ HAS BEEN FOUGHT

PEACE OVERTURES HAVE BEEN FLATLY REJECTED BY REBEL LEADER IN MEXICO.

Will Make an Attack on Juarez in a Few Hours—Taft Gets Assurance From Diaz—Britain Not Taking a Hand.

El Paso, April 20.—Francisco I. Madero has refused absolutely to grant an armistice as suggested by Dr. Gomez, the revolutionary agent at Washington. He sent word today that he would talk armistice after the battle of Juarez, and then only.

Battle to Start at 3 p.m.

Mexico's Reply to U.S.

Washington, April 20.—A summary of Mexico's reply to the demand of the United States for a greater precautionary measures along the border was received at the State Department to-day and conveyed at once to President Taft. Mexican Ambassador Zamacona in a statement to-day says that while the reply refers to "lamentable events on the border," it is "friendly in form and essence." The summary may be made public later in the day. President Taft is disposed to regard it as the usual diplomatic forerunner to former negotiations for greater preventive measures.

Britain Won't Act.

London, April 20.—William James Thorne, Labor members in the House of Commons for the South Division of West Ham, appears to be the only man in Great Britain who attaches the slightest credence to special newspaper despatches from Washington suggesting that joint British-American action is contemplated in Mexico.

Three times a day Governor Vega as politely requests the general to come and take it.

PRIESTS MAY MARRY, SO FAR AS PORTUGAL IS CONCERNED

NEW REPUBLIC PREPARES LAW SEPARATING CHURCH FROM THE STATE.

Pensions Will Be Paid, But Salaries Will Be Cut Off—All Religions on the Same Footing.

Lisbon, April 20.—The Cabinet has concluded the finishing touches on the decree of separation regarding the Church and State. This will be promulgated on Friday or Saturday. The main points of the decree are as follows:

The State concedes entire liberty of all creeds, the Catholic creed ceasing to be the State religion from the date of the promulgation. Henceforth all churches will be maintained by the faithful. The benefices clergy will continue to receive their stipends until July 1st, after which they will be paid pensions.

All the Portuguese and foreign clergy engaged in religious work will continue as hitherto, but all others must obtain authorization. All the religious property which is proved to belong to private individuals, either Portuguese or foreign, will be respected. British and other foreign seminaries will be allowed to remain, but those connected with the seminaries will not be allowed in the streets in clerical garb.

PRIESTS MAY MARRY.

As the Catholic will no longer be the State religion, priests may marry so far as Portuguese law is concerned. In case of death, pensions will revert to the parents, widow, or children.

The separation of Church and State was announced in a decree issued by the Provisional Government last October. The details of the separation were left for the consideration of the Cabinet.

The announcement by Foreign Minister Machado last January that the decree would be promulgated within a month led to the assurance of a pastoral letter signed by the Patriarch of Lisbon to the Archbishops and Bishops of Portugal. This letter, while it claimed the Government for certain measures, criticized it harshly because of the dissolution proposal. The Government ordered the Provincial governors to forbid the reading of the pastoral letter, and later the arrest of several priests followed for disobeying the order.

The official journal to-day will publish a decree suppressing the Bishopric of Bega, and ordering judicial proceedings against the Bishop, on the charge of embezzlement. The Bishop of Bega was among those expelled from Portugal by the provisional Government.

London, Ont., April 20.—John Wright, nine year old son of Mrs. Gordon Wright, president of the Dominion W.C.T.U., was shot in the eye yesterday, while playing cowboy with a group of little boys. The bullet injured the eye but it is not likely that he will lose his sight, as the bullet was extracted immediately by a doctor. The lad is a nephew of Newton Rowell, K.C., Toronto.

PUBLIC OPINION

A POWER UNUSED.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would suggest that the city secure the dam below the Little Lake where I understand between 300 and 500 horse power can be developed. Is it not worth looking into? If this power can be secured the city might offer it as an attraction to some industry. I would suggest that our Industrial Commissioner look into the matter without delay.

BILINGUAL SCHOOLS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir, Please accept my thanks as well as the thanks of L.O.L. 80, for the manly stand taken by The Times in connection with the bilingual school subject and the question of mixed marriages. I can assure you that the brethren, not only of L.O.L. 80, but also all Orangemen, appreciate your efforts. You are not afraid to speak the truth and "hew to the line," regardless of where the chips may fall.

In regard to mixed marriages, the real question at issue is whether the Pope of Rome shall be supreme in the administration of our civil laws, or whether the supremacy shall remain with his Majesty the King. Whether marriage which is held legal by the civic courts can be declared illegal by the Romish church. In other words, is marriage in Canada a civil or a church function?

The Church of Rome is ever announcing to the world that it is opposed to divorce, and holds for the sanctity of the marriage tie. Yet, notwithstanding this big bluff—for bluff it is—the Quebec hierarchy are declaring null and void marriages legally performed by Protestant ministers? Are Protestants going to stand for this sort of thing? I say emphatically, No! Let the Ottawa authorities understand this, and let the work of forming a great Protestant Party—a party of equal rights.

MIXED MARRIAGES ARE ILLEGAL UNLESS PERFORMED BY PRIESTS, SAYS JUDGE LEET IN MONTREAL

Montreal, April 20.—"Has a Protestant minister the right to appeal to the Government when the validity of a marriage performed by him between a Catholic and a Protestant is annulled by courts?" was one of the questions asked Judge Leet at a meeting held last night in the Zion Congregational Church, upon the subject of the Montreal courts and their jurisdiction.

In asking the question the inquirer referred to the Hebert case, and the position of the Rev. Mr. Timberlake, of Point St. Charles, who performed the marriage, which was later annulled by the courts. He wished to know whether Protestant clergymen had any authority from the Government to perform marriages in the Province of Quebec.

Judge Leet declared that Mr. Timberlake had no right of appeal from the decision of the courts. As for the right of Protestant clergymen to perform marriages between people, irrespective of their religion, he said that in the Province of Quebec, mixed marriages were illegal, unless performed by Catholic priests. It has been so by the ecclesiastical law, and at one time the ecclesiastical law and the civil law of the Province had been the same thing. The provision still survived in the civil law of the Province.

Replying to a remark of the chairman that he considered such a condition of affairs an affront to the Protestant clergy of the Province, Judge Leet said that he did not see it that way, as the Roman Catholic priests had no right, as far as he knew, of marrying Protestants.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER DELINE GETS LIFE SENTENCE

Withdraws Plea of "Not Guilty" and Pleads Guilty of Manslaughter—Was Not Visibly Affected

Quite a surprise was sprung yesterday at the Court of Assize, when Beline, who was on trial for the murder of his wife, withdrew his plea of "not guilty," and pleaded guilty to manslaughter. This announcement was made by His Lordship Justice Teetzel, immediately after which, he sentenced the prisoner to life imprisonment. Deline showed no change in his manner or appearance, and walked briskly from the court room.

Mr. O'Connell made an eloquent plea on behalf of the prisoner, concluding by imploring the judge to act as leniently as possible with him, for the sake of the prisoner's two little children.

His Lordship then addressed the prisoner as follows:

"You have pleaded guilty to a very serious crime," said His Lordship. "I think that the course taken by your counsel was a very proper one, as the verdict must have been at least for the crime you have pleaded guilty to, and possibly for the greater crime. You have committed outrageous cruelties upon your wife, and I believe, according to the evidence, that you have been committing most abominable offences upon her. You bound your wife's hands and was struggling with her to accomplish the abomanable crime, and as a result death followed. I think your counsel is right, that your morals must be very low. The beasts of the field would not do as you did, and I think probably this is the most disgusting case and offence that ever came before the courts of the country. While I may sympathize with your aged mother and children, I must impose upon you the penalty you deserve, and it will be a warning and an example to those of your class. I doubt that your freedom would be of any benefit to your mother or children, and you certainly are to be pitied for your lack of morals, and your intellectual state. You should be confined under the care of the state; you should not be at large. Human life must not be exposed to the risk of the conduct of such a man as you, and, therefore, the people sentence upon you, with regard to the crime you have committed and the public safety, is that you should be confined during the balance of your life, and until Medical authorities will allow you your liberty."

His Lordship then passed sentence.

SHIPPING MERGER IS COMPLETED

THREE BIG COMPANIES JOIN HANDS WITH FURNESS PEOPLE IN CONTROL.

Control Fifty Steamers—Will Finally Include Every Company of Considerable Importance.

Montreal, April 20.—It is officially announced that the Furness syndicate has purchased both the Northern and Inland Navigation Companies, also buying a large block of Richelieu stock, giving the Furness people a considerable representation on the R. & O. board.

New Issue of Shares.

A new issue at par will be made of 10,400 shares of Richelieu, shareholders geting one share of the new to every three held now. It appears to be an understood thing that Richelieu will go on an eight per cent. basis.

The New Merger.

The importance of the new merger, the biggest affecting Canadian fresh water shipping, may be judged from the following facts about the companies:

Inland lines, 20 steamers, capital $3,500,000.

Northern Navigation Company, 9 steamers, capital $1,000,000.

R. & O. Navigation Company, 20 steamers, capital $5,000,000.

It is believed the merger will be extended until it embraces every steamship company of considerable size in the country. The Furness people behind it are very wealthy.

OTTAWA ASKS FOR ASSISTANCE

Toronto, April 20.—Ottawa, beset by typhoid, smallpox and diptheria, is sorely pressed for a Medical Health Officer.

The capital city has asked Dr. J. W. McCulloch, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, to allow Dr. Bell to take charge of the situation pending the appointment of a permanent man. Dr. McCulloch has replied that Dr. Bell cannot be spared for this work.

SEGRO SHOT DOWN.

Posse Surrounded Him in a Brick Kiln and Bombarded Him With Bullets.

Burlington, W. Va., April 20.—S. J. Jennings, a negro murderer wanted in Frederick county for killing a white man, was surrounded by a posse in an old brick kiln on the outskirts of Huntingdon early to-day, and shot to death. More than 200 bullets were fired at Jennings before a policeman crept up to the kiln and killed the fugitive. None of the posse was injured, although Jennings fought them off for more than an hour.

BLUE JACKETS WILL GO.

Ottawa, April 20.—The Government has decided to send a Canadian Naval contingent to the Coronation. It will consist of thirty-five petty officers and men and three officers and all, save one officer and two petty officers, will be chosen from among Canadian recruits to the Navy. They will not be sent over on a cruiser.

Another Case Proving That Catarrhozone Cures When All Else Fails.

The case of Mr. James H. Barton the well-known publishing agent, of Strafford, is most remarkable. For seven years he suffered from weak throat, treated with numerous physicians, used a score of remedies—but was not cured. Among the symptoms from which he suffered were:

Frontal Headache	Sore Chest
Influenza	Bronchitis
Nasal Catarrh	Hoarseness
Weak Throat	Croupy Cough

"For years I suffered from a chronic weakness of nose, throat and lungs. My chest was sore, my throat irritable, and I had a harsh, croupy cough that was always worse in the morning. During bad weather I was completely prostrated with Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and all the manifold discomforts of influenza.

"When I began using Catarrhozone a beneficial effect was noticeable at once. My breathing became free and easy, I slept better, my chest was eased, and the thick phlegm and coughing that made me so sick passed away. Once, when my son was threatened with malignant tonsilitis, Catarrhozone cured him in two days."

Catarrhozone is certain to cure because its healing vapor is carried with the breath direct to the seat of the chest, nose or throat trouble. Being composed of the purest balsams and pine essences, it immediately allays irritations, facilitates the ejection of mucus, soothes and stimulates the lungs and bronchial tubes.

To those in fear of changeable weather—those who easily catch cold—those who work among the lung chilling surroundings, or where dust, impure air, fog, or damp can effect them—let them get Catarrhozone and use it several times daily. Large size, sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. Beware of imitators and substitutors, and insist on getting "Catarrhozone" only. By mail from the Catarrhozone Company Kingston, Ont.

LUMBERING SCENES

Graphic Description of the Felling of a Great Tree in British Columbia

British Columbia is Canada's great timber preserve. In no other province do the chief varieties of commercial timber arrive at greater perfection. The experts of timber form the main staple of British Columbia's maritime trade, and the whole of the North-west depends for its timber supply on the forests of that province. A writer in the "Daily Province" of Vancouver contributes the following pen pictures of a typical lumbering scene in a valley of the Cascade Range leading down to Howe Sound:—

"All around is the deep forest, broken by slashings thick with giant stumps standing amidst a green ruin of tops, limbs and young hemlocks and cedar swept down by the colossi when they crashed to earth. Two big fellers stalk down a brown-shadowed aisle chewing tobacco. They carry double-bitt axes with straight handles like the battle tools of the knightly days, a 15 foot cross-cut saw, and two spring boards. The mighty bulk of the rough-barked tower of fir into which their flashing axes dart like serpents' fangs, cutting stepping notches for the chopping boards, make these two brawny, hairy-armed loggers, 15 stone apiece and a good fathom each in their old 'cork' boots, look like pygmies. The butt of the monster looks like 20 feet in circumference and 8 feet through, and its broken ridged bark looks a foot thick. A tussock of alder grows man-high around the rugged bole. The massive obelisk of its shaft towers over 200 feet in the air. But Yukon Pete and Tacoma Jack, the careless unconcern, are not awed by this. They merely bite off fresh chews of black plug and mount their chopping boards, spit on their big palms (Tacoma, the bank house says, can hold a pound of loose tea in one open hand), and Pete, the one with the elite in his hat with matches shaved through them, takes his pick from the red-brown bark. Then with a steady rhythm they swing their bright blades for half-an-hour, making their undercut, and the boarding of their axes travels far through the forest. Skilfully they chop the great notch 3 feet deep, so that the tree will fall where they want it to, for it is the undercut that governs the fall of the tree. Then they lay aside their axes, adjusting their chopping boards to the other side of the tree, and take up the long, lean saw. With a snarl it bites into the corrugated bark, and swaying and rocking their sloping shoulders, Tacoma and Pete pull the long blade back and forth, pausing only to throw a few drops of coal oil on the steel to free it from pitch. Now the axemen, yellow with sawdust, have rasped their way through 4 feet of solid white wood, and they withdraw the hot saw. The mighty column still stands solid on its great base and gives no sign of yielding. The fallers place wedges in the saw slit and drive them in with furious strokes of a sledge. Just as the last sledge-blows ring through the woods we jump with surprise and back away, and the fallers leap from their chopping boards, shouting their long, hoarse, warning yell as a sharp snapping, like rifle explosions, startles the nerves. A shiver thrills through the colossus. Then there resounds through the woods a storm of grinding, rending, tearing, splintering noises. The titan sways slowly and with stately majesty at first. His kingly head, far up in the lofty roof of the forest, rocks as if in a hurricane, letting in great beams of sunlight through the green ceiling. Now he falls, fast sweeping through the air, smashing down other trees in a swarl of wreckage, snapping off his own branches, striking the earth with a great jarring, appalling thunder of sound which roars in hoarse reverberations through the valley. Earth and woods tremble as with an earthquake, and the enormous fir lies prone, like a bridge across the forest. The buckers, with their saws, are already on the ground to cut the giant into 20 and 30 feet logs, which may yield 10,000 feet of timber."

LACK OF APPRECIATION

A Serious Mistake Which is Made in Some Families

In families it is quite often the case that the child who has real talent is overlooked because some brother or sister has more conspicuous attractions. And in some communities the same mistake is often made. Some precocious infant is told off for future honors, and it is hard for fathers and mothers to understand that some quiet little mouse of a maid or some unobtrusive lad will be the future authoress or statesman.

This lack of appreciation is really what urges those who know what they have in them to seek greater opportunity for their expansion by leaving the people who do not believe in them, and going among those who do.

This does not mean that every girl who fancies herself a genius should cut herself off from the precious home atmosphere, but there are those who feel that they have it in them to do things, and when this feeling becomes so strong as to be a certainty, and when they have some good reason to think they can succeed, then they probably have sufficient excuse for some new line of action.

WORKHOUSE REVOLT

Among the articles broken in the Surrey workhouse revolt against porridge a week ago were two panes of glass, four forms, 11 salt cellars, 26 spoons, 30 plates, and the heads of several officials.

KEEPING HER QUIET

When a separation order was granted against Joseph Clark, a miner, at Gateshead, it was stated that he had admitted standing on his wife's neck "to keep her quiet."

THE NEAREST STAR

Is Alpha Centauri, but it is Quite a Distance Away

Alpha Centauri, a conspicuously bright point of light in the constellation of the Centaur, is the nearest to our own world of all the stars. Not only so, but it is the nearest by a colossal span. The next in distance from the earth, a faint star known as 61 Olygal, is almost twice as remote. So in the great company of the stars we must regard Alpha Centauri as, comparatively speaking, close at home. Yet, neighbor as it is, its distance is such that it is very difficult to convey to the mind any really adequate idea.

Light, everyone realizes, travels at some incredibly fast pace. It can be accurately measured, and it is found to traverse a distance of 186,309 miles in a single second of time. Even at such a speed, the light leaving Alpha Centauri takes three years to reach the earth. If the star were suddenly blotted out from its place in the sky, three whole years would pass before we became aware of the loss. The star is 275,000 times more distant from our solar system than is the sun from the earth. In other words, to reach Alpha Centauri, the nearest star, would require a measuring rod twenty-five million millions of miles in length.

Professor Todd has suggested an ingenious method for realizing such vast distances. Imagine the solar system—the sun, and all the planets circling round it—as represented by the dot over this letter i. Even the sun itself, on this exceedingly reduced scale, could not be detected with the most powerful microscope ever made, or dreamed of. But on the same scale, the vast circle having the sun as its centre and reaching to Alpha Centuri would be represented by the longest circle that could be drawn on the floor of a room ten feet square.

WHOLESOME FUN

Those Who Try to Do Without Recreation Have a Sorry Time of It

Those who try to do without recreation pay the penalty in arrested development. They dry up; their lives become humdrum and uninteresting. They do not get rid of the brain-cells from one day to another, and the monotony of using the same faculties a great many hours each day, without change or diversion, will soon so deteriorate the mind that it will lose its elasticity, its power to rebound, and the brain will operate in a perfunctory manner, instead of with strong, vigorous action, and will produce nothing original or great.

A multitude of people, however, lose the very good they are seeking in their reputation by indulging in pleasures which demoralize, weaken, and which, instead of making them fresher and stronger for their next day's work, leave a demoralizing reaction and exhaust their vitality.

Those people confuse fun with dissipation. Anything which lessens your self-respect, which makes you think a little less of yourself, is dissipation—not good, wholesome fun.

HIS AMBITION

Kind Lady (at children's party):—"Well my little man, what are you going to be when you grow up?"

Little Man (tugging at uncomfortable neckwear):—"Somefin' what don't wear a collar."

NAMED THE PRICE

An enterprising Italian managed to secure an interview with the Turkish Grand Vizier.

"Would your Highness," asked the journalist, "consent to the sale of Crete?"

"Certainly!" replied the Turk. "Anyone can have it for the price we paid—twenty years' war!"

TOMMY WOULDN'T TELL

The pupils at the Council school were undergoing an oral examination.

"Tell me, please," said the examiner to a boy in the third class, a grocer's son named Tommy Brown, "where coffee comes from."

The boy blushed and hung his head. "Father wouldn't like me to tell that, sir," he faltered. "It's one of the business secrets."

CREDIT ALLOWED

A distinguished Irish lawyer, always in impoverished circumstances, once took a legal friend to see his magnificently-furnished new home in Dublin.

"Don't you think," he said, with a complacent look about, "that I deserve great credit for this?"

"Yes," his friend answered, drily; "and you appear to have got it."

DEAD AND DIDN'T KNOW IT

Enemy (at the manoeuvres):—"You are my prisoner."

Sergeant Binks:—"Nonsense! How did you get here?"

Enemy:—"Over the bridge."

Sergeant Binks:—"Then, my dear fellow, you are drowned. We blew up that bridge yesterday!"

Farmer Barnes:—"I've bought a barometer, Hannah, to tell when it's going to rain, ye know."

Mrs. Barnes:—"To tell when it's goin' to rain! Why, I never heard o' such extravagance. What do ye s'pose the Lord has given ye the rheumatis for?"

Miss Margaret Anglin.

The Opera House was filled to overflowing last night with one of the most fashionable audiences that it has seen for years. Miss Anglin is about finishing a very long run of playing. She is now in her 97th consecutive week. On May 6th she will complete her present tour and 99 weeks. "The Green Stockings" is built around a practice which obtains in some old families in England that whenever a younger daughter marries before the eldest, the eldest shall wear green stockings at the wedding. Miss Anglin takes the part of Celia Faraday, the eldest daughter of an English gentleman. The role of sustained deception, with all the complications which it involves, is a difficult one to play, but Miss Anglin does it admirably. As a whole the company is very strong. The play has no weak spots. The interest begins at the very start and keeps up consistently. The particular charm of the acting is its naturalness.

Failed to Cure Rheumatism.

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure with "Nerviline."

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago and sciatica. I call Nerviline my "Life Guard," and urge all to try its merit."

CURED 3 YEARS.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling-houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

BANKERS AND BROKERS

441 RICHARDS STREET. P. O. BOX 1481. VANCOUVER, B. C.

READ EVERY WORD OF THIS

It Will Be Money In Your Pocket To Do So

Everyone is anxious to make money. Everyone has an ambition to get rich. Some men DO get rich. Others remain poor. The difference is simply a difference of methods. Nearly all of us save some money, but we do not let these savings earn anything for us. THE MAN WHO SAVES HIS MONEY AND LETS THE SAVINGS EARN SOMETHING FOR HIM is making it do double duty. Take the history of all the very wealthy men of the country and learn how many of them made their fortunes by simply saving what they earned. Not one of them did. They saved but they immediately put their savings to work for them. YOU WANT TO GET TO THE TOP OF THE LADDER, YOU WANT TO ACCUMULATE SOMETHING FOR YOUR OLD AGE. THEN YOU HAD BETTER PUT YOUR SAVINGS TO WORK AND LET THEM HELP YOU DO IT.

In almost any ordinary investment a man cannot make his money earn over 8 per cent. Mining offers you greater opportunities. I am going to offer you an opportunity that has promise of earning for you 800 per cent or even more. I want to take you into partnership with me, in an enterprise that will probably make us all independent for the balance of our lives. YOU MUST TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFERING. The Gold Queen Mining Company, of which I am president, has over 135 acres of rich mineral ground in one of the most prosperous mining districts of the world. We have already expended thousands of dollars in developing this property and we have struck ore that is very rich. We need a mill to extract the precious metal from this ore. We need a little help in building this mill. Are you willing to subscribe a portion of the amount necessary to do it? In numbers there is strength, and even though your subscription be a very small one, we are willing to give you a part ownership in this great enterprise, in return for it. We are willing to take you in on an equal basis with us and give you the benefit of all your savings may earn for you. The men behind this proposition are all successful business men. They are in this business to make it pay and for every dollar they earn for themselves they will earn one for you. REMEMBER: THIS IS NOT A PROSPECT—IT IS A MINE WITH ORE IN IT. But a small amount of money is necessary to build our mill. We have decided to offer only a very limited number of shares at the present price, and as soon as this amount is secured the price will be advanced to a much greater figure. NOW IS THE TIME FOR YOU TO ACT. YOU ARE GETTING IN WITH THE ORGANIZERS OF THE COMPANY AT GROUND FLOOR PRICES. YOU ARE COMING INTO A BONA FIDE PARTNERSHIP WITH US AND WITH NO PARTNERSHIP RESPONSIBILITIES. Read what Mr. Van Wagenen, one of the foremost mining engineers of the country has to say: "I would advise the immediate erection of a ten-stamp mill with cyanide equipment, to treat your gold ores, and a separate concentrating plant to handle your copper pyrites, thus reducing the shipping weight 6 to 1, and eventually put in a smelter in connection with the mill, with a ten-stamp mill on your property and a daily production of 50 tons of ore. I CAN PROMISE YOU A NET EARNING OF $300.00 PER DAY or $109,500 per year and that can be increased to ten times as much as soon as tunnels A and B are finished, and added milling equipment is installed. The economical method is the best. Start with a ten-stamp mill and let your stockholders be content with 10 per cent per annum until you have increased your milling facilities, and install your smelting plant to treat your concentrates. THEN YOU CAN PAY THEM 460 TO 500 PER CENT DIVIDENDS PER YEAR FOR THE NEXT TEN YEARS ON THE PRESENT VALUATION OF YOUR STOCK, 5 CENTS PER SHARE, and this out of the new discovered vein alone." Now if you want to get in with us on this proposition you must act quickly, for the present allotment of shares will not last long. The man who buys now will get his shares at the very rock bottom price. The one who waits until later will without a doubt pay many times what it is being offered for now. Arrangements may be made to pay for your subscription on the easy payment plan. Write at once for full information and detailed literature explaining all about it. Write today. Do not wait another minute or you may be too late.

VOTE FOR THE RUBBER TIRE BY-LAW AND ADD ANOTHER SPOKE TO PETERBOROUGH'S INDUSTRIAL HUB

OBJECTED TO BEING CALLED A DEVIL WORSHIPPER

MONTREAL LIBEL ACTION WHICH IS ATTRACTING CONSIDERABLE ATTENTION.

Has to do With Masonry—Joseph Begin, Editor of La Croix, Is the Defendant—The Evidence Given.

Montreal April 21.—A libel suit which is attracting considerable attention is that brought by Mr. L. A. Caron, accountant, against Mr. Jos. Begin, editor of La Croix. Mr Caron takes exception to certain articles published by the journal in 1909. He bases his claim for $199 nominal damages on the fact that in one part of the paper it was stated that initiated Masons bore hatred towards God, and in another small item, printed on another page, it was said that the readers were not to confound Mr. A. L. Caron (of Caron Freres) with Mr. L. A. Caron, who was a member of the Coeurs Unis Lodge of Freemasonry.

He claims that there was a connection between the two items, and that such connection was one which was apparent to all readers and consequently constituted an injury to him.

NOT A DEVIL WORSHIPPER.

Mr. Caron was the first witness, and declared that he is a member of Coeurs Unis Lodge and never denied it, as pointed out by La Croix, but that he was not a worshipper of the devil, as claimed by La Croix.

He declared that he had always tried to live up to the best standard of Christian morality; that he was a believer in God, and prayed to the Deity, and that it was very painful to him to be called a worshipper of the devil, especially when he was trying to educate his family in the love and fear of God.

Mr. Caron declared that he was born in the Catholic Church and would like to live and die in it, should the Church be willing to tolerate Masonry.

"I did not walk out of the Church" said he, "I was thrown out. I still hope a day will come when the leaders of the Church will change their mind on the subject."

While Mr. Caron was speaking Rev. Father Garand, a Jesuit, who was sitting just opposite the witness box nudged his neighbor and laughed.

"I ask the protection of the court" said Mr. Caron, "and I object to be laughed at before this court while I am in the witness box. What I say may not be right, but I speak to the best of my knowledge with the deepest conviction from the bottom of my heart. I do not insult anyone. I wish to be respected."

The remark was endorsed by the judge.

When cross-examined, Mr. Caron was asked questions about Masonry at large, especially the Grand Orient, but he claimed that all he knew of Masonry was the English Masonry.

Mr. Caron was represented by Mr. Gonzalve Desaulniers, K.C., and Mr. Begin by Mr. A. Drolet.

POLLS WILL BE OPEN FROM 9 A. M. TILL 7 P. M. TOMORROW

The votes of the electors qualified to vote on money by-laws will be taken to-morrow on the Rubber Tire Co's by-law. The polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., so that an opportunity for voting is offered every ratepayer, excepting those who are absent from town or who are physically unable to take advantage of the occasion.

We are living in an era when the principle of aiding the location of new and desirable industries is generally accepted as a legitimate enterprise on the part of Canadian cities and towns bidding for expansion, and the by-law now before Peterborough ratepayers should be substantially endorsed as a means of adding another spoke to Peterborough's industrial hub. If we wish to continue growing and expanding, the addition of new industries is essential, and apparently this can only be acquired in competition with other municipalities in the way of inducements.

The Independent Tire Company, of Toronto, Limited, is a promising concern, whose proposed output of rubber tires for automobiles and other similar goods has an assured and rapidly growing market. In fact, like electricity, this industry is in its infancy, and is bound to develop into healthy mature proportions. The proposed agreement between this company and the city is, in brief, as follows: Peterborough city is to borrow $40,000 at 4½ per cent., and loan the same to the company, who are to pay said loan back in yearly installments of $2,000 together with 4½ per cent. interest on the principal (this loan is to cover the cost of a site and building, and should these properties cost less than $40,000, then the loan is to be proportionately less.) The company is to have exemption of taxes for 10 years. By July 1st, 1912, the company shall own, free of all incumbrances, a site, and buildings capable of employing at least 100 operatives, together with an installed plant valued at not less than $75,000, and paid up stock to the amount of $150,000. The city will be secured for its loan of up to $40,000 by first mortgages on land, building and machinery to the value of $115,000, and, as an industrial by-law to aid the establishment in Peterborough of a new manufactory that will not enter into competition with any existing industry here, is a desirable measure under existing municipal methods for acquiring industrial expansion.

The loan in question is to be paid the company in three installments, when the city is properly secured and in the following manner:—

When said land is purchased and conveyed by and to the company and said building is erected and ready for occupation, that the Corporation will advance to the Company one-half the cost of the land and buildings up to the sum of $20,000, and when the said machinery and plant have been installed therein at the cost of $75,000, and the said factory has been in operation and employing therein at least forty operatives for thirty days, and the Company shall have stock subscribed and paid for in cash to the amount of $150,000, that the Corporation will advance to the Company one-quarter of the cost of said land and buildings up to the sum of $10,000; and when the said factory has been in operation for a further period of sixty days and employing therein at least sixty operatives, will advance to the Company the other one-quarter of the cost of said land and building up to the sum of $10,000; provided the terms and conditions mentioned entitling the Company to the same have been fully complied with and the security mentioned has been given.

(After the first year the Company is to employ at least 100 hands on an average of 10 months each year.)

IF I WERE MAYOR

What I Would Do

Under the above caption The Times invites correspondence. The letters will appear in the Saturday edition only and must deal with local matters, and not political questions. In this way suggestions in regard to local affairs will be in order, and we are sure will be taken in good part by Mayor Morrow and the members of his Council.

WOULD BE A SOURCE OF WEAKNESS TO THE EMPIRE

SEPARATE AND INDEPENDENT COLONIAL NAVIES ARE LIKELY TO HINDER RATHER THAN HELP THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT.

Australia Will Have a Navy Costing $4,000,000,000—The Empire's Attitude Towards Japan.

New York, April 22.—A London cable to The Evening Post says: The parliamentary discussion this week about the imperial conference, and letters in The Times, evidently by important personages, reveal an unsuspected weak spots in the constitutional theory of the British Empire, namely the increasing desire of the colonies to have their own foreign policy, irrespective of England.

The Empire's attitude towards Japan undoubtedly is the subject of the gravest discussion. The government promises to reveal all cabinet secrets to the colonial Premiers "under absolute secrecy." One writer in The Times says that Canada may use her navy to support a policy which England does not want, and that Australia may be threatening Japan when England and Japan are engaged in delicate negotiations about Japanese alliance.

Australia, by the advice of the English admiral, lent for the purpose, proposes to build a fleet of fifty-two vessels at a cost of $470,000,000.

IMMIGRANT GIRLS TAKE MUCH TOO RAPIDLY TO HOBBLE SKIRT AND DREAM HATS

Indianapolis, April 22.—"Eighteen hundred immigrant girls were lost track of after having been received at Ellis Island and put aboard trains for Chicago and other points in the west in the last year and a half," said Miss Grace Abbott, of Hull House, Chicago, to-day during a discussion in the biennial convention of the Young Women's Christian Association of America, of the problem of caring for immigrant girls.

"Immigrant girls deserted the quaint shawls and aprons of their native lands for the hobble skirt and dream hat all too quickly," Miss Abbott said.

In cases of rheumatism relief from pain makes sleep and rest possible. This may be obtained by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all dealers.

DELINE TAKEN TO KINGSTON PENITENTIARY ON SATURDAY

Hugh Deline, who was convicted of manslaughter last week, went to the Kingston Penitentiary on the 8.30 G. T. R. Saturday morning, to start his life sentence in that institution. Mr. Fred Hall, Deputy Sheriff, had charge of the prisoner and on arrival at Kingston, handed him over to the authorities at the Penitentiary.

PETERBOROUGH LUMBER CO'S MILLS START OPERATIONS TODAY

The Peterborough Lumber Company's mill at Burnham's Point, will start full operations to-day. This means employment for from 80 to 125 hands. The season promises to be a very busy one and with the large number of men who find employment at the mills means a good thing for the city.

The McDonald Lumber Company will also start their mill this week.

THREW AWAY HER STOCKINGS AND $1,500 ROLL OF BILLS

New York, April 22.—A special from Los Angeles, says: While travelling to this city Mrs. Francis Held, of Danbury, Conn., inadvertently threw apair of stockings out of the window of a fast Santa Fe train a few miles west of Albuquerque.

Soon afterwards she discovered that she had left a roll of $1,500 in bills in the toe of the stockings, and she appealed to Conductor Thompson for help to recover it.

At the next station Thompson wired back to the agent at Albuquerque to make a search, which was done and the stockings and money were found. This information was wired to Winslow, Ariz., and when Mrs. Held's train arrived there the company's representative handed her the cash.

The stockings, it is stated, are now on the way by mail because they could not be forwarded by wire.

TO DISCUSS RECIPROCITY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Some time ago The Times suggested that a public meeting be called to discuss the reciprocity pact as it is sometimes called. I have been hoping that such a meeting would be held, for I am sure that our excellent member, Hon. J. R. Stratton, will be able to give such a clear and forcible exposition of the proposed agreement that will settle the question so far as Peterborough is concerned. I hope, therefore, that this meeting will be held as soon as possible.

A POWER QUESTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—You struck the nail squarely on the head in your issue on Saturday in your remarks regarding power. It is clear that the figures submitted in the report read at the private meeting held in Dr. Morrison's house are not to be depended on. Perhaps Mr. Duggan, the Industrial Commissioner, will tell us on what basis he arrived at $225,000 as a price for the two dams.

Observer.

A TRAVELLER'S KICK.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir.—I am a traveller and two or three times each year I visit your beautiful city. On several occasions I have had difficulty in securing accommodation at the hotel where I usually stay, on account of the house being "full up." I think Peterborough should have more hotels, if she is to keep pace with her natural growth. The idea of cutting down the number of hotels, while the town is increasing in size and importance, is the act of crazy men. Hotels should increase and develop along with the growth of the city. Where are travellers to go? I would suggest that the present hotels be enlarged, or the ones that were cut off a year ago, reinstated. I would not have drinking places, but hotels—places fully equipped to accommodate the travelling public.

Fifty Years' Use Proves It the Strongest, Safest, Best.

SAID TO BE A DEADLOCK OVER ONTARIO JUDGESHIP

Ottawa, April 22.—(Special.)—The delay over the appointment of a successor to the late Judge MacMahon, on the high court bench of Ontario, is said to be the result of a deadlock in the cabinet. It appears that Hon. Chas. Murphy, secretary of State, is anxious to have Daniel O'Connell, of Peterborough, elevated to the bench. Mr. O'Connell is a Roman Catholic, and his name is said to be popular among the adherents of that faith.

On the other hand, Sir Allan Aylesworth, minister of justice, wants to see a lawyer of wider experience receive the post, and to that end suggests the name of W. N. Tilley, of the firm of Thomson, Tilley & Johnston. Neither side is disposed to give in, and until some compromise is reached the judgeship will remain vacant. The name of Thomas Mulvey, under secretary of State for internal affairs has only been suggested tentatively, and his nomination is not talked seriously.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. HUGH WADDELL

Passed Away With Awful Suddenness On Saturday.

The public were shocked on Saturday morning to hear of the death of Mr. Hugh Waddell, which occurred about ten o'clock, on Saturday forenoon at the family residence, "Beechfield," Monaghan Road. He had complained of pains in the chest Friday night, but arose next morning as usual. Returning to his room he lay down on the bed and passed away shortly afterwards. Mr. Waddell was widely known in Peterborough and surrounding district, and his demise will be greatly regretted. He was born in South Monaghan 75 years ago, his parents coming from County Down, Ireland, early last century. He conducted a general store in Centreville for about 35 years, and after retiring therefrom he lived quietly on the homestead near Centreville. He moved to Peterborough, 16 years ago, where he has resided ever since.

The late Mr. Waddell was a Presbyterian in religion and a conservative in politics. He attended St. Andrew's church. He leaves a widow and one son, Mr. Roland M. Waddell, who is now on his wedding trip in Europe. The sisters are Mrs. F. Hurdon, of Toronto, and Mrs. R. C. Boswell, of Elora, Mrs. Wm. Nesbet of Lindsay, another sister, predeceased him some years ago.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon with the service at 2.30 o'clock, from his late residence, "Beechfield," to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Jas. Rollins will officiate. It is requested that flowers be omitted.

COFFEE CONGESTION.

Cause a Variety of Ills.

A happy old lady in Wisconsin says—"During the time I was a coffee drinker I was subject to sick headaches, sometimes lasting 2 or 3 days, totally unfitting me for anything.

To this affliction was added, some years ago, a trouble with my heart that was very painful, accompanied by a smothering sensation and faintness.

Dyspepsia, also, came to make life harder to bear. I took all sorts of patent medicines but none of them helped me for any length of time.

"The doctors frequently told me that coffee was not good for me; but without coffee I felt as if I had no breakfast. I finally decided about 2 years ago to abandon the use of coffee entirely, and as I had read a great deal about Postum I concluded to try that for a breakfast beverage.

"I liked the taste of it and was particularly pleased to notice that it did not 'come up' as coffee used to. The bad spells with my heart grew less and less frequent, and finally ceased altogether, and I have not had an attack of sick headache for more than a year. My digestion is good, too, and I am thankful that I am once more a healthy woman. I know my wonderful restoration to health came from quitting coffee and using Postum. Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason", and it is this. Coffee has a direct action on the liver with some people, and causes partial congestion of that organ preventing the natural outlet of the secretions. Then may follow biliousness, sallow skin, headaches, constipation, and finally a change of the blood corpuscles and nervous prostration.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

ENGLISHMEN MARCH TO ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

St. George's Day Observed by Local Society.

There was a large turnout last night of members of the local order of the Sons of England, as well as Englishmen generally, to attend St. John's church, where Rev. Mr. Carpenter, gave a patriotic and eloquent address. The fine choir of the church sang "O Canada," and "God Save the King," while Mr. Bevey rendered "Home, Sweet Home," on the organ during the recessional march.

There were about 250 in the parade, the body of the church being reserved for them.

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES ACT.

The object of the Act is to promote habits of thrift, and to provide all persons, male or female, domiciled in Canada with a safe and sure plan of making provision for old age at the lowest possible cost. Deposit from time to time in any Money Order Office such sums as you can spare, for which purpose the Postmaster will supply you with a pass book; or you may, if you prefer, remit these amounts direct to the Annuities Department, in any manner that may best suit your convenience. (If by cheque or Money Order, this should be drawn to the order of the Receiver General.) Upon your deposits 4 per cent. compound interest will be allowed, and at the age of 55 (which is the earliest age at which an Annuity can begin) or at any later age desired, and of course the longer deferred the larger will be your income, such Annuity as the total amount then at your credit will purchase will be paid to you in quarterly instalments so long as you live. A definite amount of Annuity may be secured if specific sums are regularly paid. Should you die before the Annuity is due, all payments made will be returned to your legal representatives with 3 per cent compound interest; though the same payments will secure for you a larger Annuity if you do not wish to provide for this return.

If you have an amount at your credit in the Post Office Savings Bank, you may have this amount, or such portion of it as you may desire, transferred to the Annuities Department for, or on account of, the purchase of an Annuity.

The minimum Annuity which may be purchased is $50, and the maximum $600. The earliest age at which the purchase may be begun is 5, but it may begin at any age thereafter. To each purchaser a contract or policy is issued, and a provident feature of the System is that there are no penalties or forfeitures. If payments should for any reason cease they may be renewed at any time; and if arrears are not made up the only effect will be that a smaller Annuity will be secured.

A person over the age of 55 may buy an Immediate Annuity; and a Last Survivor Annuity, Immediate or Deferred, may be purchased by any two persons by a single payment.

By paying a little higher rate, all Annuities may be guaranteed for a number of years certain.

About 1,800 persons have availed themselves of the Act, and over $900,000 have been paid into the fund. Every class of the community may be said to be purchasing. Twelve lecturers or agents are employed to present the features of the system to the public from the platform and otherwise; and an office staff of eighteen is already necessary to handle the work. You bear no share of this cost, but every cent you pay in is placed at your credit for the purchase of your Annuity.

If you desire any further information on this subject this will be supplied you by the Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, to whom all letters go free of postage. Literature may be obtained at the Post Office.

Shaughnessy Returning.

London, April 21.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy sailed for Canada today.

A BARONET JOINS THE SALVATION ARMY

New York, April 21.—From British baronet to expert rough-rider with a wild west show and then to janitor of a Salvation Army hall in Brooklyn, has been the remarkable experience of Sir Genille Cave-Browne-Cave, who to-day announced his resignation as a vice-president of the British Boy Scouts organization in order to apply for admission to the Salvation Army Training College. The baronet wants to become an officer in the Salvation Army, and expects, although he is well over the age limit, to be accepted for that work.

At the Salvation Army Hall, 253 Washington street, Brooklyn, Genille said to-day that he hoped when he was accepted for Salvation Army work that he would be sent either back to his old home in England or to India, where he saw service. He also referred to Col. Wm. H. Cox, editor-in-chief of the War Cry, who has investigated the case and says that their new recuit is actually the twelfth Baronet Cave-Browne-Cave.

The baronet asserted that he had not joined the Salvation Army because he was destitute or in need of assistance, but simply because he had become converted at one of its meetings.

"It is quite a contrast to the ten dollars a day I was earning when I joined the army to the $3.50 a week which I now get for taking care of this hall," he said with a smile, "but I am perfectly content. As I have to buy my meals and clothing out of my wages, being supplied with only a place to sleep here, I am not able to save very much. I have applied for an officers command in the Salvation Army, and, as I am 42 years old, six years beyond the age limit, I have to wait until my application is approved by the high officials of the organization.

"I am Sir Cave-Browne-Cave, the twelfth baronet of that name, and I have plenty of proof of the legitimacy of my title, but I am no longer the heavy-drinking roystering fellow I was once. I became converted through the instrumentality of the army, and am now perfectly happy and content. My conversion was sudden. One night last September I was drinking in a saloon when a Salvation Army lassie touched me on the shoulder and asked me if I was a Christian. When I told her no she handed me a card and invited me to attend her meetings.

"I had refused to go to church as I had no desire to listen to someone who I believed was a bigger hypocrite than I was myself, but for some reason I went to the meeting. I went every night after that and the sixth night while I was sitting in my own room I was converted. I then publicly declared my belief in religion and offered myself for the army work. I abandoned all my old companions and took this job as janitor at one-third a week what I used to earn in a day. The marvellous thing is that I lost my taste for both alcohol and tobacco. While I drank and smoked heavily, to-day the very smell of either drink or tobacco makes me ill. I have been a soldier in India and China, a cowboy in America, and have had a varied experience as is usually given to most men.

"It will cost me about one hundred dollars to go through the training college, but I expect to be able to borrow that from my brother-in-law for I cannot save very much. But I certainly intend to devote the remainder of my life working for my fellow-men."

SCRUBBED FLOORS.

That Sir Genille is in earnest in his work was shown when he was found scrubbing the floor of the Salvation Army hall in Brooklyn. In boots, trousers, and undershirt, armed with a broom, he was sloshing around in the water and showing himself an adept man at labor.

Col. Cox looks upon Sir Genille as one of the most valuable accessions ever made to the Salvation Army ranks.

"We know nothing about his antecedents," the Col. said, "except that his claim to the nobility is genuine. He has entered into the work with enthusiasm and I am sure that he will be a tremendous force for good wherever he is stationed."

SUPERANNUATION FOR ALL THE CIVIL SERVANTS

Ottawa, April 21.—A deputation of civil servants from every part of the Dominion, from British Columbia to Halifax, waited on the Minister of Finance this morning and asked for the abolition of the existing retirement fund and the introduction of the system of superannuation similar to that adopted by Canadian banks and insurance companies.

Among the speakers were: Hon. A. T. Dunn, of St. John, and Hon. J. F. Wbear, of Charlottetown. The Finance Minister promised favorable consideration.

CLIMAX OF NEGRO HATRED BLACK MAN RIDDLED WITH SHOT

Calhoun, Ky., April 21.—With the militia upon the scene to prevent a race war, the authorities set out to day to investigate the lynching of Wm. Potter, a negro, who went to his death last night at Livermore, eight miles from here in the most melodramic scene of vengeance ever enacted. Accused of fatally shooting Frank Mitchell, a young white man, of Livermore, the assailant was strung up before the stage of the Livermore opera house and a crowd of 100 men and boys, all armed, who filled the theatre, riddled his body with bullets. So much per shot was charged, the sum to be turned over to the Mitchell family. Early to-day when Potter's body was cut down it was hanging in shreds.

DOUBLE PRICES CHARGED.

Persons who were willing to pay for orchestra seats were charged double prices for the privilege of emptying their rifles or revolvers into the body of the swaying figure. Those in the gallery were granted a lower rate. The opera house was an inferno of gun shots and the sheriff, who tried to force his way was ordered away upon penalty of severe treatment.

Finally a detachment of militia arrived on the scene and reinforced by a posse drove the mob from the theatre.

ARMED FARMERS ARRIVE.

The entire community was aroused and from midnight until dawn armed farmers from the surrounding country who had heard vague rumors of a race war was in progress. All negroes in the town were warned to keep indoors to-day.

The dramatic tragedy had its inception in a pool room where Potter and Mitchell had quarrled. Potter drew a revolver and shot the white man. Town Marshall Stablet placed Potter under arrest and took him to the lock-up. Within an hour a mob had formed and was menacing the jail. Half a dozen deputies were sworn in to protect the negro and the marshal removed the prisoner to the town opera house, getting the negro through a back door and evading the mob by a ruse.

When the mob learned it had been tricked, the infuriated members stormed the opera house, overpowering the guards and stringing up Potter to a rafter. The footlights were turned on and scenery shifted to give the scene a background. Then the shooting began.

Marshal Stablet telephoned to Sheriff Beeler in town to go at once and call out a company of militia.

The 3rd Dragoons will go into camp this year at Petawawa. The exact date has not yet been announced, but it will most likely be about June 13. The 3rd Dragoons has had a number of officers attending the school during the past month or two and should be in first class shape for the company camp.

Charged With Stealing.

At the Police Court on Saturday, David Drain and Robert L. Anderson were jointly charged with stealing a sheep last July, the property of Edward Fitzgerald. After hearing the evidence Police Magistrate Dumble let the prisoners go on suspended sentence. Every three months they will have to report to the Chief of Police.

It is expected that the first game of the season will be pulled off this morning at dawn, between "Sandy" Hall and "Shorty" Landrake, those famous rivals of the city championship cup.

Increasing the Membership.

Mr. V. Eastwood, local manager of the Royal Bank, sent a cheque for $12 to Mr. Quartermaine, secretary of the Board of Trade, being membership fees for a number of citizens. Mr. Eastwood believes in acts, and not in mere words.

A Token of Gratitude.

Mrs. J. H. Bettis, who lives on the east bank of the Otonabee, just south of the Hunter street bridge, has been agreeably surprised by the receipt of a very handsome gold pearl brooch, from Mrs. Dickson, of Campbellford. It will be remembered that on Good Friday a young son of Mr. and Mrs. Dickson was rescued from drowning by Mr. James Ellis, of East City, who carried him in an unconscious condition into Mrs. Bettis' residence, where he was cared for by that lady. The brooch was sent as a token of gratitude.

Chief Howard Entertained.

Chief Howard of the Peterborough Fire Department, was entertained at Hastings on Friday evening by the firemen of that village to a concert and banquet. At the concert, the Chief delivered a short address on "Fire Protection," which was well received. The Chief also during the afternoon gave the local fire brigade of that place a drill, and instructed them how to use the new truss ladder which they had just purchased, and which is similar to the ladders used by our local firemen.

OBITUARY

Francis Violet Bailey.

Yesterday afternoon, the sad death of Francis Violet Bailey occurred at her home in Smith Township, near Jackson Park. The deceased was the daughter of James H. Bailey, and was 17 years of age. The funeral arrangements have not been made and will be announced later.

The Late John Creighton.

The Duluth Herald, of 3rd instant, contains the following notice of the death of Mr. John Creighton, of that city, brother of Mrs. John McClure, Sherbrooke street, Peterborough:

The death of John Creighton, who died last night at St. Mary's hospital, after a brief illness of ten days, takes away one of the oldest men in the employ of the Government life saving service.

Mr. Creighton has been connected with the life-saving service in Duluth since the local station was started in June, 1895, sixteen years ago. All that time he has been known as "No. 1," the title being fixed by the fact that he pulled at the first oar when ever the crew was in action. Previous to that time he was in the service on the lower lakes, coming here from Marquette, Mich., entering it in April, 1886.

Mr. Creighton made an excellent record for himself. Always of a retiring disposition, he did not go in for the spectacular individually, but he has assisted at some of the most sensational rescues of the great lakes. Since locating at Duluth he has been a member of the crews which have risked their lives time after time to take men from ships which were being pounded to pieces by the savage Lake Superior storms. He was with the life-saving crew Nov. 28, 1905, when the ill-fated Matoafa was wrecked as she was trying to gain the harbor through the ship canal. He was with them when the Thomas Wilson and the George W. Hadley collided in Lake Superior seven or eight years ago and nine men lost their lives before they could be taken off. He also went out to the England, which was wrecked on Oatka beach the same day that the Matoafa met its fate. And he has assisted in countless rescues of smaller craft in the harbor.

Mr. Creighton was 53 years old and is survived by a wife and four children, who reside at 1120 Lake avenue south. The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the residence. Rev. A. W. Ryan will officiate. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

A LONG FAST.

Annie Gosselli, 60 Years Old, To-day Partook of Food After a Long Delay.

Morris Plains, April 23.—After a fast of sixty-five days Annie Gosselli, thirty years old, light of build and not very healthy, to-day partaking of food again. A half a dozen glasses of milk and half an orange were all the food she had during her fast.

Miss Gosselli went to the Passic general hospital early in February for a pin in her side. On the first day she drank a glass of milk and ate half an orange. She maintained that an "angel visitor" fed her. She was at first suspected of practicing some fraud, but by a close watch showed that she was actually going without food.

Early in March Miss Gosselli was transferred to the New Jersey State hospital here. She suffered no ill effects from her fast.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Disturbing the Theatre-Goers.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons have written a letter to the press in which they state that numerous complaints are being made to them regarding people coming in late and disturbing those who are already at the Opera house. There is good reason for complaint, for scores of people, who should know better, enter and take their seats after the entertainment has started, much to the discomfort of many, and especially those who have to rise up in order to allow the late arrivals to pass to their seats. Writing letters to the press, however, won't stop it. It will require something more effective. The Times would suggest that all who enter after the performance has started, be required to pay an extra 10c or 15c at the door. This would cure the habit. It is up to the Messrs. Turner to adopt this plan. The Times, which by the way, does not publish columns of free notices of what takes place in the Opera House, and is therefore not in the good graces of the management, will make no charge for the price of advice.

VANCOUVER, B. C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

VOL XXXIV NO. 95 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY APRIL 25 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

PROTESTANTS WILL FIGHT THE NE TEMERE DECREE

THE WHOLE COUNTRY IS BEING THOROUGHLY AROUSED AGAINST IT.

Clauses of the Criminal Code of Italy, which The Sentinel says, Are Required in Canada.

All classes and conditions of Protestants are lining up to fight the attitude of the Pope in regard to mixed marriages. The Protestant churches are leading in the attack, and it is only a question of time — and a very short time at that until the Federal Government will be compelled to change their attitude, and give the people a marriage law that will cover the whole Dominion.

In its current number The Sentinel, Toronto, suggests an enormous petition signed by all the members of Protestant churches in Canada asking the Government to enact a Federal marriage law and impose penalties for interference, as is done in Italy.

A uniform petition would have to be decided on, it observes, and steps taken to have it signed and laid before Parliament at next session together with a carefully prepared bill.

The Sentinel quotes the clauses in the Criminal Code of Italy, which, it declares, were found necessary for the protection of the people, and which, it says, are required in Canada:

"Clause 173—Any minister who in the exercise of his priestly office censures and abuses the institutions and laws of the State or the enactments of the authorities renders himself liable to fine and imprisonment.

"Clause 174—A priest who, abusing the moral power derived from his office, incites to the setting aside of the institutions and laws of the State; or in any other way to the neglect of duties due to the country or inherent in a public office, or who, damages legitimate private interests, and disturbs the peace of families, renders himself liable to fine, imprisonment and temporary or perpetual suspension from office, or from the endowments of his office."

The opinions of clergymen all over the country are also quoted, including the following:

"Arrogant and Intolerable."

Rev. J. D. Richardson, Methodist Perth, Ont.—"The Papal decree commonly known as Ne Temere, which presumes to regulate mixed marriages in this country, is an arrogant and intolerable assumption of authority."

Pernicious.

Rev. H. Weigand, Evangelical Lutheran, Brodhagen, Ont.—"As marriage is a civil contract and partly under the regulation of the law of the country, the most simple and effectual way to deal with such arrogant and pernicious decrees as the Ne Temere would seem to me the one proposed by the Rev. Mr. Hincks. The enactment of a law making it a criminal offence for any man to question the validity of a marriage solemnized in accordance with the law of the country."

Sets Government at Defiance.

Rev. Wm. C. Allen, Millbrook, Ont.—"There can be but one opinion, it seems to me, with regard to the Papal Ne Temere decree. The arrogance and intolerance of it would be incredible did we not know the source from which it came and the history of the past. Not only does the decree propose to unchurch every religious body other than the Church of Rome, but

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE ORGANIZED LABOR, SAYS GOMPERS

Washington, April 24.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and other officials of that organization apply the brand of "infamous outrage" to the arrest in Indianapolis Saturday of James J. McNamara, on a charge of being implicated in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times office. This is Mr. Gomper's comment on the arrest:—

"The stage was all set the proper up goes the curtain, with the blare of trumpets, upon the first act of a tragedy contemplating the assassination of organized labor.

"Ever since the Los Angeles Times tragedy the interests have been trying to fasten the guilt upon organized labor. It might just as well be McNamara as another. The whole affair smacks of well-laid pre-arrangement. The interests of corporate wealth are always trying to crush the organized labor movement, and they use the best way—to strike at the men having the confidence of the working people. I will hold my confidence in the men until I am satisfied they are guilty."

TRADES UNIONISM ON TRIAL BY DYNAMITER'S CONFESSION

ONE HUNDRED AND TWELVE MEN MURDERED BY SECRET COUNCIL OF WORKINGMEN.

According to Declaration of Ortie McGonigal, Now Under Arrest—Secretary McNamara of International Association of Iron Workers is Accused With Others.

Chicago, April 24.—A confession, which, if true, is one of the most shocking stories to be found in criminal annals, has been made by Ortie McGonigal, a structural iron worker. It puts trades unionism in America on trial for its very existence, for in its hideous details it purports to tell how, to advance the cause of unionism, the lives of 112 men were snuffed out, and property worth more than $2,500,000 destroyed; how arch-plotters, outrivalling the hideous Lucretia Borgia of history in their thirst for blood, sat in secret council and condemned to death innocent workingmen. McGonigal's arrest here was coincident with the arrest in Indianapolis of John J. McNamara, of Indianapolis, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, and his brother, Jas. W. McNamara. The story was told by McGonigal as he sat in a bedroom in the home of City Detective William H. Rod, South Chicago, on the night of April 13.

Seated in the bedroom were William J. Burns, head of the Detective Agency responsible for the dynamiters' capture, several other detectives and a stenographer of the Police Department. According to the correspondent of the corporation-owned New York Sun, the little group in the bedroom sat spellbound by the horror of McGonigal's tale. He spoke carelessly of their crimes, telling of how the explosive was "planted." When he finished he lifted his right hand and swore he had told the truth.

McGonigal went into detail regarding all the jobs. He told how activities had been shifted to Texas, and then to South Chicago, and later to Milwaukee. In El Paso 15 men were killed in an explosion.

When asked to fix the number of men killed in all by the murderous expeditions, McGonigal said: "I guess there were a hundred or so." He told of visits to Indianapolis, where he claims he saw John McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers. He says that McNamara furnished them with funds and with the explosive which they used. He said that they received their orders from him in carrying out their murderous work.

FOUND DYNAMITE IN SHED.

Tiffin, Ohio, April 24.—Detective William J. Burns, head of the agency which bears his name, and one of his operatives, J. A. G. Badorf, say they uncovered 400 pounds of dynamite in a shed in the heart of this city, Sunday evening, within twenty minutes of stepping from a train which bore them from Indianapolis. The dynamite, Burns declares, was stored here by Ortie McGonigal, one of the prisoners taken at Detroit, Mich. Detective Burns declares there was enough dynamite stored in this place to shake the city from end to end.

ARREST OF McNAMARA.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 24.—John J. McNamara, international secretary of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers of America, the headquarters of which are in Indianapolis, was arrested here late Saturday, charged with complicity in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times, on October 1, 1910, and the plant of the Llewellyn Iron Works in Los Angeles.

SAY IT'S A PLANT.

Twenty minutes after McNamara had been seized in the association headquarters in the American Central Life Building, where a meeting of the executive board of the organization was just adjourned, he was taken from the city by four detectives in an auto. It is supposed it was the object of the officers to get McNamara out of reach before his friends had a chance to fight the requisition.

Soon after the prisoner had been hurried into the waiting automobile, Detective Burns ran for another automobile and rode to the American Central Life Building, where F. M. Ryan, president of the association, and six members of the executive board were being held by the police, pending an investigation. The doors of the rooms were guarded by squads of police.

President Ryan said last night that he had been connected with union labor for several years, but had never heard of a case similar to the one charged to McNamara, but he had known of cases where "plants" had been made by enemies of labor organization, and that if explosives were found they must have been placed by enemies of the organization.

The custodian of the building where the offices of the union are said that McNamara had come to him six months ago and asked for a store room and that the request had been granted. He added that he had never seen McNamara or his companions carry anything to the storeroom.

Burns says Ortie McGonigal, who was arrested in Detroit, told him where these explosives could be found.

OPINIONS OF TORONTO MEN.

Mr. J. G. O'Donoghue, the well known solicitor for the Labor Unions and their representative at Ottawa, was quite willing to talk about the matter, when interviewed this morning at his office in the Confederation Life Building, Toronto, by a reporter.

SCHEME OF DETECTIVES.

"I suspect a scheme on the part of the private detectives," said Mr. O'Donoghue when asked his opinion. "This resembles the famous Hay-

PUBLIC OPINION

THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONERSHIP.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Would you kindly let the public know, through your paper if Mr. Duggan, the Industrial Commissioner, has been re-engaged for another year or not. If not, why not? We need some one to look after the business of securing industries, and now that we are likely to get cheaper power, his services may be in greater demand than ever before. I would suggest that the Council give the Commissioner some other work along with his present duties. For instance, I would have him send up all the by-laws in connection with bonuses or fixed assessments granted by the city to local industries, and see if they are living up to their agreements. How about the Cordage Works? Was any consideration given that Company by the city? If so, what is their nature? Has the city a claim against the property in view of the fact that the Company is insolvent? Let Mr. Duggan look into this matter at once, and if there is anything coming to the city, see that we get after it.

There are, I understand, other industries that have received help, but have not given value therefor, and I think it is well worth while to have these matters investigated.

An Old Resident.

PROUD OF OUR BRIGADE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I notice you ask for letters from your readers on local matters. I therefore, would like to say a word through the columns of your widely read journal, regarding our Fire Brigade. I have had considerable experience in fighting fire, and have a fair knowledge of what is required. In this connection I would say that Peterborough should be proud of its Fire Department. It is a credit to the city, and should have the hearty support and good-will of the public, as I believe it has. What Chief Howard does not know about running a fire department is not worth learning. He is the right man in the right place, and is teaching his men how to excell in their work. It is easy to show appreciation by words of commendation through the press and otherwise, and the encouragement thus given will result no doubt in still greater efforts by the firemen.

Ex-Fireman.

A GOOD IDEA.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Your suggestion that an extra charge be made to those entering the Opera House after the entertainment starts, is a good one. I would suggest to Mr. Turner that he devote the extra fee to some charitable enterprise, such as the Protestant Home or Children's Shelter. I am sure, from what I know of Mr. Turner, that he never would use it for his own purposes. (I don't think.) He is not built that way. But joking aside, Mr. Editor, I think it would be worth trying.

OBITUARY

We regret to have to record the death of Mr. Stephen Jeffrey, an old and highly esteemed citizen of this city, who passed away yesterday morning at the home of his son, Mr. Harry Jeffrey, 59 Olive Avenue.

The late Mr. Jeffrey came to Peterborough 31 years ago from England, moving to Cavanville in 1880, where he conducted a brick manufacturing plant. He moved to Peterborough about 12 years ago, after having suffered a stroke of paralysis, from which he never fully recovered. He had been in good health for about two years, but took suddenly worse about two weeks ago. The deceased was a member of the Anglican church and leaves to mourn his demise two sons, George, who resides at Davidson, Alta., and Harry of this city. One sister, Mrs. Cheese, resides in England.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, from the late residence, 57 Olive avenue, and proceed to St. John's cemetery, Cavan township, for interment.

The Rev. H. R. Trumpour will officiate at the house and Rev. W. C. Allen, of Millbrook, at the grave.

SHOULD NEVER BE TOLERATED WHERE BRITISH FLAG FLOATS

Ottawa, April 24.—"There has been a great advance in missionary work and Christianity in all parts of the world in the last fifty years," said Rev. Dr. James Henderson last night in the Dominion Methodist Church, Japan, China, Burmah, India, Corea and many other countries have received Christianity to a great exteat and have progressed, but when we come to French Quebec—well, I am not going to say very much about that."

"Where there are such marriage laws retained I am discouraged. I tell you it is a disgrace. Such a thing should never have been tolerated where the British flag floats.

"Rome has no right to dictate to us in that way and we should not stand for it even a moment and yet a man who has figured largely in that Province says that it is all right. It soon will work its cure. It is like bombarding Gibraltar with boiled peas to oppose the matter now."

TAFT TRYING TO DETRACT ATTENTION FROM TRUSTS

Montreal, April 12.—(Special.)—A gentleman eminent in the financial institutions of Canada, and who is a close observer of public affairs, made a deliberate statement recently to the effect that the financial world of the United States is in a dread of some awful impending calamity. For over five years Wall street, and everything associated with Wall street, has been trying to evade the situation, whatever it may be, that is impending.

It was fondly hoped that the American investing public would eventually come into the market and take up the enormous blocks of Wall street securities that had been carried on margin, but had been deserted by the people who bought them, and then passed into the hands of the great loaning companies who had advanced the funds to buy them. Every kind of an effort has been made to induce somebody to take up these securities, but they still remain in the hands of the trust companies, loan companies, banks, insurance companies and wealthy men who are in the habit of loaning money in this way. Concurrent with the situation is another serious matter, namely a dread on the part of the trusts that they will be regulated by law and the monopolies and high prices they now enjoy destroyed or nullified by either federal or state legislation, or the action of the interstate commerce commission.

TRYING TO ESCAPE.

These two great interests—Wall street and the trusts—have been occupied for some years in trying to escape these two things, to get rid of

ST. GEORGE'S DAY IN PETERBOROUGH

BANQUET IN HONOR OF ENGLAND'S PATRON SAINT.

Large Attendance of Englishmen and Much Enthusiasm—A Pleasant Evening Spent Amid Patriotic Songs and Speeches.

Last night, Englishmen resident in Peterborough observed St. George's Days by a banquet at Coleman's restaurant. It was a very successful affair, about sixty persons attending.

Among those present were: Mr. E. A. Peck, Col. Miller, Major Clegg Rev. Carpenter, Rev. Canon Davidson, Mr. R. J. Devey, Mr. Cluxton, Mr. Runnet, Ald. Kerneghan and C. Pitchford.

The chair was ably filled by Mr. E. A. Peck, who made an excellent toastmaster. Mr. Douglas, the talented musician, looked after the musical portion of the programme. After full justice had been done to the good things provided the chairman, proposed the toast of "The King," and was followed by the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. Harold Lee then sang "The Lord of Hope and Glory," in a most pleasing manner and voice.

Mr. Miles proposed the toast to the "Imperial Forces," which was responded to by that popular entertainer Col. Miller, in which he gave a splendid history of the English fore-fathers who fought for their country. He finished up with a patriotic poem, which took the house.

A quartette—"The Gypsy Laughing Song" was then excellently sung by Messrs. New, Lee, Guy and Cairns.

"Canada," was then proposed by Mr. C. Guy, and responded to by Rev Canon Davidson.

"O Canada," was then sung in the meantime by all present.

After a song by Mr. Chambers, a toast was proposed by Mr. Shiner, to "The Day We Celebrate." The chorus "Red, White and Blue" was then sung which was followed by a lengthy and pleasing address by Mr. Carpenter, who responded to the toast.

Mr. Douglas then rendered an excellent song which was greatly enjoyed by those present.

"Our City" was then proposed by Mr. Ball and responded to by Ald. Kerneghan.

The meeting came to a close by the singing of "God Save the King."

The committee who had charge of the banquet is as follows: W. Guy S. Jay, J. Common, G. Green, F. Clark, J. Packman and T. Pitchford.

RAILROAD WORK AT BETHANY

THE C. P. R. GRAIN LINE PROGRESSING.

Large Number of Italians Employed in Grading—Petition for a Station.

The C.P.R. is busy these days preparing for the reception of the laborers, mostly Italians, who, are coming to Bethany in May to build the new railroad. The Company have rented sufficient ground on the farm of Mr. Arthur Davis to erect a cookhouse, shacks, etc., necessary for the occupation of so large a gang as that which is rumored is coming into Bethany. The carpenters have bought over 15,000 feet of rough lumber, and are busy building the camp. On Saturday, a carload of horses arrived, together with the effects of about 10 men, who are preparing for the laborers. The C. P. R. have bought about twenty houses in Bethany, and the residents have been given notice to move by May 1st. Some difficulty is being experienced by these persons, as there appears to be only two or three empty houses in the village. As there appears to be no indication of a station on the plan of the proposed route for Bethany a monster petition is being signed by all the residents of the townships of Manvers and Cavan, humbly begging the C.P.R. to build station here, in Bethany, believing it will be beneficial to both the village and the railway for such a thing to take place.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked how I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $15 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

GAS DISTENDED HIS STOMACH

Caused Palpitation and Prevented Sleep. When Health Was Gone, Cure Followed Use of "Nerviline."

"My last wish will be," writes Harry P. Pollard, a well-known boot and shoe traveller of Hartford, "that everyone with a bad stomach may learn as I did, before it's too late, that Nerviline is the one remedy to cure. Why, I was in mighty bad shape, my digestion was all wrong, and every night I would awaken with a start and find my heart jumping like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better mighty fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the travelling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, breaks up chest colds and sore throat prevents lumbago or rheumatism, —in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Do you wonder I recommend it?"

TESTIMONIAL NO. 4990

For general household use Nerviline has no equal; it will cure the aches and ailments of the entire family—refuse anything but Nerviline, 25c per bottle, five for $1.00, all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Deadly Consumption Starts from Catarrh

Thousands Think Catarrh Is Cold, Neglect It and Die.

Last year forty per cent. of all the deaths were from consumption. These people all had catarrh in the first place, but neglected it.

Can't you realize the awful horrible mistake of not curing catarrh now?

To thoroughly root out all taints of Catarrh, nothing can act so beneficially as "Catarrhozone," which is acknowledged by all doctors to be a specific for all forms of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, throat, nose and chest ailments.

The reasons why Catarrhozone cures when other treatments fail are very simple. In the first place Catarrhozone reaches the true source of the disease. Very few, if any, of the ordinary cures can do this. Catarrhozone is carried along with the air you breathe through the mouth, throat and bronchial tubes. Its antiseptic vapor at once kills any germs that may be lurking in these air passages. No matter how remote these germs may be they can't possibly escape Catarrhozone; it goes everywhere the air you breath goes, and no air cell or air passage can escape its healing influence. The strong point about Catarrhozone is its ability to go direct to the spot where the catarrh germ is working. Every breath through the inhaler means instant death to the microbes, and gives the sufferer relief from the gnawing, destructive action of these parasites. It must be remembered, also, that Catarrhozone is a marvelous healer. It soothes the inflamed membranes, patches up the little sore spots, and removes the sensitive, tender feeling from the nose and throat. Of course, the discharge of mucus stops at once, Catarrhozone prevents this entirely.

Another nasty symptom that quickly disappears is the dropping of vile discharge from the throat into the stomach. Catarrhozone clears out the nostrils so that you don't have to breathe through the mouth. Hawking and spitting stop because the discharge is cleared up. The blinding headache that is caused by nothing else than catarrh is also lifted from your burden, and life begins to look happy once more.

Complete treatment including beautifully polished hard rubber inhaler, and extra supply of liquid, costs $1.00 and is guaranteed to cure or your money back. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c, at all druggists, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE MARRIAGE QUESTION.

In the Province of Quebec marriage between Protestants must be celebrated by a Protestant clergyman, the union of Roman Catholics must be solemnized by a priest of the church. Accordingly the Hebert marriage which was performed by a Protestant clergyman was declared void. In other words, the state law has been made to coincide with the canons of a church. It is clear that both Mr. and Mrs. Hebert took the vows of marriage. Surely, says the News, it is a technical quibble to declare that these solemn vows are of no effect, no matter who heard them and witnessed the declaration. The church and the state law which follows the lead of the church, pretend to discountenance divorce. Yet a declaration of nullity is even worse than a divorce. Undoubtedly the Roman Catholic Church occupies a preferred position in Quebec legislation.

The protest of the Methodist Church against the "Ne Temere" decree is timely, sane, and abundantly definite. Every non-Catholic is bound to regard the promulgation of these laws of the Council of Trent as unnecessary and presumptious. Marriage is first of all a civil contract entered into by the King's authority. In the Province of Ontario the church declares that certain marriages which have the sanction of the state are null and void. There is a clash of jurisdictions which cannot be permitted.

The remedy lies with the Federal Government which assuredly has the authority to legalize marriage just as it had the authority to declare that a man may marry his deceased wife's sister.

ARCHBISHOP McEVAY ON EASTER.

Archbishop McEvay of Toronto, issued last week an Easter Message of Gladness and Peace, one reflecting the true spirit of Charity, Love and Peace which has ever predominated in the character of the Archbishop. After speaking of Easter and its religious significance, he says: "This then, is no time for hatreds enmities, and discords among Christians, but an occasion on which it is most befitting to conform in heart and spirit to the great precept of Charity which He gave us. 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, with all thy strength and thy neighbor as thyself,' and as our neighbor comprehends every being made to the image and likeness of God, we are to exclude no one from our Christian Charity at any time, much less at the holy season of Easter."

also presumes to set the civil Government at defiance. If the laws of the land legalize, as they do, mixed marriages, which the Papal decree forbids except under conditions which it prescribes, it seems to me that the redress of the intolerable wrong sought to be done, is in the hands of the Canadian people who can say by the ballot, in a very effective way, 'Hands off, let the religious bodies direct their own affairs, but forbear to touch the link of civil liberty and equal rights to all.'"

State Must be Supreme.

Rev. D. N. McCamus, Methodist, St. Mary's, Ont.—"Romanism is the one element in Canada which stands opposed to the civil processes of national unity and consolidation. . . .

Protestantism says: In all things governing our relations as fellow-citizens the State is supreme. The marriage covenant is a civil as well as a religious contract. When Romanism undertakes to dissolve a civil contract those responsible for the interference should be held amenable to the courts and be treated as lawbreakers. The supremacy of the civil Government in Canada must be maintained against all the decrees of the Papacy."

Power the Master Never Claimed

Rev. D. L. Gordon, Presbyterian, Russell, Ont.—"The attempt on the part of the Roman Catholic Church to enforce the law, Ne Temere, is producing all over the British Empire a condition of affairs which no self-respecting Government can long tolerate. That Church is arrogating to herself a power and an authority which the Master never claimed for Himself or His disciples. He never raised the question as to how, or by whom, the marriage ceremony should be performed. . . . When a duly authorized servant of the State joins together a man and woman in marriage they are henceforth husband and wife; and no one, be he priest or Pope, has any right, or power, or authority to set aside that contract or question its validity before God or man."

Disgrace to British Justice.

"Did I say this was true in all civilized countries? I should have said in all countries where Rome is not allowed to exercise her preposterous and outrageous claims. That certain priests have been allowed to enter once happy homes in Great Britain and Canada, and under the protection of the law, Ne Temere, to stigmatize virtuous women and innocent children, is a disgrace to British justice, an insult to British institutions and an injustice to all Protestant ministers. Equally reprehensible is the law which permits or compels Mr. Justice Laurendeau, as we read in a recent Montreal paper, to confirm the canonical decision of the Church of Rome that the marriage of Mr. Eugene Hebert and Miss Marie Emma Chiston is illegal, because they are both Catholics, and had been married by a Protestant minister. If such a law exists, it should immediately be struck off the statute book."

the watered stock they hold and to avoid legislation regulative of them and their business.

Instead of conditions improving, they seem to get worse, and there is good reason for believing that some time ago they appealed to President Taft, told him their whole story, and said that disaster was ahead unless something could be done. What Wall street wants is no interference with the trusts, and it wants some new way found for the exploitation of the natural resources of their own or some other country which will create a fresh batch of rich men, who in their enthusiasm and pride of great profits, will be induced to buy up the discarded securities.

EXPLOIT CANADA.

The exploitation of the resources of Canada by Americans would be one way of making these rich men. The subjection of Mexico to the south would do the same thing; and the willingness of President Taft to give Canada almost anything to get reciprocity and to get Canada opened up to American exploitation and his determination to find an excuse—if he can find one—for interfering in Mexican affairs—these are two things that prove incontrovertibly that the President is trying to distract attention from the condition of financial affairs in the United States, and the fear the trusts have of losing their credit.

President Taft, however, is so involved in politics, and the two great political parties are so divided one with the other, and each one within itself, that there is no great likelihood of the president being able to come to the relief of Wall street or the trusts. Some kind of forced liquidation and a great deal of political struggling seem to be the only way out of the difficulty.

RECIPROCITY, THEN—

In the meantime Taft and Wall street are anxious for reciprocity, them for the annexation of Canada.

If a great business boom could be created out of Canada and Mexico, the day of trouble would be averted in the United States.

DAME NATURE HINTS.

When the Food is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food; the old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried all kinds of breakfast foods, but they were all soft, starchy messes, which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating.

"A friend persuaded me to quit coffee and the starchy breakfast foods and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice.

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have any headaches. I have gained 18 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspeptic symptoms."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Get the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Public Schools Re-Opened.

The public schools of the city reopened yesterday after the Easter vacation. There was a large attendance of pupils. Beyond a couple of changes in the teaching staff, things will go on practically as before. Miss McQuarrie, takes the position at East City school left vacant by the resignation of Miss Mann, and Miss Bennett succeeds Miss Lochead.

Epworth League Meeting.

A very interesting meeting took place last night of the St. Paul's Epworth League. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Robt. Pogue, Rev. Mr. Coon and others. In addition, Miss Smith, of the Dan Spence Council, gave a reading, and solos were rendered by Mrs. E. Wand, Mr. Huycke and Mr. Miller. The program was arranged by members of the Royal Templars.

On a Three Months' Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Campbell, leave to-morrow morning on a trip to the British Isles and the continent. They will be away about three months. Trades Unionism on Trial wood case, in which the labor people were blamed for the assassination of the governor of one of the Western States during the strike at the Coeur d'Alane mines. Haywood, the president of the Western Federation of Miners and other chief officers were arrested. It transpired that Orchard—a Canadian, was guilty, a confession being wrung from him, and the conspiracy fell through.

WEAKER THAN HAYWOOD CASE.

"From advance notices, that case appeared stronger than this alleged offence. I would not take the statement of a private detective, and I won't believe the men are guilty until it has been proved."

JURY SAID IT WAS GAS.

"The whole thing looks fishy to me. It looks like a frame-up. It would strike any lawyer in that light. The Los Angeles jury decided that the explosion was caused by gas.

"I hope the matter is probed to the bottom. I absolutely disbelieve that any of these men are guilty. The detectives are making this case as bad as the Camorra trial in far-off Italy."

A GOOD LIVING MAN.

A prominent Toronto newspaper man, who is intimately acquainted with McNamara, in stating his views to The Star, said: "I believe Mac is as innocent as a child." A better living, more straightforward man would be hard to find. That he would be guilty of such a crime—well, I'm from Missouri, you'll have to show me."

From the editorial of the magazine of the organization, just issued for April, the following, on the Los Angeles situation is taken. It is presumably written by McNamara, who is editor of the magazine:

"Our Los Angeles brethern who have been on strike against the metal trades employers, who are backed by the Merchants' and Manufacturers Association, since 1910, are putting up one of the most determined contests that has taken place in this country on the part of union men, fighting for their rights to organize, for their organization, in fact we may say their very existence.

"They have had to contend with a strongly entrenched and united organization of employers, backed by a public that had been schooled to look down on organized labor and everything connected with the labor movement. Courts and public officials were biased and bitter, drastic anti-picketing ordinances were adopted and enforced with relentlessness that would put the Czar of Russia to blush. To be a union man was to mean that you were thrown into jail and bail fixed at such a figure that it was absolutely out of the question for friends or sympathizers to furnish same, so that persons who were doing nothing but fighting for rights guaranteed them by the Constitution of the State, and of the United States, could obtain their liberty until called for trial."

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

BURNS SAYS HE WILL SHOW M'NAMARA BLEW UP LOS ANGELES TIMES

DETECTIVE BOASTS ABOUT HIS CASE AGAINST THE UNIONS —SAYS EVIDENCE IS STRONG.

Alleged Kidnappers Jailed in Default of Bail—Crowds Jeered as They Went to Jail.

Washington, April 25.—A resolution demanding an investigation of the arrest of John J. McNamara, at Indianapolis, was introduced in the House to-day by Representative Borger (Socialist, Wis.)

ARREST A BURNS' MAN.

Indianapolis, April 25.—James Dador, a Burns' detective operative, was arrested at noon charged with kidnapping J. J. McNamara, the Iron Workers' Secretary. Up to that time detective Burns had not been placed under arrest.

Fox, Drew and Ford, who are similarly charged, were later bound over to the grand jury by Mr. Justice Manning. Ford and Drew were held in $10,000 bond, and Fox in $15,000 and pending the furnishing of bondsmen the men were lodged in jail.

SAY EVIDENCE IS STRONG.

Indianapolis, April 25.—That J. W. McNamara will be identified as the man, giving an alias of J. B. Bryce, who purchased dynamite from the Giant Powder Company, of Los Angeles, two days before the Times explosion, was the assertion of Detective Burns here to-day.

"When McNamara reaches Los Angeles," said Burns, "he will be identified as the J. B. Bryce who bought this dynamite. His identification will be absolute and positive. Further, two sticks of dynamite placed under the Times building failed to explode. They were taken to the Giant Powder Company, and were identified as those purchased by this man Bryce."

Burns said McGonigal was not wanted in connection with the Times affair, but for dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works. He declares he had positive proof that J. W. McNamara Captain, and Smith were the men responsible for the Times disaster, and that J. W. McNamara was paid by his brother, arrested here.

"Captain and Schmidt are simply anarchists and are not affiliated with the ironworkers, but they helped in the job," said Burns. McGonigal worked alone on the Llewellyn job, according to Burns, but the detective declared that he could prove that John McNamara furnished the money.

THE NE TEMERE DECREE.

Every Methodist Conference from Newfoundland to British Columbia, will take up the question of Ne Temere decree and press the Government to require its withdrawal. A committee consisting of Rev. A letter has been received from Bishop Farthing, of Montreal, strongly approving of the action of the Methodist conference.

MINISTERS BACK MRS. MAY THORNLEY

AFTER HEARING DETAILS OF IMMORALITY ON PART OF CHILDREN THEY ENDORSE HER STAND.

Cited Over Twenty-Five Instances—Had the Names and is Ready to Give Proof If Put to the Test.

London, April 25.—Mrs. May R. Thornley, supported by Mrs. Gordon Wright and other members of the W.C.T.U., appeared before the Ministerial Association to-day. Mrs. Thornley was armed with a document that took upwards of an hour to read, in which she set forth instances of immorality among children. In Mrs. Thornley's arraignment, names were omitted, but she declared that she had the knowledge of these, and the right to mention them.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Thornley's address, the alliance passed a resolution in which she was vindicated for taking the initiative in bringing these immoral conditions to the attention of the people.

Mrs. Thornley told story after story of the social evil after school hours. She told of older children teaching dreadful practices to those younger in years. In all there must have been twenty-five or thirty instances cited, all of which Mrs. Thornley declared she stood ready to prove.

Mrs. Thornley proceeded to criticize Mayor Beattie for the comment he had seen fit to make regarding her stand. She and others thought she surely should have the right to bring a wrong to the attention of those who are laboring to remove evil.

Before taking her seat, Mrs. Thornley stated distinctly that she was making no attack on the schools. The immorality of which she spoke, was not immorality in the schools themselves.

THE RUBBER TIRE CO. BY-LAW LOST YESTERDAY BY THE LACK OF 422 VOTES

THE MEASURE HAD A MAJORITY OF 1134 IN ITS FAVOR OUT OF THE NUMBER OF VOTES POLLED.

Only 97 Votes Cast Against the By-law, Which, However, Met Defeat in Consequence of the Three-Fifths Clause of the Municipal Act Regarding Money Propositions.

The Rubber Tire Co. By-law failed to carry yesterday by 422 votes.

To carry this measure, like all money by-laws, required a three-fifths vote of the total number of qualified ratepayers on the roll in its favor.

Whilst the by-law carried by a large majority of those who voted, it fell down on the three-fifth legislative requirement. At no polling place was this needed endorsation vote polled, although Sub-divisions Nos. 4, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 12 came very near the mark. With citizens who turned out to vote, the proposition was evidently a popular one, as evidenced by the diminutive number of nays indicated on the ballot papers in the usual way.

The total number of votes polled was 1328 out of a roll of 2754—representing 1231 for and only 97 against the by-law. 1653 votes in the measure's favor were required to carry it, thus the industry is lost to Peterborough by the lack of 422 votes.

It seems impossible to carry such a by-law in Peterborough by a three-fifths vote as required by law; the ratepayers have never yet turned out in sufficient strength to do so. The Purity Ware proposition, whilst being carried on a majority vote of ratepayers voting, was lost on the three-fifths clause, as was also that of the Bonner-Worth Company. In the latter case, however, the city appealed for legislative ratification of the people's evident approval of the by-law, which was granted. This also can be done regarding the vote taken yesterday, and with every prospect of success; but it is extremely doubtful if the Rubber Tire Co would risk building operations, pending the action of the Legislature next winter—even should the parties not go to the people before another session.

CAUSE OF THE DEFEAT.

More than one cause for yesterday's defeat is offered. It has freely been contended that many ratepayers who favored the measure would not vote because the names of the gentlemen behind the Independent Rubber Tire Co., Limited, of Toronto, had not been published, whilst others complain of a lack of thorough organization. Regarding the latter contention, more than one deputy returning officer entered the city clerk's office last evening, and wanted to know where all the rigs had been throughout the day. One gentleman asserted that 50 votes for the measure were lost in South City, because they had not been called for as promised, and another deputy returning officer was heard to complain that his polling place would have returned the necessary three-fifths vote had rigs been available after six o'clock. Whether these contentions are true or only partially true, the general consensus of opinion around the City Hall last night was that the organization in the by-law's favor had been neither thorough nor satisfactory. And in order to carry any such measure under a three-fifths prohibitive clause needs perfect organization in every detail, especially when one considers the number of dead-heads and out-of-town qualified ratepayers that are on the list.

COMPARATIVE VOTE.

The voting yesterday was somewhat of an improvement on that of other votes taken in favor of aiding industries, as will be seen by the following:

LONDON POST ACCUSES TAFT OF PLOTTING AGAINST EMPIRE

London, April 25.—The Morning Post attacks the proposed arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States, and "on behalf of those who have perceived the lawlessness of the situation" protests against the forthcoming meeting at the Guildhall at which Premier Asquith, Mr. BaHour, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and others of England's most prominent men have promised to attend. The paper urges all patriotic citizens to remain away. The editorial says that the Guildhall meeting is taking place under false protences. One of the Post's reasons for its attitude is that "this offer was made by a Government whose hostility towards this country has since become manifest.

"It is now clear," continues the editorial, "that at the time President Taft was offering unrestricted arbitration, he was doing his utmost to disrupt the British Empire." This alleged effort at disruption, The Post explains, was shown in the attempt to induce Canada to abolish British trade preferences and form a commercial union with the United States.

QUEEN'S GRADUATES FAVOR CHANGE

Kingston, April 25.—The vote of the graduates of Queen's University is decidedly in favor of the constitutional changes suggested by the Board of Trustees and which means practical separation between the University and the Presbyterian Church. The graduates voted by 1,429 to 184 in favor of separation, the ministerial graduates alone voting 154 For and 55 Against.

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all dealers.

Winnipeg's Industrial Growth.

Winnipeg, April 25.—Winnipeg is making splendid industrial growth. Twelve factories are to be erected in one section of the city, nine of them being already under way. The cost of the nine is $500,000 and the other three will make up at least $200,000 more. In this section of Winnipeg there are 92 industries located.

GETTING WISE

SIR WILFRID—"This Tariff Treaty will Make Prices Lower to the Consumer, and Higher to the Farmer."

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE WE ARE IN DEATH.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I had always supposed that the oft-quoted sentence, "In the midst of life we are in death," was in the Bible, but I am unable to find it in a Concordance. Will you enlighten me?

X.Y.Z.

Reply—This sentence occurs in the burial service of the "Book of Common Prayer," used by the Episcopal Church. It does not occur in the Bible. The story of its origin is this: In the tenth century, a Swiss monk, watching some workmen building a bridge, was so impressed by the peril in which the men toiled that he went home and wrote an antiphon, or a responsive chant, for use in the church, of which the refrain was: "In the midst of life, O Lord, we are in death." An antiphon, with like refrain, written in German, long after by Martin Luther, was founded on this earlier one.—Ed. Times.

A LADIES' GUILD.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—One of the greatest problems of the age is the domestic servant question. It is every day becoming more difficult to secure good domestics, and everybody says that something will have to be done to relieve the situation very soon, or housekeepers will have to give up altogether. It is in reference to this that I write.

I see that the ladies of Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton have formed guilds to bring out from the Old Country experienced domestics. The plan is working well and I would suggest that the ladies of Peterborough do likewise. It might, perhaps be managed best through the Y.W.C.A., where ladies frequently gather in connection with Association work. I hope some one will make a start along these lines, and I am sure a splendid guild will be the result. There are hundreds of good domestics ready to come to Peterborough if they can only be got at. The Guild can reach them, and thus put an end to the present intolerable conditions in many of the best homes in the city.

Housekeeper.

ASSESSMENT PUBLICATION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would like to see the assessment roll of the city published, so that ratepayers can have an opportunity of comparing assessments, in order to point out inequalities. Would this be expensive? I presume you, Mr. Editor, would be able to let the public know the approximate cost? I think in the long run it would be money well spent.

Ratepayer.

Reply—To publish the Assessment Roll would probably cost in the neighborhood of $200 or $250 for 1000 or 1500 copies in pamphlet form. This would be exclusive of preparing the "copy" for the printer.—Ed. Times.

WEDDING BELLS

Pretty Cathedral Wedding.

Yesterday morning at 6 o'clock St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Derocher, 200 Murray street, was united in marriage to Mr. C. Lacombe, of Owen Sound. Rev. Father McCarthy performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of immediate friends of the contracting parties. Miss Katie Derocher, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, while the groom was assisted by Mr. Harry Lacombe. After the ceremony the young couple and their guests to the number of about thirty were entertained to a dainty dejeuner at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Lacombe left on the 11.50 train for the west. The groom's gift to the bride was a sunburst of pearls, and to the bridesmaid a gold locket and chain. The Times joins in wishing the young couple a prosperous and happy life.

The Y.M.C.A. football club are to hold their first practice to-night at 7 o'clock. All members are requested to be out in uniform.

Sprained Wrist And Ankle

After Being Laid up With Great Pain for Ten Days, Relief Was Gained Instantly by Applying

NERVILINE.

One of the most soul-distressing accidents that can befall one is a bad ankle or wrist sprain. "If I had only known of 'Nerviline' earlier, I could have saved myself an enormous amount of pain, and many agonizing nights of sleeplessness." Thus writes P. P. Quinn, a young farmer living near Brockville. TESTIMONIAL NO. 4266. "I tumbled from a hay loft to the barn floor and sprained my right ankle and left wrist. They swelled rapidly and caused excruciating pains. It was not convenient to go to the city, and the liniment in the house was useless. When I got Nerviline relief came quickly. It took down the swelling, relieved the pain, and gave me wonderful comfort.

"I can recommend Nerviline for strains, bruises, swellings, muscular pains, and sore back. I have proved it a sure cure in such cases."

Think what it might some day mean to you to have right in your home, ready for an accident or emergent sickness, a bottle or two of Nerviline. Get it to-day, 25c, or five for $1.00, all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

MOVE TO ANNUL MARRIAGE OF 30 YEARS AGO

MONTREAL MAN TAKES ACTION FOR SEPARATION FROM WIFE WHO DESERTED HIM.

Woman Left Him When Told She Wasn't Wedded—Couple Have Been Separated Fifteen Years—Grounds of Action.

Montreal, Que., April 25.—On the ground that when they were married 30 years ago, he was a Protestant, and his wife a Roman Catholic, George Dowden of this city, is now seeking the annullment of his marriage before the Superior Court, through his Attorney, Mr. Joseph Archambault, of Rodier and Archambault.

The recent annullment of the Hebert marriage on the grounds that it was performed by a Protestant minister, and was therefore not valid, has raised a storm of controversy on the question of the right of the Roman Catholic Church to declare such marriages invalid, and it is expected that this new case will be watched with interest when it comes before the court.

Dowden is sixty-one years of age. In 1881 he was married to Miss Elmire Poitras, by a Protestant minister in the French Protestant Church of the Redemption on Chatham street. At the time of the marriage Dowden was a Protestant and Miss Poitras a Roman Catholic.

According to Dowden's statement, as contained in the court record, after they had lived together for some years, Dowden's wife was told that her marriage with the plaintiff was invalid. Under this impression she left him fifteen years ago.

The other grounds he puts forward for separation are that his wife was a minor when he married her, and that they did not have the authority of her guardians, that the bans of matrimony were not published, and that he had not been baptised, and therefore could not legally marry one who had been baptised.

Very likely this will be made a test case and taken to the Privy Council to decide the validity of the Quebec marriage laws.

Received a Death Shock.

Montreal, April 21.—Boasting that he was not afraid of an electric shock, Jos. Sauvel, 23 years of age, who resided at Ile Perrot, climbed up one of the iron towers on which the electric wires are brought across the river from the power house at Soulanges and received the shock that caused his death.

A male cate that has just died in Indianapolis is said to have been twenty-four years old, but, of course, there will be many a doubting Thomas.

40 CHINESE WENT DOWN WITH SHIP.

But All the Europeans of Vessel Sunk in Collision Were Saved.

New York, April 25.—According to a Shanghai despatch the China Merchants Steamship Mee Foo was sunk by the same company's steamship Kwang Lee in the fog Saturday evening about ninety miles south of Shanghai and forty Chinese were drowned.

All the Europeans on board were saved.

The Kwang Lee has returned slightly damaged, with the survivors on board.

PROCRASTINATION.

The wisdom of prompt action was lately demonstrated in rather a pathetic way. Two sisters had listened to an address directing attention to the Canadian Government Annuities system as an opportunity for safe investment to people of small means, and with the result that both resolved to take advantage of it immediately. Each had the sum of $2,000 invested in the stock of a certain Bank. The younger sister, aged 65, did not delay, but at once sold her stock and made the purchase, and is now in receipt of an income of over $50 quarterly, the first instalment of which was paid to her three months after the purchase had been made. This gives her for life an income equal to 10 per cent. on the amount invested. The elder sister intended to follow her example, but unfortunately, on the advice of Mr. Knowall, put off doing so until it was too late. The Bank failed and her savings of a life time were swept away as in the twinkling of an eye. But not only was her $2,000 lost, but she became indebted to the Bank under the double liability clause in the sum of $2,000. Had she invested the amount as did her sister in the purchase of an Annuity she would have had an income no matter how long she lived of $225 a year.

Further information may be obtained on application to your Postmaster, or to the Superintendent of Government Annuities, Ottawa, to whom all letters go free of postage.

Destroying Bird Life.

The National Association of Audubon Societies has received estimates that the losses last year to food and cloth products in the United States amounted to over $10 to every person, chiefly due to the destruction of feathered insect-eaters.

The Government biological survey at Washington has given statistics which go far to prove that the cost of living has been raised to coper $1,000,000,000 loss in agricultural produce from the ravages of insects and robents that would have been largely wiped out if their natural bird foes had been protected from feather men, market butchers, and pot hunters.

Last year's cotton crop suffered a loss of at least $25,000,000, paid for by all who buy cotton goods, because the birds that destroy the weevil are being killed off.

Almost every edible product of the farm, excepting meat, has decreased in quantity and increased in price because the flock of insect-eating birds to drive away or destroy the field pests.

Only recently some 75,000 meadow larks were killed in Georgia, because of their beautiful plumage, yet 75 per cent. of the diet of these birds consists of cut-worms, weevils, insects.

OTONABEE TOWNSHIP COUNCIL.

Newly Elected Deputy Reeve John Miller Present.

The Otonabee Council met on April 17. All the members were present, including the newly elected deputy reeve John Miller and E. Deyal, councillor, who took declaration of office.

Four tenders were received for making cement culverts, R. J. Brown's being the lowest, he was awarded the contract.

Dr. Russell, of Centreville, applied for leave to erect a telephone line on the highway from Wallace Point bridge to Thorn's farm gate. Permission was granted on condition that the poles do not interfere with the grading of the road.

The following sheep valuators were appointed, whose duty will be to inspect the injury done to sheep by dogs, in cases where the owner of the dogs cannot be found; R. W. Esson, Ward No. 1; Andrew Bowie, Ward No. 2; Gilbert Howson, Ward No. 3; Albert Carpenter, Ward No. 4; F. Driscoll, Ward No. 5.

The following by-laws were passed: one authorizing the reeve and treasurer to give notes to the Toronto Bank as security for money borrowed for current expenses; one appointing pathmasters, pound-keepers and fence-viewers; one appointing sheep valuators.

The following accounts were passed: Walter Dickson, assessor, salary $75; Dr. McClelland, attendance on J. A. Trotter when in hospital, $15; Jas. Bowie, meat for J. A. Trotter, $6.50; A. Bryce, milk for J. A. Trotter, $5; W. T. Mathers, repairing, account $9.25.

The treasurer received a cheque for $169.44, Otonabee's portion of provincial railway tax.

It is reported to the Council that John Lang, ex-M.P., one of the public spirited citizens of Keene, is going to have built this season, at his own expense, about 500 feet of cement sidewalk in the village. A number of public-spirited citizens of the village some years since, decided to organize a street improvement association, consisting of the inhabitants of the village. The association was organized and has been so successfully carried on that by voluntary contributions of money and labor, by contracts and excursions and by commuting the village statute labor, a fund was created to carry on the work. The result is that the old obsolete plank sidewalks are a thing of the past, having been replaced by neat cement walks, the unsightly ditches on the side of the streets being replaced with drains; one of the streets being laid with twelve inch cement tile, giving the citizens a good outlet for their cellar drains. The streets are properly graded and gravelled and the sides sown to grass; the property owners taking a pride in keeping the sides trim with their lawn mowers.

Arbor Day is devoted to cleaning up the streets and planting trees, the lady property owners contributing money to the good cause. To vie with the conditions of the streets, the citizens take a pride in keeping their yards and lawns trim and their fences and buildings repaired and painted.

The fame of the association has gone abroad. Other villages securing information through the secretary as to how the association is conducted.

The Council adjourned until May 25th, to meet as Court of Revision.

Suckers Were Biting.

From the Metropolitan Magazine.

For the purpose of anvertising fishing rods a shop keeper hung a large rod outside his shop with an artificial fish at the end of it.

Late one night Perkins who had been dining a bit too well, happened to see the fish. Going cautiously to the door, he knocked gently.

"Who's there?" demanded the shop keeper from an upper window.

"Sh-h! don't make a noise, but come down as quietly as you can," whispered Perkins.

Thinking something serious was the matter, the man dressed and stole downstairs.

"Now, what is it?" he inquired.

"Hist!" admonished Perkins. "Pull your line in quick; you've got a bite!"

As They Do It in Cleveland.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A local victim of a street car pickpocket resolved to get even. He put in his pocket a pocket book containing nothing but a slip of paper, on which was written:

"This is where you lose, fellow!"

Then he climbed into a pay as you enter car and waited. Twenty minutes passed and nothing happened. Twenty more minutes flitted by. The sluech left the car then, having assured himself that his purse was safe. He repaired to a safe place and looked things over. There was a slip of paper, just as he had wrapped it up. But when he opened it the thing had a new sentence on it. It said:

"Ain-t you the kiddier!"

Fox Farming in Canada.

From the New York Press.

The richest farming in the world is fox farming—black fox farming. It is really gold mining. On Prince Edward Island the business of breeding black foxes has been carried on for a generation. Frank Deedmeyer, our consul at Charlottetown, says that $2,300 has been paid to a breeder for a single black fox skin; the prices for ordinary pelts run from $300 to $500 each. Some fox farmers have been able to pay off a farm mortgage by the sale of a pure black foxskin.

To Meet in Dublin.

London, April 24.—The Morning Post,s Belfast correspondent states that $500,000 has been subscribed to pay the expenses of the anti-Home Rule Campaign and that the Unionist Association of Ireland will meet in Dublin on Thursday to put the finishing touches on the arrangements for the campaign.

ACHING MUSCLES AND AFTER EFFECTS OF GRIPPE.

Zam-Buk Gives Ease.

As soon as you feel any deep-seated pain the joints, back, wrists, or elsewhere, place a liberal supply of Zam-Buk on the fingers or on the palm of the hand, and rub it well in. The penetrating power of this "embrocation-balm" is exceedingly great, and, once having reached the seat of the pain, it removes it speedily. It also ends the stiffness, which is so unpleasant.

Mrs. Frances Wyatt, of 25 Guy Avenue, Montreal, says: "I have found Zam-Buk most soothing and valuable in a very bad case of rheumatism and also for stiffness of joints and muscles. I suffered long and acutely with rheumatism, and tried one liniment after another in vain. I also took medicines internally, but it remained for Zam-Buk to effect a cure. I began applying this balm whenever I felt the aches and pains of rheumatism coming on, or felt the stiffness. The result was truly wonderful. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very seat of the pains, driving them out completely, and I am now quite cured."

This case, and scores of similar cases reported to us, is proof that Zam-Buk's penetrating and healing power is very great. In addition to its use as an embrocation, it is a sure cure for skin diseases, such as eczema, ringworm, ulcers, blood-poisoning, scalp sores, etc., and is the finest known "first aid." For piles, it is a specific. Gives certain ease. All druggists and stores, at 50 cents box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Mothers should also try Zam-Buk Soap for baby's bath and for the rashes, eruptions, pimples, etc., so common amongst children at this season. Shampooing with Zam-Buk Soap beautifies and strengthens the hair.

King George of England has decided that divorced people shall not be received at court. That appears to bar out New York society.

Rush From Great Britain.

Winnipeg, April 25.—The rush from Great Britain is even greater. 1,400 entered Winnipeg and the West on the 12th and 3,000 in one day on the 14th. This is a record for a single day in the history of the great rush into Western Canada, which has been going on for the past five years.

VANCOUVER, B. C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

VOL XXXIV NO. 97 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY APRIL 27 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

THE NE TEMERE AND THE B. N. A. ACT AGREEMENT

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT MUST DEAL WITH THIS MATTER.

The following letter has been handed to The Times for publication. It is written by Wm. F. Lighthall, M. P., of Montreal, and was addressed to the Witness. The letter reads as follows :

That power of legislation was not specially granted to Provincial Legislature by the B. N. A. Act of 1867, and where not so specially granted the residue of legislation remained with the Dominion Government.

The whole matter is clearly dealt with in Lefroy's 'Legislative Power in Canada,' where the following facts were shown :

1. 'Marriage and Divorce' are subjects attributed to the B.N.A. Act to the Dominion Parliament. (Section 91).

2. 'The Solemnization of Marriage is attributed by the B.N.A. Act to the Provincial Legislatures. (Section 92).

3. The exact meaning of the two clauses was explicitly set forth (in writing) at the time of the making of that Act, and it was agreed as then stated by Sir Hector Langevin that the Dominion has the sole power of declaring what marriages are valid and what are not. The provinces have only the right to settle the formalities (which must be such as not to interfere with the Dominion's Power).

The most foundationless element of the whole present situation is the attempts to recognize a so-called 'Canonical Court' to decide any point at all. Even if the solemnization were imperfect and could by imperfections affect the validity of the marriage (a Dominion matter), which it cannot—the Civil Court is the only one to inquire into the facts of such solemnization, and has no right to introduce 'canonical courts' and officers into its system. What will occur if the 'Canonical' courts which exist in most denominations all claim similar rights and start fulminating at each other and demanding confirmation by the Superior Court ? It is no answer to say they will not.

The Dominion Parliament should now legislate removing all doubts raised concerning these marriages, declaring them to carry full civil rights in Canada, wherever consummated therein, past, present and future; when so performed before any clergyman or other competent officer, without regard to religious faiths, and so long as contracted under proper provincial license, publication of bans, or dispensation by proper authority, and having no clandestinity ; which would have to be alleged and proven by any party prosecuting a divorce.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

THE ABOMINABLE DUST.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I wish to enter a complaint regarding the dust nuisance. On Monday the high wind blow the dust in clouds, much to the discomfort, not only of pedestrians, but also of housekeepers. I see the watering carts were busy in some localities since Monday, but they do not appear to be doing effective work.

Sufferer.

IS NOT CONTRADICTED.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see the statement made by The Times that no option had been given the city by the Ottonabee Power Company, has not been contradicted. It is therefore to be assumed that it is true, and that the item of $25,000 is only a rough guess. Indeed, I am informed that the Company would not entertain a proposition to sell out for any such sum. It would probably be nearer the half million mark than $225,000. So that I think the better plan would be to figure on the Lakefield power, which would be ample for all purposes.

The Council should lose no time in taking this matter up, as it is vital that Peterborough should secure plenty of power.

BLEW UP A FOUR-STOREY BUILDING AT VANCOUVER

Vancouver, B.C., April 26.—A four-storey building under construction here was damaged by an explosion of dynamite early to-day.

The police assert that this resulted from a deliberate plot to blow up building.

The walls and floors were shattered.

It is probable an attempt will be made to fasten the blame on union labor, as in the McNamara case in the United States.

AN INNOCENT VICTIM OF CHURCH AND COURT DECREE

Montreal, April 26.—New and important developments transpired this afternoon in the case of the Hebert marriage which was recently annulled in the Superior Court because Eugene Hebert and Marie Emma Clouatre, who were both Roman Catholics, had been married by Rev. Mr. Timberlake a Protestant clergyman.

In the interests of the two-year-old girl, who is illegitimate if judgment stands, documents will be deposited in the court house by Mr. Geo. V. Cousins, who is acting on behalf of the little child and her tutrix.

Mr. George V. Cousins, of the office of H. A. Lovett, K.C., took proceedings in the case last week to have a tutor appointed for the child.

The effect of the judgment of the Lower Court in the Hebert case, was so far as the child was concerned, to declare her illegitimate. The little girl cannot claim any parents, she has no name, no legal relatives, and therefore, no means of sustenance during the early days of her life.

A tutrix was appointed for the child last week for the purpose of giving to some one the legal right to look after the child, and the woman who has been given the authority to represent the little girl in any matters or proceedings in which the child's requirements are represented.

The incident has created strong feelings on the part of all classes of citizens.

POLICE SAID TO HAVE REMOVED SIGN ON ORDER OF PRIEST

Collingwood, April 26.—Considerable excitement and indignation has been aroused in Collingwood by the action of the Chief of Police in removing a large notice board from a public position in the city announcing a sermon by the Rev. G. F. Ansiter, of the Christian Church, on "Rome and the Bible."

It is understood that it was the result of a demand by the priest at the City Hall and that a member of the council ordered its removal by the police.

The offending bill board was in no sense an obstruction and was located where it is customary to place various announcements of public gatherings.

The Orange Association will take the matter up shortly, and it is probable that a public meeting will be called shortly in the opera house to protest against what has been done.

TO ENFORCE THE MILK BY-LAW.

Is One of Medical Health Officer's Duties—His Salary is to be $800 a Year.

The City Council in Committee of the Whole, has decided to increase the salary of Dr. McPherson from $600 to $800 a year. His duties are to include milk inspection, and such other work as directed by the Board of Health.

QUEEN'S CONVOCATION HELD IN GRANT HALL

Kingston, April 26.—That college day to which all undergraduates longingly look forward, and to which all graduates regretfully look back—convocation—was duly observed at Queen's this afternoon. The exercises were held in Grant Hall, which was well filled with students, graduates, professors and friends of those who on that occasion received their passports to the professional world. The Chancellor, Sir Sanford Fleming, of Ottawa, presided, and his presence was greatly appreciated.

Two noteworthy features of the august gathering were the conferring of the honorary degrees and the presentation of a painting of Rev. Prof. Dyde, late of Queen's, now Principal of the New Presbyterian College at Strathcona, Alta.

CONFERRING DEGREES.

There were two D.D. degrees and three LL.D. degrees conferred. The new doctors of divinity were Rev. William Chambers, missionary at Bardizag, Turkey, presented by Rev. Dr. Ross, Dean of the Theological Faculty, and Rev. A. McLachlan, President of the International College of Smyrna, Turkey, presented by Rev. Dr. Jordan.

The new doctors of laws were Adam Shortt, M.A., Civil Service Commissioner, presented by Prof. James Cappon, Dean of the Faculty of Arts; Dr. G. T. Armstrong, of McGill, presented by Dr. T. C. Connell, Dean of the Medical Faculty, and Dean Dupuis, of the Science Faculty of the School of Mining, presented by Vice-Principal Watson.

All recipients received their degrees in person, with the exception of Dr. Chambers, who is in Turkey.

The presentation of the painting of Dr. Dyde was made by Mr. E. B. Wylie, on behalf of the Arts Society of Queen's which gave the picture to the University.

Principal Gordon paid a warm tribute to the original, and cordially thanked the donors for their timely and thoughtful gift.

The long list of graduates showed that Queen's had had a most successful session. There were over one hundred graduates in Arts, 46 in Medicine, and 49 in Science.

THE WEATHER.

Easterly winds, fair and not much change in temperature.

Ben Thompson, arrested for sleeping unlawfully in the cereal barn on Wednesday night, was committed to the Central Prison for six months, yesterday morning.

The unfortunate could not give a satisfactory account of himself, and admitted that he had made a big fool of himself. He insinuated, however, that he was a safe lodger for any barn, inasmuch as he neither chewed nor smoked. Police Magistrate Dumble and Chief Thompson are determined to stamp out the vag and tramp nuisance, and similar sentences are awaiting all of such gents who fall into the police net.

Jimmy Wilson was a bit off on Tuesday, according to his own statement, and consequently was fined $5 for being drunk, or ten days in castle Nesbitt in default of payment of same.

GERMAN CRITICS DECLARE ENGLAND IS DECADENT

Berlin, April 26. — An interesting article on the all-British shopping week is published in the Lokal Anzeiger.

A correspondent, who writes from London, declares that this movement is the most striking indication the world has ever had of Great Britain's industrial deterioration. Ten years ago, he says, an exhibition of British made goods would never have occurred to the mind of any English politician or patriot.

Without being positive proof of inferiority, the necessity of displaying the possibilities of home industries against imported goods plainly shows how dangerous foreign competition has become, even in home markets.

"This act of industrial necessity proclaims the lack of British self-confidence," adds the writer. "Not long ago the confidence of the Briton in his own superiority was unshaken. It dated from the epoch when British manufacturers had no rivals in the world's markets, and it survived even when this superiority over European industrial skill had begun to wane, and when the approaching danger was still ignored.

"England haughtily decreed that importers should mark the place of origin on their goods, as if insular or overseas Britons would purchase foreign goods in preference to those of home manufacture !

"But Great Britain made a mistake. She rested on her withering laurels and did not perceive the eagerness of her foreign competitors to learn and improve. Consequently, she lived to see the day when the foreign trade mark—intended to stop the influx of foreign goods—was not only no impediment, but had quite the opposite result.

"The old policy of British self-sufficiency led to bitter deception. Now this attitude has become a thing of the past. The all-British week marks the transition from a proudly offensive attitude to one of anxious defensiveness.

"Instead of the arrogant assertion 'We can do everything better,' Great Britain is endeavoring to show that she can do things just as well as her foreign competitors."

CATHOLIC REGISTER SAYS REV. J. A. CARMICHAEL IS A RING-LEADER OF PROSELYTIZERS

The Catholic Register and Canadian Extensions in this week's issue returns to the trouble in the West regarding the Ruthenians. It says in part as follows :

"But we are afraid that Dr. Maclaren is not the only ringleader of proselytizers whom the Church has to contend with, there is another reverend gentleman, whose illustrious name has before appeared in these columns, doing his very best to emulate the saintly doctor in the work of "evangelizing" Catholic people, who know infinitely more about real religion than the reverend doctor or any of his worthy or worthless colleagues. The name of this remarkable individual, rendered notorious by his indefatigable zeal in securing bogus priests for foreigners, is Rev. J. A. Carmichael. He occupies the high and lucrative position of Superintendent of the Presbyterian Missions in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

ATTACKS CARMICHAEL.

"The Rev. Mr. Carmichael is indeed a worthy colleague of the now famous Dr. Maclaren. They have plotted long and successfully together. They were kindred spirits. He and the mighty doctor had quite an affinity for writing fiction, although the Maclaren article excels that of the Western saint in the financial results which have so far eventuated.

"It would appear that the Rev. Mr. Carmichael is well supported by a company of the most thoroughly despicable and incongruous rascals in the shameful drama he is performing in Western Canada. He describes them all in his litany as wonderful geniuses indeed. In this great stretch of imagination he is as piously original and wonderfully erratic as his sanctimonious superior officer, the Maclaren. In fact, as we have already stated, there is always an admirably close resemblance between the men and their methods.

"We have received these days a most interesting letter from a friend well acquainted with them, which affords a picturesque account of the kind of Ruthenian apostles employed by Carmichael to shape the Presbyterian cause in the Northwest. The Home Mission Board is evidently as sedulous in its choice of learned ecclesiastics to carry out proselytizing purposes as it is in the consummate rascality and intrinsic merit of that propaganda."

She Suffered for Fourteen Years but One Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills Quickly Relieved Her From All Pain.

Mannhaim, Ont., April 26.—(Special.)—After suffering from Backache and Rheumatism for fourteen years, Mrs. Mary A. Heaviness at Pit of the Stomach

A Feeling of Uneasiness Before and After Meals Is Quickly Cured With Nerviline.

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, has a weighty sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs." The above letter comes from Mr. P. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossman, the well known upholsterer of Chester, who writes : "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises, gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

NASAL CATARRH

An Old Physician Says to Look for Dizziness, Frontal Headache, Stuffiness and Nose Colds.

TELLS HOW TO CURE.

Catarrh in almost every instance starts with a common cold in the head, which is added to with another cold, and because of some extra exposure or weakness of the system, it becomes chronic.

A full case of disgusting nasal and throat catarrh then develops. Unless a radical cure is effected then the disease passes rapidly to the throat, bronchial tubes and finally to the lungs.

No man or woman can ever get new lungs any more than new fingers or a new nose; but everyone suffering from Catarrh can get a sure cure by inhaling Catarrhozone, and this is proved after you read further.

QUICK, LASTING CURE.

"After ten long years of suffering with Catarrh in the throat and nose I write to tell you that I am now completely cured with Catarrhozone. What a relief it was to get that buzzing stopped in my ears, to have my nose free and easy to breathe through—What a blessing it was to get cured of droppings, catarrhal dyspepsia and bad breath. All this is the result of Catarrhozone, which I recommend to everyone to use for any trouble in the throat, nose, bronchial tubes and lungs."

THE MODEL HUSBAND.

It might have been expected that with their arrogation of power through feminine suffrage, bifurcated skirts, women's clubs and the like, that the fair sex would soon begin to test its strength and, having so long succumbed to the arbitrary rule of man, would begin to lay down, not only its own laws, but rules for the guidance of poor man.

Boston—the Hub of the United States; Boston, the blue-blooded that scorns nude Bacchantes and will not even let its theatergoers travel in fancy, "The Easiest Way"—has taken the lead, as always, and it is a Boston Women's Club that has promulgated a rule, setting forth the necessary qualifications for a model husband.

Alas, how few of us there are that can conform to the specifications! For the Boston idea is that the model husband is he who turns over 90 per cent. of his income to his wife; he must not drink liquor or use tobacco; he must stay at home nights; he must go to church on Sunday; and while he must not infract any of these rules, he must be careful to place no restrictions on the conduct of his wife.

The moderation of the ladies of the Boston Club must strike the average man with amazement! Nothing at all is said about how he shall spend the remaining ten per cent. of his income; whether he shall invest it in government bonds or use part of it for his noon-day luncheon. There is no suggestion of a rule that he shall be polite and urbane to his mother-in-law or his wife's country relatives, there is an entire omission of any suggestion as to who shall wash the dishes when the hired girl leaves suddenly. When to this it is remarked that the model husband may use his discretion as to how he shall shave and wear his hair; whether he shall wear rubbers or not or whether he shall wear spectacles — those things with supports behind the ears—or the more dandified pince-nez.

But, as it is, we fear that the specifications will be found too severe, even for Boston bachelors who are supposed to be trained. If the Boston ladies who have made the rules intend to make for themselves a rule that they will not marry any man who does not come up to the specifications we fear that many of them will not be wed until they reach that heaven where all husbands are good and where marriages are supposed to be made.

BELLEVILLE INVESTIGATION.

Belleville, Ont., April 24.—In accordance with a resolution of the City Council, an investigation was opened here Saturday in reference to the sale of city lots during the year 1910. Ex-Mayor Marsh and City Treasurer Price are most particularly interested in this investigation. The enquiry is being held before Judge Deroche.

A list of lots sold during the year 1910 was presented. It was admitted that H. A. Price, appearing as a purchaser of certain lots, and which were subsequently sold, was the wife of Mr. David Price, H. A. Davidson

SOLID PROTESTANT PARTY IF GOVERNMENT WILL NOT HEED

In a sermon delivered by the Rev. Dr. Hincks, in the Broadway Tabernacle, Toronto, he says:

"If British justice is to continue to prevail in Canada it must be made a criminal act to attempt the enforcement of the monstrous decree. This decree, now in force in Ontario, not perhaps as a law, but as a decree, brands those people as criminals whom the British justice upholds and protects."

This was the basis of another of the series preached by Rev. Dr. Hincks at the Broadway Methodist Tabernacle on Sunday night, condemning the "Ne Temere" decree.

Dr. Hincks took as his text Paul's appeal to Ceasar. "Then said Paul, I ought to be judged. To the Jews I have done no wrong. I appeal to Ceasar."

"This," said the preacher, "shows that the conscience of the state is safer than the conscience of a sect. To the Hebrews the law was an expression of the mind of God, but the Hebrew Church had backslidden and had become so corrupt that Paul, on trial for his life, and given a choice of courts to be tried in, preferred the justice of an alien state to that of the Hebrew Church courts. There was too much religion and too little righteousness.

STATE REPRESENTS TRUE INTEREST.

"In our own day, also, we think of religion too much and of righteousness, liberty and justice too little. Paul turning from the justice of the most religious people in the world to that of a pagan court sets us as an British subject has a right to be unliberty even by invoking the laws of the state in which we live. The state represents the true interest of all the people.

"The state conscience of Canada is safer than the conscience of a single sect. Several marriages have been dissolved lately under conditions which have outraged the conscience of the whole Dominion. Little children have been declared illegitimate and homes broken up because of the marriage ideal of one sect, and this a petty ideal repudiated by four-fifths of the people.

CONFLICT BETWEEN CHURCH AND STATE.

"There is a conflict between the Church and the State in Canada as real and much more serious than in Paul's case. In Paul's case, his life was in danger. In Canada's case it is the civil rights and liberty of every citizens which are in danger.

RULER LIVING IN ROME.

"A ruler living in Rome has made one set of laws, and the rulers in each province of Canada have made another set. The conflict is between these sets and the question is, "which shall rule?

A HOME MADE UNBEARABLE.

"In this city a home has been made unbearable. The case is now in the hands of the Bishop and will be dealt with. The Hebert case shows what Roman law wishes to bring about in Canada. The Pall Mall Gazette of last Tuesday, speaking of this case, said, 'The whole story is one more example of what the Roman Church will do if they are given the powers, and it is necessary, therefore, to strictly limit it.

"Here is what I claim," said Dr. Hincks. "Every Protestant married to a Roman Catholic in Toronto has a civil right to be undisturbed; every British subject has a right to be undisturbed. This decree disturbs his civil right and we claim it is in conflict with the state law in Ontario.

INFERIOR MORALITY OF SECT.

"A couple were married in the Roman Catholic Church in St. Johns, Quebec. The man discovered that his wife was his second cousin, and appealed to the Archbishop to annul the marriage, and the appeal was granted. The man married another wife. That is one example of the superior morality of the State in conflict with the inferior morality of a sect.

"In the diocese of Montreal a man obtained a dispensation to marry his second cousin. When he got tired, he asked for a dissolution of the marriage on the grounds that his wife was his first cousin. He admitted that he had falsely described her as his second cousin to save the $100 which is the fee for dispensation in the case of first cousins. The dissolution was granted.

A WIFE DESERTER.

"The secretary of the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec applied to the Archbishop and his marriage was declared void, and the wife, mother of four children, was deserted with the sanction of the Church under conditions which would have proclaimed the man, in every other part of the British Empire except Malta, a wife deserter."

Several other instances were given to show that the Papal decree was in direct conflict with the laws of the State.

NO ATTEMPT IN TORONTO.

"The editorials in some of the news papers here have hinted that such things could not happen in Toronto," said Dr. Hincks. "You have that very marriage law—as a decree—in every Roman Catholic Church in Toronto, and every official is attempting to enforce it in every case of a mixed marriage.

"The decree stigmatizes children as bastards, wives as concubines and husbands as adulterers whom the State upholds as honorable citizens. Is there no conflict? Of what use is it for the daily papers to say there is no trouble here? What Germany has, Canada must have—State supremacy.

"James II. dreamed a dream for England of the very thing we now have in Quebec. He lost his throne when Englishmen understood his dream.

PETITION GOVERNMENT AT OTTAWA.

"One set of laws has been made in Italy and others in the various provinces of Canada, and if the Italian-made laws succeed, Canada must cease to be British. Already one-fifth, represented by Montreal, has incorporated this Italian law into its Provincial law."

"The first duty of the other four-fifths is to petition the Government now in power at Ottawa. We must be able to show them that the imposition of this decree of an alien race infringes the liberty of our citizens.

AFRAID OF QUEBEC VOTE.

"If the Government will not listen—if they are afraid of the 65 votes which represent Quebec in the Dominion—which I do not believe, it will call for solidarity of Protestantism throughout Canada. You must leave your party to vote against it if necessary. Canada must be freed from all partyism which cringes to a single sect of the people.

"God, the State, your wives and children, all call you to fight against this monstrous decree."

Wild Chase After Pig.

There was a wild chase after a pig yesterday, in which a dozen or more boys took part, on George Street south. The chase led through alleys and back yards and ended in the capture of the animal near the C.P.R. on Aylmer street. The porker was thoroughly winded after its exciting run.

Auto Hits Boy.

A small boy had a narrow escape yesterday from being severely injured or perhaps killed. He was crossing the street near the C.P.R. track on Aylmer street, when a motor car turned the corner and came upon him. He was struck and thrown about six feet, but fortunately without being seriously hurt.

Bridgenorth C.O.F. Anniversary.

The entertainment given last night in Bridgenorth under the auspices of Bridgenorth Court, C.O.F., was largely attended and was a great success. The programme was a particularly good one, the best local talent being employed. The occasion was the anniversary of the formation of the Court in Bridgenorth. Quite a number were present from Peterborough.

Another Runaway.

What might have been a bad runaway occurred yesterday morning about 9 o'clock, on George street. Mr. H. Deane's team of horses were standing in front of his office, when they suddenly became restless and started down the street at a good pace. A street car conductor ran out and grabbed one of the horses by the bridle, and brought them to a sudden stop. He deserves much credit for his courageous act.

A Dog's Suicide.

The people living on Russell Street were shocked to hear that Mr. Geo. Steele's dog had committed suicide one evening by hanging himself. The dog, usually a very gentle creature, had been in a very despondent mood lately and was chained up last night. However, it broke loose and ran across the road and jumped the fence opposite the house. The chain caught and the dog was found dead this morning. An inquest was held by the neighbors and they brought in a verdict that the animal had committed suicide by hanging rather than live under the present dog by-law.

VANCOUVER, B.C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

IF I WERE MAYOR

What I Would Do

Under the above caption The Times invites correspondence. The letters will appear in the Saturday edition only and must deal with local matters, and not political questions. In this way suggestions in regard to local affairs will be in order, and we are sure will be taken in good part by Mayor Morrow and the members of his Council.

CITY COUNCIL WILL FULLY DISCUSS POWER REPORT AT AN EARLY MEETING

SOME ALDERMEN THINK COUNCIL WAS IGNORED BY HON. ADAM BECK IN SUBMITTING REPORT TO A CITIZENS' COMMITTEE FIRST.

The City Council will invite the Industrial Commissioner to be present at a meeting of the committee of the whole, and explain his position regarding the power report submitted by Hon. Adam Beck at a recent meeting of citizens, and subsequently published in the local press. Some of the worthy aldermen feel that the City Council had been ignored by the honorable gentleman in giving precedence to a citizens committee.

Ald. Brown, however, justifies the citizens' committee in that the question of municipal ownership of power should have been thoroughly gone into before.

Preceding Councils had been severely criticized on this point.

Ald. Metheral is also inclined to think the city has been somewhat lax regarding power, and not altogether free from blame for the attitude of the citizens' committee. The Industrial Commissioner was, perhaps, working through the Board of Trade, and it was a question whether or not he knew the Council was working for that report, and had asked for it. The Council had been "short circuited," but probably unintentionally.

Correspondence With Hon. Adam Beck.

The following is the correspondence that passed between Mayor Morrow and Hon. Adam Beck on the power question:

Peterborough, Jan. 28, 1911.

Hon. Adam Beck,
Chairman Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir,—The city of Peterborough is desirous of obtaining power, and there are several powers in this vicinity that might be suitable. Among them are dams Nos. 3, 4 and 5 on the Peterborough and Lakefield section of the Trent Canal, the dam at Hastings and the dam at Lakefield. Would you be good enough to have an investigation made of these dams under the direction of your commission for the purpose of ascertaining for us which one or more of these dams it would be best for the city to acquire, or to secure power from?

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. G. MORROW,
Mayor.

The gist of the reply of Hon. Mr. Beck will be readily understood by the following acknowledgement by Mayor Morrow:

Peterborough, Feb. 4, 1911.

Hon. Adam Beck,
Chairman Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I have received your favor of February 2nd, and thank you for the information that you will instruct the commission's engineers to obtain information in connection with the supply of power for this city. In your letter you mention dams 3, 4 and 5 on the Peterborough Lakefield section of the Trent Canal, but we also mentioned the dams at Lakefield and Hastings and hope your instructions will cover these dams, as we would particularly like to have them included.

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. G. MORROW,
Mayor.

NAME OF ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

How Would You Like to Have Your Savings Earn the Running Expenses? Sounds Good, Don't It? Most Too Good to Be True We Can Do That for You

Right now there are over 3,000,000 people in the great north-west relying strictly on Canned Fruits and Vegetables. They are a necessity. The people MUST have them.

Right now there are TONS and TONS of the best fruits and vegetables that Mother Earth produces going to waste every season in the Okanagan Valley and with the steady influx of settlers in the valley coming to till the fertile soil it is simply natural that the products will doubly increase.

What's to become of this increase with a 40 per cent. waste staring the growers in their very eyes right now?

JUST MORE WASTE, THAT'S ALL. That is, unless a feasible remedy is immediately adopted.

CANNERIES ARE THE REMEDY

Now, then, we have the Cannery situation to a point where we will step right in, take ALL the products the grower can supply and besides converting that gigantic waste into a yearly gain offer an incentive for a still greater output.

THE OKANAGAN CANNERS, LTD., are a co-operative institution.

Not only do we ask the fruit grower to join issues with us to protect his own industry, but invite keen investigation from the investing public.

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners, Ltd., from doing the same?

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—sight of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

Now, then, be up and thinking.

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realizing handsomely on and term him lucky.

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when chances like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

Although capitalized at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

This is a gilt-edged bona fide, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

Prospectus can be had at Times office, Peterborough, or Head Office, Vancouver, B. C.

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

VOL XXXIV NO. 97 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY APRIL 28 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

WHERE MIXED MARRIAGES HAVE MADE TROUBLE

Alleged Interference of a Priest in a Hamilton Family---Sequel to the Herbert Case in Montreal

Hamilton, April 28—Roland Roberts and his two children, aged 7 and 5, arrived here this afternoon.

A reporter saw a brother of Mr. Roberts, who declares that the whole trouble between Roberts and his wife is due to religion and the education of the children. Roberts is a Protestant and his wife is a Roman Catholic. She has insisted that the children be educated in the separate Schools. The husband did not like it, but did not seriously object until, he says, he found the children were learning nothing but prayers.

Six weeks ago, he says Mrs. Roberts took the two children and went to Toronto to live with her parents.

Roberts went to Toronto yesterday and found out that the children were being sent to school. He hired an auto from a garage here and went to Toronto and picked up the children this morning, coming right back here.

According to his brother, Roberts gave his wife a good home here. He has since her departure sold his property, but has a year's contract to work as a blacksmith for his brother. The children will be sent to a Public School.

A later despatch says: Roland Roberts, who to-day automobiled to Toronto and carried off his two children, whom his wife took with her six weeks ago, when she insisted on sending them to a Separate School while he preferred the Public School, alleges that his wife was put up to leaving him and going to Toronto by a local priest and the sisters of the school, who called at his home when he was at work and arranged the whole thing.

He denies any pre-nuptial agreement with his wife that the children would be educated in her faith.

The Roberts have been married eight years. They lived six years in Hamilton, and two in this city when they were first married.

When the mother was told that the police, with such a good description of the affair and the number of the auto, would not be long in finding her children, she said:

"But what can they do? My husband has as much right to them as I have, and while the court is deciding I am without them."

THE INNOCENT VICTIM.

Shall the Hebert Child Be Nameless and Declared Illegitimate.

Montreal, April 25.—New and important developments transpired this afternoon in the case of the Hebert marriage, which was recently annulled in the Superior Court, because Eugene Hebert and Marie Emma Clouatre, who were both Roman Catholics, had been married by Rev. Mr. Timberlake, a Protestant clergyman.

In the interests of the two-year-old girl, who is illegitimate if the judgment stands, documents will be deposited in the Court House by Mr. George V. Cousins, who is acting on behalf of the child in the proceedings to have a tutor appointed for her. The effect of the judgment of the lower court in the Hebert case was, so far as the child was concerned, to declare her illegitimate. The little girl cannot claim any parent, she has no name, no legal relatives, and therefore no means of sustenance during the early days of her life.

A tutrix was appointed for the child last week, for the purpose of giving to some one the legal right to look after the child, and the woman who has been given the authority to care for the child has authority to represent the little girl in any matter or proceedings in which the child's interests are concerned.

TEST CASE ON MARRIAGE LAW.

May be Provided in Husband's Application for Divorce.

Montreal, April 28—On the ground that when they were married 30 years ago, he was a Protestant, and his wife a Roman Catholic, George Dowden, aged 61, of this city, is now seeking the annulment of his marriage, before the Superior Court.

In 1881 he was married to Elmire Poitras, by a Protestant minister in the French Protestant Church of the Redemption. According to Dowden's statement, as contained in the court record, after they had lived together for some years, Dowden's wife was told that her marriage with the plaintiff was invalid. Under this impression she left him fifteen years ago.

The other grounds he puts forward for separation are that his wife was a minor when he married her, and that they did not have the authority of her guardians, that the banns of matrimony were not published, and that he had not been baptised, and therefore could not legally marry one who had been baptized.

Very likely this will be made a test case and taken to the Privy Council to decide the validity of the Quebec marriage laws.

BURK COMMITTED FOR TRIAL ACCUSED OF FIRING BUILDINGS

Colborne, April 27.—Leslie Burk, the young man who was arrested some days ago on suspicion of having fired the Express office and adjoining buildings here on April 17th, was this morning committed for trial on the charge of arson.

He will appear for election next week, and in case he elects for trial by jury, the case will be tried at the June assizes. Mr. F. L. Webb, a local lawyer, is defending him.

Burk was found apparently securely bound in the office of The Express Company soon after midnight on the morning of April 17th while flames were raging round him.

He explained that he had been knocked down, bound and gagged by a burglar whom he had interrupted in the act of robbing The Express office. The robber, he said, had escaped after firing the buildings. Four business firms were burned out by the fire before it was subdued. Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr, characterized the boy's statement as a "cock and bull story."

At the hearing yesterday a number of witnesses testified that they were near the Express office on the night of the fire between 11.30 and 12.30 midnight and that they had not heard any noises coming from the building.

The statement of the prisoner that the burglar tampered with the safe, was discredited by evidence of the proprietors who said the safe had not been touched.

BOTH PARTIES AT OTTAWA HAVE NOW DETERMINED TO FIGHT TO BITTER END

THE OPPOSITION WOULD FORCE DISSOLUTION AND AN APPEAL TO THE COUNTRY ON RECIPROCITY.

Unless Conservatives Yield Sir Wilfrid Will Not Attend Coronation or Imperial Conference—Two Ministers May Go.

Ottawa, April 27.—If the Conservatives want to "FIGHT" the reciprocity issue they will be given all the opportunity they desire.

Unanimous Decision.

That was the unanimous decision of the Liberal caucus this morning. If necessary, the proposed representation of the Canadian Parliament at the Coronation of King George will be abandoned, and the members kept here to assist in the fight. Also Sir Wilfrid Laurier will if the Opposition makes it necessary, stay away from the Imperial conference.

Morning Sittings.

Morning sittings will be started next week, and the three sessions each day of the Commons, the Opposition will be given all the fight they want.

Will Not Consent to Delay.

It is stated unofficially, that a proposition was made on behalf of the Conservatives that they would be willing to vote an interim supply bill and allow Parliament to adjourn from mid-May until July, when the session could be resumed, but that this suggestion was emphatically refused.

Government's Position.

The Government takes the position that it is in honor bound to put the agreement through without any unnecessary delay, and it will do so.

Two Ministers for Conference.

It is possible two Ministers may be sent to the Imperial conference in May, and will represent the Dominion at the Coronation. It can be regarded as quite certain that Sir Wilfrid will not go unless the reciprocity bill is passed.

May Force Dissolution.

Parliamentarians are not agreed what will most likely happen, but it appears quite possible that if the Conservatives are not bluffing they will succeed in forcing dissolution and an appeal to the electors without the tariff agreement having been passed by Parliament.

Dissolution Expected.

Ottawa, April 27.—The Parliamentary situation is thickening to-day as a result of the firm anti-reciprocity stand taken by the Conservative party in caucus yesterday. Both sides seem determined to fight if necessary, and it appears probable that both Parliamentary contingent and the Premier's trip to the Coronation will be called off, and a long battle ensue over the United States trade agreement.

Feeling around the Commons this morning is that, should the two parties maintain their present attitude, dissolution and an appeal to the country will take place before next fall.

Yesterday's decision of the Conservative caucus was to fight reciprocity to "the bitter end," because it involved Canada's National existence, and Imperial relationships.

Is there anything in all this would that is of more importance to you than your digestion? Food must be eaten to sustain life and must be digested and converted into blood. When the digestion fails the whole body suffers. Chamberlain's Tablets are a rational and reliable cure for indigestion. They increase the flow of bile, purify the blood, strengthen the stomach, and tone up the whole digestive apparatus to a natural and healthy action. For sale by all dealers.

A REAL CONFLICT.

We have a church and state conflict in Canada to-day as real as in St. Paul's days, the difference being that in Paul's case, it was his life which was in danger, while in Canada's case it is the Christian home, and the civil rights of every Protestant, who marries a Romanist. There is a very real conflict. Canada is British, and two sets of laws, utterly incompatible with each, are striving to govern British subjects. A ruler living in Rome with his cabinets, has made one set of marriage laws, while rulers living in Canada, with their cabinets, have made another set of marriage laws. The conflict is between these laws. Which of them shall rule in Canada?—Rev. Dr. Hinchs.

PROTESTANTS SUPPLY CASH TO DECIDE MARRIAGE LAW

Montreal, April 27.—That the money for the re-opening of the Hebert marriage annullment case was supplied by prominent Protestants who are anxious to bring the case before the highest courts as a test of the validity of the right of the Roman Catholic Church to annul marriages, was admitted by Mr. George V. Cousins, counsel for Mrs. Hevert, this morning. Mr. Cousins refuses, however, to make public the names.

That the Roman Church authorities will take no active part in the renewed court proceedings was made apparent by the tone of an interview given by Canon Roy to the Star correspondent.

"I am not surprised of the effort being made," said Canon Roy, "but what the attitude of the archbishop will be or what action, if any, he will take I cannot say. In the eyes of theCatholic Church, of course, and in the sight of God, the marriage is null and will remain so. We claim also that it should be civilly null, but if the courts decide otherwise, it has nothing to do with us and will not effect our attitude so far as ecclesiastical law is concerned."

STOOD IN TAXI-CAB AND WERE UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 27.—Roy J. Maddigan of New York, a well known athlete, and Miss Marion Kribel of Walnut Hills were married yesterday in a taxi-cab in front of the home of the Rev. Geo. A. Thayer.

When the young couple reached the preacher's house he was coming out. Maddigan produced the marriage license and the couple were married standing in the taxi-cab.

Mrs. Louise A. Lent stood up with the bride. Two minutes later Mr. and Mrs. Maddigan were rushing down the street for the station, and reached there in time to board the train for the West.

RETAIN DARROW AND ALSO HILTON

LAWYERS HAVE BEEN CHOSEN BY DEFENCE IN LOS ANGELES CASE.

McNamara Is Innocent—So Declare His Attorneys—Detective Burns Explains His Garrulousness.

DARROW CHIEF COUNSEL.

Los Angeles, April 27.—Clarence Darrow, the Chicago Attorney who figured prominently in the defence of Moyer, Haywood, and Pettibone, has been retained as Chief Counsel for John and James McNamara and Ortie McManigal, the alleged dynamiters. The three men, locked in separate cells in the county jail, maintain their calm demeanor.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 27.—The first move in the legal fight over the arrest of John J. and James B. McNamara and Ortie McManigal, in connection with the Los Angeles Times explosion will be determined at a conference to be held late to-day by the prisoners and Judge O. N. Hilton and Job Harriman, who were retained as counsel at a meeting attended by the two attorneys and other local leaders.

President Moyer, of the Western Miners, telegraphed Hilton that his organization alone would undertake to raise a fund of $250,000 for the defence of the counsel.

Hilton and Harriman both issued statements to-day declaring their belief in the innocence of the accused. Formal arraignment is expected to-morrow, and the preliminary hearing will be held early next week, unless Hilton decides to apply for a writ of Habeas Corpus.

According to the warrants filed by the Sheriff to-day, John McNamara is charged with murder in connection with the Times explosion and with the dynamiting of the Llewellyn plant.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 27.—"I am tied to no one, to no corporation or class of men. I can prove my honesty and also prove that I work only in legitimate cases. This is all rot about my being so wild about that reward offered for the Los Angeles dynamiters" This was the parting shot fired to-day by Detective William Children Marched Out.

Sydney, N.S., April 27.—The New Aberdeen Public school at Glace Bay was destroyed on Monday. The children, of whom there were several hundred in the building at the time, were marched out quietly by their teachers. The building was worth about $9,000, and there was $6,000 insurance.

Husband Gives Ten Days.

Sudbury, April 27.—John Paget, who shot at his wife because he questioned her honor, was yesterday allowed off with ten days' sentence. The evidence showed that his wife had travelled considerably by herself in the north country, and run a "blind pig."

ROBERTS AT WORK; HIS LITTLE BOY PLAYING AROUND AMONG HORSES IN HIS BLACKSMITH SHOP

Hamilton, Ont., April 27.—"Those kids are just as happy as bugs in a rug, and they are not living on bread andjam," said Roland Roberts to-day as he bent over an anvil forge at Roberts Bros.' blacksmith and carriage shop. "Their mother is just talking and that's all. If she wants to go to court, I'll fight her to a finish."

With his little boy playing around the horses in his shop, where he is keeping him, for fear that his wife will try to get him back, Roland Roberts worked away and discussed his domestic troubles. "This boy will tell you that his mother could not afford to put sugar in his tea," he said. "He told me that all he got to eat was bread and jam, and I did not try to pick him," continued the father.

"The only thing I am worrying about is that I cannot send him to school. I'm not in the position she is. If she got her hands on the children, she could place them in a convent, and I would have no end of trouble getting possession of them. I am afraid to send them to school for fear she will try to steal them. But I am going to see that they are educatedif I have to take them to and from school. That talk about me drinking is foolish. Why I can prove to you or anybody that I have only had ten days holidays in the last sixteen years. The eight weeks during which she says she never received money from me was when she was in the hospital. Her kind neighbor that she talks about is one of those who broke up our home. I have nothing against my wife. Others caused the trouble by "butting in." The only thing that I can say about her is that I treated her like a baby. I guess if I had not been so kind she wouldhave been different.

"I went to Church with her occasionally, but I have always been assessed as a Public school supporter and the children are going to attend the Public schools."

OMAHA STARTLED BY KIDNAPPING

Omaha, Neb., April 26.—Dazed by the influence of chloroform, Bernard Smith, 18 years old, walked into his home about midnight, and told a remarkable story of his escape from kidnappers.

In fulfillment of many blackmailing letters demanding high ransom from the boy's father, C. J. Smith, former Attorney-General, two masked men seized the youth early in the evening while he was walking home from a tennis club. They bound and gagged their victim, threw him into a closed carriage, and took him to a deserted shack in a little suburb.

According to young Smith's statement, one man departed saying he was going to get Francis Hochsetter, the 16-year-old girl chum of Smith, who also had been threatened. The remaining kidnapper was overcome by the fumes of the chloroform he was administering to his captive. At that juncture the lad escaped to a street car, which took him home. He is in a serious condition of nervous fright and stupor.

The affair marks a climax to a mystery which has alarmed the city three weeks.

Letters demanding $2,000 or the kidnapping of the boy or the girl, had been persistent up to Sunday, and detectives guarded both threatened families.

WOMAN LOCKED IN DEPARTMENT STORE.

She Came Down Ladder Alone and the Hobble Skirt Has Vindicated.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 27.—A spectacle of a woman descending a ladder from an upper storey of a big department store provided entertainment for a Main street crowd of several hundred people last night.

Late in the evening a patrolman of the Main street squad saw a woman at an upper storey window of the store. She was crying hysterically and trying to attract attention of persons on the street. A long ladder was secured and the officer started to go up, but the woman waved him back.

"I'll come down alone," she said And she did, the crowd cheering as she gingerly picked her way down the 50-foot ladder.

"The hobble skirt is vindicated," remarked the policeman. "It's a great thing for a woman on a ladder."

The woman had been inadvertently locked in when the store closed.

FOUR MEN WERE KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION.

Tragedy Occurred at Sandpoint, a Few Miles From Arnprior.

Ottawa, April 27.—The Dominion Explosives Company's works at Sand Point, a few miles from the town of Arnprior, was this afternoon the scene of a disastrous explosion, resulting in the loss of four lives. Few details are available.

The explosion occurred in the nitrating room in some manner so far unknown, and the rest of the buildings of the plant are in flames. The shock was distinctly felt in Arnprior.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

DOES NOT LIKE THE TIMES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I do not like to see so much space being devoted by the press to religious matters. It tends to make bad friends, and often gives cause for serious trouble. You, Mr. Editor, seem to take pleasure in publishing articles that are of this class. Would it not be better to work along different lines, and instead of devoting your space to matters of this kind, use your influence to drown religious discord. I do not like The Times, and make free to say so, for this very reason. Stop it, and you will do more to build up your paper than you imagine. Catholics are not all saints, I admit, but there are a few of us who are not so bad as painted.

Tolerance.

Reply—Sorry we cannot oblige our correspondent. The Times will continue to discuss and advocate complete equality of all religious denominations before the law. This means one language, one flag, and one marriage law for all. We would not say one word against any man's religious belief. That is a matter between himself and his Creator and we defy our correspondent to point to one word that has ever appeared in this journal against a man on account of his religion.—Ed. Times.

SHE WOULDN'T GO.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am pleased to see that your paper is doing its duty in regard to the pernicious decree of His Holiness the Pope. I believe the vast majority of Roman Catholics as well as Protestants are opposed to its enforcement. In connection with this decree, a story is told about a good wife whose husband happens to be a Roman Catholic, who lives in a town not 100 miles from Peterborough. This couple have a family growing up, and a neighbor, who is a devout Roman Catholic, When she heard about the decree, called on the good wife and advised her to have the priest perform the wedding ceremony (she having been married by a Methodist minister) in order to save her children from disgrace. She said if she did not consent to this that she might be obliged to go, as the church might and probably would insist on it. The lady is reported to have replied:

"I thank you for your kindly interest in me and my family, but would say that if any one goes it will be my husband, as I own the house and all that it contains." This settled it.

A Near Neighbor.

THE PROBLEM SOLVED.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am one of the unfortunates who is obliged to do all my own work in a large house with a growing family, without help. I have tried a dozen girls, one after the other, without securing one who is competent. So that I am strongly in favor of a Peterborough Women's Guild. Not only could the Guild supply the demand for maids, but it could keep tab on those girls who go from one place to another, staying a few weeks only in each, and causing the mistresses all kinds of torment.

BRONCHITIS

COLDS, COUGHS, CATARRH AND THROAT TROUBLE.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing, medicine, which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs, attacks the trouble at its source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas if a liquid or tablet remedy were used, the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

"CATARRHOZONE"

A Breathable 'Direct' Medicine.

No medicine brings such prompt relief, exerts such an invigorating influence, or so thoroughly and speedily cures throat troubles as "Catarrhozone." Doctors, hospitals, sanitariums—all say that for those who suffer from changeable weather, for those who are predisposed to catarrh lung trouble, deafness, or bronchitis, no treatment is so indispensible as "Catarrhozone."

For certain cure, for relief in an hour, use Catarrhozone, the only direct, breathable medicine. Two months' treatment, guaranteed, price $1; smaller size, 50c; at all druggists, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

A DISASTROUS COURSE.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, describes the arrest of John J. McNamara as "the first act of a tragedy contemplating the assassination of organized labor."

If organized labor is ever assassinated the death-blows will not be dealt by private detectives or by the police or by employers or by capital or by the "interests." The blame will rest upon the labor leaders that have misled labor.

Mr. Gompers asserts that in the arrests for the Los Angeles murders "the whole affair smacks of well-laid prearrangement." Frank Morrison, Secretary of the Federation, calls the arrests "an infamous outrage." William J. Spencer, Secretary of the Building Trades Department of the Federation, suggests that the incriminating dynamite and infernal machines found by the detectives "were placed there by the 'interests.'"

While Mr. Gompers, Mr. Morrison and Mr. Spencer were trying to estab lish a capitalistic conspiracy to discredit organized labor, the Chief of Detectives of the Chicago Police Department was making public the confession of Ortie E. McManigal, in which McManigal told the details of a dozen dynamite explosions which cost 112 lives and destroyed property worth more than $3,500,000. As the despatches describe his confession "he spoke carelessly of the crimes, telling how the explosive was 'planted,' how he had visited union officials and had been paid for his death-dealing work."

Mr. Gompers, Mr. Morrison and Mr Spencer will doubtless regard this confession as a police "fake" perpetrates for the benefit of the "interests;" but this much is certain: The explosions described by McManigal were not "fakes;" they were real. The mangled corpses were not "fakes;" they were real. The ruined properties were not "fakes;" they were real. Somebody committed these crimes. They all grew out of labor wars. They are all matters of record. The men who were killed did not destroy themselves in order to help the "interests" discredit organized labor, nor did the men whose property was wrecked wreck it themselves in order to cast reproach upon the unions.

Mr. Gompers and his associates have no words of denunciation for these infamous murders, but they are quick to protest against the arrest of men charged with having been implicated in the crimes. No more disastrous course could be followed by responsible leaders of organized labor. Nothing will do more to alienate public sympathy for organized labor and set back the clock of industrial progress.

In spite of all its folly, foolishness and excesses, unionism has accomplished a great work which has hardly more than begun; but this work will never be completed if organized labor undertakes to sympathize with all the crimes that are committed in its name. The accused men in the Los Angeles case are entitled to all their constitutional guarantees of a speedy and impartial trial; but if they are guilty they are not martyrs—they are murderers.

At the last meeting it was moved and carried that a new chair be purchased for the use of the chairman as the old three-step was getting out of date.

MURDERED AT LABOR MEETING.

Tragedy at Glace Bay—One Man is Dead, Another is Dying.

Halifax, April 26.—A shooting tragedy occurred at Glace Bay late last night, near the close of a labor meeting, which resulted in the shooting of William Bryant, a miner, and Michael Murphy, by a man named Beal. Bryant was instantly killed and Murphy is in the hospital with a bullet in his abdomen and not expected to recover.

The meeting was being addressed by a local labor organizer, James D. McLellan, when a man named Connelly who was under the influence of liquor, persisted in interrupting the meeting and was cautioned to remain quiet or he would be put out of the hall. Connelly defied any of them to put him out, and he was again warned if he persisted in his interruptions the police would be sent for.

Connelly continued talking and it was then that Beal arose and started to go out of the hall. Connelly turned upon him and asked if he was going for the police. Beal said he was but if Connelly would remain quiet there would be no need of a policeman. Beal, while talking was struck by a friend of Connelly's, Mike Murphy.

A scuffle ensued during which Beal drew a revolver and threatened Murphy if he did not remain quiet. He started to back away when Murphy struck him again and Beal fired three times. The first shot broke a window, the second lodged in Murphy's stomach and the third took effect in William Bryant's heart and he dropped to the floor dead. While the shooting was going on the hall was a scene of wild disorder. Friends of Bryant and Murphy crowded about Beal and threatened to tear him limb from limb amid cries of "lynch him," and had it not been for some of the more cool headed men another victim would have been sacrificed to the whim of a number of trouble-fostering agitators. When the police arrived Beal gave himself up and went to the police station quietly.

PURE MILK—A NATIONAL NECESSITY

There is no greater problem before the people to-day than that of a pure milk supply. Doctors and scientists agree in their conclusions that the health of the child and even of adults is impaired through the use of impure milk.

So important has this matter become that some of the large cities have found it necessary to pass municipal laws to prevent the milk from being distributed in anything but sealed containers.

Again in other large cities the authorities require the milk to be pasteurized before it receives their official seal of approval. In this way they hope to prevent impure milk from reaching the consumer.

These precautions, however, do not insure to the public a pure milk supply at all times. The only safe and reliable source is the use of evaporated milk.

There are many grades of evaporated milk, depending entirely on the quality of the milk and the care given in its preparation.

The milk used in the manufacture of St. Charles Evaporated Milk is produced from the finest cows on selected dairies in the World's famous Oxford County district. The dairies are under the supervision of an inspector and are perfect models of cleanliness. The attention given to the sanitary conditions of these dairies is such that nothing but pure rich milk is received at the factory.

The milk as soon as it is received at the factory is evaporated and sealed in air tight carefully inspected tins. It is then sterilized by which process any possible disease germs are immediately destroyed. As long as the can is sealed, the milk will stay fresh and pure indefinitely.

THE PLANT OF THE ST. CHARLES CONDENSING CO.

The plant of the St. Charles Condensing Co., who manufacture St. Charles Evaporated Milk, is located at Ingersoll, Ont., Canada. The buildings are modern and well constructed in every respect. The equipment is the most approved and sanitary for the scientific evaporating of milk. All utensils that in any way come in contact with the milk are cleansed before and after each process, and the most scrupulous care is taken to insure cleanliness in and about the factory.

In these days of epidemics there is not a household that can afford to overlook this wholesome, safe and always pure milk. St. Charles Evaporated Milk will always be found uniform in its quality, richness and purity. All of the leading grocers and dealers carry this well known brand.

FATHER AND TWO GIRLS DROWNED.

Belle Ewart, April 25.—Swamped in an overcrowded boat, Fred Lepard 35 years old, a laborer, and two of his daughters, aged 8 and 10 years, were victims of a triple drowning accident in Lake Simcoe on Saturday evening. John Mateer, also an occupant of the boat, managed to escape with his life.

The party of four crossed to Roache Point in a small skiff about 5.30 in the afternoon and were on the return trip two hours later when the accident occurred. The boat capsized when they were within 50 yards of the shore. Lepard and the two children were thrown clean into the water, but Mateer managed to cling to the boat.

SHOVING THE "QUEER."

Counterfeit Money Being Offered for Sale in Many Parts of Ontario.

Letters are finding their way from United States to all parts of Ontario offering counterfeit money for sale. These "green-goods men" choose farmers principally for their victims, and in the letters picture "easy money," that can be made if the recipient of the letter will communicate with the man who has the goods. A very little money will purchase a lot of "queer stuff." The writer of the letters represents himself as an expert engraver, who can make duplicate notes on any of the banks, and these can be bought cheaply.

The use of the mails for any such purpose is an offence, and it is also an offence against the Criminal Code to attempt to purchase counterfeit money.

These letters when received should be forwarded at once to the postal authorities, or Col. Sir Percy Sherwood, Chief of the Dominion Police, Ottawa.

All Kinds of Western Farm and Calgary City Property for Sale

PERMANENT BRANCH OFFICE IN TORONTO AT 106 DOMINION EXCHANGE BUILDING, 14 KING ST., E.

According to Government Estimates

Was Made in Western Town Property During the Year 1909

Did you anticipate in these huge profits or did you "pigeon-hole" the propositions submitted to you by your western friends for future consideration? In short, are you the man who made a profit or the unfortunate one who had the chance but did not possess sufficient judgment to recognize the opportunity or sufficient courage to close a deal? The man or woman entitled to sympathy is the one who says: "Five or ten years ago I had the chance to buy this or that property at $100 or $500, and now it is worth $10,000." The average person sneers at the person who makes such a statement and says: "I would have bought and made that money." Are you going to say five years from now that you had a chance to buy a lot at Poe, Alta., at from $50 to $100 each, or are you going to be the man who will have from $1,000 to $10,000 in cash as a result of having bought property in this town in this year of grace, 1911?

POE A COMING COMMERCIAL CENTRE

Poe is located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Saskatoon. It is located in one of the finest farming districts in Western Canada. The surrounding country is settled by a progressive type of farmers and consequently will become the market centre for Northern Alberta. Poe district possesses rich coal mines, is close to rivers and lakes and large forests are easily accessible from this point. These natural resources insure for the residents of the town, first, low cost of living, and second, great commercial activity, two essentials in the upbuilding of a large town, thus creating valuable real estate.

POE AS A MANUFACTURING CENTRE

This townsite and contiguous territory has the requirements outlined by large manufacturing concerns for the location of large factories or large enterprises of any kind employing large numbers of people. The rivers and lakes furnish water, the coal fields and forests furnish fuel and cheap building material, the fine farming lands furnish farm products, enabling the residents to live at a low cost.

The town is located on the main line of a transcontinental railway, assuring the necessary transportation facilities. These combined conditions will furnish cheap labor, one of the most important features of a manufacturing centre.

Poe townsite was recently placed on the market and already over 200 lots have been sold and many of these lots have already changed hands at a substantial increase in price. Most of these lots were purchased by representative business men throughout Canada who are now profiting by their foresight.

The townsite is high and dry and very suitable for building purposes.

OPPORTUNITY

is useless unless you possess the courage to act. You might possess great wisdom, you might read a good deal or travel much and thus see all kinds of opportunities to make money, but unless you have the courage to act on your judgment and wisdom all of these desirable qualities are entirely useless.

Lots in Poe are a good investment at present price. The town is bound to grow rapidly. Owing to the easy terms of payment you have the ability to buy and if you do not buy now it is because you are lacking in courage, and the chances are you will never be like the man you now admire most, rich, courageous and wise.

TORRENS TITLE.

Poe townsite is held by us under the Torrens system of title. Under this system the title is guaranteed by the Government, therefore absolutely safe.

PRICES AND TERMS.

Prices of lots range from $50 to $100 each, and they can be purchased on terms of one-tenth cash, balance in eighteen equal monthly payments; or quarter cash, balance in six, twelve or eighteen months.

INFORMATION

We have issued an attractive circular giving full information pertaining to the town and its prospects, together with map showing lots for sale. If you wish to receive this attractive circular cut out and fill in the attached coupon and mail it to us to-day.

W. A. Fisher, President

The North-Western Asbestos Mills Company

Mr. Fisher comes to The North-Western Asbestos Mills Company with years of experience to recommend him as a master of finance, a man of far-seeing business judgment and splendid executive ability.

He will assume an aggressive, though conservative policy in the affairs of The North-Western Company, and will stop at nothing short of success.

It was through Mr. Fisher's efforts that the International Asbestos Mills and Power Company secured valuable concessions in the way of lowered freight rates, enabling that company to market their products in many parts of the country, meeting the sharpest kind of competition.

Mr. Fisher is keen after business, vigorous and progressive and the directorate of The North-Western Asbestos Mills Company may be congratulated upon securing his services as President.

PUT YOUR SAVINGS INTO North-Western Asbestos Shares

Where They Will Earn Something For You

Your Opportunity to You this Money Making Enterprise

You must not let this opportunity pass by. You can not afford to. It means something to you if you buy now while you can get shares in this profitable enterprise at such a very low price. Our plan is a most liberal one and it means a short cut for our stockholders to handsome profits and early dividends. Shares are selling now for 5 cents. The market is on the advance and there is every reason to believe that they will be worth many times that amount in a short time. Our proposition is not a prospect. We have passed the experimental stage and are on the highway to success and stupendous earnings. You want your share. You want your savings invested where they will earn something for you. You don't want to have to wait forever on dividends. You want an investment that has security and promise of great earnings in the shortest possible time. THEN YOU WANT A LIBERAL BLOCK OF SHARES IN THE NORTH-WESTERN ASBESTOS MILLS COMPANY while you can buy them at five cents per share.

C. H. Parker Comes to North-Western Co.

This Company has secured the services of C. H. Parker, M. E. and H. E., of Thetford, Canada.

Mr. Parker has had years of experience in the Canadian Asbestos Fields, having been in charge of some of the largest and most important mines in the country.

In taking service with this company he will have complete charge of the operation at the mines and mills in Wyoming and will undoubtedly institute the newest and most modern methods in mining and milling our products.

Many new plans have been devised that will further develop the Company's holdings and Mr. Parker's association with us will undoubtedly make a short cut to greater profits and quick dividends.

Profits Aggregating Millions of Dollars

There is every reason to believe that profits aggregating millions of dollars will be made by our Company in the future. You should not miss the opportunity to secure your share.

The world wants asbestos. We have asbestos to sell. The demand is increasing daily and shares in our enterprise that are selling to-day for 5 cents will probably be selling for 5 times that amount inside of six months.

THE INTERNATIONAL ASBESTOS MILLS AND POWER COMPANY, OPERATING IN THE SAME FIELD WITH US, IS A GRAND SUCCESS. THE PRICE OF SHARES IN THEIR COMPANY WAS STARTED ONLY A FEW MONTHS AGO AT 10 CENTS AND ARE NOW SELLING FOR 25 CENTS. ON APRIL 1ST THE PRICE WILL BE ADVANCED TO 50 CENTS.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMPANY HAS ALREADY PAID A DIVIDEND.

Pay for Your Shares a Little Down---a Little Each Month

We have arranged a plan whereby the purchaser may secure a liberal block of our stock while it is selling at such a low figure and pay for it, a little down and the balance on easy instalments.

But you should not delay your subscription. The price is liable to advance at any time. Send your order to-day with first payment and we will trust you for the rest.

Before you hardly realize it, your subscription will be paid up and you will be a part owner with us in our enterprise that we hope to make the biggest thing of its kind in the world. Don't wait another day, but clip the attached coupon and send it in.

What Others Have Accomplished We Can Accomplish Also

The International Asbestos Mills and Power Company, our nearest neighbor, has attained wonderful success in a phenomenally short space of time.

Only a few months ago shares in that Company could have been had for 10 cents. To-day They are selling for 25 cents, and a positive advance to 50 cents per share is announced for April 1st.

They have paid one dividend and have a substantial start on another one, which it is expected will be paid in July.

Is there any reason why our company cannot do as well? We think we will and we invite you to come in with us now and receive your share of the first dividend to be paid by The North-Western Asbestos Mills Company. It won't be long.

MILLIONS MAY SIGN THE PETITION

UNIFORM PROTEST AGAINST "NE TEMERE" DECREE BEING PREPARED.

All Protestant Bodies Will be Asked to Endorse and Distribute It—"B.N.A. Act Must be Changed."

Toronto, April 26.—What will be the next step of the Methodist Church in Canada now that the General Conference Committee has passed a resolution against the "Ne Temere" decree?

What course will the inter-denominational committee adopt to make its views effective with the State?

These questions were addressed by The News to a prominent clergyman of the Methodist denomination, and to one who is in close touch with the joint committee.

TO EVERY CONFERENCE.

"The Methodist resolution will go automatically, to every conference in Canada," replied the first-named, "and all of these will pass upon it. The Western ones will meet at the end of May and the Eastern ones, as usual, early in June. The protests of the conferences will be forwarded to the Provincial Governments."

But it will be the combined action of the Protestant denominations with which the Methodist churches will be heartily in accord, that promises to sweep the country from end to end. The plan of campaign as explained to The News is this:

PREPARING UNIFORM PETITION.

A uniform petition is in course of preparation which will be submitted to every Anglican and Presbyterian Synod, and the Methodist Conference, Baptist and Congregation district and general gatherings with the purpose of having it sent down to the individual churches all over Canada. At least one million signatures are expected and these will be showered upon the Premier of Canada—calling upon him to bring in legislation which would prevent effectively the operation of the decree in Canada.

"PROVINCIAL" PROTESTS.

Apart from this, however, it is proposed to present "Provincial" resolutions.

"These will deal with the points in which the decree infringes upon the marriage statutes of each Province," The News was informed. These will emanate from the inter-denominational committees of the Provinces, and will constitute the proofs of the allegations which had been made in the general petitions.

Quietly but steadily the preparations have been going on in Toronto, as the headquarters of the movement in Canada, for an expression of opinion from the five or six millions of Protestants in this country.

CANON LAW MUST BE UPHELD.

"What has been done to ascertain the legal position?" asked The News.

"We have consulted eminent lawyers, and they agree that the canon law is part of the civil law of Quebec, so that the judge was forced to act as he did in the case of the Hebert marriage. This would mean that the B.N.A. Act must be changed if there is to be any redress.

On the other hand, Canon Farthing of Montreal, who never acts rashly, maintains that the canon law has crept into the civil, and was not a part of the B.N.A. Act. This question, therefore, must be settled later.

"The Anglican Church is as strong as all the others against this," he added.

RUSH OF SETTLERS INTO THE WEST

Great Boom Now On All Along the Line.

Winnipeg, Man., April 27 — The great rush of settlers into the West continues with increased force and numbers. So many are coming from south and east that the railways are having some difficulty to furnish cars The estimate of 200,000 from the United States will surely be filled if not exceeded. The total immigration by way of Portal for the month of March was 4,409 persons, 599 cars of effects valued at $1,566,000, and cash to the amount of $6,268,000.

In spite of a short week on account of Easter holidays, Winnipeg bank clearings for the week ending April 20 showed an increase of $4,024,846 over the corresponding week of last year, a gain of 29.04 per cent. The total for 1911 to this date is $276,734,142, as against $230,779,301 for the same period of 1910.

Seeding Now On.

Seeding is in full swing all over the West. J. J. Golden, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Manitoba, says this province will have five and three-quarter million acres under cultivation this year and that the crop will exceed that of any previous season. Over 300,000 acres of new land was plowed for crop last year.

Plowing Season.

Now plowing is an interesting quantity in view of the sharp demand for flax seed and consequent high price of this grain. There is an almost alarming shortage of flax seed the world over, and the high prices of last year will probably be eclipsed before this year's crop is marketed. Farmers have cleared the cost of land planting of flax since the high prices went into effect.

Raw Material.

The great value of raw materials which are found all over Western Canada is becoming known. There is an exhibition of grass matting in Winnipeg, made from wild grasses taken from Manitoba and manufactured in Wisconsin. The company which did this will establish a factory in Winnipeg and thus place themselves close to the raw material and the splendid market of the West.

A Big Hotel.

Announcement was made this week that the new ten-story hotel of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway in Winnipeg will be called "The Selkirk" in honor of Lord Selkirk, the pioneer colonizer of the Canadian West. The hotel will cost about a million dollars and will be one of the finest in Canada.

Another Cereal Mill.

Winnipeg will have another cereal mill soon. A site has been secured by George Dow, owner of a mill which recently burned at Pilot Mound and the industry will be re-established in Winnipeg and will have a capacity of 500 barrels a day.

MANUEL WANTS HIS CLOTHES.

Lisbon, April 27—King Manuel and Queen Amelia, his mother, have, according to the Seculo, requested the Republican government to send them, through the British legation, the remaining jewels, clothing and dresses left at the Necessidades Palace.

The young king left Lisbon so hurriedly that he had not time to take any clothing with him. Afterwards a large quantity of personal effects was sent to London, but many articles of wearing apparel remained at the palace.

Senor Relvas, the minister of finance, has decided to grant their majesties' request and the effects of the king and queen will be sent to them at Richmond, through the British minister.

MT. JULIAN NEWS.

Personal Paragraphs and Other Items of News.

Mount Julian, April 24.—A beautiful Easter service was held in Holy Trinity Church on Sunday last. The Apsley choir was present which made the service much more joyous and impressive. The Easter anthem "Christ our Passover," by the choir and two solos, "Holy Father, keep our loved ones neath Thy care," and "Bread of Heaven," by Mrs. Levoir, were well rendered and very much appreciated. The congregation of the church feel much indebted to the Apsley choir for their presence and hearty co-operation in the service. The members of the choir were billeted as follows:—Mr. and Mrs. Levoir and Miss Lily with Mrs. W. G. Stone, Miss Flora Eastland and Miss Myrtle Windsor, with Mrs. L. Reid; Miss Annie Coons and Miss Josey McIlvena, with Mrs. S. Wilson; Miss Edith Lean with Mrs. W. Devor, Miss Rosie McKay, Miss Julia Earnshaw and Mr. Stanley Windsor, with Mrs. Wm. McCauley; Mr. Charlie Grant with Mrs. Wm. Thompson.

On Easter Sunday a very nice service was held in Eden Methodist church. The choir was tastefully decorated for the day with flowers and green vines. Mrs. Jas. Reid is deserving of many thanks for the pretty flowers which she donated. The sermon was from text: "So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch" and was quite eloquent. Rev. H. C. Garbut was the preacher.

A FINGER LOST.

Mr. Jos. Payne had the misfortune to lose part of a finger at a sawing on Wednesday last.

The school here opens on Tuesday after the Easter holidays. The teacher Miss Ella Robertson, spent her vacation at her home in Otonabee.

Master Lang and Miss Bessie Thompson who have been attending school in Peterboro, spent their holidays under the parental roof.

Miss Lizzie Wood of Keene, was the guest of her cousin, Miss Irene Thompson last week.

Mrs. A. R. Mallory spent a few days in Peterboro last week.

Miss Florence Sanderson of Peterboro, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCauley, jr., are visiting relatives here. They have just returned from the other side where they have resided for the past few years.

We are pleased to see Mrs. W. Bronson, who has been quite ill since she came home, is able to be around again.

IN THREE ACCIDENTS!

It would seem that Zam-Buk, the famous healing balm we hear so highly spoken of everywhere, is particularly useful in the family circle. A report sent by Mrs. E. Davey, 786 Alice Avenue, Winnipeg, will illustrate this. She says: "My little boy of three, while playing, fell from a high verandah to the ground, cutting his forehead badly. Instead of calling a doctor who would undoubtedly have put in a number of stitches I bathed the wound well, and applied Zam-Buk. The little fellow, although suffering keenly, soon had relief from his pain. In the course of three weeks, by applying Zam-Buk daily, the wound was nicely healed.

"Since then I have also used Zam-Buk for a boil which came on my cheek, and which proved very painful and looked unsightly. Zam-Buk soon drew the boil to a head and it then quickly banished it.

"Another time my baby was scalded on her left thigh and calf of leg with boiling water. Directly it was done I thought to use Zam-Buk, and spreading some on lint I wrapped up the baby's limb. Next morning she rested much easier and I applied a fresh bandage with Zam-Buk. I kept this treatment up daily, and was rewarded by seeing a great improvement each time I dressed the wound. In a very short space of time the scalds were all nicely healed.

"I cannot recommend this wonderful healing preparation too highly for family use, and I have such great faith in its healing powers that my house is never without a box."

For all skin injuries and diseases, piles, eczema, salt rheum and face sores, Zam-Buk is absolutely unequalled. 50c box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Try Zam-Buk Soap, too! Only 25c tablet.

HORSE DISTEMPER

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares Nerviline is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all-round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston who lives near Wellington, P.E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried different remedies, but was unable to relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also use Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

NERVILINE CURES QUICKLY

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs, and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as "Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes. Large bottles 25c, five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to sale, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. Right now there are over 3,000,000 people in the great north-west relying strictly on Canned Fruits and Vegetables. They are a necessity. The people MUST have them.

Right now there are TONS and TONS of the best fruits and vegetables that Mother Earth produces going to waste every season in the Okanagan Valley and with the steady influx of settlers in the valley coming to till the fertile soil it is simply natural that the products will doubly increase.

What's to become of this increase with a 40 per cent. waste staring the growers in their very eyes right now?

JUST MORE WASTE, THAT'S ALL. That is, unless a feasible remedy is immediately adopted.

CANNERIES ARE THE REMEDY

Now, then, we have the Cannery situation to a point where we will step right in, take ALL the products the grower can supply and besides converting that gigantic waste into a yearly gain offer an incentive for a still greater output.

THE OKANAGAN CANNERS, LTD., are a co-operative institution.

Not only do we ask the fruit grower to join issues with us to protect his own industry, but invite keen investigation from the investing public.

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners, Ltd., from doing the same?

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—sight of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

Now, then, be up and thinking.

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realizing handsomely on and term him lucky.

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when chances like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

Although capitalized at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

This is a gilt-edged bona fide, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

Prospectus can be had at Times office, Peterborough, or Head Office, Vancouver, B. C.

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

IF I WERE MAYOR
What I Would Do

OUR MAYOR O.K.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I think Mayor Morrow is alright, and "fills the bill" as Chief Magistrate perfectly. He is a busy man, but is willing to sacrifice his personal interests for the benefit of the city. Let us therefore, show our gratitude, by giving him and his excellent Council all the help we can. Instead of this eternal fault-finding, let us be broad and generous enough to see the good instead of closing our eyes to the good and seeing only the dark side of things municipal.

Fair Play.

WOULD LOAN THE MONEY.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If I were Mayor, and the head of a wealthy loan company, I would loan the Independent Tire Company the $40,000 they are after from the city. If the security is O.K. (and I presume it is, for the Council says so) it would be a good investment as well as a fine thing for the city.

Felix.

THREE IMPORTANT MATTERS.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If I were Mayor of Peterborough I would devote my energies to accomplish the following:—

1. Municipal ownership of Electric light, gas and power.
2. Municipal ownership of street railway.
3. Place Water, Electric Light, Gas, Street Railway, Debenture and Finance under one Commission, composed of three reputable citizens, elected annually by the people and pay them $1,000 each.

Reform.

SEATS IN THE PARK.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If Mayor Morrow would do something that would be popular, he would have 100 or even 200 additional seats placed in Victoria or Central Park, so that our citizens may enjoy with comfort the band concerts Central Park is by far the best of the two parks for this purpose. It is level and the music would sound better on that account.

A Lover of Music.

DUMPING GROUNDS.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If I was Mayor I would start a crusade against the making of a dumping ground in the alleyways and back yards of the city, of all the refuse from stoves and dwellings. It's a disgrace to such a city as Peterborough and has been noted by many visitors as it is quite visible from some of the main streets.

Jen.

THE CURFEW.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am very much interested in your letters regarding the Mayor and venture to make a suggestion. If I were Mayor of Peterborough, I would try to save the young girls and boys of the city, by having the police take a hand in clearing the streets of them at 9 o'clock each night. Children should be at home at this hour, instead of wandering around the streets, some times in doubtful company. Mayor Morrow is also a police commissioner, and is therefore in a position to enforce any regulation that the Council may adopt in regard to having the curfew rang at 9 o'clock. I hope something along this line will be done.

PETERBORO' ASKS FOR $1,000.

Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P., Introduces County Deputation.

Toronto, April 28.—A deputation from Peterborough County, headed by Warden Cohen, and including Dr. F. M. Elliott, the clerk and treasurer, and several reeves waited on Hon. Dr. Reaume to ask the Government to bear one-half the cost of a bridge over Eel's Creek. Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P., introduced them.

THE JULES AUTOMOBILE COMBANY WANTS TO LOCATE IN PETERBORough

ASK NO MUNICIPAL FINANCIAL AID, BUT ARE SEEKING THE BOARD OF TRADE'S RECOMMENDATION IN AID OF THEIR SELLING $20,000 WORTH OF STOCK.

The Jules Auto Car Co., of Toronto, propose to locate in Peterborough under certain conditions.

Mr. Chas. Collett, of the well known and prosperous Collett Carriage factory, Toronto, is president of the Jules Auto Car concern; his son, Mr. Norman Collett, is secretary-treasurer; and Geo. A. Graham, proprietor of the Iroquois Hotel, Toronto, is the vice-president. Mr. A. J. Greenaway is general manager, and Mr. Geo. B. Frost, the mechanical genius.

The car this company manufactures was on exhibition in the town yesterday, and is a beauty, it sets lower than the average auto, its symmetry is perfect and pleasing, and it is comfortable, speedy and durable. The Jules car is assembled from 500 parts only, as against an average assembly in other autos of 700 parts, and gives the same results. This simplicity of construction, the result of advanced inventive genius, cheapens the cost of production, and increases the dividends.

The Jules people ask no bonus or municipal loan as an inducement to locate here; but propose to commence operations in Peterborough if they can sell in the city $20,000 worth of stock. Hence they met the Board of Trade and quite a few representative citizens last night with a view to getting the Board's recommendation of their proposition as a good thing in aid of the disposal of their stock in this city. The Jules Company was represented by Mr. G. H. Piercy and Mr. Geo. B. Frost.

Mr. Piercy explained that the company is capitalized at $250,000 and have $65,000 subscribed now, made up as follows: the directors have invested $25,000 in perfecting plans, experimenting details, etc. for which they take in stock two dollars for one, making $50,000; they have sold stock to the amount of $25,000, and have allowed their inventing engineer $10,000 in stock. Mr. Piercy then went on to show the immense profits accruing from the auto manufacturing business, in the States, reaching in some cases to one hundred per cent., and he believed that there is a chance to create a demand for automobiles in Canada half as great as the demand in the States. At present the Jules Company are getting their parts manufactured to order, which they assemble themselves. They have on hand orders for two hundred cars, on each of which there will be a profit of $300. Should their proposition be accepted they would commence manufacturing in Peterborough within 30 or 40 days with a staff of 50 or 75 hands. The company have $20,000 cold cash in hand, and this added to $20,000 worth of stock they hope to sell here would enable them to commence manufacturing operations with assured success. They prefer a small city like Peterborough in which to locate, for labor reasons. Their assurances of substantial financial backing from many quarters is most encouraging. He was exceedingly optimistic of having an output of at least 500 autos the second year of establishment. The car he had on demonstration here had travelled 6000 miles, and was as good now as the day it was made.

Mr. Frost gave an exhaustive technical address on the merits of the Jules Auto, which he claimed superior to all other makes in weight, durability and simplicity of construction.

Mr. W. H. Denham believes in the proposition to the extent of several hundred dollars worth of stock he has subscribed to on condition that the concern locates in Peterborough and that its present bonus stock of $35,000 is not exceeded. He thought it quite proper that the mechanical engineer should get $10,000 in stock for his inventive work and the directors $2 for each $1 they have expended in preliminary operations. He had examined the Jules Car, and found it compact, serviceable and wonderfully simplified, with ample power.

Mr. Clark, an old friend of Mr. Denham's, from Freemont, U.S.A., spoke on the marvellous upbuilding of Flint, Michigan, as the result of auto manufacturing there, and was surprised that Canadians are paying 30 and 35 per cent duty on their autos when they might manufacture the same themselves, and save this duty.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., did not think this was a matter the Board of Trade should not enter into hastily; the merits of the proposition should be carefully weighed before any responsibility connected therewith is assumed by the Board. A committee should be appointed to investigate and report.

Mr. Dodd thought it high time Peterborough got a move on regarding the acquisition of new industries. He moved that a committee of five be named to investigate the company's standing, and consider the proposition, and report back without delay. Mr. T. A. S. Hay seconded this resolution.

President Gillespie here asked Mr. Piercy if Tuesday night would suit him for the report of this committee to be made.

Mr. Piercy replied that his people were anxious to know if representative endorsation of their proposition was to be attained from Peterborough as other towns are available. He would like the committee to report Monday night.

Mr. Dumble insisted on Tuesday night being in plenty of time. The question should not be hurried through.

Mr. Denham here replied that Mr. Dumble wanted the same old disastrous policy adopted as heretofore—delay! delay!! delay!!! The Jules Company are not asking the Board of Trade to assume any monetary responsibility, but simply to recommend the proposition as a good thing. If the committee can't report on Monday night, they cannot do so on Tuesday.

Mr. Dumble here began to question the Board's authority to act in this matter at all, when Mr. Denham interposed with, "Remember, Mr. Dumble, that 12 members of the Board of Trade could come down here and vote whether reciprocity is right or not." (Laughter).

The chairman here put the motion which carried.

Chairman Gillespie named the committee as follows: Messrs. G. Walter Green, Ackerman, Shook, R. C. Braund, Thos. Brightman and E. R. Wilson of the Peterborough Machine Co.

This committee are to report Monday through the press. The Board cannot hold a meeting that evening as the City Council will need the Council Chamber.

His Worship, Mayor Morrow, and most of the Aldermen were present.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION SITUATION

At a meeting of the Board of Trade following that called for discussing the automobile industry proposition, President Gillespie explained that the annual meeting had been postponed pending arrangements with Mr. Ryerson Ritchie for a lecture. He then asked for some kind of action re the office of an Industrial Commissioner. Mr. W. H. Denham replied that the committee on Industrial Commission, of which he was a member, had in mind the appointment of a board to control this department, consisting of two members of the Board of Trade and two members of the City Council with the Mayor as Chairman.

Ald. Edgar explained that the Council had deputed their Manufacturers' Committee to confer with a committee from the Board of Trade on the question of the re-appointment of an Industrial Commissioner.

The Board's standing committee on Industrial Commission will meet the city's Manufacturers' Committee on Monday afternoon, and the result of their conference will be reported at Monday night's Council meeting.

Havelock, April 28.—Joseph Frederick Buck, a six year old son of John Buck, was fatally injured by falling under the wheels of a farmers' wagon on which he had been riding home from school. In attempting to get off, he fell between the wheels, the hind wheel passing over his chest crushing it. The little lad was carried home and tended to by Dr. Holdcroft, but he only lived two hours. Wm. Morrow, the farmer who was driving the wagon, did not see the boy fall, and it was not until some time later that he knew the boy had been run over. He feels very badly about the accident. MEANS CERTAIN ANNEXATION SAYS MR. PRINCE

Washington, April 28....When the House resumed Ionsideration of the free list tariff measure to-day Representative Prince of Illinois, incidental to his tariff talk attacked the Canadian reciprocity bill already passed by the House.

Mr. Prince declared that the farmers had been "sold out" and that the reciprocity bill is the "worst bargain ever driven by one nation with another."

The Democratic "farmers' free list bill," said Mr. Prince, ought to be labelled "the farmers' fake bill."

Mr. Prince declared that reciprocity and partial free trade with Canada is the first step towards annexation. He said that speaker Clark had never denied the annexation sentiments expressed in the last session.

"It is the history of this nation," said Mr. Prince, "that we first Americanize a territory, then annex it."

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I hope Dr. McClelland and those interested with him in petitioning for the abatement of the roller rink nuisance on Brock-street, will succeed in their efforts. I happened to be a visitor in one of the homes within a short distance of the rink a short time ago, where I spent a week and I know what a discomfort it is to hear the roar of the skates and the organ incessantly. It got so completely on my nerves, that I had to get out. I therefore hope, for the sake of my friends, that the nuisance will be abated.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, &c.

If more than one dog is kept the price goes up. Let me just say here: If many ratepayers had their way dog tags would be $5 each, instead of $1. I cannot

OLD FOLKS COUGHS

BECAUSE RESISTING POWER IS WEAK PNEUMONIA OFTEN FOLLOWS.

Tells of a Sure Cure and a Never-Failing Comfort for Colds, Coughs, Catarrh.

One of the worst terrors of old age is that distressing chronic cough. Colds settle on the chest, are wrongly treated with drug-laden and chest-weakening cough syrups, and from year to year the condition has grown worse. Formerly the cough went away when fine weather came, but now bad weather makes it worse and fits of racking, tearing coughing, make life a burden.

Because you are old is no reason for suffering with everlasting coughing—those terrible chest troubles and difficult breathing can be thoroughly cured with Catarrhozone. You simply breathe the healing vapor of Catarrhozone and instantly its rich balsamic fumes are carried by your breath into the tiniest recesses of the nose, throat, chest bronchial tubes and lungs.

Just think of it—a direct breathable medicine, full of soothing antiseptic pine essences that reaches every sore congested membrane in two seconds. No drugs to take—Nothing to harm the aged or in the infant, because Catarrhozone is the purest, safest cough, catarrh and cold remedy ever devised.

Mrs. M. E. Walford, wife of a well-known grocer in East Sheffield, writes: "For three years I suffered with a hard racking cough and bronchial irritation which annoyed me so much at night I couldn't sleep. I tried many remedies, catarrh tablets, sprays, syrups, etc., but they only helped for a short time. Catarrhozone brought me wonderful comfort from the first. I inhaled its balsamic fumes every hour or two and am now free from any trace of cold, bronchitis and catarrh. I can go out in all kinds of weather and don't take cold."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutors. Large Catarrhozone last two months, price $1.00: smaller sizes 25c and 50c. All reliable dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

BLUE LAVENDER

By L. G. Moberly

Lavender's blue, diddle, diddle,
Lavender's green;
When I am king, diddle, diddle,
You shall be queen.

The woman in the next bed turned her head wearily to look at the child who sitting upright in her cot, crooned the old nursery rhyme over the doll in her arms. The ward was very quiet. The visiting physicians had left it half an hour before; preparations for the patients' tea had not yet begun; the drowsy time had fallen over it which is apt to fall over every hospital ward in the middle of the afternoon.

The woman in the next bed, number 17, smiled faintly, then turned her head away with an impatient sigh.

"Lavender blue!" Great bushes of lavender, whose blue spikes of flower showed mistily soft among the grey-green of the leaves—great bunches of lavender lying amongst the snowy linen in the oak press on the landing; the subtle fragrance of lavender that pervaded all the old house, when the spikes lay dying in the sun on the wide staircase window-sill.

"Lavender blue." The woman in number 17 bed, though she lay there with widely-opened eyes, saw nothing of the world about her. Instead, she saw a garden lying still and hot in the August sunshine—an old-fashioned farmhouse garden.

Why, it was August now. The lavender must be blooming in the beds beside the sun-dial. The sunshine that streamed so hotly into the long ward would be shining down upon the misty flowers, among which the bees would be humming their restful song. . . . And . . . was Maurice there? . . . Ah! what did it matter to her who was in the garden now, since she had left it forever? How did it concern her to know whether Maurice paced the grassy path or no—since—she—had cut herself off from Maurice forever.

A mist of tears dimmed her sight, she put out her hands with a pathetic gesture that caught the eye of a passing nurse.

"Did you want anything, Mrs. Ross?" she asked, kindly.

"Is the lavender in flower?" the woman answered.

For a moment Nurse Helen fancied the patient was delirious; then seeing the look of suffering in her dark eyes, she put a gentle hand on the sick woman's restlessly moving fingers and said gently:

"I think it is just the time for lavender—are you very fond of it?"

"Once I thought I hated it," came the strange reply, "I hated the lavender because it grew in Maurice's garden. "If I might see the lavender in the garden again—I think I could die happy—if—Maurice—forgave."

"Is there anybody you would like to see?" the nurse asked. "You told us you had no friends, but—is there anyone—called — Maurice — who would come to you?"

A faint, mirthless laugh answered her.

"Oh, no; Maurice would not come—I—left him—I was his wife—and I—ran away. No; I wasn't wicked. I did not care for anybody but Maurice—only—I hated it all—the quiet—the farm and the garden—the lonely country. I wanted life and gaiety and excitement—and——"

"Did you never write to your husband?"

"Yes . . . once. I told him I was tired of my quiet life. I—think it was a cruel letter . . . and—he never answered it. So I know he will never forgive me. . . . Maurice is stern . . . over what is wrong."

"And would you go back to him now . . . if . . . he did forgive you?"

"Would I go back?" A sudden light flashed over the white face, shone in the sad eyes. "Would I go back to—" the voice trailed off to a sigh.

* * * * * *

Maurice Ross lingered by the sun-dial, letting his eyes wander over the sea of blue blossom and grey-green leaves, letting his thoughts wander to a past which, try as he would, he could not forget. To-day the past was vividly with him. It almost seemed as though he could see his wife standing here beside the beds of lavender—his lovely wife, whose dark eyes were the sweetest in the world; whose bright presence made his old farmhouse a very Paradise.

And then—Deborah had left him, and broken his heart. Silver threads had come shimmering in his dark hair, and deep lines had been carved upon his face. But he cared for none of these things, nothing mattered any more. Life was only a desolate, dragging on of a profitless existence . . . .

"Somebody wishes to speak to you in the parlor." Hannah, Maurice's servant, roused him from his reverie, and he moved away from the garden into the oak-panelled parlor. A tall woman dressed in nurse's uniform awaited him.

"We have someone in our wards at St. Matthias Hospital" she said, "someone—who—knew you—once—and—she is very ill, very unhappy. I came to-day to ask if you will come and see her. We found your address amongst her things. She does not know of my coming to you."

A dark flush mounted to Maurice's forehead.

"I—know no one likely to be a patient in a hospital," he said, curtly.

"She—is very ill," the soft voice repeated, "and—very unhappy. Once—she did you a great wrong. She is asking forgiveness—and—for you."

"I—will come," he said at last, flinging the words at her abruptly, "I—will come—to-day."

The ward was very still. The low light of afternoon fell across the rows of beds, and made a halo round the golden head of the little child who sang soft rhymes to her battered doll. The woman in number 17 bed lay with closed eyes, wondering vaguely why the nurses had put two screens about her bed—and why Nurse Helen had come to her after dinner with so strangely radiant a face, and laid a bunch of lavender on the bed beside her. But she was too tired to wonder much about anything; too tired, and too heart sick—and—the lavender made her think, and think, and think of the old days—and the fragrant garden—and Maurice's face—Maurice's face? It seemed to look at her out of a mist of lavender flowers—and she knew she was asleep and dreaming.

In her dream Maurice's hand touched hers. The clasp of the strong brown fingers sent a thrill of joy through all her being.

"Deborah—my dear!"

She would not open her eyes.

"Deborah—my dear." The clasp of a strong hand on her weak one tightened—she knew all at once that it was no dream handclasp—that the voice in her ears was no dream voice.

"Maurice," she whispered, faintly, a wan smile flickering over her face; "I—thought I was dreaming—but why is there grey in your dark hair—and why do you look so tired and worn. Ah! forgive—forgive—I—loved you . . all the time."

And then she broke off into a soft sobbing, whilst she clung to his hand and looked hungrily into his face; and as though she had been a tired child he soothed her, with her head against his breast. . . . Her letter had never reached him. All his search for her had been unavailing, and, at last, believing her utterly faithless and abandoned, he had hardened his heart against her trying to cast her from it. But the first glimpse of her white face on the pillow had softened all his hardness; and when his hand closed over his wife's thin blue-veined hand—she knew that the past was forgiven for evermore.

Deborah Ross is happy to-day in her peaceful home, and in the garden she has learnt to love. And every year there comes to stay at the old farm a golden-haired child, who hugs a battered doll in her arms, and as she walks with it up and down the grass path by the sun-dial, she sings softly in her childish treble:

Lavender's blue, diddle, diddle,
Lavender's green.

ON SPARTAN LINES

Was Crown Prince of Germany Brought Up—Hours of Study

The Crown Prince of Germany has been brought up on Spartan lines. As is well known, the Kaiser is a strict disciplinarian, and till his fourteenth year the Crown Prince rose at 4 a.m. winter and summer, and was in bed at 8 p.m. He was kept hard at work by private tutors, and after leaving home went through a course at a military college, afterwards matriculating at the University of Bonn. Even when, a few years ago, he served a sort of diplomatic apprenticeship at the Ministry of the Interior he had to work as a junior clerk, and kept to the usual hours every day for a whole year. Even after these hours he was not free, for he had to take home a case of documents to study every evening, and was kept at work late into the night.

TECK A GOOD TREKKER

Prince Alexander Is a Most Enthusiastic Soldier

Prince Alexander of Teck, who has accepted the chairmanship of the Middlesex Hospital, and will in that capacity continue the good work which his brother, the late Prince Francis of Teck, initiated, is a keen soldier. He passed from Eton and Sandhurst into the 7th Hussars, and saw active service—first in the Matabele War of 1896, and subsequently, in company with his two brothers, in the last Boer War, which brought him mention in despatches and a D.S.O. Here is a pithy pen-picture of the Prince, drawn by one who met him casually during the war: "Tall, strongly built, everlastingly youthful, and keen. I once travelled half a day with him, not knowing who he was, and, as is usual when campaigners meet, we fought this war from Talana to Paardeberg and Pieter's Hill. Then I learned how earnest a soldier the Prince is, and how thoroughly wedded to his profession. He is a good trekker, and a good camp man, too."

CHOOSING A CAR

Scotchman Reads Advertisements of "Best and Goes Farthest"

The late Sir Clifton Robinson, the "Tramway King," who, commencing his career as a conductor at the age of twelve, achieved the distinction of organizing street railways all over the world, had a budget of good stories to tell. One of the most amusing was that of two countrymen on a visit to Edinburgh some years ago, who noticed street cars for the first time. They wished to proceed in a certain direction, but as there seemed so many cars going the same way they were in doubt as to which to take. All dubiousness, however, soon vanished, for Geordie, noticing a car bearing a cocoa advertisement in huge letters, beamed to his friend and said, "Here, Jimmie, we'll take' this ane; it's 'Best and goes farthest.'"

AN UNUSUAL OCCURRENCE

Saxon King Takes Pride in His Poor Friend

King Friedrich August of Saxony is the hero of a romantic occurrence which shows him in an unusual light. The King recently celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the completion of his studies at Strasburg University. At a farewell dinner the Crown Prince, as he then was, promised his comrades that they should all meet some day in the future. Among them were the Kaiser's kinsman Prince Wilhelm of Hohenzollern, Prince Castell-Castell, and other great nobles, as well as several students of less known families, most of whom have since reached high positions. As the twenty-fifth anniversary drew nigh the King invited all the survivors to be guests at Pillnitz. Among those invited were several of whom the King had not heard for years. As the guests, all of whom were in uniform, were beginning dinner, a footman reported to the King that a poorly-dressed man who had arrived on foot was waiting outside, and persisted that he was an expected guest. The hall porter, imagining that he was a harmless lunatic, had tried to put him out. The King immediately rose from his seat and went into the entrance hall. In the poorly-dressed man he recognized one of the college friends whom he had lost sight of, but whose name was, nevertheless, on the list of guests. The man had lately lost his fortune through no fault of his own. He began to apologize for his dress, but the King refused to listen. Instead, he took his arm, led him to the place at the table which was reserved for him, and lavished attentions on him during the whole evening.

BUYS RADIUM

English Institute Director Pays for One Gramme, £15,000

The director of the English Radium Institute, Mr. Alton, this week concluded at Vienna the purchase of one gramme of radium from the Mines Department of the Austrian Ministry of Public Works.

Mr. Alton made the proposal a considerable time ago to the Austrian Government, but then obtained nothing, as there was not sufficient of this valuable material to hand.

The price is £15,000, and the funds for the purchase are being provided by Sir Ernest Cassel, who will place this unusually large quantity of the metal at the disposal of the English Institute for medical purposes.

Half the amount, which is ready, is being tested, and will be delivered in January. The other half of the gramme will be accumulated at Joachimsthall, the process taking three months.

One gramme is equal to .564 of a dram avoirdupois. Sixteen drams go to the ounce, and the price of the radium per ounce may be roughly estimated at £470,000.

THE OLD ARMCHAIR

Sad Story of a Widow, Whose Husband Had Been Fond of Chair

A pathetic tale of an old armchair was related at St. Pancras Coroner's Court recently. An inquest was being held on a hawker's widow, who had been compelled through poverty to sell her household goods, including an armchair of which, it was said, her husband had been "very fond."

A neighbor purchased the armchair, and a few days ago the widow went to her, complaining of cold and hunger. She was given food and shelter and allowed to sleep in the favorite armchair. She was found dead sitting in it be chair before the kitchen fire.

The coroner said the case showed how good the poor were to the poor. Here was a woman with no means of subsistence, and her friends took her in and cared for her. This was a charity that gave something. These people really did give something out of their own pockets—often out of their own stomachs.

MILL GIRLS MISTAKEN FOR DUCHESSES

Attention is again being focussed on the remarkable prosperity of Huddersfield. Almost every other man you meet in the town either owns a motor car or has a brother who owns one. Operatives—the unsophisticated stranger is told—drive to their work at their mills in magnificent automobiles. While many employers are about to take to aviation.

This is an exaggeration, however. More well-founded, it would seem, is the story that two Huddersfield mill girls, as they wandered through the grounds of the Brussels exhibition, were mistaken for English duchesses. Wearing costumes which Paquin would be proud to have designed, and hats that a society beauty would have envied, they had momentarily left their father and mother seated in one of the exhibition halls, and had wandered out to view the exhibition grounds. Good looking as well as smartly dressed, they made an attractive picture. "They must be duchesses," whispered in broken English one attendant to another as they passed. The workpeople at the mill in Huddersfield where the girls work are still re-telling the story.

GOOD USE FOR IT

"Mary," said Uncle James, "you make use of that big dictionary with the wire stand that I gave you last Christmas, don't you?"

"Oh, yes, uncle," answered Mrs. Wardlaw, "and the children enjoy it ever so much. They're never so happy as when they can manage to upset it on the baby."

Lots of men act as if breakfast with the family was the tail end of the nightmare they had.

GOOD BOY!

Stern Parent:—"Tommy, you are not to play with that fourth boy any more; he looks a bad influence."

Young Hopeful:—"Oh, daddy, he isn't: he's a good little boy. He's been in a reformatory school twice, and each time he's got out for his good conduct."—Weekly Times, Melbourne.

MEAN!

Mabel:—"Did you notice that Gus gave me his first dance last evening?"

Gertie:—"Yes, dear. He told me afterward he believed in getting disagreeable things done as soon as possible."

MAX O'RELL ON LOVE

The following are a few observations and reflections of the late Max O'Rell on men and women in love:—

Man is capable of love as earnestly as woman is, but love is not the whole business of his life, whereas it is a woman's. When a child she loves her doll, when a girl her mother, when a woman a man. She can feed on love and die of it. When a mother she loves her children. When she dies, surrounded by beloved grand-children, she may say that her life has been well filled.

I believe that a woman can love more than once. I have known widows remarry and love their second husbands with the same devotion as their first.

A man really loves once only. I knew a man under fifty who was married three times. He was a good and devoted husband to his three wives, but he never really loved but the second. If he dies suddenly, without having time to take all his precautions, the portrait of his second wife will be found on his heart.

The reason of this is that men and women love in different ways. A man loves because his whole being, heart, soul, and body, craves for a woman. A woman often gives herself to a man because it pleases her to be loved by him. For a man love is the pleasure he feels in the company of a woman; for a woman, it is the enjoyment of the pleasure she gives to a man. A woman is proud to call herself a reward, and that is why all heroes appeal to her so much.

Mirabeau was the plainest of men, with his face covered with smallpox marks, yet no man ever made so many conquests among women. Successful generals, explorers, great orators, authors, artists, singers, all appeal to women. They may not love them personally, but it affords them great pleasure to be loved by them. There is in every woman a craving for a man superior to herself, and that is why women who try to dominate men are such dismal failures.

A man likes to feel, to know, he is loved, but a woman likes to be told. You may tell her all day long. She will spend her life listening to you telling her.

Never have a sneer at a woman or at a child. Whenever you feel sarcastic exercise your talents on something else.

Never profane the words, "I love you;" they may seal the fate of a woman; but when you have uttered these three words in great earnestness, and the woman has answered with that great religious, almost sad smile that Victor Hugo called "the smile of angels;" when, in a word, she is yours, place her on a pedestal, on an altar, and worship her. The world has nothing better to offer you.

A man can cure a woman of a man. Nothing can cure a man of a woman, unless it be that woman herself.

MYSTERIOUS ACCIDENT

Railway Employe's Substantial Compensation

Of a singular character was an accident on the London and North-Western Railway which was described at Wigan in a claim for compensation made by a linesman named William Beswick, of Rockroad, Latchford, Warrington. Judge Bradbury, in giving judgment, said that after repairing a defect on the line applicant left Bryan Junction by train to return to St. Helens. He was alone in a third-class compartment, and he put his head out of the window to look at the line when something happened—applicant did not know what it was, but he became unconscious. That was the only evidence to show how the accident did happen. At another station applicant was found hanging out of the carriage window on the left-hand side. The injuries were of a most serious character. The only defence set up was that the injuries were not caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of applicant's employment. In his Honor's opinion it was clearly an accident arising out of the man's employment, and there must be judgment for applicant for £44 11s. arrears of compensation and 4s. 6d. a week.

Extra Mild, Remember
Many people would drink ale, in preference to all other malt beverages, if ale did not make them bilious.
This O'K brew is brewed especially for those people. It is extra mild and extra light, and lets you enjoy the creamy deliciousness of real old English ale without the heaviness and excessive bitterness. In easily—opened seal stoppered bottles. No broken cork or tinfoil in the glass.

THE MODERN NOVELETTE

Camilla stood facing the window, and did not see him when he entered the door, but she felt the proximity of the man, whose gaze was fairly burning holes in her gown. Prompted by an unaccountable uneasiness and a desire to save that gown, she wheeled suddenly, and her eyes fell upon him. They were light, and did not hurt the stranger at all.

"Merciful heavens!" she exclaimed, her eyes dilating wildly. "Do the dead rise!"

She leaned heavily upon a chair, and trembled so violently that the entire castle shook. The stranger thought it was an earthquake, and looked about uneasily.

"Considering your question from a theological standpoint," he said, calmly, "I think it can be answered in the affirmative."

Camilla struggled for composure like a person wrestling with an epileptic fit.

"I read your name in the list of the lost," she stammered, "and I thought you dead."

He laughed in a low, rasping voice which removed the varnish from some of the furniture.

"After you had scuttled the ship," he said, "I was rescued and taken ashore. I began at once to search for you. I have looked among the best families of Europe and the American heiresses, for I did not know in what guise I might find you. I find you quite comfortably settled here."

"What do you want of me?" gasped Camilla.

"Why," he replied, "I had thought something of going in for housekeeping again, and—"

"Never!" shrieked Camilla, her proud lips curling in scorn, and without the use of curling-irons. "I will never go back to you!"

The stranger remained perfectly calm, but the sarcastic smile on her face deepened. When he again spoke his voice could have been used for a nutmeg grater. His eyes were again burning holes in everything they rested upon.

"You forget, my dear Camilla," he said, "that I am your husband."

There was a momentary silence, so still that the firing of a cannon three rods away could have been heard distinctly.

"I wish that newspaper had told the truth," sobbed Camilla, "and that your name had been McGinty."

"Why, of course you do," the stranger replied. "Then you could pursue your plans without hindrance."

"Then you mean to betray me!" said Camilla, changing her position and her tactics at the same time without losing her balance.

"That depends on you," he said, with a shrug of the shoulders he had learned in Paris and was using this season with great success. He had fought duels in the house on several occasions.

In their excitement the two had not heard the grating of the carriage wheels on the drive in the courtyard of the castle. Camilla was staring at the man in indescribable rage, mingled with fear and anxiety. He was smiling scornfully, when the door opened and Count von Halfake appeared.

"Aha!" he exclaimed, striking an attitude and speaking in a tone of mingled sarcasm and police inquiry. "What have we here?"

"All is lost!" exclaimed Camilla, throwing her hands to her head with such violence that she felled herself to the floor. Then she sat up and looked wildly about her. The stranger explained that she was his wife, that he had come to get her. The count thought he heard a tone in the man's voice that had a silvery ring to it. He felt in his pockets and then addressed the stranger.

"How much do you want?" he asked. "What sum is necessary to buy your silence and ensure your absence from the castle for ever?"

"Well, I hardly know," replied the stranger, meditatively. "How would one-and-sixpence strike you?"

GYPSY QUEEN'S ROMANCE

Millionaire's Beautiful Daughter Renounced Wealth to Marry Gipsy

Jessie Haversham Michele, known all over the United States as the "Gipsy Queen," has just died at Cincinnati.

Only twenty-five years old, and a very beautiful woman, she was the daughter of Mr. A. W. Haversham, a millionaire, of Baltimore, and left her home a few years ago to marry the head of the gipsies.

As the daughter of a millionaire she was brought up in great luxury. She was a descendant of Francis Scott Key, who wrote "The Star Spangled Banner," a great-granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Key, one of the most famous beauties of the South.

She first met the gipsies when she was about fourteen, and began to study their language, becoming interested in Romany ways and customs. On a visit to Europe she met a Hindu who taught her fortune-telling, and twice ran away from home, following the irresistible call of the wandering life.

When she finally left home it was thought that she had been kidnapped, and all the detective machinery that her father's wealth could buy was put into motion to find her. The whole country was scoured, but it was not for several months that her father learned that she had married Jorgas Michele, the gipsy chief. She never went home again, and, though she had been the belle of Baltimore society, she declared that she was tired of leading such a life, and had made her choice, and was supremely contented.

SPLENDID CHANCE FOR SMALL INVESTORS

Leasing on Reputable Property Affords Opportunity for Making Big Profits—Small Investors Should Take Advantage of This Proposition.

Usually, when a mining company is started, a large part of the money first taken in is used to pay a part or the whole purchase price of the land.

After that is taken care of, comes the expenditure of a large sum for tools and equipment, thousands of dollars in dead development work and many other necessary expenses, which soon eat up an enormous sum of money.

With leasing it is different. In the first place the leasing syndicate has no property to buy. They do not have to pay a heavy rate of interest on deferred payments and as leasers seldom work properties that are not in some way already developed, a large amount is saved on dead work.

Take for instance the J. W. McCummings Leasing Syndicate, who are operating the rich Emma mine in Clear Creek County, Colorado, United States: This splendid property already had a tunnel in over 400 ft. when the present lessee took charge, and it is estimated that very little more work will have to be done before the mine will be on a producing basis.

Less than 200 feet from the portal of the Emma Tunnel leasers took over sixty thousand dollars in gold from the Cashier property in less than three months and within the last two weeks two other sets of leasers operating in this same district have opened up large bodies of fabulously rich ore.

Clear Creek County has produced millions and millions of dollars worth of gold and practical mining men assert that it is yet in its infancy.

The Empire District has contributed a large share of this enormous output and there are signs of a great er activity there this spring, than ever before.

Mr. McCummings has a very novel plan for financing his syndicate. He is determined to make it a syndicate of small investors where no one individual will be in control and in a position to freeze out the smaller stockholders.

The price of the membership has been put at a very low figure, so that they are available for almost anyone and the sale is limited, to not more than ten memberships for any one investor. Mr McCummings himself, owns but ten, and it is reasonable to believe that he will do his utmost to make the mine pay heavily and as quickly as possible, for if it doesn't he makes no profit for himself.

Work recently done on the property has, it is said, uncovered a 17 inch vein of very rich ore and the money taken in from the sale of the present offering of memberships will be used to take out the ore and further develop this vein.

Mr. McCummings is well and favorably known to many Canadian investors, and it is hoped that he will meet with unbounded success in his present undertaking.

commence to describe the torment these prowling, worthless canines have been to me in the past. I have had my flower beds destroyed many times, all the flowers and plants being pulled up by the roots by dogs. Why this should be allowed, I am at a loss to understand. I hope the Council will make up its mind to go a little farther and compell all dogs to be kept off the street.

A Sufferer.

MORE SEATS REQUIRED.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I hope the Council will follow the suggestion made by a writer in The Times, and have the band stand in Central Park lighted and put in shape for concerts this summer. More seats will be required. I would try and arrange to get a quantity of seats, so that the people may enjoy the splendid music of our excellent bands.

I hope Ald. Duncan, who is Chairman of the Property Committee, will take this matter up, and he will at once become the most popular member of the Council board.

IRISH HOME RULE.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I notice in the public press the statement that Home Rule is at last assured in Ireland. To those who have watched the trend of events in British politics will see that there are many obstacles yet to be overcome before Home Rule can be regarded as accomplished. The question of the revenue of Ireland seems to be the one great rock ahead of the Home Rule ship of state. Ireland is a poor country, poor in agriculture and poor in manufactures, and it is hard to see how the mere fact of a change in the detail of the system of government is going to make her more prosperous. Last year the total amount of Irish revenue was $41,775,000 while the actual cost of government for the country ran to $53,000,000. It was the British Empire as a whole that made up the deficit.

It is expected, of course, that under Home Rule Ireland will have to pay her own way, though how she is to do it is a problem. Besides providing for the cost of her own government and her own parliament the country is expected in addition, to contribute her pro ratio share of the cost of the imperial army and navy. When Mr. Gladstone first framed a home rule bill he placed the share of Ireland's contributions to the empire's military and naval forces at $23,000,000; under the new bill it may be less than that, but whatever it is it would seem that the country may have great difficulty in raising it.

So, even before home rule becomes an accomplished fact Ireland is beset by problems that it will take wise statesmanship and clever financing to solve.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY. CAMPAIGN.
Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Good progress is being made in the campaign for increasing the membership of the Peterborough Horticultural Society. The arrangements whereby persons desiring to join the society may do so at convenient places is being taken advantage of and already several of these places report having received a number of new members. I will be able in a day or two to report more definitely regarding the number of membership tickets issued, from these different points.

Some information has recently come to hand regarding the method employed by the St. Catharines Horticultural Society for the securing of new members. This society although in a city smaller than Peterborough, is one of the largest in the Province, being exceeded only by the Societies in Toronto and Ottawa. The president of the St. Catharines Society, states that the remarkable success attending their efforts to increase the membership is due largely to the excellent work done by the directors and individual members of the Society, who lose no opportunity to interest their friends and acquaintances in becoming members.

Every member of the Peterborough Horticultural Society no doubt knows of two or three persons with whom they are intimately acquainted who would readily become members if their attention were called to the matter and mention made of the benefits of membership in such an organization and the excellent premiums which are given to each member, which in themselves are worth more than the $1.00 membership fee. There are hundreds of people who are ready to become members if the matter is mentioned to them. Why not speak to your neighbor about it, and mention some of the places where membership tickets may be secured. It is planned early in May to make a distribution of premiums and it is accordingly desirous that as many as possible join before this is done.

Frank Wise, Secretary.

CURE YOUR RHEUMATISM

50,000 Boxes Given Away To All Who Apply

John A. Smith and His Remarkable Rheumatism Remedy Cured Himself First and Now Proposes to Cure the World.

A Box of This Great Remedy Mailed Free to Any Suffering Reader who Will Send Name and Address.

Cured Many Cases of 30 and 40 Years Standing.

On the theory "that seeing is believing," John A. Smith of Milwaukee, wants everyone to try his remedy for the cure of rheumatism at his expense. For that reason he proposes to distribute 50,000 free boxes among all persons sending him their address. Mr. Smith had suffered all the agony and torture from rheumatism, tried all the remedies known and yet utterly failed to find relief.

At times he was so helpless that he had to take morphine and after considerable doctoring he gave up in despair. He began studying into the causes of rheumatism and after much experimenting, finally found a combination of drugs which completely cured him. The result was so beneficial to his entire system that he called his new found remedy "Gloria Tonic." Those of his friends, relatives and neighbors suffering from rheumatism were next cured and Mr. Smith concluded to offer his remedy to the world. But he found the task a difficult one as nearly everybody had tried a hundred or more remedies and they couldn't be made to believe that there was such a thing as a cure for rheumatism. But an old gentleman from Seguin, Texas, U. S. A., wrote him saying if Mr. Smith would send him a sample he would try it, but as he had suffered over thirty years and wasted a fortune with doctors and advertised remedies, he wouldn't buy anything more, until he knew it was worth something. The sample was sent, he purchased more, and the result was astonishing. He was completely cured. This gave Mr. Smith a new idea and ever since that time he has been sending out free sample boxes to all who apply.

At the U. C. College, Toronto, it cured Mrs. J. Whitley, who had suffered excruciatingly. Fred K. McDonald writes from Sunny Brae, N. S., that "Gloria Tonic" has cured him of a case of rheumatism of many years' standing. From Ambrose M. Melanson, Meteghan River, Digby County, N. S., comes a letter that he has been cured of a severe case.

Even the first sample box cured Mrs. B. Brett, at 12 Powell Street, Guelph, Ont. Two boxes left Mrs. George Wright of Coaticook, Que., well and happy.

Mrs. T. Deline, West Plain, Ont., writes that she could scarcely dress herself because of rheumatism, but that "Gloria Tonic" has completely cured her. Mr. George Lees, of Dundas, Ont., says that he tried many different remedies, but found no relief until he tried "Gloria Tonic," while Clarence A. Scott writes from Tooletos, N. B., that he feels that he owes his life to this great remedy.

A case of 13 years' suffering is reported by James McFarlan, of L'Amable, Ont., but "Gloria Tonic" cured it quickly. Even prominent physicians have to admit that "Gloria Tonic" is a positive success, among them Doctor Quintero of the University of Venezuela, to whom it was recommended by the United States Consul. In hundreds of other instances the result has been the same. It cured many cases which defied Hospitals, Drugs and Electricity, among them persons of upwards eighty years of age.

Mr. Smith will send a trial box, also his illustrated book on rheumatism, absolutely free of charge to any reader of The Times, for he is anxious that everybody should profit by his good fortune. Mr. Smith's address in full is:

How Would You Like to Have Your Savings Earn the Running Expenses? Sounds Good, Don't It? Most Too Good to Be True We Can Do That for You

Right now there are over 3,000,000 people in the great north-west relying strictly on Canned Fruits and Vegetables. They are a necessity. The people MUST have them.

Right now there are TONS and TONS of the best fruits and vegetables that Mother Earth produces going to waste every season in the Okanagan Valley and with the steady influx of settlers in the valley coming to till the fertile soil it is simply natural that the products will doubly increase.

What's to become of this increase with a 40 per cent. waste staring the growers in their very eyes right now?

JUST MORE WASTE, THAT'S ALL. That is, unless a feasible remedy is immediately adopted.

CANNERIES ARE THE REMEDY

Now, then, we have the Cannery situation to a point where we will step right in, take ALL the products the grower can supply and besides converting that gigantic waste into a yearly gain offer an incentive for a still greater output.

THE OKANAGAN CANNERS, LTD., are a co-operative institution.

Not only do we ask the fruit grower to join issues with us to protect his own industry, but invite keen investigation from the investing public.

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners, Ltd., from doing the same?

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—sight of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

Now, then, be up and thinking.

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realizing handsomely on and term him lucky.

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when chances like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

Although capitalized at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

This is a gilt-edged bona fide, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

Was Made in Western Town Property During the Year 1909

Did you anticipate in these huge profits or did you "pigeon-hole" the propositions submitted to you by your western friends for future consideration? In short, are you the man who made a profit or the unfortunate one who had the chance but did not possess sufficient judgment to recognise the opportunity or sufficient courage to close a deal? The man or woman entitled to sympathy is the one who says: "Five or ten years ago I had the chance to buy this or that property at $100 or $500, and now it is worth $10,000." The average person sneers at the person who makes such a statement and says: "I would have bought and made that money." Are you going to say five years from now that you had a chance to buy a lot at Poe, Alta., at from $50 to $100 each, or are you going to be the man who will have from $1,000 to $10,000 in cash as a result of having bought property in this town in this year of grace, 1911?

POE A COMING COMMERCIAL CENTRE

Poe is located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Saskatoon. It is located in one of the finest farming districts in Western Canada. The surrounding country is settled by a progressive type of farmers and consequently will become the market centre for Northern Alberta. Poe district possesses rich coal mines, is close to rivers and lakes and large forests are easily accessible from this point. These natural resources insure for the residents of the town, first, low cost of living, and second, great commercial activity, two essentials in the upbuilding of a large town, thus creating valuable real estate.

POE AS A MANUFACTURING CENTRE

This townsite and contiguous territory has the requirements outlined by large manufacturing concerns for the location of large factories or large enterprises of any kind employing large numbers of people. The rivers and lakes furnish water, the coal fields and forests furnish fuel and cheap building material, the fine farming lands furnish farm products, enabling the residents to live at a low cost.

The town is located on the main line of a transcontinental railway, assuring the necessary transportation facilities. These combined conditions will furnish cheap labor, one of the most important features of a manufacturing centre.

Poe townsite was recently placed on the market and already over 200 lots have been sold and many of these lots have already changed hands at a substantial increase in price. Most of these lots were purchased by representative business men throughout Canada who are now profiting by their foresight.

The townsite is high and dry and very suitable for building purposes.

OPPORTUNITY

is useless unless you possess the courage to act. You might possess great wisdom, you might read a good deal or travel much and thus see all kinds of opportunities to make money, but unless you have the courage to act on your judgment and wisdom all of these desirable qualities are entirely useless.

Lots in Poe are a good investment at present price. The town is bound to grow rapidly. Owing to the easy terms of payment you have the ability to buy and if you do not buy now it is because you are lacking in courage, and the chances are you will never be like the man you now admire most, rich, courageous and wise.

TORRENS TITLE.

Poe townsite is held by us under the Torrens system of title. Under this system the title is guaranteed by the Government, therefore absolutely safe.

PRICES AND TERMS.

Prices of lots range from $50 to $100 each, and they can be purchased on terms of one-tenth cash, balance in eighteen equal monthly payments; or quarter cash, balance in six, twelve or eighteen months.

INFORMATION

We have issued an attractive circular giving full information pertaining to the town and its prospects, together with map showing lots for sale. If you wish to receive this attractive circular cut out and fill in the attached coupon and mail it to us to-day.

PUT YOUR SAVINGS INTO North-Western Asbestos Shares

Where They Will Earn Something For You

W. A. Fisher, President

The North-Western Asbestos Mills Company

Mr. Fisher comes to The North-Western Asbestos Mills Company with years of experience to recommend him as a master of finance, a man of far-seeing business judgment and splendid executive ability.

He will assume an aggressive, though conservative policy in the affairs of The North-Western Company, and will stop at nothing short of success.

It was through Mr. Fisher's efforts that the International Asbestos Mills and Power Company secured valuable concessions in the way of lowered freight rates, enabling that company to market their products in many parts of the country, meeting the sharpest kind of competition.

Mr. Fisher is keen after business, vigorous and progressive and the directorate of The North-Western Asbestos Mills Company may be congratulated upon securing his services as President.

Your Opportunity to You this Money Making Enterprise

You must not let this opportunity pass by. You can not afford to. It means something to you if you buy now while you can get shares in this profitable enterprise at such a very low price. Our plan is a most liberal one and it means a short cut for our stockholders to handsome profits and early dividends. Shares are selling now for 5 cents. The market is on the advance and there is every reason to believe that they will be worth many times that amount in a short time. Our proposition is not a prospect. We have passed the experimental stage and are on the highway to success and stupendous earnings. You want your share. You want your savings invested where they will earn something for you. You don't want to have to wait forever on dividends. You want an investment that has security and promise of great earnings in the shortest possible time. THEN YOU WANT A LIBERAL BLOCK OF SHARES IN THE NORTH-WESTERN ASBESTOS MILLS COMPANY while you can buy them at five cents per share.

C. H. Parker Comes to North-Western Co.

This Company has secured the services of C. H. Parker, M. E. and H. E., of Thetford, Canada.

Mr. Parker has had years of experience in the Canadian Asbestos Fields, having been in charge of some of the largest and most important mines in the country.

In taking service with this company he will have complete charge of the operation at the mines and mills in Wyoming and will undoubtedly institute the newest and most modern methods in mining and milling our products.

Many new plans have been devised that will further develop the Company's holdings and Mr. Parker's association with us will undoubtedly make a short cut to greater profits and quick dividends.

Profits Aggregating Millions of Dollars

There is every reason to believe that profits aggregating millions of dollars will be made by our Company in the future. You should not miss the opportunity to secure your share.

The world wants asbestos. We have asbestos to sell. The demand is increasing daily and shares in our enterprise that are selling to-day for 5 cents will probably be selling for 5 times that amount inside of six months.

THE INTERNATIONAL ASBESTOS MILLS AND POWER COMPANY, OPERATING IN THE SAME FIELD WITH US, IS A GRAND SUCCESS. THE PRICE OF SHARES IN THEIR COMPANY WAS STARTED ONLY A FEW MONTHS AGO AT 10 CENTS AND ARE NOW SELLING FOR 25 CENTS. ON APRIL 1ST THE PRICE WILL BE ADVANCED TO 50 CENTS.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMPANY HAS ALREADY PAID A DIVIDEND.

Pay for Your Shares a Little Down---a Little Each Month

We have arranged a plan whereby the purchaser may secure a liberal block of our stock while it is selling at such a low figure and pay for it, a little down and the balance on easy instalments.

But you should not delay your subscription. The price is liable to advance at any time. Send your order to-day with first payment and we will trust you for the rest.

Before you hardly realise it, your subscription will be paid up and you will be a part owner with us in our enterprise that we hope to make the biggest thing of its kind in the world. Don't wait another day, but clip the attached coupon and send it in.

What Others Have Accomplished We Can Accomplish Also

The International Asbestos Mills and Power Company, our nearest neighbor, has attained wonderful success in a phenomenally short space of time.

Only a few months ago shares in that Company could have been had for 10 cents. To-day They are selling for 25 cents, and a positive advance to 50 cents per share is announced for April 1st.

They have paid one dividend and have a substantial start on another one, which it is expected will be paid in July.

Is there any reason why our company cannot do as well? We think we will and we invite you to come in with us now and receive your share of the first dividend to be paid by The North-Western Asbestos Mills Company. It won't be long.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS SAVED MY LIFE

STRONG STATEMENT OF WELL-KNOWN HARNESSMAKER OF CLAREMONT.

Nicholas Burton Was to Undergo an Operation, When He Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and Found a Cure.

Claremont, Ont., April 28—(Special)—"I have said many times, and I say it again, I believe Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life."

This strong statement is made by Nicholas Burton, harnessmaker, of this place.

"About thirteen years ago," he continues, "I grew gradually weak and my skin and eyeballs were as yellow as saffron. The doctor here took me to Brooklin and later to Toronto for consultation, and the final decision was that I must undergo an operation to remove a supposed tancer in my liver. My chances of recovery were regarded as nil, and I proceeded to settle up my business affairs.

"Then from something I read or heard I began taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I continued taking them till I had used twenty-two boxes.

"My condition improved as I continued to take the pills, and I owe it to them that I am here and well to-day.

"I am making this statement for the benefit of others. I owe it to them and Dodd's Kidney Pills to do it."

There is no trouble of the Kidneys that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure. Mr. Burton's trouble was of the Kidneys.

A very pretty home wedding took place yesterday morning at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Mann, 588 Water street, when their daughter Miss Minnie, was united in marriage to Mr. John Allen of this city. The bride was charmingly attired in a blue silk gown and carried bridal roses. Miss G. Moren, of Toronto, played the wedding march. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful pearl necklace. The wedding ceremony took place under a bank of lillies and palms, and was performed by Rev. Mr. Pogue. The parlor was beautifully decorated. The bride was the recipient of many presents, indicating the high esteem in which she is held by her friends. Among the presents was a splendid silver tea service from the employees of Messrs. Join Me in Developing This Splendid

RICH GOLD MINE

NO FURTHER PAYMENTS REQUIRED

The First $5.00 Pays It All

THIS IS TO BE A QUICK-ACTION PROPOSITION. You pay $5.00 with your subscription. That is all. You will be called upon for no more. This membership entitles you to a vote in all the affairs of the syndicate, and to participate pro rata in all the benefits. It is a small amount, but I don't need very much to accomplish all I am going to try for. I made the price $5.00 so as to allow everyone to get in. In order to keep any one individual from acquiring control I have limited the subscription of any one person to no more than ten memberships. We are all going to get the same fair, square deal. There are to be no favorites and no special privileges. When money enough has been raised to do the work the members will be notified, and THEY will decide whether it will be necessary or not to incorporate a company and, if so, for how much. THEY will elect their own officers and direct the affairs of the company. I will have no time to fool away in doing office work. I am a miner, not a bookkeeper, and as soon as I get this thing organized the officers of the company will have to dictate the business policy. Now it is not very often that you have an opportunity of investing as small an amount as $5.00, and especially where it has such splendid chances for making a big profit in a short time. It can't be beat, and the proposition offers more for the money than anything of its kind in the market. I want you to help me in this and I promise you won't be disappointed if you do.

We Will Divide the Profits

THIS IS MY MONEY-MAKING PLAN

I have secured a lease on the famous EMMA MINE OF EMPIRE, COLORADO. I used to work in this mine, and I know there is ore there. I feel sure that a few dollars expended in developing the vein already opened will give us a big body of rich ore. I am the man to do it. Of course I will need a little help in a financial way. I am organizing a syndicate to handle this proposition. I invite you to join me. We will all club in together and push the development work as hard and as fast as possible, and as the ore is taken out and marketed we will divide the profits. Memberships in this syndicate will be sold for $5.00 each and no more than ten will be sold to any one individual. I will own no more myself. I am determined to make this a small investor's enterprise, and it will be run by the membership holders and for their benefit alone. The amount is so small that anyone can afford to go in, and I am so sure in my own mind that it will be a success—a big success, and earn enormous profits for us—that I am willing to go back to the camp, take off my coat and go in and work from early in the morning until late at night to get the ore opened up and ready for the mill. I am satisfied that we can produce results in less than a year. All I want you to do is to let me have your immediate subscription for one or more memberships, and I will buy a stock of powder, go back to the mine and get to work. May I count upon your co-operation?

NOW. I will do my best to make money for both of us.

A large amount of rich ore has already been taken out of this mine, and a nice little streak of it is in sight now. The mine is all wired for electrical power and a power line passes only a few feet from the portal of the tunnel. Give me an electric power drill and I will go after that vein of ore in a way that will surprise the membership holders, and there will be no fooling around waiting for this, or for that, BUT I WILL PRODUCE RESULTS. I have to get my profits in this enterprise from the same source that you do: FROM THE ORE PRODUCED, and you may be assured that I will not lay around doing nothing until our money is all used up. Opening up the pay streak means as much to me as to any other membership holder: and I am going into the proposition to make it pay. If nothing unforseen occurs I will do it, too. Our profits should be very substantial, for there will not be many to divide the earnings among. I know all about the veins of ore in this camp; I know the character of the ore, and I know the quickest way to reach the ore bodies. If you will come into the proposition with me now, when I need your co-operation, I will give you your share of all I take out.

Something About Myself

I am a practical mining man; have had years of experience in the business, and have never made a failure of anything I have taken up. For over four years I have worked in the mines in and about Empire, Colorado. Being familiar with the location of the mineral veins of this district, knowing the character of the ores, etc., I have been on the lookout for a good property that I could operate under lease for some time. It was only recently that I found the big lead veins in the famous Emma mine, and I immediately took action in an effort to secure a long-time lease from the company owning the property. Well, to make a long story short, after a deal of negotiating I was successful and secured a lease on this splendid property which runs until 1916. The company was anxious to have a certain amount of development work done and I was lucky enough to catch them at just the right time and secured just what I wanted. This is the proposition I am now inviting you to join me in—the development of this lease on the RICH EMMA MINE.

The Small Investor's Opportunity

Usually a small investor has but little show to earn more than a very ordinary profit on his investment. I conceived the idea of making this a company of small investors. Just a few of my friends, and their friends. I am so confident of the outcome that I am taking no more big capital in with me, and instead of having a company controlled and dominated by a few big stockholders, I want to make it more of a family affair. We will all put in a small amount. With the money thus subscribed I will begin work at the mine and, following the present vein, I am sure I will be able to cut the big American lode within a distance of a few hundred feet. If my plans are successful I will be into a big ore body in less than three months, and that means a small fortune for us all. There are all kinds of tools at the mine to work with except, perhaps, a power drill, and that will be one of the first things that I will buy. After that it will be easy to drive the tunnel, and I expect to make good progress.

QUICK RETURNS ON YOUR MONEY

THIS IS THE DAY OF QUICK ACTION. No man wants his money tied up in a proposition that only has a promise of paying out in the sweet bye and bye. Get your money in and your profits out. That is my idea, and I think I am right. I feel pretty sure that I can give you your money back and your share of the earnings inside of a year. Possibly sooner. In any event, you may be assured that I will not delay a minute longer than is necessary. I want my share as soon as I can get it, and you will get yours at the same time. I believe that these memberships will be snapped up in a hurry, and so I advise you to not delay your order. Better be a little early than too late. Your certificate will be forwarded to you upon receipt of your order and remittance. There will be no delay at this end. Frequent reports will be sent to the membership holders telling of the development at the mine, and if you have any suggestions to offer send them along. I am a miner, a practical miner, and know the business as well as any of them, but I am not fool enough to think I know it all. I am always anxious and willing to learn, so if you think you can give me any pointers that will help me I will thank you to let me have them. Now I have given you about all the important details in regard to the proposition. It is now your move. If you want something in an investment that looks a little bit better and a little bit quicker than anything else in the market, I want to hear from you. If you are a pessimist, and believe that you are doing well enough, you will just be wasting your time and mine in writing to me. Otherwise, clip and send in the attached coupon to-day—

I Don't See How You Can Lose

In this proposition I honestly don't see how you can lose. In the first place the amount invested is so small and the promise of big profits so exceptional that only a small amount of ore would have to be produced to at least get your money back. But if I thought getting my money back would be the best I could do I would not waste a minute's time on it. In other parts of this mine former operators took out large amounts of ore, and they never acquired any depth to speak of. Now, every miner in the Empire District knows that as depth is attained the ore bodies enlarge, and the values increase. The American lode that I have mentioned before is known to be very rich, and from on top of the hill, just a little ways north of this property, it dips directly towards us and down into the mountain. I think by driving the tunnel straight in that we will cut it in less than 200 feet. The vein now uncovered in the tunnel is evidently a stringer of the American lode.

No More Than Ten Memberships to Anyone

A square deal, fairness and equality for all. An honest disbursement of the syndicate's funds. Those are the principles and basic standards of this enterprise. I am going in on the same basis as yourself. If I make any big money out of the proposition I will have to get it from the same source that you do—THE EARNINGS FROM THE MINE. I will only own ten memberships, the limit for any one individual, and when the proposition is financed the membership holders shall say whether or not we shall incorporate. If so, for how much; and they shall elect their own officers from among their own number. The enterprise shall belong to the membership holders and they shall run it to suit themselves. All I want to do is work the mine. That is as much or more than one man can attend to properly, and I don't want to be bothered with any office work. Now, my friends, if you have faith in me and my proposition, I want your co-operation, and I will ask you to send me your subscription. If you haven't, you won't do me any good and I can't do anything for you.

LITTLE EDDIE TAYLOR DROWNED ON SATURDAY

A most sympathetic and terrible accident which proved fatal to Edward Taylor, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Taylor, Chamberlain street, occurred on Saturday evening at the Peterborough Locks. The little lad will no doubt be missed by his many boy associates, who feel the accident very keenly,

The boy who is about 7 years old had been fishing with some others in the Otonabee all afternoon, and at about 7.30 o'clock they decided to go home, and while crossing the locks Edward struck his foot against a cleat and fell headlong into the swiftly running water.

Several men were present and witnessed the awful tragedy, but the current was so strong they were unable to do anything, and the unfortunate youth, although able to swim, was gulped in by the merciless waters and drowned.

Searching parties were immediately formed which worked all Saturday and Sunday, but up to going to press the body had not been recovered.

The bereaved parents will have the sympathy of the whole community in their affliction. Over two years ago their eldest son William, met with an accident at the T.T.R. crossing, on King street, when he had both his legs taken off above the knees by a passing train. The father too, has been an invalid for some years and is unable to work.

TWO HUNDRED BOY SCOUTS TO ATTEND THE CORONATION

The Dominion Council make Arrangements for a Monster Representation of Canadian Boys—Deputation of Scouts to Attend From All the Colonies.

Ottawa, April 29.—To consider a proposal to send two hundred representative Canadian Boy Scouts over to England in time for the coronation is the object of a meeting of the Dominion Council of the movement, which will take place at government house this afternoon.

The original plan and that proposed by the British organization, was that the colonial boys should arrive just in time for a monster scout rally to take place in London on July 6. The Dominion authorities, however, are of the opinion that Canadians will give more support if the boys are going to be present at the coronation ceremony.

H. R. Hammond, provincial secretary of the movement, is here for the meeting.

THE MOTOR COMPANY TO BE SUPPORTED

Committee Makes Recommendation After Investigation.

The following is the report of the committee appointed on Friday night at the Board of Trade meeting to investigate the Jules Motor Co. proposition, made after an investigation this morning.

Peterborough, April 29, 1911.

Whereas a proposition from the Jules Moto Co

Jules Motor Company, Limited, has been presented to the Board of Trade of Peterborough. That is to establish a factory in Peterborough on condition that they are able to place twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars worth of stock in Peterborough and have expressed their willingness that two directors be appointed from local subscribers.

This committee beg leave to report that we believe that there is ample room for the establishment of an automobile factory in Peterborough and believe that with proper management a good profit can be made and that the proposition as presented by the representatives of the Jules Motor Company Limited

Motor Company, Limited, if carried out as outlined in their prospectus, would prove to be a profitable investment.

Y. M. C. A. FOOTBALL TEAM DEFEATED ALL SAINTS' SATURDAY

In the opening game of the Church Football League on Saturday afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds, the Y.M.C.A. team defeated the All Saints' eleven by the close score of 2—1, before a fair-sized crowd. It was certainly a good exhibition of football and the game was enjoyed by every spectator. Every player worked his head off, and it would be hard to specialize. For the winners Dr. McPherson, the famous old veteran played a star game and certainly played a great defence game. Boness, who plays forward, was responsible for the two counters and seemed to know the weak-spots in the Saints' line-up to perfection. Hampton and Adams also played splendid games.

Mr. Singard referred to the satisfaction of every player and won the admiration of both sides as well as the spectators.

The following is the line-up:

—Y. M. C. A.—

Goal—Fleming.
Full Backs—Dr. McPherson and Hampton.
Half-backs—Moore, Adams and Tarte.
Forwards—Caniff, Boness, A. Flowers, Kerr and Miller.

—All Saints—

Goal—Moriaty.
Full Backs—Abbott, Reese and Robinson.
Half-backs—Hooper, Jones and Dawson.
Forwards—Cutis, Willis, Abbott, Downes and Hildreth.

CANON LAW WINS IN QUEBEC.

In Quebec the conflict between Church and State in regard to Ne Temere is about over, because the Canon law has won. Then for no other reason than that the Hebert case clearly, is a case of conflict between Church and State, if for no other reason than that the rights of that Methodist Minister are infringed. That Minister should at least attempt to vindicate his right while acting as a State official with the Lieutenant-Governor's warrant in his hand, authorizing him to do what every Protestant Minister in the Empire can do except in Malta. This condition of things cannot be permitted under the British flag, and the sooner the Protestants line up for the fray, the sooner will relief be afforded, as the Government will not act until forced to do so by overwhelming force of public opinion. "One marriage law" is now the battle cry.

THE VICE-REGAL TRIP TO THE WEST IS SUDDENLY CUT SHORT.

Earl Grey Hurries Back From Winnipeg to Ottawa, Owing, It is Believed, to Political Affairs—Westerners Disappointed at Brevity of Visit.

Winnipeg, April 29.—(Special.)—Contrary to the hopes of Winnipeg people, who had anticipated that the Earl and the Countess Grey would spend a large part of the week in this city, the vice-regal party will leave for the east to-night. The Earl will be present at the play at the Theatre to-night, and at the close of the usual performance the members of the party will bid farewell to the friends in Winnipeg, and will go direct to the depot. It is understood that the political situation at Ottawa had had some effect on his sudden departure.

Arrangements for the special train were made by the officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway this morning. Personal attention was given to the matter by the vice-president, and all is in readiness for the departure. The train consists of the two cars, the Cornwall and the York, with a standard sleeping car and a baggage car for the transportation of the required supplies. The departure will be made quietly, with no more display than is usual.

Very great regret is expressed that the Governor-General and Countess Grey should leave for Ottawa so soon Arrangements had been made for a a number of events next week, at which it was hoped that the vice-regal party might be present. One of the chief of these was the military concert, to be given by the Sheffield Choir, on Wednesday night. At this function it was hoped that there would be a very large representation of the military of the city, and it was intended that it should be made one of the greatest gatherings in the musical history of the city. Lord Lascelles had indicated his belief that the Earl and Countess would be present, but the plans have had to be changed, and on Wednesday night the party will be again at Rideau Hall.

OVER TWO BILLIONS CASH INVESTED HERE BY BRITAIN

Montreal, April 29.—Mr. W. Leonard Palmer, of the Financial News, of London, England, is spending a few days in Montreal, before going to Ottawa and on to the Pacific coast, investigating financial conditions for his publication.

Mr. Palmer says there is a general desire in Britain to transfer holdings from the United States to Canada, and gives it as his belief that Canada is on the eve of the greatest financial and commercial development ever seen on the Continent.

In Mr. Palmer's estimation there is no less than $2,100,000,000 of British capital invested in the Dominion at the present moment.

Mr. Palmer will visit Toronto and interview leading financial men there.

A MOTOR CLUB.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It is said that there are now over 60 motor cars in Peterborough, and I think it is time their owners got together and formed a club. This is necessary in order that concerted action be taken regarding road signs and other matters. Who will take the initiative?

Auto.

A GREATER PETERBOROUGH.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir, — "A Greater Peterborough" should be the motto of every patriotic citizen, and if our public men would only pull together, instead of fighting each other, there would soon be a Peterborough of 30,000 population or over. The first step necessary is cheap power, and I am sure I give expression to the sentiments of a vast majority of the ratepayers when I say that this is the one thing needed. The people will vote the necessary money to secure power that will develop street and domestic lighting, and at the same time afford an ample supply to manufacturing industries, at rates that will be an inducement for them to locate here. More citizens like Mr. Denham are needed—men who are willing to back up their faith in the city with their own money. I refer to Mr. Denham's action in trying to get the Jules Motor Company to locate here.

In conclusion let me urge the Council to arrange for cheap power, which is the basis of future development.

Progress.

INSPECTOR STEWART.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would like to say a word about the splendid work that is being done by the License Inspector, Mr. Joseph Stewart. Only a few years ago the closing of the hotel bars during prohibited hours was only a pretense, the back and side doors being open for business until midnight, and sometimes long after, as well as on Sundays. This is all changed now, thanks to the way Mr. Stewart does his duty, backed of course, by the very efficient police force. Mr. Stewart evidently therefore, is the right man in the right place. He gives the hotel man and bartender to understand that violation of the law will not be tolerated, and that punishment is sure and certain if unlawful selling is persisted in. I have for nearly 18 years been "on the road" as a traveller, and have therefore, seen much of hotels throughout the country, and am in a position to know what I am talking about when I say that better managed hotels are not to be found in Canada than those in my native town of Peterborough.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

OILING THE STREETS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The use of oil on the streets to prevent dust is far ahead of water. I am pleased to see that our very excellent Council has decided to use oil generally, and I am quite sure the public will be well satisfied with the result.

But I would ask Ald. Metheral, the chairman of the Street Committee, to see that the sprinkling is properly done. On Water Street, for instance, the cart went up the centre of the road, leaving a space on both sides not covered at all. The dust from this unoiled portion will be quite considerable, especially when the wind is high.

I am sure I need only mention this matter to have the evil remedied.

ANNOUNCEMENT IS OFFICIALLY MADE

Canada Gazette Publishes Appointment of Duke of Connaught as Governor-General.

Ottawa, April 29.—The Canada Gazette to-day contains the official announcement from The London Gazette of the appointment of Field Marshal His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn to be Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief in Canada.

EARLY CLOSING OF THE BARS

Montreal, Aoril 29.—To-day will be the last Saturday upon which the bars of the city may keep open until midnight. Monday, May 1st, they will open to the new regime, under which all the bars, whether hotel, restaurant, or just plain saloon, will have to close at 11 o'clock on ordinary nights, and at 7 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

According to the present understanding all licensed liquor sellers are to observe the law, with exception of one. It is arranged that some one of them is to break the law and sell drinks out of hours. In order to make a test case of the new act before the courts. The defence of this is to be borne by the Licensed Victuallers' Associations, and it will be fought as far as necessary even to the privy council, in order to determine absolutely the validity of the new law.

REORGANIZE MILITIA COMMANDS PETERBORO' IN THIRD DIVISION

Ottawa, April 29.—It is announced in militia orders to-day that in order to reorganize the militia on a divisional basis, the four commands in Eastern Canada will be re-constituted so as to form six divisional areas, providing six infantry divisions and four cavalry brigades.

THIRD DIVISION.

The Third Divisional area replaces military districts Nos. 3 and 4, comprising the Counties of Durham, Northumberland, Victoria, Peterborough, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox, Addington, Frontenac, Haliburton, Carleton, Dundas, Glengarry, Renfrew, Russell, Stormont, Grenville, Lanark, Wright, Labelle, Pontiac, Leeds, Prescott, the District of Nipissing south of Mattawa River (exclusive of Townships of Ferris and Bonfield), with headquarters at Kingston.

MONSTER GATHERING OF ODD-FELLOWS TO BE HELD AT GRIMSBY

Grimsby, Ont., April 29.—The grand lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows will hold its annual meeting and convention at Niagara Falls and Grimsby Beach this year. The annual meeting of all the lodges in Ontario will be held at the Falls on Tuesday and Wednesday, August 15th and 16th, and on Thursday and Friday, the 17th and 18th, the lodges of Western Ontario will gather at Grimsby Beach for two day's fun and frolic. Secretary Miller of Grimsby reports that over $300 will be hung up in prizes for athletic events. Manager Wylie of the Beach is also offering prizes for a drill competition between Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, St. Catharines and other drill corps. This is expected to be the biggest Oddfellows' picnic ever held in Canada.

PRES. TAFT AND W.B. NORTHUP, M.P.

"I have said that this was a critical time in the solution of the question of reciprocity. It is critical because unless it is now decided favorably to reciprocity, it is exceedingly probable that no such opportunity will ever again come to the United States. The forces which are at work in England and in Canada to separate her by a Chinese wall from the United States, and to make her part of an imperial commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again by a system of preferential tariffs, will derive an impetus from the rejection of this treaty, and if we would have reciprocity, with all the advantages that I have described, and that I earnestly and sincerely believe will follow its adoption, we must take it now or give it up forever."

—President Taft.

W. B. NORTHRUP, M.P.

"If, therefore, you should hear, and I do not for a moment predict that you will hear, but if you should hear that the Opposition at Ottawa has refused to allow the bill to come to a vote, or to grant further supplies, you will understand that the whole object was to compel an appeal to the people.

"When the people have spoken they are supreme and both sides must obey their mandate. But until they have spoken, which they can only do at the polls, no one can say what the voice of the people of Canada in this matter really is."

CHINESE REBELS BURN THE VICEROY'S HOUSE AT CANTON

Hong Kong, China, April 29.—The discontent, with the ruling dynasty was fanned into flame to-day, and fierce fighting between loyal troops and rioters is reported from Canton. Following a desperate conflict, the rioters managed to sack the residence of the viceroy, after which they burned it.

Admiral Li, with a party of picked men, attacked the rioters, and managed to disperse them after killing several of the leaders. The mob fled, only to later reform and renew the conflict. The gates of the city are now closed, and the Government has seized the telegraph offices. No news of actual conditions is now permitted to be sent.

The revolutionists were well armed with rifles, and also had quantities of high explosives. Government spies had tipped off the plans, however, so that the Government was able to retain possession of the military and naval depots. This greatly disheartened the rebel leaders, who had hoped to secure additional arms and ammunition with which to equip the recruits to their ranks.

A telegram received from the British Consul in Canton by Sir Frederick Ludgard, Governor of Hong Kong, before the censorship was ordered, said that the situation was grave. He said that all British vessels en route to Canton should be held here at least twenty-four hours, owing to the dangerous conditions.

The harbor authorities announced that clearance papers for all vessels bound for Canton will be withheld, pending the arrival of further advices.

Discontent and anarchy have prevailed in Canton for a long time.

Thousands of residents of Canton are fleeing to this city. Those who have arrived say that anarchy is rife among the soldiers at Canton and that the officers do not trust their men. Many of the troops completed their service to-day and these men are particularly feared. Anarchists have been furthering their propaganda in the army, where there was already much discontent, owing to the recent suppression of gambling. The British consul at Canton has reported to the Governor of Hong Kong that the situation is serious.

TORONTO LOST.

Providence, R.I., April 29.—Eight thousand wildly enthusiastic fans were holding down seats in the enclosure when the Leafs and Greys opened hostilities in the second battle of the series this afternoon. The crimp which the locals put in Toronto's winning streak yesterday boosted Providence stock above par, and the knockers are rabid fans to-day. Cather was on the firing line for the Canadians when Umpire Hart yelled "play" while Sline was in the box for the homsters. The day was ideal for play, wraps being a burden.

NEW C.P.R. LINES.

Engineers have been instructed to begin at once on the location of the Canadian Pacific Railway line from Glentay, sixteen miles west of Smiths Falls, to Toronto, and it is expected that this railroad will be in operation in about two years. The location will extend from Glentay southwest to Belleville, thence along the lake shore, touching all the lake shore towns, to a point east of Leaside Junction. It would work up to Leaside. The company will have a grade of about four-tenths of one per cent. per mile.

The new C.P.R. line between Guelph Junction and Hamilton has been located and the bulk of the right-of-way bought.

Grading is progressing on still another C.P.R. line—that on the Victoria Harbor route from a point six or seven miles from Orillia to Bethany. The haul from Victoria Harbor will be on the dead level.

CONCRETE SIDEWALK CONSTRUCTION.

Upon request for information relative to methods adopted at Verdun for the above work, Mr. Henry Hadley, town engineer, has furnished the following.

"A good sidewalk must possess permanency, solidity evenness and elasticity to resist the action of frost. After careful study a pavement consisting of concrete slabs was decided upon as being the most economical and possessing, in a large degree, the essential qualities of a good walk. The width used is five feet on main streets and four feet on side streets, with provision for increasing the width an additional two feet. The materials used consist of standard cement the best quality of sand obtainable and a good quality of screened gravel. The foundation is built of yellow clay thoroughly tramped and carefully graded. The clay foundation is extended eight inches on each side of the concrete to prevent slipping and to protect the edges of the walk.

"The method of laying the walk is as follows: Two men lay the forms, which consists of 2-in. x 4-in. lumber, set on edge, to grade pegs given by the engineer. The material is mixed by hand on two boards, two men mix it dry and four men mix it wet. The material is then carried by barrows and dumped into place. One man who has charge of the gang lays the walk, spreading the material in place and putting a taper board at right angles to the length of the walk dividing the cement into blocks four or five feet wide and four hfeet long. The thickness of the cement is four inches. The walk is finished by rounding the edges and dotting the surface with cement tools. This walk possesses the advantage of being easily lifted and replaced. This is necessary in case of excavating under the walk or of settlement. The council have been thoroughly satisfied with this work and the town has laid to date about fourteen miles, which will be increased to about twenty this season.

WHAT NO MAN KNOWS.

The enfranchised women have been very active and successful of late. They have captured many offices. In the United States they have elected a mayor, auditors, treasurers, city clerks, members of school boards. The British Parliament which is grappling with woman suffrage, will be interested to learn that suffrage means, sooner or later, direct participation in legislative and executive business. The women who vote wish to be represented in public office, and they obtain such representation. Those in England argued gravely that suffrage was one thing and office-holding another, cannot point for proof to the United States.

But there is nothing in the recent activity of American women to warrant any domestic tendencies and sentiments. Certain male philosophers assert that women will always be conservative and vote for regulation, restriction, interference, "acts of government." This is a rash induction. No man knows how women will vote. They have a way of disappointing expectations and furnishing surprises.

Here are a few illustrations: The women of Tacoma voted generally against, not for—as was reported at first—the anti-treating ordinance, and the votes of men carried that piece of novel legislation. The women of Milwaukee voted against socialist candidates, while the women of certain Kansas cities voted for such candidates. In other Kansas towns women voted for the liberalization of anti-liquor laws, absolute prohibition having failed.

It is safe to say that women will differ and divide as men do. There will be women conservatives and women radicals, women Republicans and women Democrats, women Prohibitionists and women anti-Prohibitionists. There isn't much guidance in this generalization, but everything beyond that is pure speculation. How women, as women, will vote is something no man knows—and no woman, either.

RUBBER PLANT CULTIVATION

Some Interesting Facts About the Industry Which is Thriving in Many Southern Countries

Owing to the rubber boom trees are being planted in every part of the tropical world suitable for their culture. Day after day the demand for rubber increases. Twenty-five years ago about 5,000 tons of rubber sufficed for the world's requirements. Now the estimated annual consumption of rubber, owing to the development of the electrical industry and motor-trade, is 70,000 tons. Taxi-cabs, for instance, use up four sets of tires a year, and create a demand for something like 50,000 tons of rubber. No substitute for natural rubber has yet been invented—though clever chemists are experimenting all over the world—and, as the wild trees of South America and the Congo are insufficient to meet the increased demand, the world's supply is being supplemented from great forests of plantation rubber.

Hundreds of new companies have been floated to develop rubber estates in various parts of the world, and hence the great boom in rubber shares. As showing the extraordinary rise in price, it might be mentioned that two years ago rubber sold at 2s. 9d. per lb.; to-day the price in Mincing Lane is over 12s. per lb. What is more, according to Sir Robert Laidlaw, who is a great authority in the rubber world, there seems no immediate prospect of the price being reduced. "In fact," he says, "the presumption is the other way. There are some good judges who think that rubber will go up to £1 before it falls, but personally I should not like to prophesy."

Success in Ceylon

The rubber which comes from Para, the centre of the rubber industry on the Amazon, is regarded as the best for most purposes, for in the forests of Central and Northern Brazil the Hevea Brasiliensis—to give the proper scientific name to the best rubber trees—grow in abundance. These trees have been introduced with great success in Ceylon, the Malay States, and other parts of our Eastern possessions. One great advantage growers have had in Ceylon is that they were able to continue cultivating their tea while the rubber trees were maturing in the same plantations. Their rubber is of the best quality, containing about 95 per cent. of pure rubber as against 83 per cent. in the best Para.

An acre of good land will support about 120 trees of the Para variety, and under favorable conditions the trees grow with great rapidity. It is recorded that rubber trees planted in Ceylon have attained a height of 50 feet and a girth of 2 feet from the surface of the ground in six years. At the end of that time the trees are ready for tapping in order to extract the latex or sap which is transformed into rubber.

The Art of Tapping

The process of tapping is a very interesting one, and on it depends a great deal; for unsuccessful tapping might mean the destruction of full-grown trees, or the impoverishing of the supply of latex. In gathering the latter, the collector goes out armed with a bill-hook for cutting the bark. In cutting, however, he must be very careful not to cut into the tree—only to go bark deep. Should he cut farther in he runs the risk of spoiling the rubber latex.

The bark is cut in a "herring-bone" pattern—that is to say, a perpendicular cut is made on the trunk of the tree from which other cuts branch round the trunk. Sometimes, however, the spiral method is employed, a spiral cut being made round the tree to a great height. Then a vessel is placed underneath the main cut to catch the latex.

From Latex to Rubber

When the latex has been collected, the owner proceeds to make it into rubber. This is done in a very simple but at the same time somewhat tedious manner. As a rule, a fire is made with a certain kind of nuts and wood, over which a funnel-shaped inverted tin is placed. The nuts, which do not burn, cause a dense smoke to come through the narrow opening at the top of the tin.

As soon as the heat has become very strong, and the smoke assumes a whitish color, the operator takes a broad piece of stick and dips it into the vessel containing the latex. Withdrawing it covered with the latex he holds it over the narrow opening of the tin through which the smoke is issuing, slowly turning the while, until the latex upon the stick has become thick and filmy to appearance. It has now become rubber. Without removing from the stick the rubber which has coagulated thereon, he dips it back again into the vessel, and goes on repeating the performance of dipping and smoking until he sometimes has as much as 60 lbs. of rubber upon the stick. The stick is then withdrawn from the rubber, which is quite ready for the market.

A SALMON'S LEAP

Jumped Into Boat 15 Inches Above the Waterline

A curious thing happened at Dunfallandy, Pitlochry, during the night recently. The Tummel was in high flood, and Mr. Stewart Fergusson's overseman went down early in the morning to see to the safety of one of the boats, riding in the river at the end of a long rope, and about 15 feet from the bank. There had been a lot of rain during the night, and the boat had about nine to ten inches of water in her, in the middle of which floated a fine, almost clean, salmon of about 20 lbs. It was still alive, though much exhausted, as the water had become quite deoxygenised. It had leaped into the boat during the night. The sides of the boat are quite 15 inches above the water line. The salmon soon revived and swam away, after being put into some clean water.

THE MODERN NOVELETTE

Camilla stood facing the window, and did not see him when he entered the door, but she felt the proximity of the man, whose gaze was fairly burning holes in her gown. Prompted by an unaccountable uneasiness and a desire to save that gown, she wheeled suddenly, and her eyes fell upon him. They were light, and did not hurt the stranger at all.

"Merciful heavens!" she exclaimed, her eyes dilating wildly. "Do the dead rise!"

She leaned heavily upon a chair, and trembled so violently that the entire castle shook. The stranger thought it was an earthquake, and looked about uneasily.

"Considering your question from a theological standpoint," he said, calmly, "I think it can be answered in the affirmative."

Camilla struggled for composure like a person wrestling with an epileptic fit.

"I read your name in the list of the lost," she stammered, "and I thought you dead."

He laughed in a low, rasping voice which removed the varnish from some of the furniture.

"After you had scuttled the ship," he said, "I was rescued and taken ashore. I began at once to search for you. I have looked among the best families of Europe and the American aristocracy, for I did not know in what guise I might find you. I find you quite comfortably settled here."

"What do you want of me?" gasped Camilla.

"Why," he replied, "I had thought something of going in for housekeeping again, and—"

"Never!" shrieked Camilla, her proud lips curling in scorn, and without the use of curling-irons. "I will never go back to you!"

The stranger remained perfectly calm, but the sarcastic smile on her face deepened. When he again spoke his voice could have been used for a nutmeg grater. His eyes were again burning holes in everything they rested upon.

"You forget, my dear Camilla," he said, "that I am your husband."

There was a momentary silence, so still that the firing of a cannon three rods away could have been heard distinctly.

"I wish that newspaper had told the truth," sobbed Camilla, "and that your name had been McGinty."

"Why, of course you do," the stranger replied. "Then you could pursue your plans without hindrance."

"Then you mean to betray me?" said Camilla, changing her position and her tactics at the same time without losing her balance.

"That depends on you," he said, with a shrug of the shoulders he had learned in Paris and was using this season with great success. It had brought down the house on several occasions.

In their excitement the two had not heard the grating of the carriage wheels on the drive in the courtyard of the castle. Camilla was staring at the man in indescribable rage, mingled with fear and anxiety. He was smiling scornfully, when the door opened and Count von Halfakeg entered.

"Aha!" he exclaimed, striking an attitude and speaking in a tone of mingled sarcasm and police inquiry. "What have we here?"

"All is lost!" exclaimed Camilla, throwing her hands to her head with such violence that she felled herself to the floor. Then she sat up and looked wildly about her. The stranger explained that she was his wife, that he had come to get her. The count thought he heard a tone in the man's voice that had a silvery ring to it. He felt in his pockets and then addressed the stranger.

"How much do you want?" he asked. "What sum is necessary to buy your silence and ensure your absence from the castle for ever?"

"Well, I hardly know," replied the stranger, meditatively. "How would nine-and-sixpence strike you?"

GYPSY QUEEN'S ROMANCE

Millionaire's Beautiful Daughter Renounced Wealth to Marry Gipsy

Jessie Haversham Michele, known all over the United States as the "Gipsy Queen," has just died at Cincinnati.

Only twenty-five years old, and a very beautiful woman, she was the daughter of Mr. A. W. Haversham, a millionaire, of Baltimore, and left her home a few years ago to marry the head of the gipsies.

As the daughter of a millionaire she was brought up in great luxury. She was a descendant of Francis Scott Key, who wrote "The Star Spangled Banner," a great-granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Key, one of the most famous beauties of the South.

She first met the gipsies when she was about fourteen, and began to study their language, becoming interested in Romany ways and customs. On a visit to Europe she met a Hindu who taught her fortune-telling, and twice ran away from home, following the irresistible call of the wandering life.

When she finally left home it was thought that she had been kidnapped, and all the detective machinery that her father's wealth could buy was put into motion to find her. The whole country was scoured, but it was not for several months that her father learned that she had married Jorgas Michele, the gipsy chief. She never went home again, and, though she had been the belle of Baltimore society, she declared that she was tired of leading such a life, and had made her choice, and was supremely contented.

ROADS IN ENGLAND

Are Being Improved by Associations —Some of the Methods

After agitating for over 30 years to try to get somebody to do something in the way of improving the roads throughout the kingdom, the Roads Improvement Association comprising over 150,000 road users of all classes, has at last succeeded in rousing symptoms of activity among the authorities. The road board which was formed by the Treasury in pursuance of the development and road improvement funds act of 1909 has appointed an advisory engineering committee. They have also intimated that they will give special consideration to applications from local authorities for grants for reconstruction, and widening of important roads, alteration of dangerous corners curves and gradients, strengthening weak bridges, construction of new by-pass roads to avoid villages, and acquisition of vacant land for future widening. There are 2,000 local authorities which have control over roads. The Great North Road from London to Carlisle is supervised by 72 authorities, out of which 46 have a definite part in its maintenance. Hitherto there has been no central body to coordinate the efforts and standardise the methods of these various local administrators. It is expected that the new centralisation scheme will prevent a great deal of confusion and overlapping, and will bring about some uniformity in the style and character of the roadways throughout the country.

"FAKING UP" OLD BIRDS

Dealers Use Potash and Other Chemicals for the Purpose

According to a Paris contemporary, one of the inspectors under the French Department of Agriculture has discovered a new system of fraud perpetrated in the markets by some of the wholesale dealers. The plan is to sell old and barely eatable partridges for young birds. The young birds carry at the tip of the wing some white spots, which disappear as the birds increase in age. To sell the veteran birds as young the dealers have impressed the services of the chemist—and what is it that the chemist is unable to do?—so with the judicious application of potash, or some other chemical, the old birds are given the appearance of youth. For the chemist's embellishment the consumer has to pay about fifteen pence more than he would for the birds in a state of nature unadorned.

A ROSEBERY ROMANCE

To those who love romance, the romantic and unusual episode in the life of one of Lord Rosebery's ancestors will appeal. It occurred in the eighteenth century, when the young Lord Dalmeny was a young man. He fell in love with a very pretty girl, and eventually a secret marriage was contracted. The pair spent their honeymoon on the Continent, and the bride becoming seriously ill, confessed that she was the wife of the Rector of Thorpe, from whom she had run away. Dying shortly afterwards, her husband had her body embalmed with a view to bringing it to England for burial. However, the Customs House officials opened the case in which the grim burden was packed, and it was only to avoid a far more serious tragedy that the truth was made known. The body was eventually buried at Thorpe in the presence of both "husbands."

A STRANGE COLONY

The Colonia Cosme, on the Paraguay above Asuncion, is one of the most curious in the world. The members of the colony make or grow everything they want, and import nothing. The workmen have seven hours' work a day, and earn, not money, but time. Their wages are hours and half-hours. These they sometimes save up till they have a week in hand, and then go off on an excursion. If a man wants a chair or table, he pays for it in hours of work, which are deducted from the balance to his credit.

Three men went off up the river in a canoe for a three weeks' holiday. They sold their canoe at Asuncion for a pound, and came home overland in ten days, lodged in the best houses in the villages on the way, and yet had some money in hand at the end.

ADVENTURES IN THE ANTARCTIC

Dr. J. B. Charcot Tells of Discoveries in Southern Regions, Which May Be Called South American Antartica

Dr. J. B. Charcot, London, has given an account of his second Antarctic expedition, from which he returned last year.

He did not set out with any idea of attempting to reach the South Pole. He had a three-masted vessel with an auxiliary engine, specially constructed for the purposes of the expedition, and named the Pourquoi Pas? It was equipped with every care and supplied with the most modern instruments for observation. The crew consisted of 32 men, most of whom had accompanied him on his former expedition. The staff consisted of seven men, each an expert in some department of natural science. The expedition started from Havre on August 15, 1908, and finally sailed from Punta Aernas for the Antarctic on December 16.

On arriving at Petermann Island, off the west coast of Graham Land, Dr. Charcot, with two companions, set out to discover if it was possible to pass between the Biscoe Islands and the coast. As they expected to return the same day, they took no store of provisions and no camp equipment; but their return was blocked by the ice, and they did not reach the ship again till four days later, narrowly escaping death from hunger and cold. From Petermann Island a journey was made towards the south along the coast, the mapping of which, begun during the previous expedition, was completed. A hydrographical survey was made of Adelaide Island, which was found to be 70 miles long instead of eight miles, as had previously been stated. To the south of Adelaide Island, in a region which had not previously been visited, a great gulf was discovered and named Marguerite Bay. Still farther to the south the expedition traced and studied the hydrography of 120 miles of unknown coast. After two attempts a passage was forced through the ice to Alexander Land, which was mapped and found to be an island. Then the expedition returned to Petermann Island for the winter. The weather, though comparatively mild, was stormy, a formidable north-east wind blowing during nine months. An immense quantity of snow fell. The conditions were found very trying by the members of the expedition, some of whom were attacked by scurvy, and when the winter quarters were vacated in November a course was steered north to Deception Island. Here the expedition was very hospitably received by the whalers settled on the island, and after a rest, another attempt was made to penetrate south. In spite of unfavorable ice and weather conditions all latitudes previously reached to the south and west of Alexander Island were surpassed. Sailing along the edge of the pack ice, the expedition found Peter I. Island in the situation assigned to it on the charts; but as the voyage was continued the icebergs became so numerous as to be embarrassing and dangerous. It was estimated that something like 5,000 were seen in one day. However, the expedition succeeded in reaching 124 deg. west longitude, and then, as the supply of coal was nearly exhausted, and the health of some of the members gave cause for serious alarm, the course of the Pourquoi Pas was directed northwards.

From the geographical point of view the expedition proved that the west coast of what may be called South American Antarctica is cut up by deep fjords and fringed with islands and reefs.

CELEBRATED BACHELORS

Excuses Some Famous Men Had for Not Getting Married

Among authors we have Pope, Goldsmith, Lamb, and Macaulay. The feeble health of "the wasp of Twickenham" stood, no doubt, in the way of his marrying. Goldsmith had not the same excuse, but in his case it was quite as well that he passed through life as a bachelor. A single man who habitually spends twice as much as he has is never likely to make a wise and prudent husband, even though he has the rare fortune to fall in with a model of feminine sagacity. Lamb, "that frail, good man," as Wordsworth calls him, was a bachelor, not from choice but from affection. The singular loyalty with which he devoted himself to his sister in circumstances of melancholy interest prevented his marrying a girl whom, it appears, he truly loved. Lord Macaulay, though he had warm domestic affections, was never married. He rested content with the loving sympathy of his sister Hannah, the wife of Sir Charles Trevelyan, whose children were to him as his own.

Handel, Reynolds, Turner, Sir Isaac Newton, and Cavendish, were among the men illustrious in art or science who remained bachelors.

SAVED THE KAISER'S LIFE

It is not generally known that General Sir Archibald Hunter, whose marriage recently aroused so much interest, was the means of saving the German Emperor from an accident which might have been attended with fatal results, when His Majesty was paying a visit to Lord Rosebery at Dalmeny a few years ago. At that time General Hunter was in command of the troops in Scotland, and was present in that capacity on the station platform to welcome the Emperor. Lord Rosebery's carriage was waiting, and the Emperor had just taken his seat in it when one of the horses commenced to plunge violently, and in another instant the pair would have bolted. Like a flash, however, General Hunter reached the animal and dealt it a smashing blow on the nose that quickly quieted it. Another pair of horses were soon secured, and Hunter received the hearty thanks of the Kaiser for the smart way he grappled with the situation.

CURE YOUR RHEUMATISM

50,000 Boxes Given Away To All Who Apply

John A. Smith and His Remarkable Rheumatism Remedy Cured Himself First and Now Proposes to Cure the World.

A Box of This Great Remedy Mailed Free to Any Suffering Reader who Will Send Name and Address.

Cured Many Cases of 30 and 40 Years Standing.

On the theory "that seeing is believing," John A. Smith of Milwaukee, wants everyone to try his remedy for the cure of rheumatism at his expense. For that reason he proposes to distribute 50,000 free boxes among all persons sending him their address. Mr. Smith had suffered all the agony and torture from rheumatism, tried all the remedies known and yet utterly failed to find relief.

At times he was so helpless that he had to take morphine and after considerable doctoring he gave up in despair. He began studying into the causes of rheumatism and after much experimenting, finally found a combination of drugs which completely cured him. The result was so beneficial to his entire system that he called his new found remedy "Gloria Tonic." Those of his friends, relatives and neighbors suffering from rheumatism were next cured and Mr. Smith concluded to offer his remedy to the world. But he found the task a difficult one as nearly everybody had tried a hundred or more remedies and they couldn't be made to believe that there was such a thing as a cure for rheumatism. But an old gentleman from Sequin, Texas, U. S. A., wrote him saying if Mr. Smith would send him a sample he would try it, but as he had suffered over thirty years and wasted a fortune with doctors and advertised remedies, he wouldn't buy anything more, until he knew it was worth something. The sample was sent, he purchased more, and the result was astonishing. He was completely cured. This gave Mr. Smith a new idea and ever since that time he has been sending out free sample boxes to all who apply.

At the U. C. College, Toronto, it cured Mrs. J. Whitley, who had suffered excruciatingly. Fred K. McDonald writes from Sunny Brae, N. S., that "Gloria Tonic" has cured him of a case of rheumatism of many years' standing. From Ambrose M. Melanson, Metaghan River, Digby County, N. S., comes a letter that he has been cured of a severe case.

Even the first sample box cured Mrs. B. Brett, at 12 Powell Street, Guelph, Ont. Two boxes left Mrs. George Wright of Coaticook, Que., well and happy.

Mrs. T. Delino, West Plain, Ont., writes that she could scarcely dress herself because of rheumatism, but that "Gloria Tonic" has completely cured her. Mr. George Lees, of Dundas, Ont., says that he tried many different remedies, but found no relief until he tried "Gloria Tonic," while Clarence A. Scott writes from Tooleton, N. B., that he feels that he owes his life to this great remedy.

A case of 13 years' suffering is reported by James McFarlan, of L'Amable, Ont., but "Gloria Tonic" cured it quickly. Even prominent physicians have to admit that "Gloria Tonic" is a positive success, among them Doctor Quintero of the University of Venezuela, to whom it was recommended by the United States Consul. In hundreds of other instances the result has been the same. It cured many cases which defied Hospitals, Drugs and Electricity, among them persons of upwards eighty years of age.

Mr. Smith will send a trial box, also his illustrated book on rheumatism, absolutely free of charge to any reader of The Times, for he is anxious that everybody should profit by his good fortune. Mr. Smith's address in full is:

The Original and Only Genuine

Beware of Imitation Sold on the Merits of Minard's Liniment

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

How Would You Like to Have Your Savings Earn the Running Expenses? Sounds Good, Don't It? Most Too Good to Be True We Can Do That for You

Right now there are over 3,000,000 people in the great north-west relying strictly on Canned Fruits and Vegetables. They are a necessity. The people MUST have them.

Right now there are TONS and TONS of the best fruits and vegetables that Mother Earth produces going to waste every season in the Okanagan Valley and with the steady influx of settlers in the valley coming to till the fertile soil it is simply natural that the products will doubly increase.

What's to become of this increase with a 40 per cent. waste staring the growers in their very eyes right now?

JUST MORE WASTE, THAT'S ALL. That is, unless a feasible remedy is immediately adopted.

CANNERIES ARE THE REMEDY

Now, then, we have the Cannery situation to a point where we will step right in, take ALL the products the grower can supply and besides converting that gigantic waste into a yearly gain offer an incentive for a still greater output.

THE OKANAGAN CANNERS, LTD., are a co-operative institution.

Not only do we ask the fruit grower to join issues with us to protect his own industry, but invite keen investigation from the investing public.

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners, Ltd., from doing the same?

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—eight of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

Now, then, be up and thinking.

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realizing handsomely on and term him lucky.

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when chances like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

Although capitalized at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

This is a gilt-edged bona fide, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

Prospectus can be had at Times office, Peterborough, or Head Office, Vancouver, B. C.

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

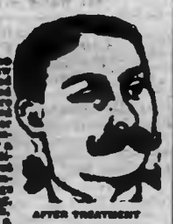
BEFORE TREATMENT



AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the Blood Medicine took hold of his case. Before Treatment for serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken my share of blood purifiers, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicine the symptoms would break out again, running sores, blotches, ringworm pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, pains of the bones nodules on the skin, dyspepsia and kidney trouble. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 6 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I soon noticed that the blood was clearing. Four months after treatment at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared, I was cured 7 years ago and am as well as ever. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I cheerfully and recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me personally, but you do not require testimonial as you will. W. H. S.

MILITARY PUNISHMENTS

Code of Old was Very Stern—Some Strange Ways of Punishment

In times past the military code was no less stern and uncompromising than the civil. Sentence of death was readily decreed and as promptly executed. Where offences multiplied, and wholesale executions would have weakened the Army numerically, decimation—the slaughter of every tenth man—was the rule, or the troops gambled for their lives by casting dice upon a drumhead or drawing lots under the gallows-tree.

Lesser penalties, not capital, but physical, and causing pain with permanent degradation, were maiming, branding the cheek or forehead, boring the tongue, or cutting the nose and ears. These last-named were retained upon the military statute book until the reign of Queen Anne. The "trappado" was a fiendish device by which a delinquent was hoisted on high by a rope fastened to his arms, and then dropped down by a sudden jerk that often dislocated his shoulders. Hanging by the thumbs, sometimes called "picketing," was also practised; when the body was raised to such a height and its whole weight rested on one toe, and that again on a sharp-pointed spike.

To "ride the wooden horse" was to be mounted on a razor-edge, with weights fastened to the extremities.

Running the gauntlet, or "gantelope," was as old as the Cromwellian army, and it is thus described in an Army order about 1649: The culprits (who had been guilty of blasphemy as well as other offences) were to be "stripped naked from the middle upward, and a pike readie by him that the Lord Generall's regiment of foote shall bring, and Colonel Pride's, with every man a cudgell in his hand. Which were to be ran through in this manner, so that every soldier might have a stroke at their naked backs, breasts, or arms, wherever it might alight."

"CHEER UP JEREMIAH"

An Incident of the Days When John Burns Was in Jail

It is, of course, well known that Mr. John Burns, the President of the Local Government Board, spent some weeks in prison in the early days of his career as a result of his prominence in labor wars, and it is in connection with that experience that he recently told the following amusing story. "I was once," he said, "for the benefit of my health, interned in a building somewhat monastic in character, with a celibate population, and with cellular accommodation which enabled me to be alone. There was there one book called the Bible, and I noticed that my predecessor was a great student of it. With a pin which had probably been concealed in his calsum he had pricked comments in the margin. Opposite this passage in Jeremiah, 'Mine heart within me is broken; all my bones shake; I am like a drunken man, and like a man whom wine hath overcome,' he had pricked, 'Cheer up, Jeremiah!'"

ALFONSO'S QUEER MUSEUM

Making Collection of Articles With Which His Life was Attempted

King Alfonso XIII. of Spain is forming a curious, although somewhat ghastly, museum, where are grouped the various articles which have been used in attempts against his person, together with objects which have placed his life in danger.

Among other things in the museum is to be seen the teat of a baby's feeding bottle, with which an attempt was made to poison him at the tender age of eight months. Also a large glass vase, which he fell over and broke at the age of five years, sustaining injuries which placed his life in danger; the walking-stick of a discontented member of the Court, who made an attempt to strike him; pieces of the bomb of Barcelona; the skeleton of one of the horses which was conducting him and a fragment of the landau in which he was seated by the side of President Loubet at the time of the attempt in the Rue de Rivoli, at Paris; various articles found in the street after the explosion of the infernal machine, hidden in a bouquet, which was thrown against his coach on the day of his wedding—in fact, daggers, firearms, and projectiles of all kinds which have been used in unsuccessful designs against his life—unsuccessful, thanks to the careful precautions taken by the police.

PRINCE AND LECTURER

Hitherto absolute ruler, the Prince of Monaco has granted the 20,000 subjects of his eight-square-mile kingdom a Constitution. The Prince is one of the most interesting personalities in Europe. He is a millionaire, drawing ample resources from the Casino at Monte Carlo, the authorities of which pay him about $250,000 a year for permission to run the place. And, like the Duke of Abruzzi, he has frequently lectured before learned societies; for the Prince is an authority on marine biology, and over a score of volumes record the results of his deep-sea dredging. At Monte Carlo he has built an oceanographical museum, at a cost of $1,500,000, which is the largest of its kind in the world.

A FOUR-FOOTED PATIENT

A dog was brought to the West London Hospital, Hammersmith, for treatment. Its owner, a young woman, stated that the poor animal had been run over, and she feared the bone of its foot was broken. Being unable to pay for the advice of a veterinary surgeon, she had brought it to the West London. The hurt was carefully washed and dressed by the casualty officer, and the patient was then allowed to be taken home. The owner left full of gratitude for the care and attention bestowed on her pet.

Every man believes his experience would make an interesting book.

Ethel:—"Did you notice that Gus gave me his first dance last evening?"

Gertie:—"Yes, dear. He told me afterward he believed in getting disagreeable things done as soon as possible."

SENSITIVE CELLS

Did Not Work as Prisoners Suspected a Trap was Set

A reminder of the Pearl Bryan murder case, in which the headless body of the girl was found near Ft. Thomas years ago, has been removed from the city hall. The two sensitive cells that were built expressly on the order of the late Chief Deitsch, in order to hear what Jackson and Walling might have to say when placed together, were torn out and sold to a neighboring town. After Jackson and Walling had been arrested, efforts were made to have them tell where the head of Pearl Bryan was. They both declared they did not know. Chief Deitsch heard of the sensitive cells and had two of them built. They had sounding boards and a canopy of sensitized steel that was guaranteed to carry sound a long way. The cells were built in the basement of the city hall, next to the storage room of the police department. The two men were placed in the cells and Chief Deitsch and a corps of detectives stationed themselves in the House of Detention, where the sound pipe ended. They heard something like this: "This is a scheme, Walling. Be careful what you say. Deitsch has kept us apart for some time and now he suddenly places us in the same cell. There is a scheme of some kind."

"I believe you are right," replied Walling.

"I know I am right. Look at this ceiling. It is different from anything else. We will just pay our compliments to Col. Deitsch and if he is sitting he will hear what we think of him."

The prisoners then said these things that caused the chief to turn red. Turning to Detective Billy Jackson, grim waiter of prisoners, said: "Billy, you listen a while."

Jackson listened for a time and then turned away.

"What are they saying?" asked the chief.

"They are talking about minor matters."

"Yes, they are calling the chief of police names, eh?"

"Yes, sir; that is it."

Jackson and Walling were in the cell about 24 hours, but during all that time they did not say a single incriminating word. The fact that the cells were in existence soon became noised about and no one would be trapped in them. As they had outlived their usefulness Inspector Callahan recommended that they be sold.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

SOME CURIOUS WATCHES

Not as Complex Nowadays as Formerly—Queer Old Ones

With all our modern improvements we rarely hear nowadays of watches so fancifully complex as used to be made for great folks in the times when all watches were expensive and comparatively novel.

King George III., in the year 1760, received a present of a watch that was a kind of mechanical almanac. It pointed out the date, and also had a device to show the varying lengths of the days, according to the season. It was not bigger than other watches of the time, but then they were all what we should call turnips now.

The Emperor Napoleon I. had a watch which wound itself by means of a weighted lever, which, at every step His Majesty took, rose and fell, and having a gathering click to it wound up a ratchet attached to the barrel. Pedometers were afterwards made on the same principle. The Duke of Wellington had a watch which was given to him by the King of Spain, from which the time could be told by the touch, the hours being marked by studs. In the back of the case was placed an index which, when moved forward, would stop at the portion of the hour indicated by the watch, and then by means of the studs the time could be approximately computed in the dark.

Catharine of Russia had a watch constructed by an ingenious peasant which played a chant, and had within it tiny mechanical figures which, moving about, were supposed to represent the scene of the resurrection of the Saviour; the chant was then heard all over Russia at Eastertime. But this watch was bigger than a hen's egg.

INN NAMES IN GERMANY

Scattered throughout England are some curious inn names, but Germany probably keeps the record for out-of-the-way signs and fantastic names. The most absurd results are usually obtained by the name of some animal with a more or less unsuitable object. The Comfortable Chicken and the Cold Frog, both of them in Berlin, are certainly left in the shade by the Angry Ant (Ort, in Westphalia) and the Stiff Dog (Berlin). The Lame Louse is an inn in a suburb of Berlin, and not far from it is the Thirsty Pelican. The Dirty Parlor, the Bloody Bones, the Musical Cats, the Four-hundredweight Man, and the Boxers' Den are all in Berlin or the neighborhood, and the Old Straw Bag in Leipsic. The Open Bunghole is in Stadtohen, in the Palatinate, and the Shoulder-blade in Jericho. The Last Tear is a landlord's notion for the name of his inn, situated near a graveyard, visited by returning mourners, and is of frequent occurrence throughout the Fatherland.

WHEN HE'S AT WORK

A medical correspondent writes to the editor of the "Sporting Times":—Possibly the following anecdote, which actually happened at my medical inspection of school children last week may be worth repeating. I may mention that the first question we put to the children is "What is your father's occupation?"

Enter bright looking boy.

"What's your father's work, laddie?"

"Please, sir, 'e's not workin' now."

"But what does he do when he is working?"

"Please, sir, 'e goes out an' sups ale all day long."

WHITE SETTLERS PROTEST AGAINST NEGRO INFLUX

Ottawa, April 27.—The Negro immigration from Oklahoma to Alberta and Saskatchewan has set in so strong and the white settlers are protesting so vigorously that it is altogether likely that the Government will take steps to check it.

There is growing up in the West an organized movement against the admission of this class of immigrants in such large numbers.

The Edmonton Board of Trade has passed resolutions of protest against the continuance of this immigration. So has the Winnipeg Board of Trade, on the score that negroes are not adapted to the Canadian climate and conditions of life. As far north as Athabasca Landing, on the Mackenzie River, at the entrance of the fertile Peace River country, the Board of Trade has recorded its opposition to negro colonization. This example is to be followed by other Western organizations.

The Canadian Immigration Act gives ample authority for executive regulation. Section 38 provides that the Governor-in-Council may, by proclamation or order, whenever he deems it necessary or expedient, "prohibit for a stated period, or permanently, the landing in Canada, or the landing at any specified port in Canada, of immigrants belong to any race deemed unsuited to the climate or requirements of Canada, or of immigrants of any specified class, occupation or character."

It is understood that large numbers of negroes in Oklahoma are preparing to come to Canada, having been attracted by the knowledge that homesteads are given free to all who honestly comply with the land regulations. The great campaign of advertising conducted in the United States by the Interior Department, the obvious prosperity of Americans who have settled in the Canadian West, and the cheap railway rates obtainable by travelling via St. Paul, are all influences stimulating what promises to be a general exodus of negroes from Oklahoma.

Washington, April 27.—Plans of the Dominion of Canada to adopt restrictive measures against the immigration into that country of the American negro was the subject of a conference yesterday between Assistant Secretary of State Wilson and John E. Jones, Consul-General of the United States at Winnipeg.

Mr. Jones presented a memorandum from the Canadian Immigration authorities indicating that the American negro may be barred on the ground that he could not become adapted to the rigorous northern climate, and consequently might become a public charge.

TRIBESMEN MASSACRE ALL PRISONERS—ARMY SURROUNDED

Tangier, April 27.—News from Captain Bremond, dated April 22, says that his column having received an urgent summons from Fez to create a diversion towards the Rassima region, so as to relieve the pressure on Fez, where the situation has reached a critical stage, struck camp and commenced an arduous march, fighting every step of the way.

The Cherada tribesmen, although sixty or more have been killed within a day or two are attacking with the greatest fury, and have given the word to massacre all prisoners falling into their hands.

Late news received here regarding the situation at Fez states that Captain Bremond, who is marching at the head of a column to relieve the city, is now in a critical condition. He is short of ammunition and is completely surrounded by Cherada tribesmen, who, far from being discouraged, have returned to their positions from which they were dislodged a few days ago.

By an unlucky chance Captain Boisset, who had been sent to Bremond's aid, when almost within reach, heard that Bremond, profiting by the fine weather, had struck camp and was pushing on to Fez. Boisset decided that he would be of no service to Bremond and returned to Alcecsar.

The Ghareb tribesmen who have been wavering considering the departure of this column equivalent to a defeat, have decided to join the revolt.

CAMORRIST TRIAL.

Possible Collapse of the Prosecution.

Viterbo, April 27.—The possible collapse of the prosecution in the trial of the Camorrists, charged with the murder of Gennaro Cuoccolo and his wife, was indicated to-day, in the report that a jeweler near Naples had written to Judge Bianchi that the police had employed him to make the ring, supposed to be Cuoccolo's, which was found in the house of Dia Salva one of the accused men.

Judge Bianchi has ordered an investigation. Should the report prove true the prosecution will suffer a fatal blow, as this evidence has been the most damaging so far produced by the State.

The Carbineers have testified that the murders of Cuoccolo sent Gennaro's ring to Dia Salva as proof that they had carried out their part of the compact.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WINTER WHEAT IN SPLENDID CONDITION—A BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Winnipeg, April 27.—The Canadian Pacific Railway weekly crop report shows that from 10 to 75 per cent. of seeding has been done according to locality. Good progress has been made all along the main line and in Southern Manitoba. In the Moose Mountain, Portland and Weybarn sections little more than a good start has been made. Fifteen to 20 per cent. has been done in the Moosejaw district, with a higher percentage at Swift Current. In Saskatoon and Battle River district 20 to 30 per cent. has been done.

In Alberta a fair start has been made in Edmonton district, and work is more forward as one goes south, culminating in 70 to 80 per cent. of seeding completed in the McLeod district. On the McLeod, Lethbridge and Crow's Nest Divisions seeding done before the recent snowfall is now showing up well, but this is only a small percentage. Winter wheat throughout all Alberta is reported never to have been in better shape. There was very little winter killing, and farmers are very houseful of a good crop, provided they get plenty of rain during the next six weeks.

HOW TIMES PLANT WAS WRECKED TOLD BY ALLEGED DYNAMITER

ORTIE McMANIGAL UNBURDENS HIS MIND TO ATTORNEY FREDERICKS.

Says J. W. McNamara Set Charge Which Blew Up Los Angeles Times Building.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 28.—The terror of death has driven Ortie McManigal, confessed member of the gang which blew up the building of The Los Angeles Times, to make a complete unbosoming of his career as a dynamiter to District Attorney Fredericks.

In a recital before Fredericks, Sheriff Hammet and four operatives of the Burns Detective Agency, he repeated all the sensational admissions made to Detective Burns in Chicago, and told of dynamite plots extending over a period of three years, and involving the destruction of property valued at $4,000,000.

TELLS OF CRIMES.

He not only supplied testimony to the material circumstances of the explosions, but gave the terms of the conspiracy and the motive lying behind its vast and hidden workings.

McManigal directly and specifically accuses J. J. McNamara, now under arrest here, with being the originator, controlling genius and paymaster of the conspiracy. He names James W. McNamara, brother of the secretary of the Iron Workers' union as the man who placed the dynamite under The Times building and was immediately responsible for the destruction of the plant and the murder of 21 men.

He charges J. J. McNamara with complicity in the same crime. It was McNamara, he said, who conceived the crime, and delegated his brother to carry it out.

HOW TIMES WAS WRECKED.

James McNamara, according to McManigal, placed the dynamite in the "ink alley" of The Times, with its alarm clock attachment, broke a gas pipe to make it appear an explosion of gas and fled on the "Lark" train to San Francisco, where he had been known as James Bryce.

McManigal declared that the alarm clock method of exploding dynamite charges was invented by J. J. McNamara.

He told how McNamara's brother, and David A. Kaplan and Matt Schmidt brought the dynamite to San Francisco and said that the latter two men had remained in that city.

McManigal gave the details of a long list of his own crimes, but in every instance blamed J. J. McNamara. Three years ago, he said, McNamara conceived the plan to fight the Erectors' Association with dynamite. He was employed to carry on the work and received from $500 to $1,000 for his work, according to the importance of the "jobs." He declared he was not present in Pos Angeles at the time of the explosion, but came here three months later and blew up a section of the Llewellyn Iron Works.

LIVED IN FEAR.

The prisoner said his knowledge of The Times outrage weighed heavily upon him because it gave James W. McNamara reason to put him out of the way.

Perhaps the most startling detail of the statement was that in which he said two Los Angeles and one man from San Francisco, as well as two others beside those already named, were in the plot.

Immunity was not promised to McManigal for his confession. This was distinctly stipulated when he appeared before District Attorney Fredericks.

McNAMARA'S STATEMENT.

Los Angeles, April 28.—After conferring with Attorney Hilton, John J. McNamara prepared a statement to union men throughout the country. It follows:

"To the Brotherhood of Organized Labor:

"In this second attempt to crush and discredit the cause we represent, I realize fully the desperation of the enemies of labor arrayed against us, but I am of good heart, for it will fail.

"That I am innocent of any infraction of the law in word or act needs no emphasis from me, for the truth is mighty and will prevail right speedily, and for it I can afford to, and shall contentedly wait.

"I send to all brothers and friends of union labor, the world over, my earnest and affectionate greetings with the assurance that there is no villainy or conspiracy possible of which we are afraid.

"I am also confident that it is not asking too much of the public to suspend judgment in these matters until opportunity for a full and fair defence has been afforded.

"(Signed) J. J. McNAMARA."

Sore Throat Catarrh

With the many remedies you have tried you surely know that no liquid medicine can cure your throat or nose. Even a gargle only bathes the entrance of the throat—It can't really get inside, nor can it reach the inflamed bronchial tubes.

With Catarrhozone, it's so different from medicine-taking—you simply breathe its healing vapor, inhale its balsamic fumes, which carry cure and relief to the minutest air cells in the lungs, nose, throat and bronchial tubes.

In this scientific way the soreness and inflammation is rapidly allayed, relaxed cords are toned up, the entire mucous membrane invigorated. Every trace of Catarrh disappears, the disagreeable dropping of mucous in the throat, hawking, spitting, and stopped-up nostrils — all these sure signs of Catarrh and bronchitis are permanently cured by Catarrhozone.

CATARRHOZONE
Is Guaranteed to Cure.

Recommended by the medical profession for coughs, colds, bronchitis, sore or relaxed throat, laryngitis, clergyman's throat, smoker's throat, bronchial cold, weak chest, chest inflammation, huskiness, hoarseness, wheeziness, loss of voice, that tickling cough, old age cough, asthma, chest pains and chest tightness, croup, whooping cough, and children's throat and chest weaknesses, and all adult throat and lung ailments.

Beware of the unscrupulous dealer who offers you some cheap substitute, insist on Catarrhozone only. Two months' treatment, $1, smaller, 50c; all reliable dealers or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

RICH GOLD MINE

NO FURTHER PAYMENTS REQUIRED

The First $5.00 Pays It All

THIS IS TO BE A QUICK-ACTION PROPOSITION. You pay $5.00 with your subscription. That is all. You will be called upon for no more. This membership entitles you to a vote in all the affairs of the syndicate, and to participate pro rata in all the benefits. It is a small amount, but I don't need very much to accomplish all I am going to try for. I made the price $5.00 so as to allow everyone to get in. In order to keep any one individual from acquiring control I have limited the subscription of any one person to no more than ten membership. We are all going to get the same fair, square deal. There are to be no favorites and no special privileges. When money enough has been raised to do the work the members will be notified, and THEY will decide whether it will be necessary or not to incorporate a company and, if so, for how much. THEY will elect their own officers and direct the affairs of the company. I will have no time to fool away in doing office work. I am a miner, not a bookkeeper, and as soon as I get this thing organized the officers of the company will have to dictate the business policy. Now it is not very often that you have an opportunity of investing as small an amount as $5.00, and especially where it has such splendid chances for making a big profit in a short time. It can't be beat, and the proposition offers more for the money than anything of its kind in the market. I want you to help me in this and I promise you won't be disappointed if you do.

Something About Myself

I am a practical mining man; have had years of experience in the business, and have never made a failure of anything I have taken up. For over four years I have worked in the mines in and about Empire, Colorado. Being familiar with the location of the mineral veins of this district, knowing the character of the ores, etc., I have been on the lookout for a good property that I could operate under lease for some time. It was only recently that I found the big lead veins in the famous Emma mine, and I immediately took action in an effort to secure a long-time lease from the company owning the property. Well, to make a long story short, after a deal of negotiating I was successful and secured a lease on this splendid property which runs until 1915. The company was anxious to have a certain amount of development work done and I was lucky enough to catch them at just the right time and secured just what I wanted. This is the proposition I am now inviting you to join me in—the development of this lease on the RICH EMMA MINE.

The Small Investor's Opportunity

Usually a small investor has but little show to earn more than a very ordinary profit on his investment. I conceived the idea of making this a company of small investors. Just a few of my friends, and their friends. I am so confident of the outcome that I am taking no more big capital in with me, and instead of having a company controlled and dominated by a few big stockholders, I want to make it more of a family affair. We will all put in a small amount. With the money thus subscribed I will begin work at the mine and, following the present vein, I am sure I will be able to cut the big American lode within a distance of a few hundred feet. If my plans are successful I will be into a big ore body in less than three months, and that means a small fortune for us all. There are all kinds of tools at the mine to work with except, perhaps, a power drill, and that will be one of the first things that I will buy. After that it will be easy to drive the tunnel, and I expect to make good progress.

We Will Divide the Profits

THIS IS MY MONEY-MAKING PLAN

I have secured a lease on the famous EMMA MINE OF EMPIRE, COLORADO. I used to work in this mine, and I know there is ore there. I feel sure that a few dollars expended in developing the vein already opened will give us a big body of rich ore. I am the man to do it. Of course I will need a little help in a financial way. I am organizing a syndicate to handle this proposition. I invite you to join me. We will all club in together and push the development work as hard and as fast as possible, and as the ore is taken out and marketed we will divide the profits. Memberships in this syndicate will be sold for $5.00 each and no more than ten will be sold to any one individual. I will own no more myself. I am determined to make this a small investor's enterprise, and it will be run by the membership holders and for their benefit alone. The amount is so small that anyone can afford to go in, and I am so sure in my own mind that it will be a success—a big success, and earn enormous profits for us—that I am willing to go back to the camp, take off my coat and go in and work from early in the morning until late at night to get the ore opened up and ready for the mill. I am satisfied that we can produce results in less than a year. All I want you to do is to let me have your immediate subscription for one or more memberships, and I will buy a stock of powder, go back to the mine and get to work. May I count upon your co-operation?

QUICK RETURNS ON YOUR MONEY

THIS IS THE DAY OF QUICK ACTION. No man wants his money tied up in a proposition that only has a promise of paying out in the sweet bye and bye. Get your money in and your profits out. That is my idea, and I think I am right. I feel pretty sure that I can give you your money back and your share of the earnings inside of a year. Possibly sooner. In any event, you may be assured that I will not delay a minute longer than is necessary. I want my share as soon as I can get it, and you will get yours at the same time. I believe that these memberships will be snapped up in a hurry, and so I advise you to not delay your order. Better be a little early then too late. Your certificate will be forwarded to you upon receipt of your order and remittance. There will be no delay at this end. Frequent reports will be sent to the membership holders telling of the development at the mine, and if you have any suggestions to offer send them along. I am a miner, a practical miner, and know the business as well as any of them, but I am not fool enough to think I know it all. I am always anxious and willing to learn, so if you think you can give me any pointers that will help me I will thank you to let me have them. Now I have given you about all the important details in regard to the proposition. It is now your move. If you want something in an investment that looks a little bit better and a little bit quicker than anything else in the market, I want to hear from you. If you are a pessimist, and believe that you are doing well enough, you will just be wasting your time and mine in writing to me. Otherwise, clip and send in the attached coupon to-day—NOW. I will do my best to make money for both of us.

A large amount of rich ore has already been taken out of this mine, and a nice little streak of it is in sight now. The mine is all wired for electrical power and a power line passes only a few feet from the portal of the tunnel. Give me an electric power drill, and I will go after that vein of ore in a way that will surprise the membership holders, and there will be no fooling around waiting for this, or for that, BUT I WILL PRODUCE RESULTS. I have to get my profits in this enterprise from the same source that you do: FROM THE ORE PRODUCED, and you may be assured that I will not lay around doing nothing until our money is all used up. Opening up the pay streak means as much to me as to any other membership holder: and I am going into the proposition to make it pay. If nothing unforseen occurs I will do it, too. Our profits should be very substantial, for there will not be many to divide the earnings among. I know all about the veins of ore in this camp; I know the character of the ore, and I know the quickest way to reach the ore bodies. If you will come into the proposition with me now, when I need your co-operation, I will give you your share of all I take out.

I Don't See How You Can Lose

In this proposition I honestly don't see how you can lose. In the first place the amount invested is so small and the promise of big profits so exceptional that only a small amount of ore would have to be produced to at least get your money back. But if I thought getting my money back would be the best I could do I would not waste a minute's time on it. In other parts of this mine former operators took out large amounts of ore, and they never acquired any depth to speak of. Now, every miner in the Empire District knows that as depth is attained the ore bodies enlarge, and the values increase. The American lode that I have mentioned before is known to be very rich, and from on top of the hill, just a little ways north of this property, it dips directly towards us and down into the mountain. I think by driving the tunnel straight in that we will cut it in less than 200 feet. The vein now uncovered in the tunnel is evidently a stringer of the American lode.

No More Than Ten Memberships to Anyone

A square deal, fairness and equality for all. An honest disbursement of the syndicate's funds. Those are the principles and basic standards of this enterprise. I am going in on the same basis as yourself. If I make any big money out of the proposition I will have to get it from the same source that you do—THE EARNINGS FROM THE MINE. I will only own ten memberships, the limit for any one individual, and when the proposition is financed the membership holders shall say whether or not we shall incorporate. If so, for how much; and they shall elect their own officers from among their own number. The enterprise shall belong to the membership holders and they shall run it to suit themselves. All I want to do is work the mine. That is as much or more than one man can attend to properly, and I don't want to be bothered with any office work. Now, my friends, if you have faith in me and my proposition, I want your co-operation, and I will ask you to send me your subscription. If you haven't, you won't do me any good and I can't do anything for you.

A lot of syrup was sold in Bobcaygeon and the balance was shipped. The price was about $1.35 per gallon.

Permission was granted, on condition that the poles do not interfere with the grading of the road. The following sheep valuators were appointed, whose duty will be to inspect the injury done to sheep by dogs in cases where the owner of the dogs cannot be found: R. W. Esson, ward No. 1, Andrew Bowie ward 2, Gilbert Howson ward 3, Albert Carpenter ward 4, F. Driscoll ward 5. The following by-laws were passed, one authorizing the reeve and treasurer to give notes to the Toronto bank as security for money borrowed for current expenses, one appointing the sheep valuators. The following accounts were passed: Walter Dickson, salary for assessing, $75; Dr. McClelland, attendance on J. A. Trotter when in hospital $15; Jas. Bowie meat for J. A. Trotter, $6.50; Arch. Bryce, milk for J. A. Trotter, $5.00; W. T. Mather, repairing account, $9.25. The treasurer received a cheque for $160.44, Otonabee portion of Provincial railway tax.

It is reported to the Council that John Lang, ex-M.P., one of the public-spirited citizens of Keene is going to have built this season, at his own expense, about 500 feet of cement sidewalk in the village. A number of public-spirited citizens of the village some years since decided to organize a Street Improvement Association, concessions and by commencing the village. The association was organized and has been so successfully carried on that by voluntary contributions of money and labour, by concerts and excursions and by commencing the village statute labour a fund was created to carry the work. The result is that the old obsolete plank sidewalks are a thing of the past, having been replaced by neat cement walks, the unsightly ditches on the side of the streets being replaced with drains, one of the streets being laid with twelve inch cement tile, giving the citizens a good outlet for their cellar drains. The streets are properly graded and gravelled and the sides sown to grass, the property owners taking a pride in keeping the sides trim with their own lawn mowers.

Arbour day is devoted to cleaning up the streets and planting trees. The lady property owners contribute money to the good cause to vie with the condition of the streets, the citizens take a pride in keeping their yards and lawns trim and their fences and buildings repaired and painted. The fame of the association has gone abroad, other villages enquiring through the secretary how the association is conducted.

Council adjourned to 12th May to meet as Court of Revision and Council.

FREAKS OF NATURE.

Cobourg, April 27.—A singular freak of nature has just occurred on the farm of Mr. O. P. McConnell, of Brighton township, whose a calf was born with its heart on the outside of its body.

Another is reported from Seagog, where a ewe belonging to Mr. James Davey gave birth to twin lambs. One of these had five legs, six feet and two tails. It is said that the multiplicityof legs did not bother the young animal, which, however, did not long survive.

Whooping cough is not dangerous when the cough is kept loose and expectoration easy by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has been used in many epidemics of this disease with perfect success. For sale by all dealers.

CHIMES ARE COMING, WILL BE VERY FINE.

Have Been Tuned to a Pitch That Will Give Effect.

The Rev. Canon Davidson received a letter on Saturday regarding the Chimes, from the manufacturers, Messrs. John Taylor & Co., bell founders, Loughborough, England, stating that the bells are completed and will be shipped to-day to Peterborough.

The above information was taken from one of our local contemporaries, Mr. Davidson not having supplied The Times with a copy of the letter, which says:

"The tuning of the thirteen bells is now quite completed, and the chime, we assure you, is very beautiful and musical; and we feel certain that it will give you entire satisfaction."

VOL XXXIV NO. 98 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY MAY 2 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

CITY WILL PURCHASE PARK LOTS RECOMMENDED BY MFRS. COM.

COUNCIL IN LONG AND BUSY SESSION LAST NIGHT.

Water Pipe for Fire Protection for Auburn Will Probably be Laid Across the Auburn Power Co's Dam.

The City Council met in regular monthly session last night. There were present Mayor Morrow, Aldermen Duncan, Metheral, Edgar, Kernaghan, Graham, Anderson, Morgan and Bradburn.

Ald. Bradburn was warmly welcomed on his return after a three months' trip to the coast, and thanked his colleagues for their courteous expressions in fitting terms.

A number of communications were referred to the respective committees and action thereon will be reported in these columns after taken up in the committee to which they properly belong.

Rev. Canon Davidson wrote, suggesting that when the people's chimes are formally inaugurated on June 3rd a public holiday be declared. The Reception Committee will deal with this matter and report.

$16,000 FOR SCHOOL IMPROVEMENTS.

A deputation from the Board of Education waited upon the Council re the necessary improvements to the Public School buildings, as published in these columns before. Mr. John Crane, chairman of the Board explained the improvements to the Central school and old Collegiate Institute contemplated, and offered that the time has arrived when school attendance in South City calls for opening up the top storey of the King Edward building, the accommodation for which is at present overtaxed to the number of some thirty scholars. South Central schoolcannot relieve the congestion. By September King Edward school will need the use of two additional rooms on the top floor.

Ald. Duncan thought less money might be spent on the Central school buildings and applied on the west ward school, which is not fit for scholars to attend.

Mr. Crane replied that the Central schools and King Edward requirements must be met this summer. The East and West Wards are separate questions in the hands of a capable committee.

Dr. Morrison believed the scheme for modernizing the Central school, and improving the old Collegiate will make these buildings up-to-date and fit for two generations' service. The deputation asked Council to make an appropriation of $16,000 for the foregoing improvements.

Moved by Ald. Duncan, seconded by Ald. Brown,—That this matter be referred to the Finance Committee.—Carried.

SONG SERVICES.

Mr. Mulligan asked the use of Central Park for Gospel song services on Sunday nights after church service. This request was granted.

FINANCE REPORT.

Ald. Bradburn, who has recently returned from a two months' holiday, submitted the following:

Gentlemen,—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report as follows:—

1. Your committee has sold the following debentures to the Peterborough City Trust: $10,000 for waterworks extensions, $6,534.59 for frontage portion of sewers, and $7,778.06 for frontage portion of concrete walks and authorized the chairman and City Treasurer to dispose of the balance of the local improvement debentures at the best price obtainable.

2. We recommend that the tax collector be instructed to have the roll for 1916 returned by May 15th next.

3. We recommend that the usual grant of $150 be made to the Salvation Army Band on the usual terms.

4. The payment of a number of accounts.

The report was adopted.

TO BUY PARK LOTS.

Ald. Buller reported as follows:—That a by-law be submitted to the electors to provide for purchasing part of Park Lot No. 3 between George and Aylmer streets to add to King Edward Park, of lots Nos. 10 and 11 north of Hunter and West Mark streets and of land in the west for a park or play ground, and that this committee make further inquiries regarding land in the West End for this purpose.

This was adopted.

FIRE PROTECTION FOR AUBURN

In return for the conveyance of a triangular piece of land at Water street north, along the street line, by the city to the Auburn Power Co., which land the latter needs for tail race purposes connected with their new power house, Mr. Larmouth had agreed to pay for and lay across the company's dam a 6 inch water pipe for Auburn for fire protection purposes. But on learning that a 10-inch pipe was needed he withdrew his offer. This whole question has been explained in these columns before. Mr. Larmouth being willing to pay the cost of a 6-inch pipe if the city pays the difference between that and a 10-inch pipe, the company to own the latter, the question was referred to the Board of Works with power to act.

BOARD OF WORKS.

The report of the Board of Works meeting as already published was adopted as read.

ENLARGEMENT OF POLICE STATION.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That Peterborough City Trust be instructed to proceed with alterations to and enlargement of the Police Station, in accordance with plans prepared by Architect Marshall, after said plans have been approved by Council.—Carried.

Ald. Buller thought this the wrong course to pursue. He did not believe in fixing up old buildings, when a new city hall is freely spoken of.

Chief Thompson said the policy elsewhere is to separate the police station from the city hall. From information gleaned, he was pessimistic as to the new city hall suggestion.

KENNEL LICENSES.

The dog by-law was amended to allow of a kennel license fee of $10.

$150 FOR S. A. BAND.

A by-law authorizing a grant of $150 to the Salvation Army Band passed its several readings. The band is to play in one of the parks one evening each week during the season.

M.H.O's. SALARY AND DUTIES.

A by-law increasing the salary and duties of the Medical Health Officer passed its three readings. The salary of Dr. A. W. McPherson is to be increased to $800 a year from April 1st, 1911, and it is a part of his duty to enforce by-laws regarding milk and to test milk and also water when directed by the Council and such other duties as may be directed by the Council or the Local Board of Health or Provincial Board of Health.

BOARD OF MANAGEMEET.

A by-law to establish a Board of Management for the Isolation Hospital (Queen Mary) passed reading. The Board is composed of the Mayor, Chairman Property Committee and one local physician (Dr. Boucher for the current year).

NEW PROTESTANT HOME.

Ald. Duncan wanted a resolution passed, conveying the 5 acres on the old Hilliard Farm, selected as a site for the new Protestant Home, to the P.P.H. Board.

The Solicitor explained that the by-law of agreement between the City and the Protestant Home Board, committing the latter to certain conditions, had been forwarded to the Board's solicitor for approval.

His Worship shall call a special meeting as soon as the by-alw is approved of by the Board, and pass the measure.

TO PAINT BAND STAND.

Ald. Brown moved, seconded by Ald. Edgar,—That the Property Committee enquire into the question of painting the band stand in the Central Park—Carried.

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

Ald. Kernaghan understood that there is trouble with the cesspool at the Isolation Hospital.

Ald. Duncan will have this matter attended to without delay.

Thursday afternoon the Board of Works will make a tour of South City on the question of street improvement.

ROAD SWEEPER.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Anderson,—That the Board of Works be authorized to purchase a road sweeper.—Carried.

TORONTO HORSE SHOW BEST EVER HELD

Hon. J. R. Stratten's Horses Won Nine First Prizes and Five Seconds.

At the Horse Show which closed in Toronto, on Saturday, the horses owned by the Hon. Mr. Stratton were very successful.

In all the important harness events Mr. Stratton's horses were to the front.

In the ladies' Victoria turn-out, with appointments, "My Pride" and "Premier" carried away the ribbon.

In the single Victoria, with appointments, "Perfect Dream" carried off the prize.

In the saddle class, gentleman and lady, "None Nicer" took the blue ribbon in both events, and "None Nicer" carried off the championship for saddle.

"My Pride" and "Premier" took the championship in their class, and won in many events throughout the week.

"Latest News" and "Lock Ryan Princess" came second in the high-stepping chase pairs. Senator Beith's new team, imported from England a few months ago, took first prize.

Mr. Sifton's horses carried off all the important prizes in the jumping class, and in the high-stepping classes Senator Beith's imported "Flourish" and "Fireworks" won the prize.

MOTOR CAR OPEN FOR ENGAGEMENT

Rutherford and Grimes Service Now In Operation.

The Rutherford Grimes Motor car service is now open for the patronage of the public.

Their new car seats fourteen people comfortably and is a great addition to the motor car service of Peterborough.

During this month the car is open for general engagement, which includes by the hour.

A scale of prices is given in another column of The Times.

After June 1st it will begin regular trips to Chemong and the second conveyance which is expected about that time, will connect with Lakefield, Young's Point, South Beach, Burleigh and Buckhorn.

The time table for these trips will be given later.

THE SITUATION IN ONTARIO.

It has been suggested that the ne temere decree does not apply to Ontario. This is not correct. Suppose two persons leave the Roman Church. After twenty years they want to get married. A Protestant minister marries them. This decree now in force in every Roman Church in Ontario declares their marriage invalid. Ontario statutes declare that marriage is valid. Roman Church law declares that marriage is not valid. Here you have a conflict sufficient to break up many a home, conflict between duty to God and duty to the State. One marriage law for the whole Dominion must be insisted on, and is the only remedy. Protestant Churches everywhere throughout the country are taking the matter up, and they will win out to a certainty.

BY-LAW CONFIRMING AGREEMENT WITH C.P.R. RE WATER FRONT PROPERTY PASSED COUNCIL

A by-law to authorize the execution of an agreement with the C.P.R. regarding the water front property the company require for siding and freight shed purposes in connection with the new Georgian Bay line to the satisfaction of the Railway Board, passed Council last night.

The company are to pay $10,000 for the land, Charlotte and King streets will be closed. The city are to have access to the water front at Simcoe street, with a right to bridge the tracks at Charlotte street.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Brown,—That if protection is required at Simcoe street, the company furnish same at their own expense, by order of the Railway Commission.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, in amendment,—That the foregoing be not inserted in the agreement as insisted upon by Ald. Duncan. The amendment was carried, and the resolution lost, on the casting vote of Ald. Bradburn, who at this juncture was in the chair.

Mr. Geo. Hatton, who was present in the company's interests, thanked the Council for their courtesy toward him, and remarked that "it is now up to the C.P.R. to get busy and spend some money here, and they are going to spend considerable in Peterborough."

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER WILL PROBABLY BE RETAINED

BOARD OF TRADE AND INFLUENTIAL CITIZENS ENDORSE HIM AS A DESIRABLE OFFICIAL.

Ald. Morgan Admits That He is a Convert—Strong Eulogy of the Commissioner's Work by Messrs. W. H. Denham and Dan O'Connell.

As a result of a conference between the City's Manufacturers' Committee and the Board of Trade's Industrial Commission, Ald. Buller submitted the following to Council last night:

Gentleman,—Your Manufacturers' Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

That the department of the Industrial Commissioner be continued for another year and that the matter of engaging a Commissioner and other matters in connection with the office be left with this committee, together with three representatives of the Board of Trade, with power to act, and that the City Treasurer be authorized to make payments out of the appropriation made for this department on the order of the Committee.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Graham,—That this matter be referred back to the committee.

Ald. Buller and Edgar moved the adoption of the above.

A large deputations of citizens were present in favor of Commissioner Duggan's retention in office.

Mr. Dan O'Connell made lengthy and flattering reference to Mr. Duggan's fitness for the office of Industrial Commissioner. He was the pick of over one hundred applicants, and had had extensive experience with large mercantile interests in Montreal He came very highly recommended, and had fully lined up to the Board of Trade's expectations. We are prepared to show you that it is not possible to make any selection that would prove as satisfactory. Mr. Duggan has been a painstaking and hard-working officer, working all hours. That he has not succeeded in locating many industries here should not be a surprise as it had been openly expressed that it would be impossible to secure big results the first year. But he has laid the foundation for future success, "and I haven't the slightest doubt," said the speaker, "that his work will come to a fruition." Mr. Duggan has spent a good deal of time on the power question, continued Mr. O'Connell. The Board of Trade thought it essential to get information on Peterborough's water power, and Mr. Duggan interviewed with the Hydro-Electric Commission elicited a power report free of cost that placed before our citizens this question in an intelligent manner never before attainable. These services alone are worth $3,400 or $4,000 to the city. The speaker concluded with the assertion that he is only voicing the sentiments of the Board of Trade and a large number of representative citizens in saying that no greater mistake could be made than to dispense with Mr. Duggan's services after a year's valuable work in laying the foundation for future results; and "I urge that you gratify the wishes of the citizens and the Board of Trade by retaining as Industrial Commissioner, the gentlemen who has filled his office so well the past year.

To the Mayor, Mr. O'Connell and Mr. W. H. Denham replied that Hon. Adam Beck's visit was an eleventh hour decision and none of the citizens committee had been notified that he would read his engineer's power report. They had understood he would merely address them.

Mr. Denham strongly endorsed Mr. O'Connell's sentiments, and characterized Mr. Duggan as a man of great ability who had done an immense amount of work.

Ald. Morgan—"I, for one, opposed Mr. Duggan's appointment at first; subsequently I wished to cut his salary; since then, however, I believe I have become converted. Mr. Duggan might act as secretary of the Board of Trade, look after securing excursions to Peterborough. And the power question is one to which he could well afford to devote considerable time. If we get power industries will come; we could not keep them out."

The question was referred to a committee of the Whole Council for early consideration.

STRINGENT ITALIAN LAW ON THE MARRIAGE QUESTION

Montreal, April 29.—A London cable gives what purports to be the opinion of Hon. Joseph Chamberlain on the marriage laws of the Church of Rome, as given in an interview at Cannes, France.

Mr. Chamberlain was discussing the attitude of the Church in relation to the Italian civil code, which defines marriages as a civil contract, and specifies that the ceremony is to be performed by the provost of the place in a municipal room open to the public. The code forbids a priest to attend, except as a witness or spectator, leaving the couple to go afterwards to church to obtain the benediction of the church, if they so desire.

PRIEST LIABLE TO FINE.

A bill was recently brought before the Italian Parliament to imprison priests and their witnesses who dare to pretend to be able to perform the marriage ceremony, and further, if a priest goes to a couple married civilly and says to them that they are living in concubinage because they were not married by the Church, he renders himself liable to both fine and imprisonment. He is not allowed to impugn the law of the land, nor to disturb the peace of the family.

Mr. Chamberlain speaking of the desirability of England's adopting a settlement on similar lines, indicated his approval of it, and also his despair as to England's taking such vigorous action, for, shaking his head sorrowfully, he said: "But we are far from that."

SUCCESSFUL MEETING HELD IN Y. M. C. A.

By the Oval Lawn Tennis Association.

A very successful and enthusiastic meeting was held last night in the Y.M.C.A. by the local Lawn Tennis Association. The club is shown to be in excellent circumstances and several new members were added to the already long list.

After the chairman's address a vote of thanks was given to the retiring officials of the association.

The officers for 1911 were then elected and are as follows:

President—Mr. Leslie Turner.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. J. Buller.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. B. Gillespie.
Executive—Miss Lightfoot, Miss B. Logan, Mr. D. Easton and Mr. D. Downey.

DEFENSE OF THE COUNCIL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Fault is being found with the Council in not providing oil for the streets earlier in the season. I think Sir, that there is no blame to be attached either to the Council or the City Engineer. I understand the order for oil was sent forward in ample time, but on account of an enormous demand for oil of this kind for street purposes it could not be secured in time. Let the people be fair to our city officials. I know it is awfully annoying to have dusty roads, especially just after house cleaning, but the Council is not really to blame. The new class of oil, which is less odorless than used last year, was not ready in time, hence the delay. Next spring it will probably be different.

THE UNION JACK.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Will you inform me when and how the Union Jack was originated, why it was so called, and why it is carried on the front mast of a vessel?

W. M. J.

Reply—The Union Jack is the name given to the national flag of Great Britain and Ireland. It consists of three united crosses — that of St. George for England, St. Andrew's cross for Scotland, and the cross of St. Patrick for Ireland. St. George's cross was red on white field, that of St. Andrew a white diagonal cross on blue field, and that of St. Patrick a red on white field. In the union, the blue field of St. Andrew is used, and the red St. Patrick's cross lies over the Scotch cross, showing white on each side, while the rectangular cross of St. George lies upon the other two, with a line of white upon each side. Originally, the flag of England was, as we have said, a red cross; the cross of St. Andrew was added by James I. in 1707, and in 1801, after the Act of Union with Ireland, St. Patrick's cross was also put on the flag. In regard to the name Jack, this is said to have been taken from Jacque, the French form of the name James, but this statement is probably a mistaken one. Two centuries ago, a surcoat was worn by the English soldiers which had a red cross on the back; this was called a jacque, and most probably it gave the nickname to the flag. Properly, the name Jack is distinctively given to the small union displayed at the end of the bowsprit of a vessel, but of late years, in common speech, it has been applied to the large flag also. National flags are carried on the main mast to distinguish the nationality of the vessel —Ed. Times.

THE DEVIL A MASON.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Toronto Saturday Night says that the yarn of the devil presiding in person at Masonic meetings is quite as old as Masonry itself, but it takes a Province of Quebec journalist to properly prove the case. Joseph Begin, editor of La Croix, a journal which he carefully explained in the Montreal courts the other day was before anything else a Roman Catholic organ, has been taking after the heretical Mason, and in so doing had a damage suit launched against him by one Caron, who had been the subject of attack in La Croix because the said Caron belonged to the Masonic Order. On being examined in court, Begin said that he knew personally that Masonry was anti-Catholic, anti-Christian and anti-religious. In proof of his contention, the wit-

COUNCIL SUSTAINS COMMITTEE'S ACTION IN DEMANDING THE DISCHARGE OF TWO FIREMEN

ASSISTANT CHIEF GRANGE AND CAPTAIN THOMAS ARE THE VICTIMS.

Ayes and Nayes Demanded by Alderman Buller Resulted in a Vote of 6 to 4 in Favor of Committee's Stand.

The City Council met last night and endorsed their Fire, Water and Light Committee's demand for the resignation of assistant chief Grange and Captain Thomas on a vote of 6 to 4.

Ald. Morgan submitted the committee's report, the last clause of which recommended that the Fire Chief be requested to ask assistant chief Grange and Captain Thomas to send in their resignations.

The report also recommended purchasing 500 feet of magnet multiple fire hose at $1.00 per foot, with couplings complete.

Ald. Buller took exception to the latter clause. The paragon 3-ply hose, he claimed the only durable brand on the market. The other is not recommended by any city in Canada.

This clause of the report was adopted, however.

Ald. Buller then moved, seconded by Ald. Anderson that the "resignation clause" be struck out.

"It is a great mistake," contended Ald. Buller, "to interfere with the management of the Fire Department.

Ald. Anderson agreed with his colleague. It would not be wise, he argued to dispense with the men in question.

We have the Chief's word that they are capable and trustworthy; and they have been guilty of no act to warrant this drastic action on the committee's part.

Ald. Brown remarked that he would not go as far as asking their resignation. But Grange and Thomas have been "hitting" at the Council and should be asked to apologize.

Ald. Anderson—"Why apologize?"

Ald. Brown—"The Chief admits that he discharged one man for writing a letter, criticizing a certain alderman, which letter appeared in the press. That letter was approved of by the officers in question."

Ald. Anderson—"Were the statements true or false?"

Ald. Brown—"They were not true."

Ald. Buller—"We are not living in Russia. These men or any other man have a right to criticise men who hold public office, like aldermen."

Ald. Graham said that there had been considerable trouble in the brigade, and this matter should be threshed out.

Ald. Brown—"If a man practically says that Ald. Kerneghan is as big a liar as there is around, an apology is due."

Ald. Metheral contended that these men took exception to Ald. Kernaghan's remark in committee that hose was left lying on the streets; and if an alderman can't express his opinions without being unduly criticized by officers of the brigade its time some action were taken. The letter which appeared in the press was written by the poor innocent fellow who knew how to compose such an epistle and handed it to the officers in question. The writer was subsequently discharged by the Chief.

Ald. Metheral then went on to say that the Fire, Water and Light Committee last year brought in a report that it was not in the best interests of the city to retain the Chief, and Council threw them down. Citizens complain that the committee cannot get a report through Council. There is something wrong in the brigade, he contended. Why do so many men quit? Not for wages—"King went out because he had been on watch all night and was called down for not having the Chief's boots blackened early next morning.

Ald. Kernaghan—"I told the Chief that these men should apologize, but have heard nothing from them."

Ald. Morgan—"We have nothing but a bunch of raw recruits at the fire hall most of the time. If the Department was conducted right, the men would stay. This is not fair to citizens, who are paying for an up-to-date permanent brigade. Mr. Grange has had no experience in handling men, and is consequently hard to get along with. Some change is necessary; we had better try this, and if that don't do, try again."

Ald. Buller's resolution to cut out the clause asking for the resignation of Grange and Thomas was here voted on and lost as follows:

AYES—Aldermen Buller, Bradburn, Edgar and Anderson.
NAYS—Aldermen Duncan, Metheral, Kerneghan, Brown, Graham and Morgan.

The men will consequently be asked to resign.

Los Angeles, May 1.—James McNamara will be the first of the alleged dynamiters to be placed on trial charged with the Los Angeles Times outrage. This has been announced by the office of District Attorney Fredericks. It is reported that the National Erectors' Association, which was largely responsible for running down the accused, will probably retain special counsel to assist the prosecution.

Ortie E. McManigal will be tried after James McNamara and John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, will be tried last, according to the present programme.

From the elaborate arrangements made for the great legal battle, it is believed that the trial of the three men will cost $2,000,000. A big bulk of the State's expense will result from the expenses of out of town witnesses, most of whom will be brought from the east.

Pittsburg, May 1.—Wm. Figley, a railway watchman, who was bound to the tracks when the viaduct of Clairton, Pa., was dynamited in October, 1906, will go to Los Angeles Times dynamiting cases, it was announced here to-day, and an attempt will be made to have him identify O. E. McManigal as one of the Clairton dynamiters.

Chicago, May 1.—Assistant District Attorney W. J. Ford, of Los Angeles who has been in Indianapolis for ten days, investigating the evidence collected by Detective Burns against the alleged dynamiters of The Times building, departed last night for Los Angeles.

Mr. Ford said that J. J. McNamara, James B. McNamara and Ortis McManigal, who have been arrested in connection with the dynamiting will be arraigned as soon as he arrives in Los Angeles.

THOUSANDS SLEPT OUT IN THE FIRE SWEPT DISTRICT

Bangor, Maine, May 1.—Homeless, hungry and exhausted by the long fight against the flames which had destroyed practically a third of the city of Bangor last night, thousands of persons who had spent the night in the open air, protected only by a meagre supply of blankets to-day faced the problem of providing themselves with food, shelter and clothing, while the city and state authorities began the consideration of plans for the rebuilding of the city.

When dawn broke over the stricken city to-day, hundreds of groups of men, women and children, most of them stunned by the disaster which had befallen the city, could be seen huddled around smouldering bonfires or stretched along the edge of the smoking ruins, endeavoring to derive some comfort from the warmth of the fires and to counteract the effect of the chilly rain that fell throughout the night.

Although the rain brought discomfort to the homeless, it was the means of bringing under control the great conflagration which spread unchecked for more than seven hours last night.

At a time when the battle of the firemen and householders against the flames seemed hopeless, a providential shift of wind and a downpour of rain drove the fire back over the burned district and drowned out the flames which had just started in unburned property.

IF I WERE MAYOR
What I Would Do

Under the above caption The Times invites correspondence. The letters will appear in the Saturday edition only and must deal with local matters, and not political questions. In this way suggestions in regard to local affairs will be in order, and we are sure will be taken in good part by Mayor Morrow and the members of his Council.

LIVED ON 2D. A DAY

Apostle of Plain Living and High Thinking Guit

One of the most distinguished exponents of the simple life has passed away at Cambridge in the person of Professor the Rev. J. E. B. Mayor, professor in Latin at the University. Deceased was for a considerable period of his life a strict vegetarian, and had subsisted at one time on 2d. a day. Professor Mayor possessed one of the finest libraries in Cambridge—all of it, he was fond of saying, bought with the money saved on food. In his rooms up the tower in the second court of St. John's College this bearded scholar has simplified life to its utmost. A bachelor and a teetotaler, in his view one could live well on 6d. a day, and for some considerable time he reduced his nutrition bill to 2d. a day. Originally led to vegetarianism on humane grounds, he continued it for reasons of health and economy. Quite recently, at a dinner party in London, his host, who had forgotten his tastes, sent out for some bananas, of which a single fruit composed his dinner. The story of his starvation programme is well known. When he was completing his magnum opus—his edition of Juvenal—he decided to fast on a progressive scale for the last 48 days of strenuous work. He was to eat only every other day for the first week, every fourth day for the next, and to eat nothing at all for the last fortnight. When doctors compelled him to surrender the programme at the beginning of the last week, he said, "I never felt so well or so eager for work in my life, and I am convinced that I should have suffered no harm by persevering with it." In extent of learning and power of quotation he was compared by a fellow scholar with the Burton who wrote the "Anatomy of Melancholy," and one of Charles Lamb's favorite authors. He was, first of all, a great classical scholar, thought he was almost as great an authority in general philosophy and Sanskrit. He had a profound disbelief in the specialization of science. He held that the man of science rarely saw life steadily or as a whole. He was fond of lecturing, and was well known at the Victoria Institute in London. He was also an original preacher. It was once said that his studies in Juvenal of the excesses of Roman society drove him to the simple life, but it was a favorite thesis of his that the Romans at their heyday were, like other conquering nations, abstemious, and, at their worst, much surpassed by modern livers.

PASSION PLAY PROFIT

£66,230 Earned by Village Players—Salaries in Proportion

According to an official statement, the gross receipts of the Passion Play of 1910 at Oberammergau were £88,230. After defraying the costs of production and other incidental expenses the proceeds, £44,230, remain to be distributed, and the sum of £38,200 will be divided among the 860 performers. The managers of the play, the musical directors, the chief cashier, and the portrayers of Christ, Pilate, Caiaphas, Herod, and the speaker of the prologue will receive £125 each for their six months' services. Other salaries will be in proportion to the importance of the respective roles. The men and women who played so vividly as members of the crowds in the streets of Jerusalem will receive £6 each, and the school children 30s. each; £525 will be given to the poor, and, says the Mail, the balance o. £21,750 will remain in the village treasury for communal purposes.

RIGHTS OF HOSPITALITY

Dr. Johnson, in his tour through North Wales passed two days at the seat of Colonel Middleton, of Gwynnagag. While he remained there the gardener caught a hare from among some potato plants. He brought it to his master, who was engaged in conversation with the doctor, and received from him an order to carry it to the cook. As soon as Johnson heard this sentence he begged to have the animal placed in his arms, which done, he hurried to the half open window, and restored the hare to her liberty, shouting after her to accelerate her speed. "What have you done?" cried the colonel. "Why, doctor, you have robbed my table of a delicacy, perhaps deprived us of a dinner." "So much the better, sir," replied the humane champion of the condemned hare, "for if your table is to be supplied at the expense of the laws of hospitality, I envy not the appetite of him who eats it. That, sir, was a hare which had placed itself under your protection; and savage, indeed, must be that man who does not make his hearth an asylum for the confiding stranger."

A KITE-FLYING COMPOSER

Sir Edward Elgar, whose violin concerto has aroused so much interest in the musical world, numbers kite-flying amongst his hobbies, but has devoted himself more of late years to chemistry and cycling. He spends much of his leisure time in the laboratory. In writing for the violin Sir Edward is returning to his early love, for he was a fine player himself in his youth. Indeed, it would be difficult to name an instrument which he cannot play. For five years he was bandmaster at the Worcester County Lunatic Asylum, the band being formed by the asylum attendants, and it was thus that he became familiar with instruments, ranging from a French horn to an organ. In those days—and it is not so many years ago—England's greatest composer wrote polkas, waltzes, etc., for which he received 5s. a set, while for minstrel ballads for the use of the asylum inmates he received 1s. 6d. each.

PIT WORKERS ARE CARELESS

Many Mining Disasters are Caused by Neglect Which is Simply Astounding

In spite of the fact that it was fitted with every modern contrivance for ensuring safe and efficient working, the Pretoria Pit, near Bolton, Lancashire, proved the grave of 340 miners. "I should have thought," said the managing-director, after the terrible catastrophe, "that this was one of the safest collieries in the country, and one of the last for an explosion to take place in. There seems no explanation," he continued, "beyond the suggestion that it arose from a defective lamp or the striking of a match."

The latter may or may not have been the cause of the explosion which sent these 340 men to an untimely death, but it is a fact, fully recognised by mining experts, that, although coal-miners carry their lives in their hands, they sometimes act, in spite of the strict rules and regulations which govern the working of big mines, with carelessness which is astounding.

Error of Judgment

The president of the Staffordshire, Warwickshire, and Worcestershire Colliery Managers Association stated recently, for instance, that "a little more carefulness on the part of the miners and closer supervision and stricter discipline on the part of the management would do incalculably more good than all the rescue apparatus yet invented."

It is generally admitted that the terrible calamity at Hamstead, near Birmingham, in 1908, when twenty-five men lost their lives, and the Maypole disaster in the same year, resulting in seventy-six men being killed, were due almost entirely to some form of carelessness. The Maypole disaster was due to an ignition of fire-damp and coal dust caused by the firing of too heavy a charge of explosive. This was, to say the least, a grave error of judgment, but experts describe it as carelessness.

These twin evils of carelessness and slack officials are shown up in all their ugliness by comments made by the Chief Inspector of Mines—Professor Redmayne—when, in reporting on the Hamstead disaster, he clearly stated that it was primarily caused by workmen separating bundles of candles by burning the wicks or string instead of cutting them.

From personal experience in the Welsh and Midland coal-fields the writer has found that much of the carelessness is due to an excess of self-confidence. A veteran miner described it as "the working out of the old adage, 'Familiarity breeds contempt.'"

Fatal December

With the exception of the explosion at Oaks Colliery, near Barnsley, in December, 1866, when over 340 persons were killed, the disaster at Pretoria Pit is the heaviest in the mining history of the kingdom, and certainly the worst in Lancashire. The nearest approach to these disasters in the last fifty years were the Ebbw Vale disaster in 1878, when 268 lives were lost, and the disaster at the Albion Colliery in Glamorganshire in 1894, which resulted in the death of 256 persons. Over 200 lives were lost in the Hartley Colliery disaster of 1862, as well as in the High Blantyre disaster of 1877. We have had no disaster in this country, however, which has had such appalling results as that which occurred at Lens, in France, in 1906, when no fewer than 1,230 miners perished. It is a curious fact that December is a very bad month for pit disasters. Within the last forty years six disasters have occurred in Lancashire, and altogether since 1860 there have been twenty colliery disasters in different parts of the country in the month of December, resulting in a total death-roll of 1,500 miners.

DOUKHOBOUR SETTLERS

Ten Thousand Acres From Them in British Columbia

Some two thousand Doukhobour settlers belonging to the Russian collectivist community residing at present in the province of Saskatchewan are proceeding to Southern British Columbia, where ten thousand acres of fruit lands have been purchased for their accommodation at a point about 30 miles from Nelson in the Kootenay district. These people, who originally came from the Caucasus, are expert horticulturists, and their experience renders them suitable for the conditions that obtain in the valleys of the province in question. A thousand acres are already under cultivation and planted with extensive orchards of apples and pears, cherries and plums, peaches and apricots. A system of irrigation canals to utilize the water from the mountain streams will be carried out, which, when completed, will permit the whole area to be brought under cultivation. Fruit preserving and canning factories will be built. Unlimited markets for both fresh and preserved fruits are available in the prairie district.

HOUSING OF WORKMEN

The first step in an important scheme of housing has been taken in South London. A large island block of old-fashioned houses facing on Elsted Street, in the Rodney Road district, Walworth, has been acquired by the trustees of a fund for the better housing of the working classes, and within a year some 200 of these houses will be replaced by nine huge blocks of modern dwellings, capable of accommodating more than 600 persons. The ground acquired consists of 60,000 square feet.

SIGN POSTS FOR AVIATORS

A German aeronaut has devised a system of orientation which will help the German aviator, at least, in finding his way through the air. Each German province is provided with a number, and every community is provided with a letter. A guide book to be carried by the aviator contains a list of provinces and towns similarly designated. Thus, if an aviator sees the character "40 A 1" painted upon the roof of a house in Rhineau he knows immediately where he is by referring to his book. At night these signs are to be illuminated. The system is now actually being installed in Germany.

When a fellow is slippery it is sometimes necessary to walk over him rough shod.

THE CUP OF KINDNESS

Six pounds ten! The figures danced before Marion's eyes. She wanted six pounds ten to save Roland from going to prison. It was no use appealing to Amos; after what he had said last night, that was out of the question.

But how was she going to raise so much in so short a time? Six pounds ten! It seemed a small fortune—an impossibly large amount.

Somebody tapped her on the shoulder, and she turned and saw it was the usher of the police-court.

"Here," he said, holding out his hand. "The beak sent this. He's got a good heart, and he often does little things like this strictly on the q. t. Mind, now, not a word to a soul."

She glanced at the coin he had pressed into her hand. It was a sovereign—and the figures that danced before her eyes became five pounds ten instead of six!

"Thank the magistrate for me, please. Tell him I am more grateful than I can say—"

"He won't want no thanks," interrupted the usher. "Here, that's my little bit."

He forced half-a-crown into her hand and walked away.

She dropped a tear upon the coin.

"What a lot of kind-hearted people there are in the world!" she muttered, "I really believe there are far more good people than bad in it!"

The policeman whose duty it was to keep that particular corridor clean came up to her.

"We can't have you loitering here," he said. "Is a bob any use to you? Every little helps. Pass along, please!"

The tears began to course freely down her cheeks, and she stumbled away, half-blinded by them, too touched to speak.

Soon, however, she resolutely dried her eyes. Five pounds six and sixpence had still to be raised, and for her husband's sake she was determined to raise it. Home she went to Rosetree Villa, kissed her baby, and informed the nurse how the case had gone; and then proceeded to collect the few things which the Turtledoves Furnishing Company had been compelled to leave.

She smiled wistfully as she got them together. So few of their friends had been apprised of their marriage, that their "presents" were inconsiderable. To them she added every stitch of clothes she possessed in the world, with the exception of the things she had on, and one "change." Dazzled with the prospect of what they would fetch, she then made another bundle of her husband's garments.

Three journeys she made to the pawnbrokers, and the last result was that she was left with only two-and-five shillings more to raise. But the two-and-five shillings were the most formidable of all!

"Cheer up!" said the nurse, when Marion returned, dangling her baby before Marion's eyes. "It'll be all right, won't it, ducky? Mummy doesn't know everything, does she my precious? Something's going to happen—you mark my words."

Marion took the baby from her, and was just about to ask her what she meant, when baby smiled. It was the first time baby had really and truly smiled a big, unmistakable smile since he was born, and she was so occupied in trying to make him do it again, that before she asked her question the knocker sounded.

In came Mrs. Pope and another neighbor, Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Pope was very breathless, but she felt that the exigencies of the situation demanded some sort of a speech.

"A little bird told us what you was doing," she began, and then she was forced to pause for breath. Nurse—"the little bird"—who weighed fourteen stone at least, smiled self-consciously.

"So me and Mrs. Brown we got to work at once," Mrs. Pope panted on. "She took one side of the street, and I took the other, which we felt as your neighbors, my dear, would like to help, not being able to bear the thought of your husband going to prison, all on account of 'im taking your troubles so much to 'eart." Forced to conclude her sentence because she had forgotten where she began, she poured a heap of small silver into Marion's lap.

"I got eighteen shillings," she announced proudly, and Mrs. Brown, she got seventeen."

"Here you are, my dear," said Mrs. Brown, handing over the money.

Marion looked from one to the other, dumbfounded, utterly overcome. She tried to speak, but could find no words to express her gratitude. Nurse in the background, sniffed and cleared her throat with unnecessary vehemence, and furtively dabbed a handkerchief to her eyes.

For a long time, the young mother, still holding her baby, sat there, looking from one to the other of these three true friends in need.

"I—I can only say 'Thank you,'" she faltered at last. "To my dying day I shall remember you in my prayers."

Baby smiled again, and made a little gurgling noise

"There," said Marion, holding him up. "Baby is trying to thank you, too, but, like me, he can find no words!"

"The darling!" exclaimed all the women together: and baby smiled once more. He stretched out his helpless little fingers, and began to grope aimlessly among the silver in his mother's lap.

"There's ten shillings too much here," said Marion, more calmly. "May I—may I give it you back?"

"Certainly not!" said Mrs. Pope, sternly.

"You'll need all of it, my dear," said Mrs. Brown.

NEGLECTED COLDS Lead to Consumption

Unless a complete cure is effected, the inflammation passes rapidly to the throat, bronchial tubes, and then to the lungs.

You can't make new lungs any more than you can make new fingers or a new nose—hence consumption is practically incurable.

But Catarrh can be cured, except in its final and fatal stage.

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhozone."

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing, piny vapor, direct to the lungs and air passages.

CATARRHOZONE Guaranteed to Cure

The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists—germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance, and cure comes quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed—sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills—it's pleasant, safe, and guaranteed in every case.

Two months' treatment, large size, guaranteed to cure, price $1; small size, 50c at all dealers. Beware of substitutes and imitations. By mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

THE ENTERPRISING FARMER

The old-world farmer may well stand aghast at the prospect of the farm of the future which the newer Canadian experience suggests, says the Canadian Gazette, of London. The Weekly Sun of Toronto, tells us of the use to which Mr. Fred Gross, of Greenwood, in South Ontario, puts a part of the surplus water-power from his mill. He generates electricity to the extent of five horse-power. The dynamo suffices for forty or fifty lights, operates a churn that will turn 100 lbs. of butter at a churning, runs a cream separator with a capacity of 1200 lbs. per hour and operates a milking machine that will milk six cows at a time. The cost of the entire electrical plant is $450. The Toronto Globe holds out the glittering hope that when the churn, and the separator, and the feed chopper, and the mechanical milker can all be set in motion by pulling levers on the switchboard in the farm-factory the rush back to the farm will be as great as that for seats to hear Tetrazzini. Moreover, in Ontario county and in the Niagara district if the farmer buys power on the twenty-four-hour basis he can turn it into light for his orchard during the hours when he is asleep. Recent experiments prove that plants and trees grow admirably by electric light. Some day—under reciprocity, of course—the fruit-growers of Niagara, will, it adds, run a race with Georgia, for the early markets by using sunshine in the daytime and electric light at night in berry patch and orchard. Oh, this wonderful world!

CANADA AND NEGRO IMMIGRATION.

The Ottawa government, though urged to act in the matter of restricting negro immigration, has been reluctant to do so. Indeed, within the past fortnight the Dominion authorities have made it clear that, in their view, the time has not yet come for definite action. However, a line of procedure which may have its effect in bringing the question forward as a practical issue was indicated the other day at Washington in a conference between representatives of the State Department and the United States consul general at Winnipeg.

At this conference there was brought forward a memorandum from the Canadian immigration officials giving grounds upon which the American negro might be barred from the Dominion. These are comprised in the simple representation that the negro, by reason of race and previous environment, would probably be unsuccessful in adapting himself to the rigors of a northern climate and might, therefore, in many cases, become a public charge.

Steps necessary for the avoidance of such a condition are authorized by the Canadian immigration act, and may be taken on the grounds here indicated. All this offers an interesting example of the degree of discretion which the Canadian system gives to purely administrative officials in their enforcement of statutes couched in general terms.

MEN—YOU NEED NERVE

Wonderful Nervous System

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

IN ALBERTA'S CABINET

Are Foremost Easterners—Three Natives of Ontario

Four eastern men are members of the Provincial Cabinet of Alberta, the entire personnel of which is considered, at least by the majority party, as very strong.

Hon. Arthur Lewis Sifton, late Chief Justice Sifton, and now premier provincial treasurer and minister of public works for Alberta, is a son of the Hon. John W. Sifton, at one time speaker of the Manitoba Assembly. Born near London, Ontario, on Oct. 26, 1858, he went west of the Great Lakes in 1875, when his family moved to the then sparsely settled province of Manitoba. In the year following, Arthur, then a youth of 18 years of age, returned to Cobourg, Ontario, where he attended the Victoria University in that town, taking the arts degree in 1880. The city of Winnipeg saw him complete his law course, and Brandon his entry into the legal profession, in which latter city he took an active interest in matters municipal. He was a member for a time of the Brandon city council.

In 1895, Mr. Sifton moved to Prince Albert, and in 1899 to Calgary, whence in 1898 he was elected a member of the Northwest Council, and in 1901 selected as a commissioner of public works. In 1903 he was created chief justice of the Northwest Territories, and in 1907 chief justice of Alberta. In 1883 he married Miss Mary H. Deer ing, and has two children. In 1905 Mr. Sifton refused the offer of the leadership of the Liberal party and the provincial premiership that went with it; but with the Liberals divided against themselves on a question of a colonization railroad he yielded to the demand for his return.

A powerful magnetic speaker, tactful, dominant, self-reliant, unafraid, clear-seeing, possessed of a colossal brain and urbane withal, Premier Sifton is one of the biggest men in the Northwest.

Hon. Duncan Marshall

If Duncan Marshall were to walk down the main street of any city, town or village in the province of Alberta, very likely every man on the thoroughfare would speak to him, and address him with real western cordiality.

Hon. Duncan Marshall has spoken in every part of that huge province. He knows Alberta, and Alberta, after duly appraising the man, has taken him to her heart.

His father was the late John Marshall, one of the pioneers of Bruce County, Ont. He was born in Hillsdale, Ontario, on Sept. 24, 1872, and received his education in the public schools, Walkerton High School and Owen Sound Collegiate, securing a teacher's certificate at the age of 17 years as a result of his energetic application to his academic work. Even at his early age, Mr. Marshall evidenced a strong inclination towards politics, and, interesting himself in the farmers' party, the Patrons of Industry of Ontario, was, at 18 years of age, organizer for the party.

The fact that seventeen Patrons were elected at the next election is proof of the executive ability possessed and exercised by Mr. Marshall.

Going to the Maritime Provinces in the interests of the Patrons, Mr. Marshall returned in 1896 to his native province and entered the field journalistic, connecting himself with the Toronto World and the News, Toronto, until the year 1900. He bought and edited a paper in Thornbury, and in 1903 took over the Bracebridge Gazette, entering politics with a vim. In the contest in Muskoka constituency he cut the majority in two, and in 1905 came to the West as manager of the Edmonton Bulletin. Buying an 800-acre farm at Veda, Mr. Marshall studied western conditions and absorbed much that was of later benefit. In the general election of the province he was elected, and he is the only man in the new Alberta cabinet who held a portfolio in the old ministry, in which he was also minister of agriculture.

Mr. Marshall married Miss McIsaac, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., and has two children.

Hon. Charles R. Mitchell

Quiet and dignified, but brisk and very businesslike, is Charles R. Mitchell, attorney-general and minister of education for the Province of Alberta, as befits a keen young lawyer from the Maritime Provinces, that incubator of college presidents, politicians of high calibre, and men of like stamp.

The Hon. Mr. Mitchell is a son of the late James Mitchell, inspector of lighthouses, and was born at Newcastle, N.B., on Nov. 20, 1872. He is a nephew of Hon. Peter Mitchell, one of the fathers of confederation, the same who first organized the department of marine and fisheries at Ottawa. He was educated at Harkin's Academy, Newcastle, and the University of New Brunswick, where he took degrees in arts and civil engineering. Beginning the study of law in the office of Hon. Andrew Blair, at St. John, he practised later with Hon. L. J. Tweedie, at Chatham. In 1897 King's College, Windsor, conferred the degree of B.C.L. upon him, and in the year 1896 Mr. Mitchell came west to Medicine Hat, where, for several years he sat in the council, and later was city solicitor. In the year 1907 he was made district judge for the judicial district of Calgary.

He was married at St. Thomas, Ontario, to Miss Clara Fraser, daughter of the late Alexander Fraser.

Hon. Archibald J. McLean

A typical western rancher is Archibald J. McLean, provincial secretary for Alberta. Mr. McLean is rich from a worldly standpoint, but one would never learn that fact from his own lips. One could tell at a glance that the provincial secretary had lived in the open, and was generously hospitable, but that he was the famous owner of the C. Y. ranch in sunny Southern Alberta, of 45,000 acres, one would not learn from him in many years. Mr McLean is also interested in good coal mines.

Born in Aldboro, West Elgin, Ont. on Sept. 25, 1863, Mr. McLean went west to Manitoba in 1881, and six years later went on to Alberta, where he invested in one of the largest ranches in the country.

Young Hunter Shot.

Cornwall, April 27.—(Special.)—While hunting muskrats west of Cornwall Ralph Raymond, aged 15 years, was accidently shot with a 22 calibre rifle. In loading the gun the cartridge jammed in the breech and exploded when Raymond tried to force it. The bullet struck his thigh and passed through leaving a clean flesh wound.

Hon. A. G. MacKay has concluded his pro-reciprocity campaign in Ontario by a meeting held Saturday at Goderich.

ness referred to a sermon by Archbishop Bruchesi. Such testimony, however, the lawyer for the prosecution refused to consider, remarking that if he desired the opinion of His Grace he would require the Archbishop to appear in person, as he did not recognize the witness in the box as the spokesman of the Archbishop.

When asked what difference he saw between members of the Grand Orient of France and the Order to which all Canadian, United States and English masons belong, Begin declared that the difference was only in the rites, and that they were all after the same aims, which were anti-Christian and anti-religious.

In view of the fact that Protestant clergymen are very largely members of the Masonic Order, this being particularly true in the Church of England, the statements of this man Begin are extraordinary to say the least. If the Archbishop of Montreal is no better posted upon Masonry than is his man-servant Begin, it is full time that he read it up. It is also time that this tomfoolery regarding Masonry met a sudden and quiet end. In Canada here, and in fact all over the English-speaking world, tens and hundreds of thousands of our best citizens are members of the Masonic Order, and I venture to state that they are as a whole just as honest and lead just as praiseworthy and upright lives as do the members of the Archbishop's own household. King Edward himself was a Mason of high degree, and so is his son, our present Monarch. Half the statesmen in England are Masons. Are these men anti-Christian and anti-religious?

In this matter I am not pleading my own cause. I am not a Mason, but I happen to know what Masonry stands for: information which Joseph Begin and Archbishop Bruchesi could very readily obtain, right among the Church of England clergymen of their own city.

If the Archbishop of Montreal and satellites of the Begin order have for their purpose the division of Canada into two distinct and hostile camps, they are succeeding amazingly well. In fact, they could not do better.

A Constant Reader.

LONG IN HATCHING.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As a native-born Canadian, whose parents were among the early pioneers of this province; as a resident for almost all my life, along the United States boundary lines; as a resident of Algoma district during the years when Yankee-made goods were entered there free of duty under certain provisions; as an intimate associate in Toronto and New York City, during my student life, of many fellow colonials from the Eastern provinces; as an almost constant reader of the daily papers of both shades of politics on both sides of the boundary line; and as an active worker in Canadian politics since 1854, I feel that I am entitled to a hearing at this imminent crisis in our national life.

My opinion is that this scheme, to hand our commercial interests, our natural resources, our future welfare—moral, religious, political, etc.—over to the trusts and combines of the United States, has been "in the hatching," in one form or another, ever since Confederation was consummated; that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been, during the past ten years at least, cognizant of the game, though not necessarily an active plotter; that the promise to appoint a Tariff Commission before making any changes in the tariff was genuine, was honest with him—so far as he can be honest politically; that this scheme, as yet not fully developed, was "in the back of his head" when he visited our Northwest last summer—awaiting the psychological moment for its enunciation; that his speeches during that tour indicate that he was floundering—that he felt himself in danger of giving the game away prematurely; that the elections in the States, in November last, proved to be "somewhat embarrassing" and called for a more rapid progress in the conspiracy—before the other party thereto, the Republican leaders, lost control of Congress; that the movement was thereby precipitated; and that the present pact is as much of the proposed scheme as the parties thereto dared to venture upon at this juncture. I could advance good and sufficient reasons for this conclusion were it necessary, but that can be left to another occasion—particularly as viewed from the stand-point of Yankee politics.

Cold on The Chest

Had Suffered for Weeks—Used Fourteen Different Remedies Without Effect.

Cured Quickly By "NERVILINE."

No stronger proof of the wonderful merit of Nerviline could be produced than the letter of Miss Lucy Mosher, who for years has been a well-known resident of Windsor, N.S.

"I want to add my unsolicited testimonial to the efficacy of your wonderful liniment, "Nerviline," I consider it the best remedy for a cold, sore throat, and wheezing tightness in the chest, etc., and can state that for years our home has never been without Nerviline. I had a dreadful attack of cold, that settled on my chest, that fourteen different remedies couldn't break up. I rubbed on Nerviline three times a day, used Nerviline as a gargle, and was completely restored. I have induced dozens of my friends to use Nerviline and they are all delighted with its wonderful power over pain and sickness.

STARTED AN INVESTIGATION.

Alarmed Over Number of Deaths Caused by the Use of Headache Powders.

Washington, April 27.—Alarmed by the number of deaths in different parts of the United States directly caused by the use of headache powders, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist of the department of agriculture has started an investigation. Dr. Wiley is of the opinion that many headache powders are dangerous and that something should be done to prohibit their sale except on the prescription of a physician. Many powders he has declared, contain ingredients which are dangerous, particularly to people suffering from weak hearts.

IMPERIAL OR CONTINENTAL

Toronto, April 29.—Day by day the true inwardness of President Taft's reciprocity policy becomes more and more fully disclosed. At first presumed to have been prompted only by the desire to open Canada's natural resources to United States manufacturers and to provide some relief from the high and steadily increasing cost of living, the President now stands revealed as animated by motives of a different nature. Nothing else indeed than the determination to tempt Canada from her place in the chain of British states that form the imperial co-partnership. About this there can be no possible dubiety. In his address to the American newspaper men, really an address to the congress and people of the United States, he declared this to be a critical time in the solution of the question of reciprocity, because forces are at work in England and in Canada to separate her from a Chinese wall from the United States and to make her part of an imperial commercial band reaching from England round the world to England again.

President Taft has openly shown his hand, so confident is he that the government of the Dominion and the Liberal majority in its parliament are ready to aid him in his attempt to stay the process of imperial evolution. He and his advisers have no objection to Canada as an isolated independent nation, over which, and through the Monroe doctrine United States can exercise veiled sovereignty. But Canada is a free, self-governing nation, linked in close ties with the mother country and the sister British communities, and so independent of any external control, that the president cannot abide. Reciprocity, he sees, if Sir Wilfrid Laurier does not, removes Canada from the imperial band, prevents her future separation from the United States spheres of influence and destroys the movement that seeks the solidification of the British peoples. Canadians will be recreant indeed to the spirit of their national patriotism if they consent thus to lower the flag for which their fathers fought and died.

TWO STEAMERS WRECKED WARSHIPS RUSH TO SCENE

London, April 29.—The Lloyd's agent at Corcubian, Spain, to-day reported that two steamships have been lost off Cape Valhana, a promontory at the northwestern extremity of the Spanish peninsula. One of them is the Italian ship F. S. Gimmpa, which was bound from Panarth, Wales, for Genoa, with a cargo of coal. The identity of the other ship is not known.

Despatches from Madrid last night told briefly of the wrecking of "a big English steamship" at this point. No details have as yet been received here, nor is it known whether there was any loss of life. The F. S. Gimpa was a boat of about 2,500 tons.

A HARSHIP TO RESCUE.

Vigo, Spain, April 29.—A Spanish warship and two steamers left here to-day at full speed for Cape Valhana on the northwest coast, where a large British steamship has been wrecked, according to despatch received here.

Perforated Stamps.

From the London Chronicle.

The man who invented perforated sheets of stamps made a big fortune out of the idea. It is said to have occurred to a hunting man who wanted to stamp a letter but could not lay his hand on a knife or scissors. He suddenly bethought himself of his spur. Running the rowel along, he perforated the edges of the stamp, tore it off, and thus started a revolution.

How a Canadian Indian Woman Saved Her Children From Starvation.

The last scrap of food had been eaten and there was no game although the woman hunted until her strength gave out, then she cut flesh from her body. MR. PRINCE SOUNDED THE ANNEXATION NOTE

Mr. Prince of Illinois, Republican, attacking the Canadian Reciprocity bill, sounded the annexation note. In part he said:

"I say to our neighbors on the north, be not deceived. When we go into a country and get control of it, we take it. It is our history, and it is right that we should take it if we want it, and you might as well understand it. The Speaker has so said: the party back of him has so said, and it does not deny that that is its desire."

BIG RAILWAY PROJECT BY CHICAGO CAPITALISTS

Chicago, May 1.—The general belief here that the reciprocity trade agreement with Canada will be ratified has given fresh impetus to the ambitious project undertaken by a number of Chicago capitalists to build a railroad from Winnipeg to the Gulf of Mexico. Removal of the tariff barriers had not been counted on when construction work was begun on the Midland Transcontinental Railroad in North Dakota last year, and if reciprocity becomes a fact one of its effects, it is expected, will be to hasten the development of the new north and south line.

The road is being built by the Midland Construction Company, of which Frank Ball, head of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Company, of Racine, is president; Herbert S. Duscombe, of Chicago, vice-president; and George W. Ristine, former president of the Colorado Midland Railroad, consulting engineer. George M. Wisner chief engineer of the sanitary district of Chicago, is the company's chief engineer, it is announced, and Chas. V. Weston, president of the South Side Elevated Railroad, as consulting engineer.

The company has issued a partial list of stockholders, which includes the names of John Cudahy, John W. Lydal, of the Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Co.; F. S. Peabody, president of the Peabody Coal Co.; Frank L. Roemitz, vice-president of the American Hide and Leather Co.; Ralph C. Otis; Frank Bacheu, vice-president of the American steel and Wire Co.; Marshall E. Sampsell, J. L. Stack, and L. P. Friestedt, all of Chicago; Frank J. Kipp, of Milwaukee; William Butterworth, of Moline; and William Mitchell Lewis, president of the Mitchell Motor Co, of Racine.

The Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank is the trustee of the initial $6,000,000 issue of 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds.

The first chapter of the Midland Company's project consists in building a line 212 miles in length from Canadian boundary, where connection will be had with the Canadian Northern running due north to Winnipeg. With the initial stretch in operation, it is planned to extend the road southward, with either Galveston or Corpus Christi, Texas, as the objective point. The survey closely follows a line geographically bisecting the United States and through its intersection with all east and west trunk lines, the Midland Railroad, if completed, would become a national belt line.

The two and a half mile section now under construction will connect with five big lines—the St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Soo, Great Northern and Canadian Northern.

NO FURTHER PAYMENTS REQUIRED

The First $5.00 Payable All

THIS IS TO BE A QUICK-ACTION PROPOSITION. You pay $5.00 with your subscription. That is all. You will be called upon for no more. This membership entitles you to a vote in all the affairs of the syndicate, and to participate pro rata in all the benefits. It is a small amount, but I don't need very much to accomplish all I am going to try for. I made the price $5.00 so as to allow everyone to get in. In order to keep any one individual from acquiring control I have limited the subscription of any one person to no more than ten memberships. We are all going to get the same fair, square deal. There are to be no favorites and no special privileges. When money enough has been raised to do the work the members will be notified, and THEY will decide whether it will be necessary or not to incorporate a company and, if so, for how much. THEY will elect their own officers and direct the affairs of the company. I will have no time to fool away in doing office work. I am a miner, not a bookkeeper, and as soon as I get this thing organized the officers of the company will have to dictate the business policy. Now it is not very often that you have an opportunity of investing as small an amount as $5.00, and especially where it has such splendid chances for making a big profit in a short time. It can't be beat, and the proposition offers more for the money than anything of its kind in the market. I want you to help me in this and I promise you won't be disappointed if you do.

Something About Myself

I am a practical mining man; have had years of experience in the business, and have never made a failure of anything I have taken up. For over four years I have worked in the mines in and about Empire, Colorado. Being familiar with the location of the mineral veins of this district, knowing the character of the ores, etc., I have been on the lookout for a good property that I could operate under lease for some time. It was only recently that I found the big lead veins in the famous Emma mine, and I immediately took action in an effort to secure a long-time lease from the company owning the property. Well, to make a long story short, after a deal of negotiating I was successful and secured a lease on this splendid property which runs until 1918. The company was anxious to have a certain amount of development work done and I was lucky enough to catch them at just the right time and secured just what I wanted. This is the proposition I am now inviting you to join me in—the development of this lease on the RICH EMMA MINE.

The Small Investor's Opportunity

Usually a small investor has but little show to earn more than a very ordinary profit on his investment. I conceived the idea of making this a company of small investors. Just a few of my friends, and their friends. I am so confident of the outcome that I am taking no more big capital in with me, and instead of having a company controlled and dominated by a few big stockholders, I want to make it more of a family affair. We will all put in a small amount. With the money thus subscribed I will begin work at the mine and, following the present vein, I am sure I will be able to cut the big American lode within a distance of a few hundred feet. If my plans are successful I will be into a big ore body in less than three months, and that means a small fortune for us all. There are all kinds of tools at the mine to work with except, perhaps, a power drill, and that will be one of the first things that I will buy. After that it will be easy to drive the tunnel, and I expect to make good progress.

We Will Divide the Profits

THIS IS MY MONEY-MAKING PLAN

I have secured a lease on the famous EMMA MINE OF EMPIRE, COLORADO. I used to work in this mine, and I know there is ore there. I feel sure that a few dollars expended in developing the vein already opened will give us a big body of rich ore. I am the man to do it. Of course I will need a little help in a financial way. I am organizing a syndicate to handle this proposition. I invite you to join me. We will all club in together and push the development work as hard and as fast as possible, and as the ore is taken out and marketed we will divide the profits. Memberships in this syndicate will be sold for $5.00 each and no more than ten will be sold to any one individual. I will own no more myself. I am determined to make this a small investor's enterprise, and it will be run by the membership holders and for their benefit alone. The amount is so small that anyone can afford to go in, and I am so sure in my own mind that it will be a success—a big success, and earn enormous profits for us—that I am willing to go back to the camp, take off my coat and go in and work from early in the morning until late at night to get the ore opened up and ready for the mill. I am satisfied that we can produce results in less than a year. All I want you to do is to let me have your immediate subscription for one or more memberships, and I will buy a stock of powder, go back to the mine and get to work. May I count upon your co-operation?

QUICK RETURNS ON YOUR MONEY

THIS IS THE DAY OF QUICK ACTION. No man wants his money tied up in a proposition that only has a promise of paying out in the sweet bye and bye. Get your money in and your profits out. That is my idea, and I think I am right. I feel pretty sure that I can give you your money back and your share of the earnings inside of a year. Possibly sooner. In any event, you may be assured that I will not delay a minute longer than is necessary. I want my share as soon as I can get it, and you will get yours at the same time. I believe that these memberships will be snapped up in a hurry, and so I advise you to not delay your order. Better be a little early than too late. Your certificate will be forwarded to you upon receipt of your order and remittance. There will be no delay at this end. Frequent reports will be sent to the membership holders telling of the development at the mine, and if you have any suggestions to offer send them along. I am a miner, a practical miner, and know the business as well as any of them, but I am not fool enough to think I know it all. I am always anxious and willing to learn, so if you think you can give me any pointers that will help me I will thank you to let me have them. Now I have given you about all the important details in regard to the proposition. It is now your move. If you want something in an investment that looks a little bit better and a little bit quicker than anything else in the market, I want to hear from you. If you are a pessimist, and believe that you are doing well enough, you will just be wasting your time and mine in writing to me. Otherwise, clip and send in the attached coupon to-day—NOW. I will do my best to make money for both of us.

A large amount of rich ore has already been taken out of this mine, and a nice little streak of it is in sight now. The mine is all wired for electrical power and a power line passes only a few feet from the portal of the tunnel. Give me an electric power drill and I will go after that vein of ore in a way that will surprise the membership holders, and there will be no fooling around waiting for this, or for that, BUT I WILL PRODUCE RESULTS. I have to get my profits in this enterprise from the same source that you do: FROM THE ORE PRODUCED, and you may be assured that I will not lay around doing nothing until our money is all used up. Opening up the pay streak means as much to me as to any other membership holder: and I am going into the proposition to make it pay. If nothing unforseen occurs I will do it, too. Our profits should be very substantial, for there will not be many to divide the earnings among. I know all about the veins of ore in this camp; I know the character of the ore, and I know the quickest way to reach the ore bodies. If you will come into the proposition with me now, when I need your co-operation, I will give you your share of all I take out.

I Don't See How You Can Lose

In this proposition I honestly don't see how you can lose. In the first place the amount invested is so small and the promise of big profits so exceptional that only a small amount of ore would have to be produced to at least get your money back. But if I thought getting my money back would be the best I could do I would not waste a minute's time on it. In other parts of this mine former operators took out large amounts of ore, and they never acquired any depth to speak of. Now, every miner in the Empire District knows that as depth is attained the ore bodies enlarge, and the values increase. The American lode that I have mentioned before is known to be very rich, and from on top of the hill, just a little ways north of this property, it dips directly towards me and down into the mountain. I think by driving the tunnel straight in that we will cut it in less than 200 feet. The vein now uncovered in the tunnel is evidently a stringer of the Americus lode.

No More Than Ten Memberships to Anyone

A square deal, fairness and equality for all. An honest disbursement of the syndicate's funds. Those are the principles and basic standards of this enterprise. I am going in on the same basis as yourself. If I make any big money out of the proposition I will have to get it from the same source that you do—THE EARNINGS FROM THE MINE. I will only own ten memberships, the limit for any one individual, and when the proposition is financed the membership holders shall say whether or not we shall incorporate. If so, for how much; and they shall elect their own officers from among their own number. The enterprise shall belong to the membership holders and they shall run it to suit themselves. All I want to do is work the mine. That is as much or more than one man can attend to properly, and I don't want to be bothered with any office work. Now, my friends, if you have faith in me and my proposition, I want your co-operation, and I will ask you to send me your subscription. If you haven't, you won't do me any good and I can't do anything for you.

FREE FIGHTS IN PARLIAMENT

Some of the Memorable Combats that Have Taken Place in the British House of Commons

Vigorous hand-to-hand struggles are not common at St. Stephen's, but they are not by any means unknown. As a matter of fact, fights have taken place at the House of Commons ever since the time of Cromwell, when his soldiers had to clear the House at the point of the bayonet to prevent bloodshed and wholesale destruction.

"Judas"

Perhaps the most remarkable scene of this description within modern times happened on July 27th, 1893. Mr. Chamberlain was speaking against the late Mr. Gladstone, and at ten o'clock, when the closure fell, someone shouted out "Judas," and this very unparliamentary epithet was reported to the Chairman, who, however, declared that the offensive expression had not been heard by him. He ordered the division to be proceeded with, whereupon several members of the Tory party refused to leave their seats. A few seconds later war was declared by a Conservative seizing an Irish member by the coat-collar, and within a short time there was a regular free fight in the House, in which Colonel Saunderson was rendered hors de combat after he had scientifically "floored" one or two of the "enemy." John Burns, it is said, helped to pull the combatants asunder until the arrival of the Speaker put an end to the unseemly proceedings.

Colonel Saunderson took part in many disputes at Westminster. He fell out with Mr. William Redmond one day, and it looked as if the pair would settle their differences with blows. The Colonel, it appears, had commented very strongly on Irish violence, and Mr. Redmond took each and several of the comments as a personal insult, suggesting that the redoubtable Colonel should meet him in the Lobby after the sitting. The Speaker, becoming aware of this sent a note to the chief of police at St. Stephen's, asking him to take up a position in the Lobby and prevent a fight between the hon. members. The expected, however, did not happen, for when Mr. Redmond and the Colonel met in the Lobby they calmly talked matters over, and finally wished each other a cheery "Good day."

"It is a Lie"

Some years back, when the House happened to be in Committee, the Irish members refused to go into the lobbies for division. The Chairman sent for the Speaker, and that gentleman promptly "named" the offenders, and their suspension was moved and carried. The Irishmen refused to budge an inch until a body of police walked into the House. Even then it was as much as the constables could do to "move them on." As a matter of fact, the police and the Irish members had a regular fight before the former conquered and carried the latter bodily out of the House.

During the debate on emancipation in the Commons Mr. Brougham, afterwards Lord Brougham, turned towards Mr. George Canning and bitterly exclaimed, "You have exhibited the most incredible specimen of monstrous truckling for the purpose of obtaining office that the whole history of political tergiversation could furnish." Canning replied, very quietly, "It is a lie!" A deathly quiet reigned in the House for some minutes, and one could have heard a pin drop. Presently, however, a lively debate took place between the members present, some of whom advised Mr. Brougham to withdraw his remark and apologise, while others requested Mr. Canning to do the same. Finally it was suggested that the couple should be committed to the Serjeant-at-Arms. The necessity for this gentleman's intervention happily did not arise, for the two disputants settled the matter between themselves and peace was once more restored.

A terrible scene occurred in the Austrian Parliament some years ago. A member made a twelve hours' speech with the object of obstructing a Bill that it was proposed to pass into law. A member who had had enough of the "talk" made a grab for the President's bell, and was promptly seized by other members. A fierce struggle ensued, members being guilty of the most outrageous violence. One man had half of his hair torn out by the roots, while another was nearly throttled. Chairs were flung all over the place, and one member drew an evil-looking knife and, brandishing it aloft, shouted, "I will stab all who approach me!" The knife was wrenched from his hand before he could use it.

Off With His Head

In earlier times it was the custom to commit a British political prisoner to the Tower of London, where he was often shortened by a head by means of the ill-famed axe and block. More recently he was transported to the memorable Botany Bay, or one of the other British penal colonies, but now that transportation is a thing of the past he is either shut up in the House of Commons itself or in the ordinary jails of the Kingdom. There is room for two prisoners only at St. Stephen's, and any beyond that number would probably be boarded out at Holloway or Pentonville.

The Parliamentary "cells" are situated 30 feet up in the Clock Tower of the Commons, and they are replete with every modern convenience and command an admirable view of the Thames, the Embankment, and New Palace Yard. Each "cell" consists of a comfortably - furnished sitting - room, measuring about 19 feet by 14 feet, and a couple of bedrooms, one for the prisoner and the other for his jailer. All food is supplied by the refreshment department of the Commons, but the prisoners are obliged to pay for their meals.

WANT TO SMOKE

Several hundred London omnibus builders have gone on strike because they cannot get smoking at their work.

GERMAN ACTORS

A recent report shows that some 6,000 actors in Germany earn on an average no more than $300 a year.

SURF TO MATRIMONY

A celebrated American billiard player who rescued a lady from drowning in the surf at Atlantic City some months ago has now plunged with her into the sea of matrimony.

A BOTTLE A DAY

At a Liverpool inquest upon an old woman of 70 it was stated that she consumed a bottle of whisky a day, and no one could break her off the habit.

TO DEVELOP INTELLIGENCE

A New Left-Handed Movement Has Been Started

A movement has been started in Germany for the cultivation of ambidexterity. The idea is that developing the power to use both hands equally well means developing the intelligence in general and the memory in particular. It is said to have been scientifically ascertained that while right-handed people have the organ of speech on the left side of the brain, and vice versa, people who are ambidexterous have two language centres, one in each lobe of the brain. The infant begins life with two speech centres, but as the right hand is generally trained, and the left neglected, the right speech centre gradually grows torpid and useless. The extraordinary claim is now made that by the cultivation of the left hand the capacity of the right speech centre of the brain can be revived, and to that extent broaden the intelligence as ambidexterity increases the use of the human being's hand. Instances are quoted by supporters of the movement in which practising the left hand has rescued a power of speech until then paralysed. One patient in question was stricken by paralysis of the left organ of speech, and with it paralysis of the right hand. The doctors started teaching the patient to write with the left hand, with the astonishing result that in a short time the power of speech was awakened in the hitherto torpid organ of speech. An even more astonishing case was that of a boy, who, at the age of 13, lost his left hand, and soon learned to do fairly well with an artificial member. At the age of 30 he suffered a stroke of paralysis, which robbed him of the power of speech, but by means of a small ring with a pen attached to it, fixed to the artificial limb, he could practise writing, and thus not only recovered power over his original speech, but over French and Russian, which he had forgotten. As a matter of fact, ambidexterity is necessary in several professions and occupations, of which surgery and piano-playing may be given as examples.

A WELL-SUPPLIED PULPIT

There are various morals to this story of Doctor Clifford, the eminent English clergyman. One is that it is wise for public speakers not to put off their appearance at the meetings they are to address till the last moment. A writer in Woman's Life tells the story.

Doctor Clifford was once conducting a series of services in Birmingham. Arriving a few minutes before the commencement, the doctor was refused admission by the policeman at the door.

"I want to go in," said Doctor Clifford.

"Are you a seat-holder?"

"No, I am not."

"Then you can't go in."

"I think," remarked the famous passive resister, "that there will be room for me in the pulpit."

"I am not so sure of it," retorted the officer.

"But I am Doctor Clifford, and I am due to preach in another minute and a half."

"Oh, are you?" said the incredulous policeman. "I have let in two Doctor Clifffords already."

BALMORAL

King George is as fond of Scotland as was his grandmother, Queen Victoria, before him, and keen sportsman as he is, says the Gentlewoman, enjoys shooting and fishing nowhere so much as on Deeside. His children, too, are all devoted to Scotland, and it will be a great change for them, after having always stayed at Aebrgeldie, to be housed at Balmoral. The late King and Queen did so much for the castle that it needs no putting in order. The brown and yellowish paint that disfigured the passages, yet satisfied Queen Victoria, was made to go, and Balmoral, all white, and rose, and green, the colors beloved in juxtaposition by Francis Bacon, and adopted by Queen Alexandra in many of her schemes of decoration, hardly knew itself.

"When young fellers gets a courtin'," said the rurdl resident, "they sure goes plumb crazy, an' that boy Sam o' mine ain't no exception."

"So Sam's started, eh?" queried the nearest neighbor.

"Started? I should say so. Why, didn't he go inter town yesterday an' blow in half a dollar for a toothbrush."

Some people try to substitute a pleasant smile for honesty.

Six Miles an Hour.

Magistrate Dumble has fixed the speed of autos in the business section of the city, which must not exceed six miles an hour. DO YOU THINK clearly, promptly, successfully, or is your brain sometimes—especially after meals—cloudy and sluggish?

Look to your food!

Successful, money-making men have well nourished brains and they keep them so, by proper food-habits.

GRAPE-NUTS

FOOD

contains the phosphate of potash (grown in wheat and barley) which Nature uses to combine with albumin in the blood, for rebuilding brain and nerve cells.

This food is partly pre-digested and is quickly absorbed, giving prompt nourishment to the exhausted brain and nerves.

Three heavy two-horse scrapers and two hired teams are busy employed drawing gravel, etc., from the cutting. Mr. J. Taylor, the contractor, complains of the lack of teams. The farmers are too engrossed in their spring work to put any teams on.

New Rules.

Since the recent increase of pay affecting section men went into force a new innovation has been adopted whereby each section foreman will have eight miles of track to look after instead of six as formerly. The above rules will apply to the main line only; on branch lines, section foremen will be assigned ten miles of track.

An Illustrated Lecture.

Senor Ray gave a very interesting address in the Park street Baptist church last night on religious work in South America. His lantern views are among the best ever seen in Peterborough. His lecture was listened to by a large and appreciative audience, who were deeply impressed with what was said.

Great Week for Des Moines.

Consequently the Chamberlain Medicine company is doing a great work for Des Moines. It has built up its enormous business without encouragement or assistance from commercial organizations, and indicates what any other firm can do that believes in fair and square dealing and by giving the people exactly what they buy with their money. The pay roll of the company is one of the largest, if not the largest in the city and the advertising it has given Des Moines through its world-wide business transactions has been of untold value.

VANCOUVER, B.C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

ROYAL Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

Royal Baking Powder is made from pure grape cream of tartar, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is more economical at its price than any other leavening agent, because of the superlative quality and absolute wholesomeness of the food it makes.

Mixtures made in imitation of baking powder, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food. In England, France, Germany and some sections of the United States their sale is prohibited by law. Alum is a dangerous mineral acid, and all physicians condemn baking powders containing it.

The label of alum baking powders must show the ingredients.

HOW NE TEMERE WORKS.

Robert Sellar tells of a French-Canadian couple who applied to a Protestant minister in Montreal to be married. They were legally united. Four children were born to them. The husband was secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor. This husband asked the Archbishop to declare his marriage void. The Archbishop did so. The wife was then deserted.

A couple were married in the Roman Catholic chapel of St. John's, Quebec. After living together as man and wife, the man discovered his wife was his second cousin. He appealed to the Archbishop of Montreal, and that functionary declared the marriage invalid. That husband has since married another woman.

A citizen of the diocese of Montreal applied for a dispensation to marry his second cousin and obtained it. After he grew tired of his wife, or had stirrings of conscience, he asked to have his marriage annulled on the ground that she was his first cousin. He had represented her to be his second cousin when he married her, in order to save $100, which is the price of the dispensation, to enable first cousins to marry. His marriage was annulled.

INCREASE OF SALARY FOR LADY ASSISTANT TEACHERS

ON THE PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHING STAFF.

Report of Committee on Appointments of Board of Education to This Effect Adopted, as Prepared, Last Night.

The Lady Assistant Teachers on the Public school staff are to have an increase in salary, to take effect when school re-opens next September, after the summer vacation.

The committee on appointments presented the following report to the Board in resumed session last night, after having resolved into a committee of the whole on the question.

The report speaks for itself :

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

The Chairman and members of the Board of Education,—

Gentlemen,—Owing to the great demand in the Western Provinces and in the Rural sections of Ontario for teachers, your committee on Appointments find it impossible to maintain the present high efficiency of the Public School staff on the present salary schedule governing the salaries paid to Lady Assistant Teachers.

After having examined the salary schedules of the greater number of the cities in Ontario, and having ascertained from the Principal of the Normal College in Toronto the salaries being offered the lady teachers training for First Class certificates, your committee would recommend that the present salary schedule of the Lady Assistants of the Peterborough Public School staff be amended as follows ; and that the salary schedule as amended take effect from September 1st, 1911 :

A. That Lady Assistant Teachers holding professional first class certificates be paid the initial salary of $600.00 per annum, with one annual increase of $50.00 and thereafter annual increases of $25.00 until the maximum of $750.00 be reached.

B. That Lady Assistant Teachers holding professional second class certificates be paid the initial salary of $500.00 per annum, with two annual increases of $50.00 each, and thereafter annual increases of $25.00 until the maximum of $700.00 be reached.

C. That the salary schedule for Kindergarten Directresses having two sessions per day be the same as for the professional second class teachers ; this schedule also to govern the salary of the Directress of the Kindergarten in connection with the Normal Training School.

Respectfully submitted,

W. H. Hill,
Chairman.

This report was adopted as read, and should meet with general commendation.

Y.W. C. A. ANNUAL MEETING

Splendid Address by Miss Caroline A. Macdonald, of Toronto.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association took place last night, and was well attended.

The speaker of the evening was Miss Caroline A. Macdonald, National Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., of Japan, who delivered an intensely interesting address, dealing with the work which is being done by the association in the Flowery Kingdom. Miss Macdonald is a Canadian, being a daughter of Dr. Macdonald, of London, Ont., and has spent several years in Japan. She is an exceptionally pleasing speaker, and told a thrilling story of work and progress in that far-off country.

At the conclusion of Miss Macdonald's address, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered her.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY A HUGE STONE

A sad accident occurred at the Golf Links yesterday afternoon, by which the caretaker, Mr. Walter Head, lost his life. It appears he was engaged in making an excavation in order to bury a large stone, when the earth gave way and the stone came down on top of him, crushing him to death.

The body was discovered by Mr. Robt. Neill, when making the rounds of the links.

He leaves a wife and two young children to mourn his untimely end.

PUBLIC OPINION

ASHES ON THE ROAD.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would suggest through the columns of your valuable paper that the large amount of surplus coal ashes about town be carted on to the roads. They make good roads and pack firmly. I would suggest that the town teams be engaged to draw these ashes on the streets and fill up the cavities, particularly in the suburbs.

U.M.E.

TOO MANY HOLIDAYS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see there is more "public" holidays looming up on the horizon, and I beg to enter my humble protest against "ringing in" so many idle days. It is now proposed to have a holiday proclaimed on June 22nd, in connection with the inauguration of the Chimes. Then we will have Victoria Day, Coronation Day, Decoration Day and Dominion Day—almost a full week of holidays, within a few weeks. I say, Mr. Editor, we cannot afford to take so much valuable time off work, and I think it time to call a halt, which would, I believe, represent a total loss to the workers and business interests of the city of upwards of $200,000.

Common Sense.

KEEP UP THE FIGHT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I congratulate The Times on the good work it is doing in connection with its fight against the Papal decree. It is in line with British liberty. I have not been a subscriber to your paper, but now cheerfully enclose my order, and will also promise to secure you a dozen or more subscribers in the course of a few days. Every man, be he Protestant or Catholic, who loves liberty and equal rights, with special privileges to none, should read The Times.

COUNCIL DOING WELL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—For years there has been a large bunch of men who do nothing but kick and grumble at the Council, the Board of Education and other public bodies. These men will not themselves take seats on any of the boards, but stand back ready to knife at the first opportunity. This is far from patriotic, and feelings of this kind should not exist in the community. We have, I believe, the best Council that Peterborough has had for many years. They are doing well and I believe every man of them is working with might and main in the best interests of the city. Therefore, I say, let the little petty jealousies and bickerings cease, and let us all unite in building up our city.

Horses Leg Swelled

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around a stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P.O. "I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline and it worked like a charm; in fact that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

NERVILINE IS A TRUSTY LINIMENT

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

NEW RETAINING WALL.

Mr. Robert Fair submitted the following :

Gentlemen,—Your Property Committee beg to draw the attention of the Board, to the dilapitated condition of the stone fence on the East side of the Central School building, and being along College street. A portion of this fence has caved in and more will follow.

Your committee have had Mr. Blackwell prepare a pencil plan for a new retaining wall, and he estimated the cost of the same at from $200.00 to $250.00.

Your committee would ask that they be authorized to have this work proceeded with.

This report was adopted as read.

Reports of other committees are crowded out until Thursday's issue.

WILL SCHOOL CHILDREN TAKE PART IN THE INAUGURATION OF THE PEOPLE'S CHIMES?

SUPERVISION COMMITTEE HAVE THE QUESTION IN HAND.

But It is Offered That as June 22nd Will be Examination Time, Children's Minds Should Not be Diverted From Their Studies.

Rev. Canon Davidson, chairman of the people's chimes committee, submitted to the Board of Education last night a proposition that the school children take part in the inauguration of the people's chimes on June 22nd, Coronation Day. Mr. W. H. Hill, whilst not opposed to the suggestion, on its merits, regretted that unfortunately, June 22nd will be examination time. Promotion examinations will be under way and little folk preparing for the departmental and high school tests under these circumstances, he feared the diversion of scholars' attention from their work to participation in inauguration ceremonies and Coronation celebration would result in many failures. At any rate the pros and cons of the proposition should be carefully weighed.

The question was referred to the Supervision Committee.

Whose Ox is Likely to Get Gored?

OLD FOLKS COUGHS

BECAUSE RESISTING POWER IS WEAK PNEUMONIA OFTEN FOLLOWS.

Tells of a Sure Cure and a Never-Failing Comfort for Colds, Coughs, Catarrh.

One of the worst terrors of old age is that distressing chronic cough. Colds settle on the chest, are wrongly treated with drug-laden and chest-weakening cough syrups, and from year to year the condition has grown worse. Formerly the cough went away when fine weather came, but now bad weather makes it worse and fits of racking, tearing coughing, make life a burden.

Because you are old is no reason for suffering with everlasting coughing—those terrible chest troubles and difficult breathing can be thoroughly cured with Catarrhozone. You simply breathe the healing vapor of Catarrhozone and instantly its rich balsamic fumes are carried by your breath into the tiniest recesses of the nose, throat, chest bronchial tubes and lungs.

Just think of it—a direct breathable medicine, full of soothing antiseptic pine essences that reaches every sore congested membrane in two seconds. No drugs to take—Nothing to harm the aged or in the infant, because Catarrhozone is the purest, safest cough, catarrh and cold remedy ever devised.

Mrs. M. E. Walford, wife of a well-known grocer in East Sheffield, writes: "For three years I suffered with a hard racking cough and bronchial irritation which annoyed me so much at night I couldn't sleep. I tried many remedies, catarrh tablets, sprays, syrups, etc., but they only helped for a short time. Catarrhozone brought me wonderful comfort from the first. I inhaled its balsamic fumes every hour or two and am now free from any trace of cold, bronchitis and catarrh. I can go out in all kinds of weather and don't take cold."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutors. Large Catarrhozone last two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. All reliable dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

MORMON IMMIGRATION.

From over seas come echoes of indignation over the active propaganda that is being carried on there by the Mormon missionaries. These are not content to make converts to the Church of the Latter-Day Saints, the converted ones are urged by various means and tempted to various inducements to emigrate to the United States and to settle in Utah.

In the great cities of England, London, Liverpool, Birmingham and Manchester these Mormon missionaries are particularly active and as Mormonism is so distinctively American these Mormon missionaries are thought of first as Americans and only secondly as Mormons, a fact that is not doing much credit to the American name in the minds of the Britishers.

It is said that in England the Mormon workers publicly repudiate the polygamous feature of their religion while, at the same time, it is this tenet of their faith that they most strongly dwell upon in private efforts at "conversion." Whether this is true or not the fact remains that so eager is the Mormon church to secure new converts from England that it has funds for the assistance of such emigrants as can be induced to come to this country.

We have come to be unusually careful about the admission into our ports of undesirable immigrants and this news from England of Mormon activity in adding to the numbers of our immigration should put our immigration authorities on their guard.

CANADA'S PEAT SUPPLY.

Government statistics on the peat supply says: The Provinces of Ontario and Quebec send $20,000,000 a year to the United States for coal. The development of some of our extensive peat bogs will help to keep some of this money at home and to furnish additional employment to Canadians in Canada. Canada has 37,000 square miles (23,680,000 acres) of known peat bogs, but these form probably but a small fraction of the total, constituting a potential national asset of enormous value. Some idea of the possibilities may be gained from the estimate that 28 acres of peat, 9 feet deep, should yield 50,000 tons; enough to supply 100 families for twenty-five years allowing twenty tons per annum to each family, or enough to furnish a power plant of 100 horsepower, using steam engines, with fuel for more than 25 years of 300 ten-hour days, allowing 12 pounds of fuel per horse power hour developed. The fuel, is used in a suitable gas producer, would last the same plant about 100 years.

NO INDICATION OF ANY ENDING OF PARLIAMENTARY DEADLOCK

Ottawa, May 1.—There is no indication of any ending of the Parliamentary deadlock over reciprocity. Indeed, the members who have been away, and it is asserted equally on both sides that there will be no surrender, but that the fight will be kept on to the bitter end.

It is insignificant that the Liberals are as enthusiastic as are the Conservatives over the prospect of a fight. There is, of course, a certain disappointment among those who had planned summer outings, and especially among those on each side who had been selected to represent the Dominion Parliament at the Coronation, and while they are still hoping against hope that "something will allow their attendance at the great event in June, the Liberals, at least, are ready to abandon the signal honor conferred upon them and stay by their chief and their party in the fight for government by the majority rather than by the minority in the Commons.

The suggestion which was sent from Winnipeg on Saturday to the effect that the Governor-General had suddenly cut his trip short and had been "recalled" to Ottawa "by reason of the political deadlock" is ridiculed by those who know the facts. His Excellency went West to attend the Earl Grey dramatic and musical competitions, and it was announced, prior to his departure, that he would be back in Ottawa on May 1, which is to-day, in order to open the Ottawa horse show, and to be ready to welcome Right Hon. James Bryce, the British ambassador.

BIG IMMIGRATION PROSPECTS.

It is announced by Mr. W. D. Special Annoucement to you with dollars lying idle who are looking for a safe, substantial investment, one that will bring in a big revenue in the days to come when you are not able to handle daily toils. You are doing yourself an injustice if you don't enquire into

The Okanagan Canners Ltd.

We are a co-operative institution incorporated under the laws of British Columbia. We are going to revolutionize the fruit growing industry of the Okanagan Valley.

Pick up and read any reliable literature on British Columbia, that of the C. P. R. for instance, and you will find (stamped with the official seal of authority) in referring to thriving towns in the Okanagan Valley, CANNERIES ARE NEEDED HERE. A CANNERY WOULD THRIVE HERE; WHAT THIS PLACE NEEDS IS ANOTHER FRUIT CANNERY, etc.

• • • •

Now then, we are going to fill that much needed want and are driving in the opening wedge at KELOWNA. This beautiful little city, right on the center of the Okanagan Lake, is ideally located for our base of supplies. We will be able to pick up the fruits and vegetables at all points along the lake from Vernon (Okanagan Landing) to Penticton. Considering that the plans for our plant call for turning out 10,000 cans per day, per a ten hour shift, you can readily see that we are going to operate on no small scale, inasmuch as all arrangements have been made to operate a double shift.

IN PRAISE OF NELSON

"The Most Fascinating Man I Ever Conversed With."

Eight letters written by Nelson's chaplain on the Victory, the Rev. A. J. Scott, have just been sold by auction. While off Toulon Mr. Scott wrote to Lady Lavington:

"I never yet in my life met with so pure a mind as his, every thought flowing from the lusty family of selfishness is a stranger to his breast. He possesses that impulse of genius which, to whatsoever point the mind be turned, conceives, judges, and determines what is to be done, with promptitude."

It was his duty to accompany the body home after Trafalgar. On Dec. 10, off Spithead, he writes:

"Let the country mourn their hero. I grieve for the loss of the most fascinating companion I ever conversed with. The greatest and most simple of men—one of the wisest and most innocent—interesting beyond all. On shore—in public, and even in private life, men are not always themselves, and put on their behavior with their clothes—but if you live with a man on board of ship for years—if you are constantly with him in his cabin—your mind will soon find out how to appreciate him—the more you knew Nelson the more you loved him."

He was horrified later to find that a price was charged per viewing the coffin in St. Paul's, and remarks that no wonder the French call us a "nation boutiquiere." With this batch was a letter by Capt. Wolfe, of the Thunderer, describing the hero's death:

"I much fear his honours were the cause of his death, as he evidently was picked off from the rest, wearing his stars in action, which, in my opinion, was rather indiscreet. He loved to hear victory pronounced, and that the few ships of the enemy that were able were making off with all possible sail. It had a very great effect on him. He appeared pleased and happy, and thanked God for allowing him to outlive the day, and died almost immediately convulsed—his joy was too great."

This interesting series of letters realised $305.

THE ALTAR OF FASHION

Wholesale Destruction of Rare and Beautiful Birds

Addressing members of the Royal Colonial Institute, London, on the subject of "The birds of the Colonies and their preservation," Mr. Jas. Buckland said the critical condition of many of the more rare and beautiful birds of our colonies, due to their destruction in the millinery interests, was one which it was impossible to adequately realise or to exaggerate. Among ornamental feathers assumed for show during the courting season the strangely beautiful tail of the lyre bird of Australia was unequaled. A few years back over 400 lyre birds were killed in one district in a single season to supply the London plumage market. It was not so long ago that some sordid vandals surrounded a patch of scrub in which some representatives of this fast-disappearing genus were known to be breeding, and setting fire to it they shot down these avian marvels as they struggled through one pitiless ring of fire only to meet their death in another. The plumes having been cut off, the bodies were thrown aside to rot. No species could withstand such ill-timed slaughter as this, and it was a fact of sinister import that 150 tails only had been catalogued this year in the London feather sales. The egret had been practically exterminated in North America and in China, and was so thinning its ranks throughout the world that the best selected plumes were now fetching over $40 the ounce at London feather sales, double the value of gold.

ELEPHANT HUNTER'S INCOME

The first meeting of creditors under the failure of the Hon. Rupert Cecil Craven, a son of the third Earl of Craven, was held at the London Bankruptcy Court, when it was stated that the debtor's occupation had been mainly that of elephant hunting, which produced him an income of $2,500 a year.

The debtor owes about $5,000, and has no assets. He attributes his position to heavy expenses in connection with divorce proceedings in 1899 and to loss over South African shares in 1905.

The case was left with the Official Receiver to be wound up in bankruptcy.

SOME ANCIENT DOGS

It is impossible to say when dogs were first domesticated, but some of the earliest traces are found on Egyptian monuments, with figures of dogs, somewhat of the greyhound type, which date back to at least 3,500 B.C. Even in those remote days the dog was highly esteemed. Coming down a little later, we read that Ulysses, 3,000 years ago, was recognised by his dog Argus after his swineherd had failed to do so. Plutarch speaks of Alcibiades, who cut off the tail of his dog, and Myron, the sculptor, immortalised the animal by chiseling his image in marble. The Romans valued their dogs, and kept them for the chase and also as pets. Alexander the Great owned a veteran dog.

A RUSTIC FUNERAL

In compliance with his wish, the remains of John Long, a farm foreman at Rowley Hill, Saffron Walden, were borne to the grave in a farm waggon, drawn by four favorite horses. His employer and all the employes on the estate followed. Long had worked on the same farm and for the same family for 56 years, while among those who followed the coffin were six laborers who had been employed on the same estate between 37 and 47 years.

THE DIFFERENCE

A certain truant officer recently made a call at the home of a pupil whose absence had extended over a week and inquired of the lad's mother, a genial-looking Irishwoman, the cause.

"Why," she said, 'he'b now past his thirteenth year, an' me an' 'is father-r think he's afthar-r having schooling enough, sor."

"Schooling enough?' repeated the officer. "Why, I did not finish my education until I was twenty-three."

"Be that so?" asked the mother, in amazement. Then, reassuringly, after a moment's thoughtful pause: "Well, sor, yez see, that boy of ours has b-brains."

CONVICTS HAUNT HOUSE

A Ghost Story From an Australian Township

Just a hundred years ago, outside one small Australian township, now the capital of one of the States, a clearing had been made, and the work of building a large residence was in hand. The Government official in charge of the convicts who were employed to do the work, was most inhuman in his treatment of his laborers. Hampered as they were by their heavy chains, which bound one to another, they might work as hard as they could, but they never satisfied him.

He was a sullen, cruel tyrant, and on the slightest excuse, and sometimes absolutely without provocation, he he would order the convicts to chain one of their fellow-prisoners to a tree, and then compel them to watch while he thrashed the helpless man with a leather-thonged whip. Fatigue alone would stop the inhuman brute from wielding the lash.

At last the house was finished, and was tenanted for the first time. But these occupants soon left, and no one since has remained for long; for the anguished cries of the tortured men and the sounds of their clanking chains haunt the house, sounding out in the stillness of the night at irregular periods, and proving more than a match for the most strong-minded man or woman. To-day that great house stands deserted, haunted by the restless spirits of those men who were tortured in the building of it.

BEDROOM ON FIRE

Boarder Proceeded to Extinguish It With Cups of Water

His great hobby was lying in bed. For weeks together he would never rise from his downy nest. One day, however, his landlady was surprised to see him—garbed in a heavy dressing-gown, with the collar turned up—walk slowly into the dining-room and, in a half-dazed, half-sleepy fashion, fill a glass with water and carry it carefully upstairs.

Five minutes later he returned again and repeated the performance. Still the landlady made no comment, for, when engaging his rooms he had requested that he should not be spoken to, because the noise of the human voice was apt to disturb the train of his thoughts. However, whilst, a few minutes later, he returned once more she felt constrained to ask him why he was indulging in this sudden fit of energy, for, like the good soul she was, she feared that he might be ill—and might die, in which case she would lose a good-paying lodger. Landladies are always disinterested.

"What is the matter, sir? You're not ill, I hope?" she cooed, on, with eyes half closed, and walking as slowly as the chief mourner at a funeral, he filled the glass for the third time and turned to leave the room.

"No!"—and he yawned sleepily. "No, I'm not ill; but my bedroom is on fire! That's all."

ELEPHANT WOULDN'T PLAY

Recognized in the Piano Keys Its Mother's Tusks

The other day an itinerant circus announced, as the chief attraction on its programme, a performing elephant who, amongst other accomplishments, played the piano. The hour of the performance arrived; the docile animal was led into the arena and conducted to an open piano, when suddenly he wheeled round, uttering lugubrious cries. After a brief conference with the elephant's valet, the proprietor of the show came forward and said that until another piano could be procured that part of the programme could not be carried out. The elephant, a most sympathetic and affectionate creature, had recognised in the ivory keys of the instrument the tusks of its mother!

THE CHAMPION COW

The champion milch cow of the world is now supposed to be Chief Josephine, the prize cow of the University of Missouri. Eight months ago the keepers of the animal began a race for the record of one year. In the time that has elapsed since the start her milk yield has been greater by 2,100 pounds than that of any other cow that has ever lived. Josephine's daily yield has been 89 pounds. Her best record for a single day is 110.2 pounds. The cost of feeding her is about 35 cents a day.

PARLIAMENT REFRESHMENTS

How the late Parliament refreshed itself is told in the report just issued of the Select Committee appointed to control such arrangements. From February 15th to August 3rd, 94,089 meals were served, made up as follows: 18,162 luncheons, 37,592 dinners, 216 suppers, 45,705 teas, and 2,377 meals at the bar. The receipts amounted to $60,000. There was spent on provisions $26,000; cigars, $3,300; wines, etc., $21,000.

CORONATION DIAMONDS

The coronation of King George will see the Cullinan diamond take its place among the Crown regalia for the first time. Since it was quite impossible to cut this wonderful stone as a whole, it was split into two main portions, each of which is considerably larger than any other diamond the world has ever seen. The larger of the two has just been placed in the centre of the front of the crown that the King will wear next June.

EATING THEIR NAMES

In order to facilitate the teaching of the alphabet a Servian schoolmaster has provided each of his youngest pupils with a chocolate set of letters. As soon as the child can put his name together correctly he is allowed to eat it. Word-making is taught on the same plan. Most of his pupils can read fluently in three days.

GOOD BOY!

Stern Parent:—"Tommy, you are not to play with that Smith boy any more; he looks a bad little boy."

Young Hopeful:—"Oh, daddy, he isn't: he's a good little boy. He's been in a reformatory school twice, and each time he's got out for his good conduct."—Weekly Times, Melbourne.

MEAN!

Ethel:—"Did you notice that Gus gave me his first dance last evening?"

Gertie:—"Yes, dear. He told me afterward he believed in getting disagreeable things done as soon as possible."

FREE FISH SUPPERS

The inhabitants of the Holy Isle had free fish suppers the other day. A steam drifter, with nine tons of fish aboard, stranded on the island, and the cargo had practically to be given away to the natives.

TOURIST TALK IN NILELAND

Mrs. Grey met her young friend, Maude Murray, shortly after the return of the latter from a circular trip to the Mediterranean and the Nile with a party of girl students, "personally conducted."

"So you are just back from Egypt, Maude. Well, well! I know the sort of conversation you heard amongst your fellow tourists there. It would run something like this:

"'Isn't it lovely? Cleopatra lived here, and Moses, and Pharaoh. It makes your head swim, doesn't it?'"

RECORD RAINFALLS

The Past Year in Great Britain Goes Down to Posterity as One of the Wettest of Seasons

The autumn and winter of 1910 seem to have gone down to posterity as record wet seasons. Not since the days when Noah gathered them in two by two has there been so much wrath directed against the Clerk of the Weather. And not without reason. The average rainfall for the last twenty-five years, for the last three months of the year has been 8.44 inches. The average had been exceeded in 1910 when December was a fortnight old. During the thirteen weeks ending December 12th, 1910, there were 201 hours of sunshine and but 3½ inches of rain. Last year for a smaller period there were 6¼ inches of rain and but 237 hours of sunshine; and for three weeks of that period "King Sol" shone for four an a half hours only.

The significance of an inch of rain may be gathered from the fact that it is equal to 100 tons of water for every acre, or 64,000 tons for every square mile. From the beginning of October to the middle of December about 8 inches of rain had fallen in the Thames Valley, which would fill the Thames in just over 100 hours, half to negotiate a downfall of water equal to 1,951,744,000 tons, which would fill a channel 2,000 miles long, 20 feet deep, and 250 feet wide. The Thames Valley covers an area of 2,812 square miles, so that a fall of one inch over the whole valley is equal to 243,969,000 tons of water, which has been calculated to equal a river 10 feet deep, 250 feet wide, and 1,000 miles long. It is computed that the weight of rain that falls in the Old Country in the course of a year averages 3,000 tons to every acre, and, as there are 77,143,985 acres in the United Kingdom, this computation shows us that 231,431,814,000 tons of rain fall on its surface in the course of twelve months.

One of the heaviest rainfalls yet recorded in the British Isles was 2.34 inches in 40 minutes in Forfarshire, during a severe thunderstorm on June 18th, 1857. On August 1st, 1846, 3.13 inches fell in 2 hours, 17 minutes at Camberwell, London. Of heavy falls during one day the following might be mentioned: Ben Nevis Observatory, 7.29 inches, on October 3rd, 1890; Newport, Wales, 5.52 inches, July 14th, 1875; and Cammaimas, Argyllshire, 5.60 inches, January 24th, 1868.

AN IRON ISLE

Discovery of Ore on Sassay, an Island Near Skye

A new mining centre may be opened up as a result of the discovery of iron ore in the little island of Ramsay, which lies between Skye and the mainland of Scotland. The island covers an area of about twenty-eight square miles. The investigations, it is said, have been so satisfactory that a Scotch steel firm has secured an option for the purchase of the entire island. It is believed that recent developments have been considered sufficiently important to justify the erection of blast furnaces for the smelting of ore. The discovery may mean extensive employment for the inhabitants of Ramsay, the adjoining isle of Skye, and the mainland of Ross-shire. Skilled labor will be in demand, but a certain proportion of unskilled labor will also be required.

SOLDIER AND SCULPTOR

Adrian Jones Understands a Horse From Tail Tip to Nostril

It is said of Captain Adrian Jones, who has designed the four-horse war chariot, weighing upwards of thirty tons, which is to be erected in London as a memorial to "Peace," that he is probably the only living sculptor who understands a horse from tail-tip to nostril. As a boy he loved and studied horses, and would have liked to become an artist, but his father had other plans, and he entered the Army. He saw much active service, and was then advised to become a sculptor, having devoted most of his spare time when in the Army to painting and sculpture.

ONE MAN, SEVENTEEN VOTES

What a champion pluralist was the Rev. Washbourne West, a late Senior Fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford, who in 1892, at the age of eighty, recorded seventeen votes in different parts of the country and still left half-a-dozen unused. A hundred and twenty votes in four years was Mr. West's achievement; and very proud he was of it, as he more than once told his friends. His only regret was that he could not live to make it two centuries. He recorded eight of his 1892 votes in two consecutive days at places as far apart as Sevenoaks and Mid-Oxford. But this feat was beaten by the seventy-year-old Mr. W. J. Haywood, of Herne Hill, who, at a recent election actually voted in six county constituencies in one day, covering something like 250 miles in his motor-car.

A TRAGIC SIGHT

Mr. Asquith in speaking recently in Edinburgh said: "One of the most tragic sights in our town life is that of a boy sitting in the tail-end of a van reading some trashy story, rapidly graduating, as soon as his present precarious and short-lived occupation comes to an end, for a place in the unemployable. For years past this has been the darkest blot and the most fatal gap in our educational system."

A SCOTTISH ROMANCE

The air was keen with frost; on the worn rim of the granite drinking-trough the sparkles glistened like encrusted gems; a thin layer of clear ice covered the stream which had trickled from the old pump. But the two who stood beneath the thatch saw none of these things; the world had ceased to exist for them. They were alone together in the wonder of Love's Garden.

With throbbing pulses John Anderson looked into the sweet face at his shoulder.

"Janie," he cried, "I am loving you with every bit o' me! I am little o' it, I ken that fine, but I am taking the turn, lassie. I am away to Edinburgh the morn to earn a steady wage, and before the year comes again to Hallowe'en, I'll be wedding you, gin you'll have me. Gie me one wee word, lassie!"

For a moment the girl stood silent; then, turning, she looked him in the eyes.

"It's just love, John," she whispered. "That's the one wee word."

"Lassie—lassie mine!"

The passionate words brought the splendid color to her cheeks, and, with a low, tremulous laugh, she freed herself from his embrace.

"They'll be seeking us," she said. "We maun away back for the burnin' o' the nuts."

Midnight was striking when the merry company at last dispersed, and, lingering a moment, John Anderson took the wee twist of newspaper which Janie Morton slipped into his hand.

"It's the ashes o' our nuts," she whispered. "Put them below your pillow, dearie; we maun be courtin' the same dream."

Entering the farm on the Saturday night following the festival of Hallowe'en, Janie Morton was arrested by the sound of her uncle's voice, followed by that of the postman.

"I'm no' surprised; they Andersons have aye been a thankless lot. I aye said the lad would come to no good. It's a peety it is that."

"What is a pity? What is wrong with John Anderson?"

At the sudden interruption, the two men turned, eyeing the girl as she stood by the table.

"He's got himsel' in jail," growled the farmer. "It's a' in the paper there."

Taking the news sheet in her trembling hands, Janie read the account of the street brawl in which her lover had distinguished himself by knocking down and injuring a constable, receiving, as a reward, one month's imprisonment.

"It's a sair peety. It'll just stick to him a' his days, like a smudge o' tar; it—"

Dropping the paper, the girl fled from the room, up the steep stairs to the quietude of her own bed-room.

Her heart cried out to him across the silence; other means of communicating with him she had none, for in Edinburgh there are many jails, and she knew not in which to find him.

* * * * * *

Ten long years had winged their flight, and once again the hand of Time pointed to the festival of Hallowe'en.

From behind a gay array of apples Grannie Kirsty gazed through the doorway of the little grocery store wherein she had reigned for close on half a century. Trade was brisk, and her old eyes twinkled as she watched her slim-waisted, deft-handed grandchild dispensing pounds of nuts and apples to the eager customers who stormed the counter.

Truly, ten years had seen the changing of the old order. Old faces had vanished; lads and lassies had left their youth behind them, the bairns their toys. Of those who had filled the farm kitchen with merriment, Janie Morton alone remained, living in an unaccountable solitude at the farm bequeathed her by her uncle. Only Grannie Kirsty knew the secret lying in the depths of her loyal heart.

With absent eyes, the old woman stared at the big, bronzed man who entered the shop on the heels of a tilted laddie of seven.

"Can you tell me who is at Morton's farm now?" he asked, speaking with the accent of a Colonial.

"Ay," she answered slowly, peering at him through her glasses. "There's just Miss Janie there. She has had it this long while."

"She is unmarried, then?"

Involuntarily the question seemed to escape the man's lips, and Grannie Kirsty looked intently at him.

"She's by her lone," she said. "There's many wanted her, but she wudna have them. She's been by her lone these ten years long. Would you be wishing to visit her, anyway?" she asked musingly. "If so be as ye should be going to the farm, I'd take it kindly of you if you would just be taking this wee bag down for me. She'll ken fine what it is if ye say it comes frae Grannie Kirsty."

"I'll do that for you," he said, and, thrusting the bag into his coat-pocket he hurried from the shop.

Alone in the glowing kitchen which ten years ago had echoed with many a peal of laughter, Janie Morton sat before the fire, showing red between the polished bars of the stove, her hands clasped together in her lap, and within them a twist of newspaper.

Never a Hallowe'en had come round that she had not burnt the nuts in her own name and that of the man she loved, butt o-night, for the first time, her heart had failed her for very aching, and she had omitted to call for them at Grannie Kirsty's store. Through all the years she had waited and hoped, faithful to the core; but "hope deferred maketh the heart sick," and one by one the tears welled up, brimming over, falling in a bitter rain upon the packet of ashes that had been the mute companion of her loneliness.

"John, dearie, I'm loving you yet!"

Broken with sobs, the words fell upon the silence, as the bearer of Grannie Kirsty's "wee bag" lifted the latch.

Starting to her feet, she faced him, the color rushing to her cheeks, only to ebb away.

"Janie, my wee lassie—Janie!"

The cry rang out through the quiet round about them, and John Anderson come to my senses. Mabel Peterby, I love you better than anything on earth. But never again for me! During the short space of seven hours I have ruined your gas and plumbing system, put four doors out of order and spoiled a kitchen range. I want to tell you that I know nothing of house affairs; neither do I intend to learn. If I couldn't make money enough to hire some one else to do manual labor for me I would go out and drown myself; but as for being a man of all work around any girl's house, not for me! Farewell!"

He staggered as sternly as he could up to where she stood.

"You can marry me as I am," he whispered, 'or not at all."

He started feebly for the door, but a pair of clinging arms wound around his neck.

"Jack, dear," said a soft voice, "don't you understand. Don't you see that you are just the kind of a man I need. I wanted to make sure of you, that is all. Papa has been the trial of my life for ever since I can remember—a perfect nuisance around the house, morning, noon and night—and I made up my mind that I wouldn't marry a man like him for all the money in the world."

He lay on the sofa and gazed up at her joyfully.

"If you mean that, dear," he said, "send for a bottle of whiskey, have a decent meal cooked and telephone for a minister."

KEEPS HIS VOW

Great Musician Who Plays Once a Year on the Street

A curious story is told by Mr. Auguste Van Biene, the famous actor-musician, whose comedy-drama, "The Broken Melody," has been played over 5,000 times. The title of "The Broken Melody" is derived from the beautiful refrain which Mr. Auguste Van Biene plays on the 'cello, and which is published in "The Strand Musical Portfolio." "That particular melody," he says, "was written expressly for the piece in rather peculiar circumstances. Two days before the first production, eighteen years ago, I was still without this most important item in the new work. I had written dozens of melodies, tried them, and torn them up; and I was beginning to despair of getting just what I wanted.

"Travelling from Brighton in a Pullman-car, I was having a game of cards with Mr. George Edwardes and other friends, and doing my best to forget all about 'The Broken Melody.' Right in the middle of the game an idea occurred to me. Getting a piece of paper I drew lines to represent a musical stave, and on this rough home-made MS. paper I jotted down the melody that has done so much to make the success of the piece, and also to ensure my own success, I am inclined to think."

By the way, on November 14th, every year for the last forty years, Mr. Auguste Van Biene has played in the streets, in fulfilment of a vow made when he was rescued from the gutter by Sir Michael Costa. The money he thus earns goes to charity.

A VISIT TO THE FALLS OF NIAGARA

There was an old couple the other day who had been to Niagara Falls, and were waiting for a train to their home in the interior of the State.

They felt that they had accomplished a big thing, and were consequently quite elated.

They had scarcely taken seats in the waiting-room when the old man turned to a stranger and said:—

"We've just got back from Niagry Falls. Hain't nothin' like them Falls in this whole country."

"Never heard of 'em," gruffly replied the stranger.

"You didn't! Lor' bless me, that's astonishing. Never heard of Niagry Falls?"

"No. What is it?" said the man.

"Why, it's the biggest lot of water falling over the awfullest precipice you ever heard of. Why, it makes folks shiver to look at it."

"Singular," said the man. "The papers ain't never mentioned it."

"They haven't! Why, them Falls 'as been there thousands of years."

"Now, don't you think it was a freshet or a dam broke loose?" queried the stranger.

"No, sir. That water keeps a-pourin' and hummin' and roarin' all the time."

"Must have been some trick about it," carelessly remarked the cynic. "If it was a real thing, there'd be some excitement about it. You don't drink?"

"Me drink! I've never drunk a drop in my life!"

"Well, it's too bad. Anyone who will swindle an old man like you deserves to be thrashed."

"Swindled! Do you pretend there ain't no Niagry Falls?"

"Never heard of them in my life," said the stranger, as he got up and walked away.

"Say, Hannah," replied the old man, turning to his wife, after a while, "did you hear that?"

"Every word."

"Say, when we git home we'll keep mum until I've seen Stebbins and know whether there is a Niagry Falls. If we've been fooled, we don't want to be larfed at; if it's all right, we kin do our blowin' when it's safe and will count. Don't say Goat Island or Horseshoe Falls to a livin' soul until we find out whether that ginger ale flew to our heads, or the show was all right and worth the money."

A gathering of 300 socialists at Montreal denounced the mayor for his restrictions concerning to-day's parade there.

A bush fire raged for several days last week over Haldimand Plains, near Cobourg. Dr. Hutchinson's residence at Grafton was burned.

A Correction.

In the hurry of handling the voluminous amount of business transacted by the City Council Monday night in time for next morning's paper, we got confused as to the real date Canon Davidson suggested in his somewhat lengthy correspondence, as the most appropriate day on which to inaugurate the People's Chimes, Our report should have read that Canon Davidson suggested June 22, Coronation Day, as the most fitting date for said inauguration, and not June 3rd, the King's birthday.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent, annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

MR. WILLIS CHIPMAN INTERVIEWS BOARD OF WORKS RE SOUTH CITY SEWERAGE SYSTEM

MUST HAVE A MECHANICAL ENGINEER TO OVERSEE INSTALLATION OF THE MACHINERY.

Mr. Bartlett to be Retained on Other City Work After May 31st.

Mr. Willis Chipman, the engineer in charge of constructing the South City sewerage construction, appeared before the City Board of Works last night, concerning the assignment of contract for South City sewerage system by Mr. Conroy to Mr. Bogue. Mr. Chipman was not prepared to say whether Mr. Bogue would be as satisfactory as Mr. Conroy or not. Mr. Bogue was practically boss last year over the whole work.

Regarding Mr. Chipman's expressed intention to dispense with Mr. Bartlett's service as inspecting engineer of this construction work, the former said he had no fault to find with Mr. Bartlett. He was governed in his decision for two reasons. First—Part of the work now to be done requires the oversight of a mechanical engineer in the setting up of machinery in the pumping station. Secondly—Mr. Bartlett did not get along very well with the contractors last year, and on one occasion he (Mr. Chipman) had to come down from Toronto expressly to settle a dispute. Mr. Chipman is going West this year, and he did not wish the work tied up because he was not available to settle matters. Apparently a local man could not get along with the present contractor.

The Board conceded that Mr. Bartlett is a good man, very thorough, and insists upon what is right. They pressed his retention in office.

The inspecting engineer is paid by Mr. Chipman.

Mr. Chipman contended that at the end of May he must have a more experienced man with machinery (one in his employ for years) than Mr. Bartlett. At the end of May the time will have arrived for installing machinery. Up to that time Mr. Bartlett might be continued on the work, and from then on he would suggest that he be retained by the city on their day labor work in connection with this sewerage system, of which there is a large amount to do. Mr. Bartlett is unquestionably a valuable man, and such a course would relieve the situation.

This course was acquiesced in.

His Worship, to Mr. Chipman—"You are the man we hold responsible, and we don't wish to throw any obstacle in the way of your doing a first class job."

WATER PIPE FOR FIRE PROTECTION AT AUBURN TO RUN ACROSS AUBURN POWER COMPANY'S DAM

BOARD OF WORKS AND COMPANY AGREED AS TO TERMS.

Council Will Unquestionably Accede to Their Board's Recommendation to This Effect.

The City Board of Works met last night. There were present Mayor Morrow, chairman; Aldermen Metherall, Anderson, Duncan, Graham and Brown.

Mr. Munro, of the Auburn Power Co., was present, and arrangements were entered into by which the Auburn Power Co. will permit a water pipe to cross the river, in their dam, to furnish fire protection for Auburn.

The city is to convey to the company the triangular piece of land at the east side of Water street north, opposite Colonial Weaving Co's old building, previously described in these columns, which the latter needs for tail race connection with their power house. This piece of land had been valuated at $400. The company in return for said conveyance are to purchase and lay across their dam a 6-inch water pipe, or should a 10-inch pipe be needed, then the city will pay the difference in the cost between a 6-inch and a 10-inch pipe. The Auburn people will also pay all costs connected with the closing of that portion of Water street in question. The city is to pay the company a nominal rental of $1 a year for use of dam so that the former's proprietary rights shall not be endangered.

On motion of Ald. Duncan, seconded by Ald. Graham, Mr. Munro's offer was accepted, and notice will be given of the closing of that portion of Water street in question.

The Board will recommend to the Council the acceptance of the foregoing agreement.

ILLUMINATED SIGNS.

W. J. O'Brien, of the Imperial Tobacco Co., of Montreal, wrote, asking permission to erect 6 electrical illuminated signs on the poles of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., subject to the city's by-law and supervision of the Engineer.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That this request be not granted as it is contrary to the by-law, which does not permit of signs projecting more than six feet over the sidewalk, and makes no provision for signs extending over the street.

The Tobacco Company's intention was that their signs should extend over the roadway.

PETITIONS.

Six of eight property owners petitioned for a granolithic walk on the east side of George street from Romaine to King Edward streets.

The Engineer will report on this matter.

Mr. F. R. Yokome claims $2.50 damages to his fence on Gilmour street by snow plow contractor Garnet Innis. No action was taken. Innes has no recollection of doing the damage complained of.

The account of Mr. Langford for valuating the land on the east side of Water street, to be conveyed to the Auburn Power Co. as before explained was authorized to be paid.

Ratepayers petitioned for a pipe sewer on Downie street, from Brock to Hunter. The petition was not sufficiently signed. Should this question be referred to the Board of Health, they will probably recommend the work, in the interests of public health.

A. S. Elliott asked for a sewer on Bethune street, from Hunter to Brock.

This petition was not sufficiently signed or in proper form.

The Board of Health asked that a sewer be constructed on Cambridge street from Cedar to McDonald.—Granted.

This will afford service to the Bonner-Worth people.

The matter of a septic tank for Waterford street again came up.

Ald. Graham thought it time enough to furnish this tank when lots are sold for building purposes. The question was tabled temporarily.

TO REPAIR WATER TANK.

On motion of Ald. Duncan, the water tank at drinking fountain near the police station, which is leaking, will be repaired. The chairman and engineer are to decide if a curb at this point would prove an advantage.

TO BUY A HORSE.

On motion of Mayor Morrow, a horse will be procured for street repairing work, this matter was left in the hands of the chairman, and Ald. Brown, cost of same to be paid on the certificate of chairman.

TO REPAIR CROSSING.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Ald. Brown, the C.P.R. will be requested to level up their crossing at George street with substantial fillings.

THE PEOPLE'S CHIMES TO PLAY THREE TIMES

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS TO BE PRESENT—57th REGIMENT TO TAKE PART.

Civic Committee Appointed to Confer With Other Committees—Rev. Canon Davidson Outlines a Program for Coronation Day.

The Legal and Reception Committee of the City Council met last night. There were present: Mayor Morrow, Chairman Ald. Graham, Aldermen Edgar, Anderson, Kernaghan and Bradburn.

A Citizens' Committee waited upon the civic gentlemen on the question of a fitting celebration of Coronation Day and incidentally a public programme in connection with the inauguration of the People's Chimes, to be installed in St. John's Church tower.

The Visiting Committee consisted of Rev. Canon Davidson, V. Eastwood, A. H. Stratton, Jas. Mills and ex-Ald. J. J. Turner.

Rev. Canon Davidson drew attention to the importance of Peterborough vieing with other cities in suitably celebrating the King's coronation on June 22nd. Then it so happened, he continued, that on that date there is going to be inaugurated the largest set of chimes in Canada, to which between 1500 and 2000 people have contributed. St. John's Church has agreed to hold those chimes in trust for Peterborough citizens in general. They will be a joy and happiness and a pleasure to generations to come. And Peterborough should make the most of the day when those chimes are inaugurated. An effort is being made to assume the attendance of leading Canadians, including the Bishop of Toronto and Senator Geo. A. Cox. Whilst the present committee in charge of said inauguration have not mapped out a fixed programme, something like the following has been thought of:

Coronation service at St. John's at 11 a.m.

A platform to be erected on church grounds facing Hunter street, for the speakers and distinguished visitors.

The 57th Regiment to be lined up along the bank of church property.

Approaching 12 o'clock, the formal dedication of chimes, which the Mayor will be asked to hand over to the Bishop on behalf of Peterborough citizens.

At 12 o'clock exactly, the chimes to play the "Old Hundred," "God Save the King" and "O, Canada;" and the 57th Regiment to present arms and fire a Feu de joie.

Then the Mayor and Council might give a simple luncheon at 50c per head, the civic authorities entertaining distinguished visitors.

Following luncheon, speeches, etc. The reverend gentleman here did not see why a platform should not be erected for the convenience of ladies.

School children might, with the School Board's permission give a demonstration in one of the Parks. Perhaps they might execute a living Union Jack, say, if dressed in red, white and blue, and sing patriotic songs.

Following this a concert in Victoria Park by the S.A. Band.

In the evening a concert might be given by the 57th Regiment Band.

The whole, to conclude with a grand display of fireworks.

The reverend gentleman thought the occasion might be sufficiently advertised to attract a fine reunion of "Old Boys" on June 22nd. He asked that a committee of the Council co-operate with other committees, in organizing a celebration worthy the auspicious occasion.

The other members of the committee concurred in Rev. Canon Davidson's views.

Mr. Eastwood said the Regiment is prepared to act in unison with other bodies, subject to orders from headquarters.

On motion His Worship, the following Aldermen were appointed a committee to confer with other committees, and report.

By the way, Coronation Day has not yet been proclaimed a public holiday by the powers that be at Ottawa.

MR. BRYAN'S VISIT.

Messrs. J. J. Turner, jr., and Gilchrist asked that Council make some suitable recognition of Mr. Wm. Jennings Bryan's visit here on May 18, when he will lecture in the Opera House, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Bryan is the American Democrat, who contested three Presidential elections. He is an exponent of free silver.

This matter was left in the hands of Mayor Morrow and Chairman Ald. Graham to arrange an honorary programme in a modest way.

FORMAL OPENING OF THE REX THEATRE

The formal opening of the Rex Theatre under the management of the Peterborough Amusement Company, was held last night, and crowds of people entered the spacious theatre to see one of the most up-to-date amusement houses in Ontario.

On entering, one was greeted with pleasant music, rendered by an excellent six-piece orchestra, chiefly composed of musicians of the 57th Regimental Band. The lighting facilities are most convenient, four arc lamps brightening up the place to its greatest capacity.

The floor is well graded and affords every opportunity of seeing what is going on, even if there is a double decker in front of you. The stage is very spacious and the elaborate background is certainly "classy."

The sides of the theatre are composed of oil paintings of Western scenes and views of rivers, lakes, etc.

Of course a stage curtain is necessary, and to fill this purpose a most nifty and well-painted piece of art is presented.

The show commences to-night with six big acts which will no doubt be enjoyed by a great many. The time will be Keith and Proctor, the same as played in Shea's Theatre, Toronto.

There will be a performance put on each afternoon running from 2 o'clock till 5, and two performances each evening.

The management have gone to no little expense in constructing their theatre and no doubt the public will show their appreciation by giving it a bumper house at every performance.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

SHOULD BE CELEBRATED.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I think, Sir, that the Coronation, the Inauguration of the Chimes and the Old Boys' Re-union should all be combined in one event, to take place on Coronation Day. If this is to be done, there is no time to lose. The mayor and chairman of the Board of Trade should get together without delay and arrange for a public meeting to discuss the "ways and means."

Citizen.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I was pleased to see that the Herbert case is to be taken to the Privy Council, the highest court in the British realm, and this will no doubt, settle the matter of whether the laws made by the Pope are to prevail in Canada, or the laws made by the King. Would it not therefore, be well to let this matter drop out of sight for the present, in order that religious discord might cease.

H.E.H.

Reply—There should be no "religious discord occasioned by opposing the Papal decree regarding marriage. We believe many of our Roman Catholic friends look upon the decree with little short of aversion. It is not an attack on the Church itself, but rather against its assumption of authority over matters that are inconsistent with the fullest liberty, as we view it, under the British flag. "Equal rights to all—special privileges to none," should prevail in this Canada of ours, if we are to become a great people.—Ed. Times.

THE DISMISSED FIREMEN.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I think an effort should be made to have the action of the Council in regard to the dismissal of the two firemen, Messrs. Grange and Thomas, rescinded. Ald. Kernaghan would no doubt exercise the divine instincts of charity, if properly approached. He, as well as the other Aldermen who voted to have these men dismissed, I am sure would not demand their "pound of flesh" if they felt that it was the wish of the ratepayers that the men be given another chance. It would therefore appear to me as decidedly proper that a petition be gotten up, giving effect to the above, and I am sure it will be largely signed, and I am also quite certain that the Council would be

ST. JAMES' SUNDAY SCHOOL PROSPERING

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers for Current Year.

Rev. J. S. Brown, the popular pastor of St. James' Methodist Church, presided at the annual meeting of the managing committee on Tuesday night. Reports of the school showed an average attendance for the first three months of 1911 to be 243, as compared with 139 for the first three months of 1910. The average attendance for April, 1911, was 244, as compared with 142 for the same month last year.

The contribution from the Sunday schools for missions was $48.17.

Mr. A. E. Prest was re-appointed superintendent, and the teachers are as follows:

Primary Department—Misses Emma Collins, F. Emmerson, and B. Collins.

Intermediate—Miss M. Drake, Morris, M. Kidd, L. Drake, Emmerson, Sanderson and Mrs. Thos. Brown, and Mr. Anderson.

Bible Classes—Mr. Goodwin, Mr. Fife, Mr. Petley and Rev. Mr. Brown, with Wm. McLaren and A. Kent as assistants.

Votes of appreciation were tendered Miss Collins for services as organist; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Brown for prizes and to Mr. E. J. Searight for his efficient work as secretary.

CITIZENS ASKED TO KEEP BACK YARDS, CLEAN AND SIGHTLY

At a meeting of the City Board of Works held last night, Ald. Brown offered that citizens should be requested to keep the lanes in rear of their dwellings clear of ashes, cinders and other debris.

His colleagues acquiesced in this suggestion, and the civic authorities respectfully request that citizens have such lanes cleaned at once, and maintained in a sightly condition, so as to enhance the beauty of our city, of which we have considerable reason to be proud.

It was suggested that any collection of cinders might profitably be drawn on to the roads, although no executive arrangement for such a course was reached.

MRS. HERBERT CLAIMS THAT THREATS WERE MADE USE OF

Montreal, Que., May 3.—In the quality of tutrix to Marie Eva Cloature, her two-year-old daughter, Marie Emma Cloature, through her attorney, filed a second opposition to Mr. Justice Charles Laurendeau's judgment declaring her marriage with Mr. Hebert null and void, in the Superior Court this morning.

The former wife sets up that if the judgment is given effect, her child will be illegitimate, and represents, on behalf of the child, that her opposition to the judgment should be maintained, and that she should be allowed to plead to the action to nullify her marriage. She also alleges that she, as the wife, set up in her first opposition, filed two weeks ago, in which it was stated that her consent not to oppose the annulment proceedings was gotten by threats, undue influence, and duress. She further claims that her husband represented to her that unless she consented to the annulment her child would be taken away from her.

It is understood that Mr. Paul Emile Lamarche, attorney, in the absence of Mr. L. J. Lefebvre, attorney who secured the annulment, will represent the husband in opposing the opposition to having the judgment declared invalid.

DISSOLVED MARRIAGE TIE.

Two young French-Canadians met in Paris, France. They were married in the Church of St. Sulpice, by the Abbe Joblin. They found they were uncongenial. The court of the Archbishop of Montreal declared the marriage ceremony was not binding because neither belonged to the parish in Paris, in which they were married. The marriage was declared void.

MESSAGE OF CHEER FOR TIRED WOMEN

MRS. GEO. BUTLER FINDS RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Farmer's Wife Who was Weak, Nervous, and Suffering From Backache, Tells Her Suffering Sisters How to Become Well.

Paquetville, N. B., May 3—(Special)—It is a message of cheer that Mrs. Geo. Butler, wife of a well-known farmer living near here sends to the tired, nervous, run-down women of Canada.

"My trouble was brought on by hard work," Mrs. Butler states. 'For four years I suffered from pain in the back. I was always tired and nervous. My head ached, and I had dark circles under my eyes, which were also puffed and swollen. I had flashes of light and floating specks before my eyes, and was generally in a run-down condition.

"I was feeling very bad when I began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I can only say I found relief at once. "To all who are suffering from pain in the back I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills. They will find relief."

New Train Service to "Lake of Bays."

An important feature that will be inaugurated during the coming season will be a new train service to the "Lake of Bays" district. A standard Grand Trunk passenger train will leave Toronto with through coaches parlor cars and dining car at 10.15 o'clock in the morning, daily except Sunday, for Huntsville, reaching the latter point at about three o'clock in the afternoon, connecting with the steamers for points in the "Lake of Bays" district, and affording passengers the opportunity of reaching their destination in time for dinner.

The Sunday evening boat service from the Wawa Hotel, Britannia, Point Ideal, Portage, Deerhurst and other important calling ports on "Lake of Bays" to Huntsville will be run on the same schedule as for season 1910, during the month of July, and August, and which will be a boom to week-enders desiring to return to the city for business on Mondays.

FARMES BANK CASES PUT OFF

Toronto, May 3.—Chief Justice Meredith in the Criminal Assizes this afternoon consented to a postponement of the Farmers Bank cases till the September sitting of the court.

This was done following the reading by A. S. Lown, being in part as follows:

"That I am informed by my solicitor, Mr. H. E. Rose, that he has had a conversation with Mr. J. R. L. Starr, who is solicitor for Mr. Lindsay and that Mr. Starr has informed him that Mr. Lindsay is at present in the United States, and that while he has no intention of presently returning to Canada and would not return for the purpose of giving evidence in its case, Mr. Starr would undertake to produce him at one of the border cities at a convenient time for examination as a witness and further that Mr. Lindsay's business requires him so that probably Mr. Starr would require three or four weeks notice in order to make a definite appointment for his examination and I merely believe the facts to be stated by Mr. Starr to Mr. Rose and that if a postponement of the trial is granted Mr. Lindsay's evidence can be obtained."

This affidavit is supported by the affidavits of J. R. Stratton, Robert Hall and J. J. Warren.

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public Are Warned to be Careful of Those Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that athlek liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantage of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Any good druggist or dealer can supply the large 25c bottle of Nerviline.

QUIRINAL AND VATICAN.

In celebration of forty years of freedom United Italy is holding carnival. Of course, the Vatican keeps aloof. According to the News, the feeling of bitterness between Church and State modifies but slowly. Cavour, Mazzini, and especially Garibaldi are names in bad odor with the prelacy. Constitutional Freedom is not so pleasing as the old autocracy over the former Papal States. The cloud no bigger than a man's hand which rose out of Sardinia has overspread the land from the Alps to Brindisi. It will be remembered that in Great Britain the movement for a united Italy was favored. Cavour was recognized as a capable statesman; Garibaldi, in spite of his rashness, was a popular hero. In the United States also the Italian movement for freedom was not lacking in support. The results have justified the experiment. The collection of jealous and warring states has been solidified into a nation, with national aims, national ideals. The constitutional monarchy is popular and a revolutionary condition has been succeeded by stability of government.

Still the Vatican is opposed. Italian unity has been an admirable thing for the people. None can deny that the Papal States are better governed now than ever they were in the old days. But the Church is opposed. First of all it declines to recognize the Italian celebration and remains glum and surly in the background.

The Archbishop of Quebec has caused a pastoral letter to be read in all the pulpits of the diocese expressing sympathy with the Holy See in this trying time and regretting the course of public events which made Italy a homogeneous nation with a liberal constitution. British freedom and toleration based on democratic government and the exaltation of the State made it possible for the Roman Catholic Church to exist and flourish in Canada. It is not fitting that any prelate of the Church in this country should years after reactionary systems, after an autocracy, benevolent or otherwise.

Commemoration with the Vatican over the establishment of the Kingdom of Italy does not reflect the feeling of Canada or of Britain, and is out of accord with the spirit of peace and tranquillity.

THE CONTROL OF BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS.

The issue of the report of the International Commission on the Control of Bovine Tuberculosis is of significant interest at the present time particularly in view of the active public demand for some definite and authoritative pronouncement in consideration of the whole situation as regards Bovine Tuberculosis in its relation to the welfare of the Live Stock Industry and its influence on public health. The economic importance of the subject has occasioned a very great deal of discussion in scientific and agricultural circles and has led to the adoption by various legislative and municipal bodies of measures for the suppression and eradication of this great scourge of domesticated animals and for the protection of the people against infection through the consumption of diseased meat or polluted milk. It has long been felt, however, that for the North American Continent a really efficient and satisfactory programme could only be arranged and undertaken with any prospect of uniform and permanent success through the concerted action on the part of the governments of both United States and Canada and only also when the legislation enacted or policy adopted was in substantial agreement with the expressed views of representative authorities of both countries.

The report referred to embodies the deliberate conclusions of just such an official and representative delegation and both farmers and the public generally are to be congratulated in having now placed before them in most concise and readable form a statement containing an epitome of the researches of the Commission and of the recommendations which it has at length determined to make. The decisions which have been reached are eminently conservative in their nature and for this reason, if for no other, they will exercise a much stronger appeal than would otherwise be possible, particularly in the case of those who may for any reason be prejudiced against legislative interference. The prevalence of this disease and the consequent loss to the breeders, as well as the now acknowledged danger to public health are not unlimited, but gravely acknowledged and seriously considered. Some given to the great practical difficulties which must of necessity be encountered in the conscientious carrying out of any policy likely to be used in combatting the malady.

Compulsory slaughter of infected animals is not advocated though the destruction of those showing clinical symptoms of the disease is advised. Compulsory testing is even not insisted upon, except in herds where the disease is known to exist, though the usefulness of tuberculin, as a reliable diagnostic agent, when properly administered, is confidently affirmed. The commission bases its great hope of ultimate success in accomplishing the intention of whatever legislation may be enacted on the co-operation of the breeders of live stock in the policy of rearing healthy herds by protecting the young from contagion of any sort. A sufficient explanation is given of the methods advocated and in order to safeguard the interests of those now possessing clean herds and of those making an honest effort to establish such herds, stringent precautionary measures are recommended regarding the shipment sale and interchange of stock. The policy as presented is in every way reasonable and cannot but commend itself to any fair-thinking man.

It is unnecessary to enter into the report of the commission, as a further discussion of the details of copy may be easily obtained by any reader. The fact that this report is likely to form the basis of a new policy shortly to be adopted by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa should give its contents a special interest for Canadian owners of cattle and swine. The time is evidently ripe for such a departure and the Minister's hands will no doubt be strengthened by the steadily growing sentiment on the part of the public in favor of such action. In the meantime and until a definite policy is announced, a careful study of this publication should be made by every farmer and breeder in the country. Whether or not it may be to his advantage lay his plans forthwith, in accordance with the proposed scheme as therein outlined, will remain for him to decide, but the information which the report contains is of immediate practical value and should not be neglected. It may be obtained by addressing the Veterinary Director General, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont.

LATEST FROM APSLEY

Gist of Interesting News Items From North Country.

Our village is rather quiet just now—farmers are busy seeding, therefore business with the merchants is dull. The much needed rain came Sunday evening and Monday and with the warm weather we have had lately, it is giving the grass a good start.

Miss Hattie Eastland arrived home last Friday evening and will remain for the summer.

Master Charlie Eastland, who has been for some time clerk in the Traders Bank, Embro, is home for a short visit before leaving for Stettler, Alberta, where he has been transferred to a branch of the bank there, with a largely increased salary.

Mr. John Kilborne lost a fine cow last week. The only cause that can be given is that she must have been poisoned by eating a bait put out for fox, etc., last winter in the woods near Mr. Kilborne's. Cows have been known to do so before. The practice of putting out baits indiscriminately is getting a little too common, and should be stopped. Two or three valuable collie dogs have been poisoned lately.

The ice is out of the lakes now, and Wm. Dwyer, foreman for the P. L. Co., has gone to Jack's Lake with a large gang of men to get the drives out of that lake.

The question of the day is "Are you going sucker fishing." There is a big run of those toothsome and very bony fish at Sucker Creek and troops of boys with bags and spears are seen daily going over the hills en route to the fishing grounds, and often a waggon load of young men may be seen in the evening going in the same direction, returning in the morning tired and sleepy, but with a bag well filled.

A few young men got a bad scare on Saturday night. On going into a deserted stable near the creek to get an armful of hay for the horses. They gathered up with the hay the body of a dead hound. Some of them have not got quite over it yet.

The chairman of the Wisdom Club, having returned, a special meeting was called Saturday a.m. All the members were present except Anvil Jim, who is not quite through piling wood. The property committee reported as they were still short $c, they could not get the chair until that amount was forthcoming. The only way that would be open to raise the money was to fine Jim for non-attendance, which was done and the secretary was to notify him at once. The debate as to whether it was legal or not to marry your deceased wife's mother's aunt's sister was left over for the next regular meeting, as some of the members got tangled in trying to trace out the exact relation ship.

Master A. Dawsing met with a painful accident to-day. On going out to the field with some bags of seed grain, the waggon in going over a slight depression, threw a slight depression, threw him in front of the whiffletree and his foot caught between it and the end of the pole, and he fell under the front wheels and were dragged a considerable distance. Fortunately the ground was soft, otherwise he would have been more seriously, if not fatally injured. As it was his foot became released and he escaped with only a few bruises.

Mr. Lees, school inspector, has been up inspecting the rural schools in this district and report everything satisfactory in most of the schools. He says, if there was a new schools at Lansdwach and one at No. 2 Anstruther N.D., their's would be the finest set of schools in North section of East Peterborough. All the rest are now up-to-date in most respects. Thanks to Mr. Lees, all the schools are now supplied with teachers.

MY STRANGEST GIFT

Curious Tributes Paid to Great Singers by Admirers

Everyone has heard of the enormous sums paid to famous singers for their coveted services—such sums oftentimes amounting to several hundred pounds for a single evening. These huge fees are not, however, the only reward the singer gets for time and talent spent in giving pleasure to the public. After a brilliant performance the delighted audience often insists in showering all kinds of gifts on its idol.

Many of these gifts are of a rich and costly nature, but occasionally the singer is the recipient of some touching memento from some poor listener who has been charmed by the sweet music. Sometimes, too, the gift takes the form of some novel and unusual article. Such gifts are always highly valued by the artists, coming, as they do, from the heart of the sender.

Madame Clara Butt, the world-famous contralto, was once the recipient of a touching tribute of a poor woman's gratitude. Madame Butt says: "One of my most curious presents I found awaiting me when I went to sing at the Albert Hall for very long ago. It took the shape of a large pear, which had been carefully packed and sent through the post. Unfortunately, owing to some mistake as to the date of the concert, it had arrived several days earlier and was quite uneatable.

"The letter which came with it was from a poor woman, who told me it was the finest pear in the garden. 'You have given me so much pleasure in the past,' her letter concluded, 'that I wish to give you this pear to refresh you after the concert.'"

Needless to say, Madame Butt was much touched by this simple tribute.

Madame Patti, the queen of all prima-donnas, once had a strange gift presented to her on the platform. While singing in New York, Madame Patti had the misfortune to lose her pet dog, Ricci. Madame Diaz, the wife of the Mexican President, who heard of the loss, determined to replace it, and that night presented the great singer with a huge bouquet of roses.

The prima-donna stepped to the edge of the platform and picked up the trophy. Then she bowed to the enraptured audience, and bent as if to kiss the lovely blooms, when she heard a whine issue from the centre of the fragrant mass.

"Well, I declare," cried Patti excitedly, "if it isn't a lovely dog!" And, sure enough, in the centre of the bouquet, on a litter of moss, reclined the prettiest little poodle in the world.

The renowned tenor, Signor Caruso, has been the recipient of many favors from the public, but one of the strangest occurred one night as he was leaving Covent Garden. He was offered a small parcel by a boy, but refused to take it. Someone in the crowd then threw the package into the great singer's carriage, and on being opened it was found to contain a gold-mounted fountain pen, with Signor Caruso's name engraved upon it. An accompanying note stated that the pen was "a little present from his gallery admirers, in remembrance of pleasant nights they had had by his singing."

One of the most popular singers at the present time is Miss Ada Crossley, the Australian contralto, and when asked to speak of the curious presents she had received from a delighted audience, she replied:

"Perhaps the strangest gift I ever received was from a little girl in the South of England. It took the shape of a wax doll with lovely flaxen hair, and was accompanied by a letter from the little donor, in which she said that she had been so happy at hearing me sing that she was sending me her favorite dolly, and would I please sing to it sometimes, as she thought it was very fond of music?"

Madame Tetrazzini's rise to the topmost pinnacle in the musical world has been meteoric. Many gifts have been showered upon her, and the story of one of the most striking is here related by Madame Tettrazzini.

"After finishing a certain aria," she says, "I heard a whirring of birds' wings, and as I looked up, I saw some pigeons come fluttering down from the gallery on to the platform. The feathers of one wing had been cut, so that they could not fly about the hall, but were bound to fall to the ground. As the pigeons fell to the platform, there came a cry of 'Madame, you sing like the birds, and there are the birds at your feet.' It was a beautiful compliment, which I appreciated very greatly."

THE PREBENDARY'S TROMBONE

The founder of the Church Army, Prebendary Carlile, who was recently received by King George, tells an amusing story about one of the open-air brass-band processions which paraded the city, headed by Mr. Carlile with a trombone. Robed in his surplice, the Prebendary left the procession—which was a New Year's Eve parade—from time to time and entered the numerous public-houses passed on the road. In one public-house a man seized the Prebendary's trombone and told him he should have it back if he would play a tune. On his reply that he was too tired, a tall, clean-shaven man volunteered to play instead. Calling out, "Hats off, gentlemen!" he played "God Save the King." The musician then took Mr. Carlile's cap and passed it round, collecting 6s. in a very few moments. The cap, collection, and trombone were then returned to Mr. Carlile, who departed well satisfied to have raised something for the Church Army relief work in this unconventional way.

CAPTAIN AND PARSON

"Can you box the compass, captain?" asked a clergyman, passing up the lakes on one of the C.P.R. boats.

"Ever since I was so high," laughed the captain; "learned it with my A B C's."

"Let's hear you," pleaded the clergyman.

The captain began at the north and ran around—north, north by east, nor'-nor'-east, nor'-east by north, north-east, etc., so quickly that the clergyman was deeply impressed. He looked admiringly at the captain for a moment and then said, hopefully:

"Captain, can you box the compass backwards?"

"Sure," said the captain. "Start from wherever you like—frontwards or backwards."

"Let's hear you," pleaded the clergyman again, as though it were music.

"North, north by west, nor'-nor'-west, nor'-west by north—" the captain ran around the compass again backwards with the facility he had travelled the other way.

"And now," said he, when finished, "you are a minister. Can you recite the Ten Commandments?"

"Yes," acknowledged the clergyman smiling. "I can."

"Well, we'll see who's best up in his profession," declared the captain. "Let's hear you recite the Ten Commandments backwards."

The preacher resigned.

THE SON OF THE SHEIK

When Tomlinson, the famous explorer, was in Arabia, he became very friendly with Sheik Hderim, and stayed for several weeks on the Sheik's oasis. During all that time Tomlinson was never done praising Great Britain, his native land, his chief point being that it was the only free country in the world. The Sheik was greatly impressed by the wonderful stories of Tomlinson, and decided to send his son to Britain in order that his mind might be enlightened. And so when the explorer, mounted on a magnificent dromedary, left the oasis on route for Glasgow, the son of the Sheik was riding by his side.

Tomlinson secured respectable apartments for his protege in a quiet street near the University, where the young Arab was to take science classes, his great ambition, inspired by the big talk of Tomlinson being to irrigate the vast deserts of his native land. The lad was so apt a student that he might even have won a prize but his reading was greatly hampered by the large number of street musicians who frequented the locality where he stayed. To him, after the quietude of the desert, the noises made by these men were intolerable.

The worst of these musicians was a man with a red beard, who played a cornet; and one evening the student went down and warned him that his visits must cease. A few days later, however, the man with the cornet was there again; he stood opposite the Arab's window, blowing loudly, defiantly, never pausing, save when he shook out the contents of his instrument and wiped his coarse, red beard with the back of his hand. All around him the Arab heard windows being violently closed, and in a window across the street he observed a fellow-student shaking his fist at the cornet player. The son of the Sheik could bear no more. "This is a free country," he said to himself. He then loaded a revolver, which Tomlinson had given him, and shot the cornet player through the lungs.

It is strange how small a thing excites the people in these days. The son of the Sheik had barely time to close the window before a vast crowd had gathered round the dead body of the musician. Their faces were all bright with gladness, they pointed at the corpse, and shook hands with each other over and over again. The Arab was looking on in amazement when he heard a knock at his door, and the student from the other side of the street came hurriedly in and closed the door behind him. He then fell on the Arab's neck, and great sobs of joy convulsed his frame.

"If you had not done it, I would," he said. "But you must hide the pistol at once—the police might discover it."

"The police!" said the Arab, in consternation. "Surely they will not meddle with this—it was a purely personal quarrel."

"Nonsense! This is a hanging matter. You must deny all knowledge of the affair, and everyone is too grateful to inform against you."

If there was one thing in which the young Arab was specially proficient that thing was lying, having learned it from his father, who had become a Sheik by his greatness in the art. So, when the police called they could make nothing of him. But he was disgusted with the fuss that had been made about the matter, and next day he set out on his homeward journey, carrying with him many presents from students, journalists, and poets who had seen him fire the shot.

On arriving at the oasis he found the Sheik sitting under an umbragrous palm, eating dates out of a pasteboard box with a glass lid on it.

"Welcome, my son!" said the Sheik. "You are early returned. What report have you of the land of Tomlinson?"

"It is a land of wonder, my father, yet in it there is no freedom. They are enslaved by their own laws."

The Sheik combed his beard with his fingers. "Strange!" he said, when he had heard the story. "I judged friend Tomlinson to be a truthful man. But these explorers are all the same. There is none of them that speaketh the truth—no, not one."

BANTAM IN PIGEON'S NEST

A young bantam was hatched and reared in a pigeon's nest at Briston, Norfolk, England. How the egg came in the pigeon's box is a mystery. The endeavors of the parents to teach the young bantam to fly are described as amusing.

BROKEN ENGAGEMENT

Matrimonial Prospect Shattered Over the Fitting of a Carpet

A singular story of a broken engagement through the purchase of some carpets was told at Bloomsbury County Court. A Mr. Marks was sued by Messrs. Maple for the payment of a number of carpets.

Mr. H. L. Murphy, counsel for the plaintiffs, said that an order was given by the young woman to whom Mr. Marks was engaged, and she was to be called to prove the purchase.

Judge Bacon:—"She is not married to him?"

Mr. Murphy:—"The engagement was broken off."

Judge Bacon:—"Can a young woman pledge her fiancee's credit for these things?"

Mr. Murphy:—"Not without some expressed authority being given."

Miss Goodman said that Mr. Marks gave her authority to purchase carpets.

Judge Bacon:—"Were you limited in any way?"

Miss Goodman:—"No."

Judge Bacon:—"Did he tell you that you could go and purchase an Oriental or Persian carpet for hundreds of pounds?"

Miss Goodman:—"Not quite so far as that."

Mr. Marks said the engagement was broken off on the ground that the "young woman" would go and give orders for things without his authority.

Judge Bacon:—"The carpets were for the flat where you were to live happy ever after."

The defendant was asked if he wished to cross-examine the young woman, but he said he did not wish to.

Judge Bacon:—"If you are not on speaking terms you may do so through counsel."

The defendant said that he did not want carpets made specially.

Judge Bacon:—"Do you intend to say that your domestic happiness was wrecked during the engagement on such a trivial point as the fitting of a carpet?"

Mr. Marks said he could not afford special carpets, but his "young woman" wanted too much. The carpets went back as well as some furniture, but he did not know how.

Judge Bacon:—"It is only a wrangle, and I shall order you to pay. You will then find out where they are. Judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, $30."

THE SHIPPING INDUSTRY

The Colonies England's Best Customers in 1910

Forty-five warships and vessels of the mercantile marine numbering 500 were launched from the shipyards of the United Kingdom in 1910. Only twenty-seven were "wind-jammers," or sailing ships, and their tonnage, as shown in Lloyd's annual report, was 1,127,738.

Of merchantile ships there is an increase of 182,168 tons on the previous year, although, apart from 1906 and 1909, it is the lowest total for thirteen years. War vessels, built at Government and private yards, are 8,415 tons more than in 1909.

Vessels lost and broken up during the year totalled 361,000 tons, and the sales to foreign and Colonial owners reached the record total of 513,613 tons.

As in 1909 the Colonies—with thirty-nine vessels—have been the best outside customers. Great Britain supplied the following tonnage during the year: Colonies, 43,697; Norway, 34,663; Germany, 26,647; Sweden, 20,347; Austria-Hungary, 12,447; France, 12,077.

A notable point is the number of large steamers turned out. There was the Olympic, at Belfast (45,000 tons), which is now approaching completion at Harland and Wolff's; and there were seven other steamers of over 10,000 tons.

The Glasgow district occupies the first place among the shipbuilding centres of the country, showing an output of 311,076 tons. Then follow Newcastle (293,381 tons), Sunderland (179,435 tons), Belfast (163,256 tons), Greenock (122,722 tons), and Middlesbrough (108,754 tons).

In warship tonnage Newcastle leads with 28,515 tons, followed by Devonport with 26,350 tons, Portsmouth 22,500 tons, Glasgow 22,370 tons, and Greenock, 20,000 tons.

The total output of the world during 1901 (exclusive of warships) was 1,957,852 tons (1,857,641 steam, 100,212 sail), an increase of about 256,000 tons on the figures for 1909. If only sea-going merchant steamers of 3,000 tons gross and upwards be taken into account, out of the total of 321 such steamers, of 1,209,138 tons, launched in the world, over 73½ per cent. of the tonnage was launched in the United Kingdom.

Among foreign countries, the leading places are held by the United States (331,318 tons), Germany (159,363 tons), France (90,751 tons), and Holland (70,945 tons). Norway (36,983 tons), and Japan (30,215 tons).

PAINTING 100 PICTURES A DAY

There has lately arrived in Fleet Street an American artist, Mr. Beckford, who reckons to turn out 100 genuine oil paintings a day, and, what is more, sell them all. He can paint you a masterpiece on any subject you choose in ten minutes, and copy a Old Master in five. He memorizes his subjects down to the last detail, and has one or two little devices which make for speed. Thus, for putting in sky and trees and water he has a brush holding three colors—dark for the deep shadows, then a half tone, and then a high light—so that he can do three processes with one flick of the brush. "Artists who have watched me," says Mr. Beckford, "admit that it is very tricky and neat." Assisted by a clever auctioneer, Mr. Beckford never lacks customers.

GOOD BOY!

Stern Parent:—"Tommy, you are not to play with that Smith boy any more; he looks a bad little boy."

Young Hopeful:—"Oh, daddy, he isn't; he's a good little boy. He's been in a reformatory school twice, and each time he's got out for his good conduct."—Weekly Times, Melbourne.

MEAN!

Hazel:—"Did you notice that Gus gave me his first dance last evening?"

Gertie:—"Yes, dear. He told me afterward he believed in getting disagreeable things done as soon as possible."

EXPERIMENT IN TRUTH

"To tell the truth," I began.

"You've never done it," interrupted my old friend Flanders with a scornful leer.

I looked at him.

"Not continuously. You may have now and then. I admit that."

"Oh, you do, do you?"

Flanders sighed.

"I speak from experience. I've never told you of my own attempt, have I? Ah! it's a sad story. And there's a moral—though I can't discover it myself." He paused. "It was some months ago, I'd suddenly realized how seldom we are really truthful, and my conscience had smitten me. I determined to alter."

Flanders waited. I nodded encouragingly.

"Next morning I awoke suddenly, and found myself being shaken with violence.

"'Do you know it's nine o'clock?' asked my wife.

"'No,' I responded curtly.

"'Well, it is! What time do you propose to get up?'

"'Not till nine-fifteen,' I answered.

"'And why not?'

"'Because it's Monday morning, and on Mondays you always ask for money. I'm going to arrange things today so that you don't have time to do so.'

"My wife stared; then went out, and slammed the door. I dressed and descended at 9.30. My train goes at 9.54, and it's ten minutes walk to the station."

Flanders cleared his throat.

"I made a hurried breakfast," he continued.

"'What do you think of that omelette?' asked my wife. 'I made it myself.'

"'Leathery,' I answered, and half cold.'

"'What time are you coming home to-night?' she inquired from behind her handkerchief.

"'About one a.m.,' I said.

"With that I departed. On the way to the station I met old Podgers.

"'How are you?' he grunted.

"'Very ill-tempered,' I told him.

"'Oh! How's that?'

"'I've just quarreled with my wife,' I remarked casually. 'I left her in tears.'

"That staggered him. He coughed.

"'I saw you in town on Saturday, Flanders. Why didn't you stop?'

"'Because you'd have insisted on joining me at lunch,' I answered; 'and you're such an old bore.'

"He turned red, and swelled visibly. Then he turned his back and crossed the road, snorting.

"I stepped into my tobacconist's and filled my cigar-case.

"'Put it on the account,' I said.

"'I beg your pardon, sir, but when are you going to pay my bill?'

"'At the latest possible date,' I responded promptly; 'and then only if you worry me into it.'

"I left him open-mouthed. At the station entrance I ran into young Smith. He greeted me in an embarrassed way.

"'Er—about that money, Flanders, you said you'd try to lend me,' he began hurriedly.

"'Oh,' I interrupted, 'I only said so to get rid of you. I've no real intention of lending it at all. There's the train!' And I dashed off.

"He thought I was joking, and followed. We ran up the stairs together. There was no time for me to get a ticket.

"He entered the same carriage, smiling in a sickly fashion.

"'How do you think I'm looking after my holidays, Flanders?'

"'Well, you're face is a funny red color,' I told him, 'and most of the skin's off your nose. Otherwise there's not much change.'

"After an inward struggle, he laughed.

"'And where did you go, after all?'

"'Margate,' I replied. 'I stuck all those Continental labels on our trunks myself—bought 'em up in town. Of course, we talk of Switzerland a lot; but my wife's been there once, and has told me all about it, so we're safe enough.'

"Out of the corner of my eye I saw him looking at me queerly. At the next station he changed compartments—said there was a friend he wanted to see.

"I leaned back in my seat, and gasped. The strain of truth-telling was awful! I had to keep such a strict guard over myself. You've no idea what it means until you've tried it.

"I thought a few minutes' interval might pull me together; but instead I felt worse and worse. When the train drew into the terminus I stumbled out on to the platform, and walked slowly and painfully, like a man desperately ill.

"'Anything the matter, sir?' asked a porter.

"'I've been telling the truth,' I said simply. He began to follow.

"There was only one thing, I felt convinced, which would relieve me. And that was to deliver myself of one big, thumping lie.

"'Tickets please!' shouted the man at the barrier.

"Here was my chance.

"'Season!' I said joyfully; and passed through in triumph.

"That did it! Next instant I felt myself again. I squared my shoulders and marched off rapidly to the office, like another man."

Flanders broke off and looked across at me.

"I hardly ever tell the truth now," he concluded.

"So I notice!" I retorted cuttingly, over my shoulder. "Good-bye!"

THE GENTLE ANSWER

Mr. Poarck came home very late the other night from an important political meeting. In the hall he kicked up rather a row, growling and swearing to himself till his wife called to him from upstairs:

"What's the matter, my dear?"

"Matter—hic—is," Mr. Poarck shouted, "that there are two hat racks here, and I dunno which one to hang my hat on."

"But you've got two hats, haven't you?" said Mrs. Poarck, soothingly. "Hang one on each rack and come up to bed. You're tired."

"NOW THEN, SMITH"

Seaman Hero of Messina Earthquake Drowned in Australia

"Now then, Smith," the seaman hero of the Messina earthquake, has been drowned at Bunbury, West Australia. He was walking close to the jetty on his way to rejoin his ship, the Medic, when he disappeared.

At the time of the Messina earthquake in 1908, Smith was on board the steamer Albion, which was lying in the port, and went ashore with others of the crew to help in the work of rescue. The party came to a tottering building where fire in the lower floors threatened the occupants above. The sailors threw a rope, which was made fast to the top of the building. The captain cried, "Now then, Smith," and Smith climbed up, bringing down one member of the family after the other until all were safe.

King Edward wished personally to hand Smith a medal for his bravery, but by that time he was on the seas again and the decoration had to be forwarded to him.

MERCHANT COMBINES

Wonderful Discoveries and Explorations Made by Fearless Mercantile Adventurers of Old

Combinations of merchants are no new thing; in fact, it may be said that to a considerable extent the commercial prosperity of England has been founded upon such combines. The old trading companies exercised a marked influence in laying the foundations of Britain's commercial position.

In addition to the wonderful discoveries made by the fearless adventurers, these great English companies were concerned with some of the most romantic expeditions ever undertaken by man, though the actual objects were prosaic enough—mainly that of finding new customers for English merchandise. The big companies in addition to employing the Cabots employed such men as Martin Frobisher, Cavendish, Hudson, and Chancellor Davis, and penetrated from Europe to Cathay.

Eventually the New World was obtained as a result of the operations of the companies. Those days were indeed the most romantic in the history of commerce. In travelling to unknown parts of the world it was necessary that both merchants and sailors should be intrepid and that their vessels should be of the stoutest.

It was as a result of the workings of the companies that England obtained the sovereignty of the seas and that English-built ships were the finest in existence. Each ship was a powerful man-of-war of its time, as it was necessary at any moment that fighting should be undertaken, not merely against wild natives, but also against the hordes of pirates who infested the seas. Strength alone ruled the far seas, so the ships had to be of the stoutest and provided with guns and ammunition, so as to be ready to fight at any moment.

It was owing to our great merchant vessels that the Spanish Armada was repelled; indeed, out of our fleet there were but thirty-seven vessels of the Royal Navy, while there were a hundred of our merchant ships engaged. All the great companies provided ships, including such as the Levant Company, the Muscovy Company, the Eastland Company, the Virginia Company, etc.

The great companies of merchant adventurers not merely opened out new trade passages, but founded great colonies, and, owing to the splendid quality of their ships, gradually displaced Spain and Holland from pride of place on the seas.

Even now some of the companies exist, though in a modified form. Other new companies sprang up to take the place of the old, the most recent of which, of course, include such concerns as the British South Africa Company.

To this day one of the old companies of merchant-adventurers still lives as a powerful corporation, carrying on much of its work as in the old days. This is the Hudson's Bay Company, formed by Prince Rupert and seventeen noblemen for the purpose of importing into England furs and skins obtained by barter from the Indians of North America. This company, wealthier than ever, still buys skins from the Indians of North America as it did in the old days of the merchant-adventurers, whose glamor remains undimmed.

Balsamic Essences

Makes Wonderful Cure for Catarrh, Colds, Bronchitis, Throat Weakness.

To cure an ailment in throat or chest to root out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in in the breathing organs, The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

Catarrhozone has entirely displaced the old-fashioned remedies, such as cough syrups, sprays, tablets and sedative powders. It contains none of the opium, chloral and drowsy narcotics, so commonly found in liquid cough and catarrh remedies.

The extraordinary curative powers of Catarrhozone is well explained in a letter from A. B. Cowan, the well known restauranter of Carleton, who writes: "Some time ago I suffered severely from a frightful cold in the head and chest. It was nothing but one continual cough, hawk, headache from morning till night. My nose and throat were so completely stuffed up that I could scarcely breathe. Catarrhozone eased the cough instantly, that would not yield even to the doctor's medicines. Hour by hour Catarrhozone relieved and by pursuing its treatment I have been permanently cured of all trace of Asthma, Catarrh and Bronchial Irritation."

Once you try Catarrhozone you'll realize how indespensible it is—the large dollar size contains an indestructible hard rubber inhaler and sufficient medication to last two months Smaller trial sizes 25c and 50c. Beware of the substitutor and imitators of Catarrhozone—use the genuine and you'll get cured. By mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Two Years in the Central

Joseph Shearer, who pleaded guilty at the Police Court yesterday, for selling a number of bags of chop belonging to the Quaker Oats Company was sentenced to the Central Prison for a term of two years by Police Magistrate Dumble. In passing sentence, his worship said: "I would like to be able to help a young man, if there would be a change in him, but from a very early age, you have been incorrigible, and finally you were sent to the reformatory, where you remained for three years. You cost this city while there, several hundred dollars, and while there you got an education and received all the chances to do better, but you fell back into your evil ways. You stole from your master a large quantity of chop, several hundred bags, representing several hundred dollars. Your family is poor, and your mother makes a pitiful appeal to me, which I would like to respond to, if I saw I was doing anything to make you a better boy. I think the only course is to send you to the Central Prison, and if you behave yourself there, the authorities can deal with you accordingly. Therefore, the judgment of the court is, that you be confined in the Central Prison, Toronto, for two years, less one day."

PUBLIC OPINION

willing to let bygones be bygones, and make a fresh start.

Ex-Alderman.

CHURCHLY POLITICS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In view of your comments on the pretensions of the Roman Catholic Church, as shown in the "Ne Temere" decree, permit me to give publicity through your columns to a fact well known to all the Governments of Europe, as well as to that of the United States, viz., that the choice of a Pope, whose infallibility Pope Pius IX. decreed, and whose selection is supposed to be directly inspired without any reference to earthly considerations, is, on the contrary, always made now strictly for political reasons, as the following will, I think, clearly show:—

When the army of United Italy, led by King Victor Emanuel I. and the old patriot Garibaldi, captured the Papal States and the City of Rome surrendered, the Church authorities realized that the seat of the Papacy and its vast treasures at Rome were at the mercy of the conquerors, with no help in sight.

They were unwilling to remove to the old papal capital at Avignon, in France, where the French Government and people would then have received them with open arms as martyrs, because that would have been a political mistake, and might reveal incidentally to a critical world the fact that in the reigns of Francis I., King of France, and the Emperor Charles V., two sets of rival Popes, each duly consecrated, reigned for years at the same time, one at Avignon and the other at Rome.

The following secret treaty was consequently then made, not, however, secret to the great Protestant nations like Great Britain, Germany and the United States, but only secret as against the legal children of the Church, whose devotion, love and money were supporting the Catholic clergy, and who to-day are still kept in ignorance of the facts.

This is the political trade they made:—In consideration of the Roman Catholic Church being permitted by the Italian Government to retain nominal possession of the Church property now used for Church purposes in Rome, including the Vatican its museums, library and art treasures, and to continue to use Rome as its religious capital and business head office, it was agreed that, so long as this state of affairs continued the majority of the Cardinals must be Italians, and that the Pope himself must always be an Italian. Furthermore, so long as the Pope was within the precincts of the Vatican and St. Peter's Cathedral he was to be still officially recognised by the Italian Government as Pope, in his sovereign capacity, but that whenever he went elsewhere, official recognition of his Papal rank was temporarily suspended until his return, and that in the interim he was to be considered simply as a prelate of the Church.

This barter of the independence of the head of the Church for political prestige and the convenience and luxury of life in Rome is still in force to-day, the best evidence of which is right here on the North American Continent.

Canada, with its population of eight millions and its Catholic province of Quebec, has only one Cardinal while the United States, which is full of magnificent churches, colleges, hospitals and other monuments of the generosity of the children of the Church, every one of whom States individually contributes each year through its Catholic communicants more money for the support of the Church than the entire Kingdom of Italy, has yet only one Cardinal for its ninety millions of inhabitants.

Still the Pope must always be an Italian and still the children of the Church must obey from Italian ecclesiastical authorities, who know practically nothing of our great country and have little sympathy or toleration for the personal liberty and equal opportunity to all men of our political institutions, revivals of mediaeval decrees, condemnations of modernism, exclusion of the beautiful voices of women from church choirs, and now the "Ne Temere" decree against marriage, which, like the Australian "boomerang", is recurving on its way home to strike its thrower.

In these stirring times of awakening intelligence, when practically every business of life, including farming, is based on more or less scientific knowledge, when the man or woman who cannot read and write might just as well be dead as far as hope of betterment in condition of life is concerned, it is hard for some of us to realize that the spiritual head of the Catholic Church, from whose infallible lips the inspired messages of God, are ostensibly given to the world, is, after all, not the genuine choice of inspiration from God working through the Cardinals, but simply a man acceptable to the Emperor of Austria and the Italian Government, chosen practically under false pretences, as the result of a sordid political bargain, who must always be an Italian, no matter what may be the superior fitness of any other Cardinal.

In view of the above facts, which the Rev. Father Burke and other defenders of the faith (so called) are respectfully challenged to disprove, the question is unconsciously asked, How long is the tail to continue to wag the dog? the Catholics of Canada and the United States evidently being the dog, and an under dog at that.

Mr. Jas. Davey, of 766 Ellice Avenue, Winnipeg, and a fireman at the Hudson Bay Company's stores, says:—"A few months since I was cured of a poisoned finger through the timely use of Zam-Buk. I cut a deep gash across the knuckle on the first finger of my right hand in opening a lobster can. I suffered at the time with the soreness and pain, but had no idea it would become a serious wound However, in about two days I was greatly alarmed as my whole hand and arm to the elbow became mightily inflamed, and the former was much discolored, showing signs of blood-poisoning. The pain was dreadful, and I was forced to leave off my work and go home.

"The wound" on the knuckle had been poisoned through the dust and dirt about the furnaces and boilers. I then decided to start the Zam-Buk treatment, and having first bathed the cut, I applied the healing balm. It soothed the pain almost instantly, and by next day there was a great improvement. The pain was relieved and the inflammation lessened. In a week's time, through perseverance with this wonderful preparation a complete cure was brought about."

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, ulcers, scalp sores, abscesses, piles, ringworm, boils, varicose ulcers running sores. It draws all poison and foulness from a wound or sore and then heals. Use it too for cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin injuries. Zam-Buk Soap should be used in conjunction with the balm for washing wounds and sore places. Excellent too for baby's bath.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c box and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c tablet. Post free upon receipt of price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

VANCOUVER, B.C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

FIVE WERE SWEPT TO DEATH IN THE RUSHING WATERS

St. John, N.B. May 3.—A special from Edmundston, on the upper part of the St. John River, says that three men and two boys were swept to death in the rushing waters of the river as the result of a breaking of a wire cable which held the scow boat used as a ferry between the Canadian and American side of the river.

The drowned are:

Two Frenchmen, named Dufort and Hebert.

A man, name unknown.

Two boys, one named Masbovitz, a Hebrew, and the other Phillips, son of a former C.P.R. station agent.

Both boys were about 15 years of age.

Owing to the swift current resulting from the spring freshet, the strain on the cable was greater than ordinarily.

About seven o'clock the men and boys, with a man named Daigle, embarked on the American side, and were crossing the river, when the cable broke, and the wire striking the scow, swamped her.

All the occupants were thrown out but Daigle managed to cling to the scow until he was rescued, although in an exhausted condition. The others were swept away.

FIVE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN PARENTS' ABSENCE

Quebec, May 2.—In a fire which destroyed the home of their parents, in Saint Sophie, Megantic County, five children perished late on Sunday night.

St. Sophie is a small parish in a remote section of the Lake Megantic region, and the fatal fire occurred in the second range of the parish, burning to the ground the house of Phileas Patry, causing the death of five of his children.

With his wife, Patry had gone to visit relatives in another part of the parish, and on their return, late at night, the parents found their home in flames, and notwithstanding all their efforts, they could not save the unfortunate little ones, whose charred remains were found yesterday among the debris.

Mr. Patry's financial loss through the fire is also heavy. His house, with his furniture, provisions, and 3,000 pounds of maple sugar, has been destroyed, and he had no insurance.

THE BANGOR FIRE STARTED BY A CIGARETTE STUB

A revised census shows that 285 dwellings were destroyed and that to-day 135 merchants and other business men are looking for temporary quarters.

Bangor, Me., May 2.—That Bangor's great conflagration, with its estimated loss of $3,000,000, was started by a cigarette stub thrown into the hay in a store room on Broadway street by participants in a poker game Sunday afternoon, was a report circulated through the city today. The police officials say they have made no progress in their efforts to determine the origin of the fire.

Bangor passed a quiet night last night. Although every man and boy who did patrol duty was supplied with five rounds of ball ammunition after nine o'clock there was no shot fired. There has not been a single case of looting discovered since the fire, say the police.

Telephone service as well as electric lighting, was still in a chaotic condition to-day. Street car service on one line was resumed.

The work of clearing away the debris began in earnest, and conferences were arranged for the discussion of plans for the rehabilitation of the city.

Early in the day squads of dynamite operators began the work of shaking down standing walls and overturning toppling chimneys.

Investigation by the police and city officials shows that only seventy-five families are in actual need of immediate assistance. This greatly simplifies the problem of caring for the sufferers, and the officials were able to-day to get down to business in deciding how the city is to be rebuilt.

It is certain that nearly all of the establishments burned out will resume. Some have already obtained temporary quarters, and in numerous instances private dwellings will be converted into stores and offices until the burned structures can be replaced.

SENSATIONAL GRAFT CHARGES AGAINST U. S. SENATORS AND MEMBERS OF LEGISLATURE

Columbus, Ohio, May 3.—With indictments expected to be handed down against 49 law makers, the grand jury to-day resumed its investigations of graft charges against members of the Legislature, with stenographic reports and other documentary evidence furnished by detectives in the employ of Wm. J. Burns before it.

According to prosecuting attorney Turner, of Franklin county, sensations greater than those in the Lorimer case will follow if the charges of the detectives are substantiated.

Attorney-General Hogan officially joined hands with the prosecuting attorney's office to-day for a continuation of the investigation into the graft charges. Of the forty-nine accused men, nineteen of them are said to be members of the Senate. Many of the members of both Houses of the Legislature have been summoned to appear before the grand jury.

Wm. J. Burns came to Columbus early this morning and at once went to Chittenden Hotel where he went into conference with Detectives Harrison, Bailey and Berry. Burns was not inclined to talk much about the cases, but said that the big sensational disclosures was yet to come.

He was probably referring to the other members of the Legislature against whom his detectives claims to have evidence.

Chicago, Ill., May 3.—Raymond Burns, son of Detective Wm. J. Burns and office manager of the Burns Detective Agency, declared here to-day that 25 members of the Ohio Legislature had been trapped by means of marked bills, in accepting bribes by detectives posing as manufacturers' agents.

VOL XXXIV NO. 105 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY MAY 5 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

THE SHAREHOLDERS OF FARMERS BANK MUST PAY DOUBLE LIABILITY

$38 ENTAILED BY TRAVER'S FINANCIAL ORGY WILL BE OVER ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

Must Pay 100 Cents on the Dollar—Seven Hundred Ontario Investors Are Affected—Ruin Faces Many Men Who Had Been in Prosperous Circumstances.

Toronto, May 4.—The list of the "double liability" shareholders of the defunct Farmers Bank contains the names of seven hundred persons, mostly Ontario Farmers, who, within a few days, will be requested to hand over to the curator, Mr. G. T. Clarkson, an amount approximating half a million dollars. This means that the gross loss of subscribers for stock in the Travers institution will be over one million dollars.

The number of contributories upon whom the burden of the "double liability" will fall was given to The News this morning by Mr. Clarkson. "Every contributor," said he, "will be called upon for one hundred per cent. beyond the amount of his subscription."

ASK FOR $584,500.

The deficiency noted in the curator's report on December 19th, 1910, following the closing of the bank's doors was $436,011.93. According to the Provincial Government estimate contained in the Chartered Banks Report for November, 1910, a month before the Farmers Bank went under, the amount of stock subscribed was $564,500, and the amount paid up $567,579. The capital authorized was $1,000,000.

By the application of the double liability clause the subscribers of the Farmers Bank will have to go into their pockets for $584,500. It is understood that the Keeley Mine will be counted by the curator in his official report of assets as purely nominal and as has been done in similar cases may be marked down at a value of "$1."

By the progdure taken in the liquidation of the defunct concern, the average extra levy upon the stockholders will be $835, but the division of the liability being on no such equal basis will fall upon many with great severity. The majority of the stock was held by farmers in Ontario, who were drawn into the deal by the assurance of high dividends.

PROCESS OF LIQUIDATION.

"The proceedings in such cases as the winding up of the Farmers Bank" said Mr. Clarkson to The News, "takes the form of first arranging a list of all parties whom we consider legally bound under the double liability clause. This list is made known to all concerned and if any person does not consider himself legally liable he has the privilege of appearing before the court and stating his case. At the end of such hearings the list is considered complete and the curator proceeds to collect the amounts due."

WOMEN BURNED TO DEATH IN HASTINGS COUNTY HOUSE

Belleville, May 4.—A fire at the home of Mr. Patrick Cain, Ramdon Township, Hastings County, on Tuesday, caused the death of Mrs. Cain, who was in bed sick, and her step-daughter, Miss Ellen Maloney, who was attending her. The fire is believed to have started in the kitchen, thus cutting off all escape by the stairs. The two women were the only persons in the house at the time.

San Diego, Cal., May 4.—Barbarous treatment of the federal prisoners by insurrectos in Lower California is reported here by carriers from the South. Two Mexican federals, taken captive at Carriso, Lower California, were burned at the stake, and eight others have been shot to death near Tecatat.

Douglas, Ariz., May 4.—In fear of a general attack on the border towns by the insurrectos to-morrow, U.S. soldiers are being massed at all points where trouble threatens.

The Mexican federals in Agua Prieta, across the line, have withdrawn all their patrols, leaving the work to the American soldiers.

GOVEREMENT TOTTERING.

Mexico City, May 4.—With preemptory demands from Berlin and Madrid for immediate protection to German and Spanish citizens, threatened by rebels and bandits, with four columns of insurrectos aggravating him, and the central government tottering in its weakness, belief here to-day in all circles is that Diaz and his Ministers must make early choice between asking President Taft to restore order in Mexico with American troops and turning over the government to the rebels.

Detachments of practically 3,000 of the rebel army were almost at the city's gates to-day, being encamped at Tres Marias, only twenty miles from the capital. The truce ends on Saturday.

FIFTY FEDERALS KILLED.

Presidio, Texas, May 2, via Marfa, Texas, May 4.—Fifty federal soldiers were killed yesterday in the battle of Ojinaga between the rebel forces besieging the city of Ojinaga and the troops of the government troops under Gen. Geraldo, marching to the relief of the beleaguered city.

The insurgents were defeated after a six hours battle and the leader, General Jose De La Cruz Sanchez, was wounded.

CENTRAL PARK BAND STAND.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—That resolution of Ald. Metheral's to have the band stand in Central Park painted is a good one, but if he had included the erection of the necessary electric lights to enable the band to use it, it would have been more in order. Please do this, Ald. Metheral, and the lovers of music will bless you.

CHARLOTTE STREET DUMPING GROUND.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I take advantage of your invitation to say a few words on a matter of importance to those living on Water street, east of the Market. This place is used as a public dumping ground, where any and every old kind of junk and waste is handed. The odor from this place sometimes is unbearable. In the interests of public health and decency I would ask that the further use of this place as a receptacle for all kinds of filth, be prohibited.

OUR BOARD OF HEALTH.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—How is it that we have so much contagious disease in our midst? Is it on account of the water, or is it because our Board of Health does not perform its duties? I observe the salary of the Medical Health Officer has been increased to $900 per annum, and I would suggest that he explain why there is so much sickness. The Isolation Hospital is, I understand, well filled with fever patients, and smallpox is also in our midst. Is our health authorities on the alert to prevent contagion, and to guard against diseases of an infectious nature? With a well-paid doctor at their service, as well as the backing of the whole police force of inspectors, we should have a fairly healthy town.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Every effort should be made by private citizens to help beautify the city. This is already being done to quite an extent, but a little more energy on the part of some who are not doing anything would help to make Peterboro one of the most beautiful cities in Ontario. Just now is a good time to remind others that the work of cleaning up should be entered on at once. In some cities a general clean up day is appointed. There is an enthusiasm engendered by this, but it should not be necessary. Clean up, and let every citizen do something towards beautifying the city this year.

THE FINANCE COMITTEE WILL RECOMMEND COUNCIL TO ACCEDE TO SCHOOL BOARD'S DEMAND FOR $16,000 FOR SCHOOL REPAIRS

COUNCIL WILL MEET TO-NIGHT IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Repairs to Schools are Absolutely Necessary to Comply With the Government's Demand That Adequate and Modern Accommodation be Furnished.

A deputation from the Board of Education met the City Finance Committee last night on the question of the proposed expenditure of $16,000 on Public School improvements at the King Edward and the Central Schools.

The Board of Education was represented by Messrs. W. H. Hill, Col. Miller, Dr. Morrison, V. Eastwood, and Inspector Mowat. Of the city's Committee there were present Mayor Morrow, chairman, Aldermen Bradburn, Metheral, Duncan and Buller.

Regarding this matter, the law provides that the Council shall provide the money needed for such purposes, and the Board of Education have full control of its expenditure.

Dr. Morrison explained that in undertaking the proposed repairs, the Central Schools will be put into first class condition and serve their purpose for generations to come.

Col. Miller said that at present these buildings do not comply with the demands of the Government that adequate and modern educational accommodation shall be provided. The Board is asking nothing but what is absolutely imperative.

Inspector Mowat offered that the children at present attending the King Edward School could not be accommodated, but for the half day system recently introduced in the primary and kindergarten forms. The opening of the upper storey by next fall will relieve the conjestion at this building. There is room at the Queen Alexandra for growth. The Central School is a matter of unfitness.

Mr. Eastwood pointed out that increased and better accommodation in the East and West Wards is a crying need.

To Ald. Buller, Mr. Mowat said,—"The King Edward would not relieve the South Central Kindergarten department, but a decent room at the Central would relieve this conjestion."

Mr. Mowat accidentally remarked that the increase for educational purposes in the Province is phenomenal, due largely to the general demand by teachers for increased salaries.

Inspector Mowat commended the King Edward School as magnificent regarding its interior, its cleanliness and neatness are worthy the highest commendation.

His Worship thought Peterborough had a very good School Board, that took a praiseworthy and active interest in the welfare and character of our schools.

Ald. Buller believed in education, its demands must be met.

Ald. Bradburn—"Money well spent by the Board is for the welfare of the community at large. The country would not progress without first class educational facilities."

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Metheral,—That this committee recommend that Council grant the School Board's request for $16,000 for school repairs, and issue debentures to raise the necessary amount. —Carried.

Regarding a request for a donation towards the Canadian Free Library Institution for the blind, the Clerk will write for further information.

THE YELLOW RACE HAS EYES ON AUSTRALIA AND BRITISHERS MUST FIGHT TO RETAIN IT

Victoria, B.C., May 4.—That Australia bears the Orient was the opinion expressed by Frank Wilson, Premier of Western Australia, who arrived yesterday by the steamer Zealandia, en route to London to attend the Coronation.

"Unless we people of Australia prepare to defend it, we will lose it," he said. "The defence movement, the construction of an Australian navy, was not begun too soon."

PRESIDENT TAFT'S SPEECH DID NOT HELP CANADA

London, May 4.—The Scotsman says President Taft's speech has increased rather than diminished the embarassment of the Canadian Government. His error was in looking at the treaty problems entirely from the American viewpoint. Canada is as solicitous to preserve her economic independence as she is her autonomy under the British Crown.

The Pall Mall Gazette, an Astor paper, says that though Sir Wilfrid Laurier has cooled in his Imperial ardor, and has set an unwelcome example to his illustrious colleagues, he still commands attention and respect as the senior Empire Premier and the first great statesman of foreign descent, to come within the orbit of the conference deliberations. His revocation of his threat to remain absent is all to the good of the Imperial cause. Communication with Washington may have corrupted Canadian manners, but the device has signally defeated itself, says the paper.

THE REX THEATRE. OPENED LAST NIGHT

Under the above caption The Times invites correspondence. The letters will appear in the Saturday edition only and must deal with local matters, and not political questions. SHOCKING CASE OF IMMORALITY FOUND AT SMITH'S FALLS

Smith's Falls, May 4.—W. A. Gunton, inspector of the Children's Aid Society, has been to Smith's Falls this week in connection with his work and to-day unearthed one of the worst cases of moral depravity ever known in the district. The inspector found that three children had been born to two sisters—Elsie, aged 23, and Nellie, aged 19 years. To the first two children were born. The body of the first was kept all last winter in an attic and buried in the spring in a garden just outside the corporation limits. The second child is still living.

The child born to Nellie died after birth and the body was put in a box and placed in the shed loft, where it has remained since last November, and where inspector Gunton found it this morning.

The story told by the girls to the officials revealed a state of affairs not often found in a civilized community. Coroner Dr. McCallum was notified and an inquest is being held this morning.

The inquest was formally opened this morning by Coroner McCallum and adjourned until Monday next. The jury viewed the remains but took no evidence. A postmortem will be held in the meantime. The girls are Elsie and Nellie Timleck.

STOPS A COUGH IN ONE NIGHT

The Story of Sufferers From Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh Proves the Value of Catarrhozone.

A cough may be Catarrhal with a dry tickling in the throat, it may be accompanied by a partial stoppage of the nostrils and shortage of breath Often there is a gagging in the throat and every cough tears and hurts.

Coughs have a hundred different causes, yours may be due to any of the following :—

Asthma	Inflamed Throat
Exposure	Bronchitis
Enlarged Tonsils	Pneumonia
Inflammation	Croup
Stomach Disorders	Pleurisy

The one remedy upon which physicians are relying to-day is Catarrhozone. It removes the cause of the cough, doesn't smother it. Catarrhozone is soothing, healing "direct cure" and cures the conditions that cause the cough.

Catarrhozone is infinitely superior to cough mixtures, tablets, sprays, and emulsions, which for the most part are of no practical value except to ease the cough for the time being. Often liquid cough remedies contain opium, Morphine and cocaine! With Catarrhozone you take no drugs—you employ nature's way—just inhale Catarrhozone's soothing, healing vapor and relief and cure follow promptly.

It's simply wonderful to think how quickly a bad throat or catarrh can be cured with Catarrhozone. Its rich balmamic vapor is carried along with the breath to the innermost recesses of the lungs, bronchial tubes and chest, making it impossible for the germ of any disease to live. Then soreness in the chest is at once alleviated—phlegm is loosened and ejected from the throat, old standing coughs are removed.

REMEMBER THIS, you breathe Catarrhozone and it will cure any Winter ill. Large size, guaranteed, costs $1.00, and lasts two months ; smaller sizes, 25c and 50c. Beware of imitations and insist on "CATARRHOZONE" only. By mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

PAST TRAINS AND SAFETY.

There is timeliness as well as value in the declaration of Chief Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, that " the United States as a nation has gone stark, raving mad on the question of speed." The recent fatal railroad accidents emphasize this charge and show the peril that exists despite many excellent improvements made by our leading lines in the last few years. This also applies to Canada.

Not all railroad accidents, of course, are due to a craze for speed, but it is evident from the remarks of Chief Stone that the evil of which he complains has indirect as well as direct results inimical to public safety. "The speed craze requires young men who are willing to take chances," he told his fellow engineers. "If they pull through on schedule time, it is all right ; if they don't they must make room for the men who will."

Some of the fastest trains in the country are the freest from accidents, but this is because, being few and conspicuous, every possible precaution is thrown around their operation. It is the fast running of less carefully guarded trains to which Chief Stones remarks apply with greatest force. Recklessness is a characteristic bred of pioneer conditions. But those conditions no longer exist, and the public and railroad managers should be satisfied with less speed if it means the proper safeguarding of human lives.

A BREAKFAST TRAGEDY

By F. R. Parsons

The harsh, discordant shrieks of the neighboring "br akfast" hooter, vibratory and piercing, cut through the morning calm as I came up with him, huddled in a dejected heap on a seat, fronting the river. His sunken chin drooped on his breast; his arms hung limply; one leg was drawn up under the seat, the other stretched across the pathway.

At the sound of my voice he lifted his face—such a face, too! I'll never be losing its memory.

"Is it ill you are, man?" I asked, concernedly.

"Ill! Something like a laugh escaped him. It was a harsh, mirthless, eerie effort, and it seemed to crack his stiff-drawn face as it burst through.

"Won't you tell me something about it?" I said, regardless of the fact that nameless grimy denizens of yonder factories were streaming past to snatch a hurried breakfast. I sat me down beside him.

"Smoke?" I said, as I handed him my pouch, thinking its soothing influence might calm his jangled nerves. He snatched at it like a starving dog at a dainty; extracted and mouthed a lump with hungry avidity.

"D'you know what it is to have somethin' y'love an' worship just s'slidin' away from ye; 'cause ye ain't got nothin' in th' 'ouse to keep life in it?"

He had turned upon me fiercely, savagely.

"Y'don't, maybe! Then, I do! I've a kid at 'ome what'a dyin' just like that; 'cos I can't get work to find the kid a meal—to keep life an' soul in his little body. . . . .

"I'm a fitter. Tried all them shops s'mornin'"—nodding his head in the direction of the tall chimneys that indicate the industrial zone, where men toil and sweat in dingy workshops. "Same old tale—no hands wanted; short time, an' no orders; thinkin' of shuttin' down.

"But this ain't the worst, mate. Maybe if I tell ye, ye'll feel like kickin' me; an' the worst of it is I know I'd deserve all of it—aye, deserve 'angin'!"

He hung his head again in the old dejected attitude.

"I stole the kid's breakfast this s'mornin', before I come out; I did!"

The words were jerked from him as he shot up from his seat, and strode drunkenly a pace or two until he reached the railings, on which he leaned, burying his head in his arms.

Presently he lifted his head and went on:

"God knows I was hungry enough, an' wanted it; but the Devil took it off the table an' tempted me mouth with it. 'Twas a bite o' bread an' a drop o' milk I bought with th' last penny overnight. Mother an' me saved it for th' kid's breakfast s'mornin'; but when I gets up an' sees it there, temptin' like, I couldn't keep me hands off it, nowhow. An' I tried, God in heaven knows I did; I even put me old cap over it so's I shouldn't see it while I had a wash—blut 'twas no use! An' I'd had nothin' to eat all yesterday!"

His voice trailed off into a hoarse whisper.

"Show me where you live!" I said.

He looked up into my face; his own growing whiter under a spasm of faintness.

Then, without a word, he tottered along beside me; over the bridge, past frowning warehouses, smoke-grimed foundries and untidy wharves; thence into the western quarter of the city. At a little shop I bade him wait whilst I made a few purchases. Then down a noisome alley-way, and so to a door which he pushed open.

A woman, careworn, pale, and emaciated, rose from a stool as he entered, and seeing me behind her husband, with hurried, shaking fingers drew together the folds of a thin blouse wherewith to cover her naked breast. Her eyes looked a mute inquiry, traveling from her husband to me, and then to an empty table, devoid of anything eatable or drinkable; then to a little, single bedstead in one corner of the room.

My eyes followed hers, and I noticed, partly concealed by a few dingy bed coverings, the fair-haired head of a sleeping boy. By the bedside was a pair of crutches. The face was partly turned to me, and a something in the peaceful look, the placid stillness, the marble whiteness of the skin caused me to drop the parcels I held in my arms.

I bent over him for, perhaps, ten seconds. Then I laid my fingers on his forehead.

"He isn't hungry, now!" I said, quietly.

LIGTHNING YARNS

Superstitions Regarding Thunder Storms—Fallacy as to Scissors

A fallacy of many men is that small steel objects, such as scissors or knives, will "attract lightning." Now, the destructive flashes which need be feared range anywhere from 200 feet to a mile in length and are commonly of 50,000 horse-power, while their cross sections are like those of iron bars heated to whiteness. It is, therefore, silly to suppose that such an insignificant thing as a pair of scissors would attract such a force out of its path, and it is equally silly to believe that a plate of glass or a few inches of feather bedding would bar its progress once it were started toward you.

A further superstition—in which nearly every housewife believes implicitly—is that "lightning sours milk." True, milk will often quickly decompose when a thunderstorm is brewing; but it is the closeness of the atmosphere which does the mischief, never the lightning, and the milk would turn on an equally sultry day when there was not a thunderstorm within a hundred miles.

Then, too, there is the wise saw which says that "lightning never strikes twice in the same place." Yet objects which have been struck once frequently offer themselves again and again as targets.—Girls' Own Paper and Woman's Magazine.

SMITH'S FALLS MAN PLUNGED HIS ARMS INTO MOLTEN METAL

Smith's Falls, May 3.—Albert Rose an employee of the Malleable Iron Works, was terribly injured while at work last night. Rose was carrying a ladle of hot metal when he stumbled and fell. In doing so he plunged both arms up to his elbows in the molten metal. Almost crazed with pain, Rose rushed to the barrel of water and immersed both arms, thus intensifying his agony. He was removed to St. Francis' Hospital, where his injuries are being treated. The outcome of the burns is not yet known, but his condition is serious.

CALL OFF THE WORLD TOUR OF THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR

St. Paul, May 4.—The box office receipts of the concerts given by the Sheffield Choir were attached Monday in a suit brought by Louis W. Gay, manager of the United States tour of the choir, against Dr. Chas. Harriss of Ottawa, Ont., the financial backer and general manager. It is said that no more concerts will be given and that the choir will return to England.

By the this attachment of "garnishment" suit the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, which, through its agents handles the receipts of the St. Paul concerts, is forbidden to pay over to the choir any share of the proceeds from the sale of tickets. Mr. Gay admits in his complaint that his salary as American manager and booking agent has been paid to date, but alleges that a certain percentage of the proceeds was guaranteed him, and that a reasonable and fair amount under that agreement is $4,000 or ten per cent. of the entire gross receipts, which, he says, have amounted to about $40,000.

CHINESE REVOLT NOW CRUSHED, SAYS BRITIS ADMIRAL

London, May 4.—Vice-Admiral Sir Alfred L. Winsloe, Commander-in-Chief of the British Eastern Fleet, cabling from Hong Kong to-day, informs the Admiralty that the situation at Canton is not serious now, the revolutionary outbreak of last Thursday night having been crushed before the news of the movement was received by him.

Two British river gunboats have been at Canton since Friday. A destroyer and two gunboats at Hong Kong are in readiness to proceed to Canton, but the British Consul-General considers that further protection for foreigners there is not required.

A GHOST STORY

The Gong Continued to Ring After the Patient Had Died

One day in a hospital in a Colonial city, a new patient was carefully placed in her bed.

"We can't save her," said the doctor who received and examined her, "so let her have anything she wants in reason, nurse."

The nurse murmured her assent, and the doctor went on his rounds.

Presently the patient was seized with terrible pain, and delirium was setting in. On the table at her bedside stood a small gong, which served instead of a bell when the patient wanted the nurse, and towards this the woman's hand unconsciously strayed.

Suddenly her strength seemed to return to her, and, beating lustily on the gong, she cried, in tones of passionate pleading:

"My husband! Fetch my husband!"

Later, when she was calmer, she told the nurse that her husband had deserted her, and now that she knew her death was near, she had but one desire—to see him before she died. At last the gong had to be removed from her reach, as she was wearing herself out and disturbing all the other patients with her frenzied beatings upon it.

She begged so piteously, however, that she might have it back that the kindly physician, to soothe her last moments, put her in a private room, with the gong at her bedside.

Before the hospital authorities could find a clue to his whereabouts, the poor woman had gone.

Later, when another patient was occupying the same bed, the gong still rang, although the doctor and nurses could find no reason for it. The doctor, with all his scientific knowledge, could give no explanation. But the last repairs, the gong still rang as when the hand of the deserted wife beat upon it in her last moments.

HARD TO BEAT IT

Two Travellers Compared Notes and Dig Up Some Stories

The smoking-room of a big West-end hotel was full, and, taking advantage of such a large audience, two travellers were relating to each other, in tones audible all over the room, some of their experiences. After both had confessed to having been nearly grilled to a cinder in the neighborhood of the Equator, they proceeded to compare experiences in the matter of cold.

Said the first traveller, "When I was in Hudson Bay I struck a certain district where the ground was frozen so hard that whenever a human being died, being unable to bury him in the orthodox way, it was customary to merely sharpen his feet and drive him in with a tent hammer."

The second traveller yawned, and replied in an off-hand sort of way, "Oh, yes; of course, I know that place well, every inch of it. It doesn't strike me as being anything out of the ordinary. Stopped there a week or two, and then got bored. The air was too relaxing, so I toddled up country a bit, and put up at a small town a few thousand miles farther north. Was most unlucky during my visit there. The hotel caught fire. My room was on the top floor, immediately facing the biggest iceberg in the neighborhood. For a moment I was quite in a fix—no fire-escapes or anything of that sort in such an out-of-the-way place. The staircases were soon burnt to powder. But, happily I didn't lose my presence of mind. I merely emptied my bath out of the window and slid down the icicle."

FIVE GENERATIONS

A Great-Great-Grandmother, Yet Not Three Score Years of Age

A remarkable Jewish family, consisting of five generations—great-great-grandmother, great-grandmother, grandmother, mother, and daughter—lives in Copenhagen. This has been produced by a series of early marriages, the eldest child of which has been a daughter in each case. The eldest link in the chain, Mrs. Levyson, is only in her eighty-first year. She has five children, among them Mrs. Salomonsen, married to a well-known broker. She may claim to be Europe's youngest great-grandmother, as she is still a long way off the three-score mark. Her eldest daughter, Mrs. Albert Meyer, the wife of a large paper merchant, is a young and charming grandmother. Her eldest daughter, Mrs. Hugo Trier, also a merchant's wife, and the mother of the fifth generation, is barely eighteen.

FOUND HIDDEN MONEY

John Eastup, of Runcorn, Cheshire, has discovered in various parts of his cottage nearly $5,000, which had been hidden by his wife, who died a week or two ago. Eastup knew that his wife was of very thrifty habits, and after the funeral commenced a search of the house. Secreted in a cupboard he found a basin containing several hundred threepenny-pieces, in another cupboard was a hoard of half-crowns, and beneath a brick in the cellar floor a jampot filled with 552 sovereigns was discovered.

If the Queen of the May is sitting with her feet in hot mustard water to-day it is her own fault. There were plenty of precedents.

A HAPPY GIVER

By W. Harold Thomson

"Ah!" said Dougal, raising his eyes piously. "Ye come among us like a dove bearin' the olive branch. He did so. He was a very wonderful man was Mr. Ezekiel McIvor."

I nodded encouragingly. "Yes?" I prompted, "and he—what was it he did again? Told you all about the difficult art of giving or something—wasn't that it? But what was he? What was his profession?"

Dougal shook his head sadly—thoughtfully. "I never thought to ask, sir. It must have been somethin' respectable, for he wore a black coat and a black tie, an' a white collar, an' one o' them long melancholy faces as seems fae go wi' all good men like him. He stayed among us for a week, speakin' hirsel' hoarse every night in the interests o' humanity, an' spendin' his days in reformin' bad old men like McSwail o' Wee Knowe, an' in drinkin' tea wi' old weemin as was feelin' lonely. I forget just exactly who it was as sent him here, but they must have been proud—proud o' their servant. He was collectin' for a lot o' different things—charities an' that. He done it well, too; he had a terrible winnin' way wi' you queer, woeful voice o' his. It was made fae fit his face—the voice, I mean. The weemin fair worshipped him—the oldish anes, think ing his wife was ower thin an' ghostly-like for any o' his young, human ities. Men of course, he wasn't likely to excite love. Mm-hmm! He went about the get money for his charities, frequently the money he got for himself—it was ten shillin's a day an' his expenses."

"Why, that was pretty good," I said. "He'd consider himself quite well off, eh?"

I fancied I could see a smile flickering behind Dougal's beard, but he suppressed it quickly. "Maybe," he said; "but then no doubt he gave a heap o' that away. His whole beautiful life was bound up in givin'—he said as much hissel'.

"For six mortal nights he spoke in the hall down yander, an' his theme was mainly charity. He told us all how tae give. 'The Lord loveth a cheerful giver,' says he. 'See you an' be cheerful givers. When I give, I give wi' my whole heart—I tremble wi' happiness, friends. See you an' be happy givers, too.'

"That's what he said. It made a great impression, as ye might say. The weemin poured out money like as if they found it growin' in the garden. The men weren't just so terribly free. They grieved Mr. McIver sorely, did the men. I was one o' them. He met me in the street one day. I was for slippin' past, jaunty like, but he nabbed me by the arm.

"'My friend,' he says, 'I didn't see you at our meetin' last night. Why—oh why? It was a most helpful meetin'—in every way a most helpful meetin. Why did you absent yourself?'

"'Well,' says I—I was kind o' wild wi' him, Mr. Ness—'I absented myself strictly up akin' for three reasons. First, I was dog-tired an' didna' want tae stir from the fire; second, I'm no' a'thegither in favor o' sending out temperance preachers tae them backslidin' Hindoos; an' third, had only one thripp'ny bit in the house, an' the wife took that for you.'

"He let go my arm an' groaned. I could see his noble eyes fillin' wi' tears. 'Oh!' he says, 'I hope your heart will be touched before I leave this place. What is a three-penny bit?'

"'It's three pennies,' I answers, sharp like; 'an' three pennies means a loaf o' bread, mister.'

"He gazed at me sort o' strickes, I thought. 'Charity!' he moans. 'This is charity! Give of your bounty, sinner, as I do. Be generous. Give happily an' freely, like me.'

"I didn't say nothin' more, Mr. Ness, but just strolled away wi' my tongue in my cheek.

"I was thankful when the week o' preachin' an' beggin' came tae an end. Yes, I was. Me an' some more went down tae see Mr. McIver away. The boots from the hotel—temperance—where he'd been stayin', carried up his great heavy bag tae the station. When he'd seen the bag into the carriage the preacher took out a handful o' money an' rummaged among it. He picked out some coins an' pressed them into the boots' hand.

"'There!' he says lordly like. 'Take it my man an' thank you!'

"I followed the boots out o' the station. Then I says to him: 'Open your fist an' let's see!' He did. What d'ye think there was in it, Mr. Ness?"

"Gold!" I hazarded.

Dougal tapped me impressively on the knee. "'Twaree happ'nies!" he said. He rose to his feet and looked down at me solemnly. "It's easy enough tae be a happy giver when ye give like that."

CHANGES IN EUROPE

Have Been Many and Important During Past Century

The changes in Europe since 1801 show some remarkable reversals in States and politics. The Europe of 1801 counted 175 million inhabitants; its population to-day exceeds 433 millions. The population of France, which ran to over thirty-three millions, exceeded them in number, cohesion and living strength that of any nation except Russia, which, however, counted only thirty-six millions. The population of the British Isles was only sixteen millions, not quite half that of France. The German Empire, counting its three hundred States, often at war with one another, had in all only twenty-five million of people. Italy was only a "geographical expression" at that time, but the whole peninsula in ten duchies comprised only seventeen million people. Austria and Hungary together numbered only twenty-five millions. Outside of Europe at that time the world was either a desert or unknown.—London Spectator.

ELEPHANT HUNTER'S INCOME

The first meeting of creditors under the failure of the Hon. Rupert Cecil Craven, a son of the third Earl of Craven, was held at the London Bankruptcy Court, when it was stated that the debtor's occupation had been mainly that of elephant hunting, which produced him an income of $3,500 a year.

The debtor owes about $5,000, and has no assets. He attributes his position to heavy expenses in connection with divorce proceedings in 1900 and to loss over South African shares in 1906.

The case was left with the Official Receiver to be wound up in bankruptcy.

ARTFUL EVASIONS OF ALIENS ACT

How "Undesirables" Enter England—Non-Immigrant Steamers Dump Many There

Whatever may be the legislative outcome of the amazing siege of Stepney, says an English paper, there is no gainsaying that at present our immigration laws are more ineffective than those of any other country in the world. Any alien with the brains of a rabbit, however black his history or blighted his health, can easily enter England against the will of the authorities, and can, in fact, snap his fingers at them.

The latest method of evading the Aliens Act is to come to this country with the return half of an excursion ticket, which can always be purchased on the Continent or obtained by post from London or from a confederate who has used the other half. Not long ago a Frenchman well-known in Leicester Square, thinking it politic to leave his usual haunts for a short time, went to Paris by a day excursion. While there he gave the return half of his ticket to an old comrade in crime, who with it came to London, giving a false name and address to the officer who examined the Channel.

Just Within the Limit.

But there are many other dodges for evading the Aliens Act. One which results in hundreds of "undesirables" entering this country is systematically practised on some steamers. It is keeping the number on a ship just below the limit allowed for exemption from inspection. Originally a steamer which carried fewer than twenty steerage passengers was not, for the purposes of the Act an immigrant ship, and was not, therefore, liable to inspection. Then the number of third-class passengers allowed for exemption was reduced to twelve, and now it is again twenty. Mark how matters have been adjusted accordingly. Some captains used regularly to bring over seventeen or eighteen third-class passengers, then nine or ten, and at present they are back again to the old number, except when they cut things very fine and arrive in the Thames with nineteen!

It is not uncommon for the aliens thus "scraped through" to include at least one who has been refused leave to land. He or she previously came to England in an immigrant ship, and was turned back owing to lack of means or for some other reason. No fewer than four rejected aliens were about a year ago dumped in a batch at Hull from a (technically) non-immigrant steamer.

Second-Class Passengers

The same steamers bring over many "undesirables" as second-class passengers, and thus defeat the object of the Aliens Act in another way. No sooner were second-class passengers exempted from inspection than such companies lowered their second-class fares till they were only a little higher than the steerage rates, and ever since many immigrants unable to pass inspection, as well as not a few of those refused permission to land, have triumphed over the authorities by coming to England in the intermediate class.

Shipping agents in Continental ports also have many tricks whereby they dump "undesirables" on us. About eighteen months since, for instance, some of those at Bremen kept in stock letters of invitation written by people in this country. These they supplied—for a consideration—to aliens for showing to the inspectors when they reached England as conclusive proof that there was not the remotest chance of their becoming burdens on John Bull.

The Yellow Peril

A moderately wideawake immigrant, however, requires no assistance to enable him to enter England without even a "By your leave." What is to prevent him from shipping as a cattleman or sailor and landing at one of our ports as such? Nothing. As a fact, this game is played on us thousands of times every year. Out of the total number of cattlemen who arrived in this country in 1909 no fewer than 2,300 did not return on the cattle ships. Some may have left as ordinary passengers, but the majority doubtless remained in England. Whether they are likely to become good citizens may be gauged from the fact that thousands of cattlemen who have landed in this country have straightway sought the hospitality of the casual ward.

The ranks of Chinese residents in this country are steadily recruited in the same way. Of late years many "sailors" from the Celestial empire have married English girls and settled in our large ports, particularly Liverpool, where laundries "run" by their compatriots absorb some of them. Six or seven years ago an attempt was made to establish Chinese laundries in London, with the result that the promoters got such a fright from hostile crowds that the enterprise faded away. But in Liverpool, Birkenhead, and the Wallasey district there are many such laundries, and a few have recently been opened in towns so far inland as Stockport.

"Me Wash Clothes"

They compete strenuously, not only against our native laundries, but against one another. An Ah Sing at Lincard, according to local report, described himself, with a fine eye to business, as a "Christian Chinaman," whereupon his rival, whose place of business is in the same street, boldly announced, "Me no religion; me wash clothes"!

Still more undesirable immigrants work a passage to this country. One of the men responsible for the twenty-five or twenty-six casualties at Tottenham undoubtedly came to England as a fireman on a steamer, and probably the other desperado evaded the Aliens Act in a precisely similar manner. Both, at all events, were nominally seafors when they landed.

THE DIFFERENCE

A certain truant officer recently made a call at the home of a pupil whose absence had extended over a week and inquired of the lad's mother, a genial-looking Irishwoman, the cause.

"Why," she said, 'he's now past his thirteenth year, an' me an' 'is father-r think he's afther-r having schooling enough, sor."

"Schooling enough?' repeated the officer. "Why, I did not finish my education until I was twenty-three."

"Be that so?" asked the mother, in amazement. Then, reassuringly, after a moment's thoughtful pause: "Well, sor, yez see, that boy of ours has b-brains."

NOT FOR THE CHURCH

Was Lord Morley—No Sign as a Boy of Becoming Great

There are still people in Blackburn who can recall Lord Morley who, as the son of Jonathan Morley, a surgeon of that town, spent his boyhood much in the same way as other boys do, preferring the open air to the study. John Morley in those days evinced no signs of forthcoming greatness. "I shall put him into the Church," old Dr. Morley used to say. "He will be able to earn a living at that." But John Morley had no desire to enter the Church, and, if he did not flatly decline to go, he soon showed that he would prefer to rough it in a vocation he cared for than escape the worry of having to hunt for to-morrow's meal by adopting a calling which could not awake any sympathy in him. At twenty-one he was called to the Bar. Then he began to write, and ultimately turned to politics. Curiously enough he made his first attempt to enter the House by contesting Blackburn, and was rejected. Eleven years later he put up for Westminster, and here again met with defeat. His opportunity came with a by-election at Newcastle in 1883, when he headed the poll.

MARK TWAIN MADE THE WORLD LAUGH

Some of the Witticisms of the Late Great Humorist When at Home or Abroad

The famous humorist who has just died was a wit before he left the nursery. One day his father led him into the garden, and, pointing to a bed of flowers that had a considerable number of weeds in it, said: "I want you to weed out this flower-bed." Young Clemens looked at it for a moment, and then naively inquired, "Wouldn't it be better, father, to flower out this weed-bed?"

London police are not a little proud of the compliment Mark Twain paid them when he visited this country in 1907. "They would not only salute me," he observed, "but would hold up their puissant hands and paralyze the commerce of the world's greatest city just to let me cross the street."

It was during this visit that a London paper, either by accident or design, came out on the day of his landing with this placard:—

MARK TWAIN ARRIVES.
ASCOT CUP STOLEN

This was too much for "Mark." He publicly declared that he had not got the Cup. He didn't know where it was. He didn't want to know. All he wanted was that his character should be cleared at once. The sequel came when the Savage Club took up the joke and presented the humorist with a facsimile of the Cup.

Talking of this incident reminds one of Twain's "Notice to the Next Burglar," which he wrote on a piece of cardboard and nailed to the front door after burglars had entered his Connecticut home and carried off considerable booty. The notice ran:—

"There is nothing but plated ware in this house now and henceforth. You will find it in the dining-room, over in the corner by the basket of kittens. If you want the basket put the kittens in the brass thing. Do not make a noise. It disturbs the family. You will find goloshes in the front hall by that thing which has umbrellas in it—a chiffonier, I think they call it, or a pergola, or something like that. Please close the door."

The humorist had something of a tenderness for burglars.

"The burglar," he said once, as he fondled a new revolver, "like everyone else, must make a living; perhaps he has a family to support." Then he whistled, and three great dogs leaped into the study. "What a pity it would be," he continued, pensively, "if the burglar's family should be deprived of its invisible means of support."

Mark Twain has not been wanting in personal homage of humble admirers, and often a representative of them rang his door-bell and asked the privilege of paying his respects. Not long since a big, good-natured countryman—a butcher, as he introduced himself—after a few minutes' chat, asked, "Now, tell me for a fact, are you the one who wrote all them books?" "Truly I am," said Mark. "Of course you are, of course you are," cried the earnest fellow. "but, by George, I shouldn't think it by your looks." Whereat Mark was hugely tickled.

Mark Twain's passion for smoking was, of course, well known, but it came as a great surprise when he confessed last autumn that he had enjoyed forty cigars a day for twenty years. It was a great deprivation to him when the doctors cut his allowance down to four a day.

"My only restriction as regards tobacco," he once remarked, "is never to smoke more than one cigar at a time. I smoked discreetly during my father's lifetime. He died fifty-eight years ago; ever since then I have smoked publicly. I never smoke when asleep, and never refrain when awake. As for drinking, my rule is, when others drink I like to help, otherwise I remain dry."

When Mark Twain was a young and struggling newspaper writer in San Francisco a lady of his acquaintance saw him one day, with a cigar-box under his arm, looking in at a shop window. "Mr. Clemens," she said, "I always see you with a cigar-box under your arm. I am afraid you are smoking too much." "It isn't that," said Mark Twain. "I'm moving again."

In his autobiography Mark Twain has placed it on record that he was "a sickly and precarious and tiresome and uncertain child," and lived mainly on allopathic medicines for the first seven years of his life. "I don't think I needed them," he said, referring to his childhood during a speech on his seventieth birthday. "It was for economy; my father took a drug store for a debt, and it made cod-liver oil cheaper than the other breakfast foods. We had nine barrels of it, and it lasted me seven years. Then I was weaned. The rest of the family had to get along with rhubarb and ipecac and such things because I was the pet. I had it all. I was the first Standard Oil Trust."

Talking of speeches, at a public dinner on one occasion Mark Twain's name was associated with the toast of literature by an orator who, in the course of his speech, eloquently referred to Homer, Milton, Shakespeare, and—Mark Twain! The humorist, in reply, thanked the speaker for his allusions, and excused himself for acknowledging them at greater length by saying: "Homer is dead; Milton is dead; Shakespeare is dead; and I am not feeling any too well myself!"

Mark Twain gained a reputation as a humorist in the days when he was writing for the newspapers, and a comedian once offered him five dollars for half-a-dozen good jokes. Mark refused on the ground that if he were found with five dollars on him he would be suspected of stealing the money, and if the comedian were discovered with six good jokes he would be arrested for theft.

You can easily make a man hot by rubbing him the wrong way.

THE DEAD SEA

Entertaining Facts About the Remarkable Sheet of Water

In many ways the Dead Sea, in Palestine, can claim the distinction of being the most remarkable sheet of water on the face of the globe. Although known by name to everyone, only twice in modern times has anyone attempted to make any systematic study of this historic region.

Indeed, its banks are seldom visited, and many of the ravines and mountains that skirt its shores are said to be virtually unexplored territory. This account, therefore, of a week spent upon the waters of this little-known

...ake us or more than passing interest.

The subject acquires an added value from the fact that the Turkish Government recently granted a concession for the exploitation of the minerals in the Dead Sea basin, a sum of £70,000, it is said, being paid for the rights. It is well known that the finest and purest bitumen is obtained here, as well as sulphur, copper, marble, etc. Then experts have declared that there are evidences of coal and oil in the region.

The Dead Sea is some forty-seven miles long, and about ten miles wide at its greatest breadth. Curiously enough, it lies 1,300 feet below the level of the Mediterranean. Many ridiculous stories are told about this sheet of water, even in Palestine itself. For instance, people will tell you in Jerusalem that it is impossible to swim in its waters, and that no animal or vegetable can exist near its shores. While it is true that fish cannot live in the lake, birds may frequently be seen, in certain places, flying over its surface.

As for swimming, the excessive buoyancy of the water merely renders it difficult to make much headway, but swimming is both feasible and refreshing. Among the party on the exploring vessel, which numbered eleven, there were several who could not swim, yet in the evening they often ventured into the water, and floated about on their backs. What one has to be careful about is not to get the water into the eyes.

Indeed, did Palestine belong to any other power but Turkey, probably the northern shore of the lake would be a popular bathing station. No doubt the chloride of magnesia which enters so largely into the composition of the water, would be found to have medicinal and curative properties. The water is certainly very dense, containing twenty-three per cent. of solid matter, and, in bulk for bulk, heavier than the human body.

How dense it is may be realized from the following table: In a ton of water from the Caspian Sea there are 11 lbs. of salt; in the Baltic, 18 lbs.; in the Black Sea, 36 lbs.; in the Atlantic, 31 lbs.; in the English Channel, 75 lbs.; in the Mediterranean, 85 lbs.; in the Red Sea, 93 lbs.; and in the Dead Sea, 167 lbs.

It has generally been believed that this famous inland sea is decreasing in size, but the reverse is the case.

POPULAR PHRASES

How Some of Them Originated—Common Expressions

Who first gave utterance to some of the popular phrases of to-day it is practically impossible to say, but it is not so difficult to trace the origin of the sayings. Cheshire cats, for instance, are no different from those of other counties, but because Cheshire cheeses used to be made in the shape of cats with fixed, broad grins, the phrase "Grinning like a Cheshire cat eating cheese," arose.

The phrase, "He's a brick," originated from an Eastern ruler, who, while visiting a neighboring principality, asked his host to show him the fortifications. Waving his hands towards his troops, which were drawn up in soldierly array, the Prince said to his guest: "These are my fortifications; every man is a brick."

The phrase, "Mad as a hatter," really means as venomous as a viper. "Mad as a hatter" is simply a corruption of an ancient form, "Mad as an atter, or adder." Mad in this case is generally synonymous with poisonous.

The clause "It suits to a T," meaning it fits exactly, is as old as the familiar instrument, the T-square, or T-rule (so called from its resemblance to the letter T), used by mechanics and draughtsmen for making angles true and for obtaining perpendiculars. The expression was in common use in the time of Dr. Johnson, who is quoted by Boswell as saying of Warburton, "You see they have fitted him to a T."

A G.T.R. train ran over and killed a dog near Hamilton's foundry yesterday. The animal was cut in two and presumably was minus a tag, hence his sudden demise.

Committee to Meet.

There will be a meeting of the committee and others interested in connection with the celebration of Coronation Day, this evening in the Council Chamber, at 8 o'clock. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance.

What Our Firemen Get.

City firemen receive the following salaries: First year men, $500 to $525; second year men, $525 to $575, third year men from $575 to $600. First year policemen get $500 per year.

Charged With Being Insane.

Edward Robins, of Smith Township, appeared before his worship Magistrate Edmison on a charge of being insane and dangerous to be at large. He was remanded until Saturday. He was arrested by High County Constable Cochrane last Friday, and brought to the city. The prisoner was examined in the cells by two medical men and on second report, they pronounced him insane.

Mr. Might's Gratitude.

Fire Chief Howard is in receipt of a very complimentary letter from Mr. F. J. Might, of the J. C. Turnbull Co., expressive of good wishes to the firemen, and enclosing a cheque for $10, to be applied to the firemen's benefit fund, for which the firemen are very grateful. The department recently had a run to Mr. Might's residence.

A Good Appointment.

The many friends of Major Geo. W. Bennett will be pleased to learn that he has been appointed chief inspector of colonization roads for Ontario. The duties are implied in the title, he having to supervise the work being done by the inspectors throughout the several districts. He has been for many years township clerk of North Monaghan, and the new position will likely necessitate his giving up the office, much to the regret of many residents of that township.

Writ Against City.

Mr. R. Gibbs, the well known livery man, has issued a writ for $300 damages against the city, for the loss of a horse, caused by an accident, with which it met on Charlotte street near the G.T.R. crossing, where a drain for the carrying off of water had been made. The city clerk notified the Legal and Reception committee at the meeting Wednesday night and it was decided that the city solicitor should take the necessary action and defend the suit.

A Clever Architect.

We notice that in the Guelph Mercury that Mr. W. Tanner, jr., supplied the plans and specifications for the new Isolation Hospital, which it is proposed to build in Guelph, at a cost of $16,000. Mr. Tanner, who is only 20 years of age, is a nephew of Mayor Thorpe, of Guelph, and is also a nephew of Mrs. W. H. Muldrew of this city.

Struck by a Heavy Chain.

Mr. Wm. Cruickshank, a G.T.R. section man, who resides at Pigeonville and a brother of Mr. H. Cruickshank, local G.T.R. freight agent, met with a painful accident while chopping away the wreck at Hunt's elevator. A heavy chain attached to a crane happened to strike him on the head while being swung into position, inflicting a nasty gash. We are pleased to say that the injured man is now doing nicely under the care of Dr. Turner, of Millbrook.

Laid At Rest.

The funeral of the late Walter Head took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of his brother, Mr. Arthur Head, Bethune street, to Little Lake cemetery, and was under the auspices of Court Stanley, No. 7690, A.O.F. The following members acted as pall bearers: Geo. R. Record, T. Handley, Geo. Tremain, S. Adlam, R. J. McWilliams, J. C. Hamilton. Amongst the floral designs was a wreath from Court Stanley, A.O.F., and Queen Alexandra Circle, A.O.F. Brothers Pratt and Bretherson conducted the funeral services of the Order at the house and cemetery. The funeral was largely attended by the members of the Order, who turned out to pay their last respects to the deceased.

Circulars to Hotel Men.

Hotel-keepers are busy these days conning over some circulars sent to them by the Provincial License Department. These circulars explain in greatest detail the new five per cent. tax on bar receipts. In a few days they will receive some blank forms with a separate blank for each day in the month. These they are expected to fill in and return to the department at the end of the month with an affidavit as to the correctness of the figures. They will be given the first ten days of June to get those returns in, and if they do not get them in by that time they will be liable to a fine. When the returns are in and entered up, the hotelmen will get notice of what their taxes are to be.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Sarah Tebb

We regret to have to chronicle the demise of Mrs. Sarah Batterham, beloved wife of the late E. T. Tebb, who passed away at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Ben. Raper, Cavan, after a short illness. She was in her 77th year, having been born in England in the year 1834. She afterwards emigrated to this country and settled in Peterborough, in which place she has resided up to a few weeks of her death.

From her earliest years the late Mrs. Tebb was identified with the best interests of the Methodist Church, and during her married life took a deep interest in various departments of church work. She was an active member of Mr. Wm. Yellland's Sunday school class of George street for over 25 years.

Her husband predeceased her about 25 years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss, three sons and one daughter. They are, A. R. Tebb, Vancouver, B. C.; T. B. Tebb, Washington; W. A. Tebb, Hamilton, Ont., and Mrs. Ben. Raper, of Cavan.

The funeral took place on Monday from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Raper, Cavan. Interment took place at Gardiner's cemetery, Cavan.

David Thomas Little.

Thomas David Little passed away Tuesday at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto.

The funeral will take place from the home of his brother, 521 Chamberlain street at 2 o'clock this afternoon to Little Lake cemetery. The deceased leaves two children, one boy Clarence and one girl, Bertha; three brothers, John, Harry and Roy, and one sister, Bessie. He was for three years employed at the Cereal Co's. Works at Peterborough, but left for Toronto on the demise of his wife a year ago.

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is made from loaf sugar, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all dealers.

Mystery in Death of Leading Church Worker in Hamilton.

Hamilton, May 2.—Coroner Parry ordered an inquest into the death of Joseph H. Selkirk, 17 years of age, who went to his home last night after attending a meeting in St. Philip's church, and died within a few hours.

The doctors have been unable to ascertain the cause of death.

PETERBOROUGH POULTRY ASSSOC. HELD INTERESTING MEETING

There was a large attendance at the monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association last night. The president, J. T. C. Lang, was in the chair, and the meeting was a splendid one and much enthusiasm was shown by the members. Many reported splendid hatches this season. During the evening a paper by Mr. J. H. Callender, on Summer Feeding, was read.

SUMMER FEEDING.

Summer feeding of poultry is apt to be allowed to take care of itself, rather more than during the winter months, because it seems to have become a simple matter. The necessity for providing the fowls with every item of their diet when housed up closely, keeps the attendant watchful all the time, and often this is the season when the best results are obtained.

When spring opens up, however, it looks as if the fowls could do some foraging for themselves, and the close attention is relaxed, until one naturally falls into a careless haphazard way of feeding the birds. Possibly, where free range is provided this method might be followed without noticable evils resulting. But the penned up city flock is no better situated in relation to foraging ground than it was in the winter. The occasional foolish insect that ventures within the precincts of the hen-yard is quickly caught and executed, but the chances to participate in the game are entirely too few to supply the demand for animal food. Then there is a green feed. We tramp over fresh green lawns, and see nice bunches of clover along the roadside, and are apt to forget that inside the chicken yard not a blade of green is to be seen, while the longing for such food is always present.

We remember that it takes variety to keep the hens in egg-producing condition in winter, and naturally to make the young flock grow the best, the well-varied ration should be kept up.

Many poultry yards in the city are just as small a corner as the owner feels like sparing from his little garden, and the chicks are kept confined closely to keep them within bounds also. These small spots have long since forgotten how to produce grass or other green feed. How necessary then to be just as careful with the summer feeding as we are in winter.

We are inclined to feel that as eggs are cheaper in summer the keeping up of the egg supply is not so important then, but there is the feed to pay for just the same, and the hens must produce more eggs at the lower price, in order to keep up the profit end of the business.

The question of what the feeding rations should consist of is not so important as the matter of making it a varied one, grain of some kind, meat of some kind, and green food of some kind, with lots of fresh clean water always, covers this point.

For the benefit of those who may not have learned the method of supplying green food by sprouting oats, not only doing this, but increasing the bulk of the fold, the following directions might be useful:

Soak the oats for twenty-four hours and then turn them into a box or basket which will not hold water. Moisten the oats night and morning, turning them over with the hand until the sprouts appear. They will very soon throw out roots if set in a warm place near the stove. When this happens spread them out about an inch thick on trays of any kind that are easiest to make. After that do not disturb the oats, but keep them well moistened. In a short time there will be a sod about three inches thick, that will be relished by the hens in a way that will do your heart good to see. Feed only what they will eat up clean, and by starting a new lot every few days, the green food question is solved, and the cost reduced at the same time.

If other meat foods is hard to get, try breeding maggots: Mix bran and water to a sloppy condition, and let stand in the sun for a day or two. It does not take it long to turn into a pailful of lively white maggots that will start biddy singing the song we all enjoy to hear.

The whole matter resolves itself into the question of making nature's conditions as near as possible available for the hens and chicks that are shut up, and the attention to detail is almost invariably well rewarded.

Oats in the process of sprouting may be seen at 114 Hunter street, East City, at any time any of the interested poultrymen wish to call.

Brockville Boy Dies in Agony of Lockjaw.

Brockville, May 4.—Allan Latham, aged 14, died at the hospital here of tetanus.

Two weeks ago he engaged in playfully shooting at fish in Jones' Creek when a bullet from a rifle in the hands of another boy grazed his knee, leaving nothing but a scratch. Little was thought of the injury until Saturday last, when lockjaw developed. The lad died in great agony.

For soreness of the muscles whether indured by violent exercise or injury, Chamberlain's Liniment is excellent. This liniment is also highly esteemed for the relief it affords in cases of rheumatism. Sold by all dealers.

An Industrial Boom.

According to Mayor Jno. J. Mitchell, of Bowmanville, Ont., who was interviewed recently, Bowmanville is experiencing a very lively industrial boom. The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company is tripling its facilities and is in need of 50 additional hands. The Dominion Piano & Organ Company, also other concerns are in need of male and female help.

A Growing Town.

Winnipeg, May 3—Transcona, the Grand Trunk Pacific suburb of Winnipeg, is making great strides toward becoming a town of size and importance. Another big contract for $2,500,000 was let this week and by fall the town will have advanced to considerable size and will have laid a solid foundation for future growth.

This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

PORCUPINE NEWS

News just received from the District that the new Townsite called 'Porcupine City' located on an elevation in a District furnished with the only spring water is a regular boon to Porcupine and is as much a source of interest for the time being as the discovery of some of the principal gold fields. Sanitary conditions are the first essential of any mining Camp and this feature is so markedly in evidence that all scattered communities throughout the District are turning their attention to-ward Porcupine City and many of them have already secured lots in this site.

THE METROPOLIS OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Where fortunes are being made by investment, which cannot be equalled anywhere else in Canada. The position that Vancouver occupies, the same on the Pacific, as Montreal occupies on the Atlantic, also the fact that Vancouver is an open port the whole year round, means beyond a possible doubt, that Vancouver will be the greatest city in the Dominion.

Vancouver is the only gateway to the Orient from the whole of Canada, which demonstrates that this will be the greatest Canadian shipping port, owing to the enormous development of western Canada. This together with the fact that the immense wealth of the natural resources of the province of British Columbia, its timber, fisheries, fruit, coal and other minerals, must make it clear, that you can invest your money here to better advantage than elsewhere.

Vancouver offers to-day, the opportunity of a life time for both the small and the large investor, and if you will act on our advice we will positively guarantee to make returns for you that will surprise you. Ald. Graham and Morgan thought ...e City Hall and police station ...ould be eventually separated.

Mr. Moore—"The condition of the police station cells are unquestionably very bad."

Chief Thompson—"I could take you into the cells now and show a thousand bed bugs climbing up the walls. Under existing conditions it is impossible to remedy the present unsanitary condition of the cells and offices."

Ald. Metherpl—"The place should be put into a sanitary condition, but extraordinary expenditure, such as $5,000 or $6,000, should not be gone into. We should look forward to a new City Hall in the reasonably near future, when the present Council Chamber and offices could be absorbed by the police department."

Ald. Bradburn thought that present pressing requirements might be met by an expenditure of say $2,000.

Chief Thompson explained that that would not provide for the separation of male and female prisoners. Under present conditions the station is conducted contrary to law in this respect, and the city liable to action for damages at any time.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Graham,—That Mr. Blackwell prepare specifications and estimates of the proposed improvements on a modified basis of say $3,000.—Carried.

To Ald. Duncan, Mr. Blackwell said he had estimated that a separate heating system would be required for the enlarged station, at a cost of over $600.

Several aldermen were of the opinion that the heating system in the town buildings should be capable of heating the whole block.

Mr. E. A. Peck, asked Council, in behalf of 1,000 Fifth Ward residents, for a more substantial approach from the east end of Hunter street bridge to Burnham street. PUBLIC OPINION

ENCOURAGEMENT WANTED.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—May I, through the medium of your columns, appeal to all Britishers in Peterborough to support by their presence at the matches, the teams playing in the Church football league. Most of the players are boys from the old land and they would be pleased to receive the sympathy and support of their fellow countrymen. I feel sure that if the men and women in our city who are from the Old Country who knew of the number of their countrymen playing in these matches, they would gladly give them all the encouragement in their power, especially all lovers of the sport. Come in crowds and see good play.

Percival G. S. Webb.

PUBLIC CONVENIENCES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—With all its great progress, Peterborough is one of the most back ward of modern cities in that it seems to neglect the fact that, before it can permanently be progressive, it must have special care for the health of the citizens, and I now make particular reference to the almost total absence of public conveniences, of which, so far as I am aware, there is not one. Surely this is not as it should be in a city of such large dimensions. I do not wish to more than point out the necessity for these conveniences. They make for a healthy and decent city, and it is surely time that something should be done in the matter.

Otonabee.

Reply—Our correspondent is mistaken. The new city lavatory at the market, is airy, clean and quite satisfactory.—Ed. Times.

LIBRARY OPEN SUNDAYS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Brantford public library is to be kept open on Sunday afternoons. There are many in Peterborough who are of the opinion that it would be a good thing if more Canadian cities followed its example, and some would strongly favor opening the Peterborough library for a few hours Sunday afternoon. In London England, where Sabbath observance is otherwise so strict that even the restaurants close during most of the day, the libraries, art galleries and other similar institutions are kept open and are more largely patronized than on any day of the week. No deterioration of morals has been observed to result, but on the contrary beneficial instruction and useful educative influence are substituted for the doubtful attractions of less desirable resorts.

THE LURE OF THE MOTOR.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The automobile is all right for those who can afford it, but how many sins are committed in its name! How many homes are made unhappy by it, by the unsatisfied desire for it or the economies its possession makes necessary! What a number of human interest stories can be traced to it! What a load of debt it has imposed upon many a man—a load so heavy that it causes restless nights and days of worry. And a man who is deprived of his full amount of sleep cannot get the best results out of his business, or, if an employee, he cannot render satisfactory service.

HON. ADAM BECK WILL PROBABLY ADDRESS A PUBLIC MEETING HERE NEXT WEDNESDAY

THE HON. GENTLEMAN REGRETS THAT ANY MISUNDERSTANDING SHOULD HAVE ARISEN OVER HIS RECENT VISIT.

Communication Between the Mayor and Mr. Beck Leads to the Inference That the Latter Was Invited by Mr. Duggan to Visit Peterborough and Read the Report in Question.

At the City Council meeting last night, Mayor Morrow explained that Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, is anxious to come down to Peterborough and straighten matters out regarding his reading of the power report before a citizens' committee. He had had no intention of ignoring the City Council, and regretted any embarassment and misunderstanding that may have arisen from his late visit. This is the first time in the honorable gentleman's public career that unpleasantness had arisen over any official action on his part. Hon. Adam Beck had expressed his regret that any confusion had arisen. His Worship here went on to say that, in communication with Mr. Beck, he understood that Mr. Duggan had suggested that he (Mr. Beck) come down to Peterborough and read the report of his engineer he then had to hand to a committee. He did not know but what that committee was an authorized gathering of civic representatives. The distinguished chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission could address a public meeting of citizens on the question of power, perhaps next Wednesday if convenient.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Brown,—That Mr. Beck be invited to come down next Wednesday evening and address a public meeting on the question of power.—Carried.

The question of suitably entertaining the honorable gentleman was left in the hands of the Reception Committee to act with Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.—Carried.

THE POWER REPORT.

The Council will not discuss the power report recently published until after Hon. Adam Beck's visit.

Ald. Metheral scored Mr. Duggan for his attitude in this connection. He (Mr. Duggan) knew that the Council had the question of power in hand and had requested the Hydro-Electric Commission to report thereon. In the face of this he could not understand Mr. Duggan's action in bringing Mr. Beck to Peterborough and ignoring Council.

ST. JOHN'S VS. ST. JAMES'.

A Hotly Contested Game on the Bill for To-day.

A great deal of interest is being shown in the different matches played to-day by the football teams affiliated to the Peterborough Church League. The most interesting event, judging by public opinion is the match between St. John's and St. James', at the exhibition grounds this afternoon. Both teams have yet to taste of defeat and a good game is confidently predicted. The line-up for the two teams is as follows:

—St. John's—

Goal, Haycock; right full-back, Renshaw; left half-back, Hancox; centre half, Simmonite (capt.); left half, Brown; right half, Smith; centre forward, Copson; forwards, Davies, Sherman, Edwards, Stuart; reserves —Mathers, Lowe and Gaukell.

—St. James'—

Goal, Leader; backs, Grib, Brown; half-backs, Sandiford, Yates, Howson forwards, Way, Hotson, Gush, Turner, Newton; reserves—Sparrow, Farr Blackley and Lee.

Team meet at St. James' Church at 2.30 sharp. P. Webb, secretary, St. John's.

SOUND ADVICE FOR ALL SUFFERERS

MRS. LOIS McKAY TELLS THEM TO USE DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

They Took the Pain From Her Side, Cured Her Backache, and Made Her a Well Woman—Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cure Where the Kidneys are the Cause of the Trouble.

Tiverton, Digby Co., N. S., May 5 —(Special)—"I advise every sufferer from Kidney Disease to use Dodd's Kidney Pills." Those are the words of Mrs. Lois McKay, of this place.

"Before I used Dodd's Kidney Pills," Mrs. McKay continues, "I suffered with a bad pain in my back and side. Sometimes when I sat down I could hardly get up out of the chair. But thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills my pain is all gone and my back is well. I have proved for myself that Dodd's Kidney Pills are good."

How many women are there in Canada who suffer day after day with pain in the back or some other equally painful and disagreeable form of Kidney Disease? Every day from all parts of the Dominion come the statements of other women who have suffered just as they do, and who have been cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. The cure is simple, safe and within easy reach. Dodd's Kidney Pills never harmed anyone. They have cured thousands. They have never failed to cure where the Kidneys are the cause of the trouble.

WILL ALLOW CANADIAN RECIPROCITY BILL TO SLIP THROUGH.

Adjourn Before July 1—Poor Outlook for the Farmers' Free List Bill in the Senate—Nearing End of Debate in the House.

Washington, May 5.—Canadian reciprocity will be ratified and congress will adjourn between June 1 and July 1, if the insurgents and regular Republicans of the Senate adhere to their present purpose of confining legislation to the Canadian measure and such matters as direct elections and other matters hanging over from the last Congress.

It became known to-day that the insurgents have determined no longer to stand in the way of a vote on the reciprocity bill. The tangled skein of conflicting purposes is being straightened out in the Senate and an adjournment before July 1, for the first time, seems a possibility.

MINISTER'S WIFE IS UNDER ARREST

CHARGE OF THEFT WAS USED TO DETAIN HER—MAN WAS LET GO.

Mr. Kennedy Resigned—But Baptist Church at the Falls Would Not Accept Resignation.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 5.—Inspector W. H. Main of the Provincial police, received word from Winnipeg last evening, that Mrs. A. P. Kennedy, wife of the Baptist minister, in this city, who eloped with Albert Seagraves on Tuesday last, has been arrested in that city. Mrs. Kennedy admitted her identity. She had with her $400. Seagraves was released.

The eloping couple intended to make for Australia.

Officer Delaney of this city left this afternoon for Winnipeg to bring back Mrs. Kennedy, who was arrested on a charge of theft, she having taken a suit-case from the house, which did not belong to her. Her "affinity," who sang in the choir of the Baptist Church, was only on Sunday last immersed in the faith of the Baptist Church by Rev. Mr. Kennedy.

Since the scandal, Mr. Kennedy tendered his resignation to the church, but it was not accepted by the board.

FAIR PLAY, OR BRITISH JUSTICE

(Contributed)

The Czar, he sat in his Council Hall,
His vassals were standing by,
A darkened look was upon his face,
And blood was in his eye.

In deadly ire (for his pride was hurt)
To his faithful Councillors said,
"Is there one among you would bravely dare Rid me of the Fire Brigade?"

O'Morgan swore by the great horn spoon
And shook his shillalah Stick,
"The spalpeens will trouble yer honor no more
For I'll murder them double quick."

O'Bulker spoke up, for a fearless man
He was, as well ye know,
"Why what have they done 'gainst the City's peace
To be boycotted so?"

"Do ye call this British justice and law
With equal rights for all?
When free born men to the lords must cringe
Low as the basest thrall?"

"In this land of ours, while the Union Jack
Floats wide from sea to sea
No foot of slave shall ever tread
But free men shall be free!"

The Czar's wrath was then at white heat
And boldly he did reply,
"Those menials have had the presumption to hint
That 'twas possible I could lie.

"So death without quarter
Must now be the word.
For they surely have sealed their own doom,
And out they must go without jury or judge,
For more raw recruits to make room

But to hang them I dare not, for that is a power
Which the law has most strictly denied,
But I'll throw them a rope, and I'll ask them
To please, oblige me, by quick suicide."

What I Would Do

EXTEND STREET RAILWAY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If I had anything to do with civic affairs I would use my best endeavors to get the Street Railway to extend its tracks to country districts. A line to Young's Point, for instance, would mean much to the city, and would be worth many new industries so far as building up the business of the storekeepers is concerned. If a policy of this kind were adopted, Peterborough would practically be annexing all the surrounding country.

Sir,—I have read the many letters appearing in The Times in regard to "What I Would do if I were Mayor", but not one of the suggestions are to be compared, with what I offer. VANCOUVER CITY LOTS AT BARGAIN PRICES

Splendid Offering of Valuable Property In British Columbia.

The Times would direct special attention to the sale of Vancouver City Lots, advertised elsewhere. This property, we believe, is very desirably situated and should at once command the attention of investors.

It is almost certain that it will rapidly increase in value, and thus afford splendid profit to the investor. The marvellous growth of the city in the past, which has already produced millions to those owning real estate, will assuredly continue, for the development of Vancouver is a long permanent lines.

Persons with only limited means are enabled to become investors, as only a small cash payment is required with each purchase, the balance being extended over a considerable period of time.

The Scott Brokerage Company, of Vancouver, has opened an office in Peterborough for a short time, and will be pleased to have the public call and look over the proposition.

THIS WAS DECIDED LAST NIGHT ON A VOTE OF 7 TO 2

The Three Industrial Propositions Before the Council Last Year Came Through Mayor Morrow—Council as a Whole Favor the Office.

The City Council last night decided not to engage Mr. Duggan as Industrial Commissioner for the coming year. While Mr. Duggan was engaged last year by the Board of Trade, the Council granted $2,000 toward maintenance of the office—the other $2,000 was raised by private subscription. Mr. Duggan was consequently under the Board of Trade control, and not that of the Council.

The majority of the Board of Aldermen was in favor of retaining the office, but they voted against the engagement of Mr. Duggan.

After a brief discussion on the pros and cons of the situation, Ald Duncan moved, seconded by Ald Kernaghan,—That the Council do not engage Mr. Duggan. This was carried on the following division:—

Ayes—Aldermen Duncan, Kernaghan Brown, Morgan, Graham, Bradburn, and Metheral.

Nays—Aldermen Anderson and Edgar.

In reply to Ald. Morgan, His Worship replied that his company had supported the office of Industrial Commissioner to the extent of $500 in subscription—one fifth the amount raised by private donations. Of course, he said, it is generally conceded that the office is a difficult one, from which big results could not be expected in one year. Apart from this, however, Mr. Duggan has not dug up any proposition for industrial location that came before Council last year. The Bonner-Worth people and the Rubber Tire Co. wrote me direct. The Council was in negotiation with the Furniture company before Mr. Duggan's engagement. His Worship here unequivocally concluded "I didn't think Mr Duggan the right man in the right place."

Ald. Morgan—"The City requires an Industrial Commissioner, but I don't know whether Mr. Duggan is the man for the position or not, neither do I know if $4,000 is not too much to pay for such commission."

Ald. Brown offered that an opinion should not be based on one year's results on expenditure. A retention of the office for five years at $4,000 a year would represent $20,000, which might better be applied to the acquisition of power. An expenditure of that amount on power would be a move in the right direction. Cheap power would invite industries. The Mayor and Ald. Bradburn constitute the City's Power Committee, and when both were absent from town, the Industrial Commissioner overstepped his mark in inviting Hon. Adam Beck to read his engineer's report before a aggregation of private citizens. By so doing he unwarrantably ignored both the Council and the Power Committee.

Ald. Graham did not favor the engagement of Mr. Duggan. He did not think the office worth $4,000, especially so as the people turned down propositions in sight.

Ald. Anderson—"The office is not necessarily a permanent one for ten or fifteen years. But we need an Industrial Commissioner, and Mr. Duggan should be given a fair trial and not discountenanced because the Tire by-law was defeated. If we turn down Mr. Duggan, all the money expended on his office last year will be simply thrown away without opportunity for results. The merchants contributed largely toward the maintenance of an Industrial Commissioner and another year should be offered to permit of the city reaping benefits from the foundation laid by Mr. Duggan. He hoped that from the fact of one by-law having been defeated, the Council would not sit down with folded arms and allow things to drift. The late defeat should stimulate them to more strenuous efforts.

Ald. Brown contended that the Rubber Tire by-law could have been carried with proper organization and complained that the Industrial Commissioner had not invited either the Mayor or Council to co-operate with his committees in working to that end.

Ald. Edgar endorsed Ald. Anderson's attitude and was optimistic that the Commissioner would make a good showing the coming year. He should have an opportunity of completing the work he has in hand.

The motion here was voted on and resulted in being carried by seven to two as before explained.

The date of Commissioner Duggan's engagement by the Board of Trade expires on either May 6th or 15th. The Council were not quite sure as to which date.

HOW A WIFE WAS WON

"Some folks ain't never satisfied wi' till they gets what they wants," remarked old Tom Mogue, gazing ruefully at the empty pewter which stood on the tab'le before him. "There's Tom Woops, f'r instance—he maybe won'll not be wantin' to 'ear about 'im?"

"Is it worth hearing?" I inquired.

"Well, it takes a long time to tell it, and makes a chap dry, but it's worth 'earing," he replied, with his eyes steadily fixed on the aforesaid pewter.

Scenting a yarn, I called a waiter to refill Tim's mug. After a long swill or two at the frothing liquid, he lit his pipe and began.

"Tom Woops an' me were mates on the Bella Ann. We were chums, an' we were thick as mud. We used to share confidences an' money—at least I did, for when it was Tom's turn to stand 'is 'and he 'ad to borrer the money from me. Any time I axed my money back he used to palaver away about keeping an orphan farther. 'E was good at the gab, was Tom, an' 'e was a sanguine feller.

"One day the Bella Ann lay in Finchley Docks, an' as our summer 'olidays was due, we see, see we, we'll spend them 'ere. Well, on the first day of our 'olidays we was walkin' along the street when we meets a gal. Tom looked at 'er; she looked at Tom. 'That gal wants to make me acquaintance,' sez Tom.

"'A great mistake,' sez I.

"'But didn't ye see 'er smile to me?' mused Tom.

"'I saw 'er make a flea,' sez I.

"'Well, I don't give a 'ang; I'm goin' to meet 'ere to-morrer and meet 'er again,' sez Tom, determined like.

"Well, next day we was on the street when we meets the gal. She was a big, nice-lookin' gal, was this gal.

"'I think you've seen me before,' sez Tom, bowing an' lifting 'is 'at, an' smilin' a smole that would 'ave given a dog the jaundice.

"'I don't remember seein' you,' answered the gal, 'except in the comic papers.'

"That would 'ave put the Peter on most chaps, but it made no diff'rence to Tom.

"'Me name's Woops,' sez Tom.

"'I'm very sorry for you,' answered the gal, 'but we've all got our burdens in this world.'

"'You're busy,' sez Tom, not a least bit put out. 'I'll call around to-morrer afternoon, Gerty.'

"'How dare you call me Gerty?' sez the gal, givin' Tom a smack on the side o' the 'ead that sent 'im flyin' into the middle of the road.

"'That's only symptoms of love,' sez Tom to me as we made for the Bella Ann.

"I couldn'd 'elp larfin' at Tom. 'E see to me that night, see 'e, 'I'm goin' to see 'er to-morrer.'

"I tried to persuade 'im not to go, but 'e would 'ave 'is own way.

"'E went off dressed in 'is best go-ashores and a patch on 'is eye. Well, sir, the day were on, an' it was arter dinner. I was seated on a 'errin' barrel on deck when I saw a funny lookin' figure comin' down the street with 'arf the town's kids follerin' 'im. As the figure drew nearer to the ship I saw 'oo it was. Yus, it was Tom. I larfed till I fell off the barrel and landed on the skipper's waistcoat, 'oo was lyin' asleep behind me seat. 'E woke, an' was wild at me larfin'. 'E thought I was larfin' at 'im, but when I told 'im what I was larfin' at 'e was soon larfin' too. We larfed and larfed till we nearly larfed the clothes off us.

"Tom told me as we went to bed 'e was walkin' arm-in-arm with the gal along a road which mayvine were tarrin', an' 'e slipped on a banana skin an' fell on the tar. 'E see 'e was kissin' the gal good-night when 'er feather boa stuck to the tar. That was 'ow 'e came to be covered with tar and feathers.

"The skipper an' me spent near all the night scrapin' the tar off pore Tom. Next day we went up town. We met the gal, an' she started larfin'.

"'You've gotten over last night's treatment?' sez she.

"'Yes, love,' sez Tom, turnin' red.

"Then I began to see Tom's yarn about the tar business was all Tommy rot.

"'If you calls me Gerty or love again,' cries the gal, 'I'll smash yer bloomin' face fer yer,' an' walked off.

"Tom looked after 'er, then he turns annd grins, and sez quite delighted-like, 'That's only love.'

"'Well,' I sez, 'if that's love I'm single for life.'

"Did that finish Tom's love? Help me trouser buttons, no.

"Next day again off we goes to the gal's 'ouse, for, as Tom said, to give me a 'interduction. We got at 'er 'ouse, an' Tom walked back and forrit in front of the garden gate for about an hour, whistlin' like to bust 'is breeches.

"Then something 'appened. Over the garden wall came a brick an' a cabbage.

"'That's a secret code of ours,' explained Tom to me. 'A brick means wait a minute, and a cabbage means—'

"Just then a potato came over the wall. Whoosh! It caught Tom in the back of the neck.

"'What does that mean?' sez I. But Tom didn't 'ave time to invent anythin' before the door opened an' the gal came out.

"'Ullo, pie-face,' sez she to Tom, 'ere again?'

"'Yus,' sez Tom.

"'What are ye wantin'?' sez she.

"'I went you to be my wife, my star, my—' And 'ere Tom called 'er everythin' imaginable.

"The gal turns to me and sez, sez she, 'I suppose I'll 'ave to marry 'im, though of the two I prefer you.'

"'I'm married, thank you,' sez I, rastle.

"'That's 'ow Tom's wife was got—through sanguineness.'

MEMORIES OF THE PAST

The sergeant was drilling a dozen recruits, and after a few days he found that he had not made any impression on them whatever. He decided to tell them a tale:

"When I was a boy my mother bought me a dozen wooden soldiers, which I drilled and tried to instruct, but without any result, of course. Then I lost 'em one by one, and now I have found you again, you wooden duffers."

PECULIAR BAZAAR

Vegetarians, who are organizing a bazaar to be held in London, are making a feature of a stall upon which every article displayed resembles leather, but has been obtained in reality from a vegetable product. Among the articles made from this substance are boots and shoes, bags, music-cases, bound Bibles, pocket-books, and dog-collars.

CAPTURING A CURATE

By William Wade

"You haven't seen him yet? Well, that's a pity. He's quite a catch, I'm told. Young, handsome and single. Why don't you set your cap for him, Mattie? You've got as good a chance as the rest of them, and twenty-six is not old by any means."

She leaned over the garden gate as she spoke, this veritable village gossip. I can see her now, with little close-fitting bonnet, from beneath which the clustering gray hair peeped; the keen blue eyes, that seemed to read your very thoughts; the trim little figure, clad always in ample skirts of quaker grey or sombre brown.

Never was there a wedding, funeral or christening in the village without this estimable lady's presence. What a harmless little body she appeared, and how incapable of carrying about that wonderful budget of information! How nicely she imparted her knowledge to her listeners, beginning with, "Well, I don't mind telling you," or "They do say, but, of course, you can't believe everything," and ending with, "That's between you and me, it will go no farther."

I was in the garden that morning, training some early June roses; my thoughts were not the brightest, scarcely in harmony with nature, that was decked in one of her brightest mantles. It was quite unnecessary for Mrs. Briggs to remind me of my age; I was thinking seriously of it. Twenty-six! not very old to be sure, and yet not very young to be an unmarried woman. I must be content with fewer luxuries, less companies. I must step out of the field, as it were, and leave the romance and the day-dreams to younger and fairer girls.

It mattered little to me whether the new curate were young or unmarried, or a portly old fellow with a wife and grown-up daughters. At heart I disliked this interfering old woman who had broken in on my reverie.

I thanked her kindly for her advice, telling her that at present I had no intention of setting my cap at any one, not even the new curate; so saying I went back to my work and the roses.

"There, Mattie, don't be absurd. Of course it's nobody's business if you're going to leave yourself an old maid, but take my advice and don't spend your time fretting and worrying over Bob Preston, for he isn't worth it."

She shook her head wisely and was off before I had time to recover from the cruel thrust that had opened the old wound—Robert Preston and the past.

I tried to guard my heart, to trample under foot the old love. I could have laughed at my girlish folly, as it were a dream, until a thoughtless word had brought back the past, like the dead rises to life again, or a smouldering fire that needed but a gentle breeze to make it into a burning flame. One by one the blinding tears fell. I was only a weak woman after all, as, covering my face with my hands, I sobbed:

"Robert, O Robert! Why were you false?"

It all came back to me, that visit to Aunt Martha where I first met Robert Preston, a young student just returned from Oxford. I cannot tell you all those bright, happy day-dreams; how I loved him and waited for the happy days when he would ask me for that love. He read his answer in my telltale face before my lips uttered it.

So, engrossed with Robert's society, I took little heed of other matters, scarcely giving a thought to the fact that a young lady, the daughter of a deceased friend of my aunt's, was going to make her home with us. She came. From the moment I looked upon her lovely face my happiness was gone. I was a pretty girl, fair and fragile, yet one might as well compare a simple little daisy to a full-blown poppy or a rich red rose, as my frail beauty to this girl's exquisite loveliness.

For a time his love was unchanged. I laughed in my foolish heart at my doubts and fears. At times I would find his serious eyes wandering from me and resting admiringly on the beautiful face of Kathleen Lee. No man could resist that wondrous fascinating face. She never encouraged him, but the drooping lids, the faint flush, the trembling of the little hands, all told plainly that she, too, loved him.

How I suffered! In my mad jealousy I grew almost to hate the child. He loved me before she came with her beautiful flower-like face to rob me of that love. Was she blind that she did not see we were betrothed? I prayed that she might go away and leave us to ourselves once more, and Robert would go back to his old fond ways. His caresses were growing colder, his kisses lighter. I spoke of his seeming neglect. He answered lightly, taking both my hands in his and looking fondly at me.

"Nonsense, Mattie! Do you know, my little girl, that you are growing dearer and dearer to me every day?"

For a time I was satisfied, trying to be content with but a share of his love.

We were seated in the garden, one afternoon in the early autumn, Robert, Kathleen and I. She was looking unusually handsome in a dress of soft muslin. My lover had just paid her a well-merited compliment, for which she was about to make a gracious reply when Aunt Martha came to us.

"Robert," she said, placing her hand fondly on his shoulder as she spoke, "will you gather some cherries for me? The girls will go with you and hold the basket."

He arose to reply to her request. Kathleen was at his side in a moment, while I refused to join them, feigning a severe headache.

"They do not want me," I reasoned within myself.

I watched them as they walked away together, he carrying the little basket, and she with that coquettish air that came so natural to her.

I cannot tell you what tempted me to follow them; it must have been some evil genius. Slowly I followed down the pathway, taking every precaution, however, not to be observed.

THE DIFFERENCE

A certain truant officer recently made a call at the home of a pupil whose absence had extended over a week and inquired of the lad's mother, a grasping-looking Irishwoman, the cause.

"Why," she said, 'he's now past his thirteenth year, an' me an' 'is father r think he's afther-r having schooling enough, sor."

"Schooling enough!' repeated the officer. "Why, I did not finish my education until I was twenty-three."

"Be that so?" asked the mother, in amazement. Then, reassuringly, after a moment's thoughtful pause: "Well, sor, yes see, that boy of ours has b-brains."

Two young men were lunching together when one of them mentioned a mutual acquaintance.

"Brown is a good fellow, no doubt," said the other a little stiffly, "but somehow or other he never appealed to me."

"I suppose he knew it wouldn't be any use," murmured the first speaker. "You are usually broke!"

A LYING SPIRIT ABROAD

You see, George, James and I are teetotalers.

"I remember," said George, though I begged him to forget,—"I remember what a narrow shave my brother Thomas once had of getting married.

"Whether it was done for a jest," George continued, "or because he did not know what else to talk about as they were sitting out between the dances, I don't know, but there is no doubt that Tom said things that might be construed, with a little ingenuity, into an offer of marriage. I should say that Miss Bickerstaff, who had more years than money and whose name (through no fault of her own) was Jane, did not get many opportunities. Anyhow, she took this one, and in a couple of months Tom found himself in church saying all sorts of things he didn't mean. Fortunately for the moment, he found, when they got to the important part, that he had forgotten the ring, so the ceremony had to be put off.'"

"But . . ." I interrupted.

"No," George shouted me down, "they all thought of that at once, but found it to be impracticable. Besides, there were not any curtains in that church. Anyhow, in another month she made Tom have another try, but this time he was so busy remembering the ring that he forgot all about a parson to officiate, so another adjournment was found necessary. Jane Bickerstaff was determined to go through with it and said she would make one last attempt, this time herself looking after things. And so at the next date everything was in order half an-hour before time, with ring and parson complete and some spare sections in the vestry in case of accidents. But it was not to be. Old Tom's carelessness was one too many for them, for this time—would you believe it?—he actually went and forgot himself."

"That is a remarkable story," said I, "but it seems to me to want developing in parts. I didn't know you ever had a brother."

"Now I come to think of it," said George, "I don't believe I ever had."

James, who had but recently woken up, now began to open his mouth.

"If it is going to be a yawn," I said, "yawn it by all means. If not, tell us what talking about Jane reminds you of, and let's get through with it."

"I don't suppose either of you fellows," said James, "have ever tried to come up to town from St. Alban's by the 9.27 train?"

"But surely it's name wasn't Jane?" I said, reaching for the Bradshaw.

"I admit that its real name was Mondays Only, but whatever George had said, it was going to remind me of that train. Whether it was the affected art shade of its boiler or because it had once blown a lot of smoke into his signal-box, Henry de la Touche, the signalman at St. Pancras, took a violent dislike to the engine, and nothing would induce him to let it poke its funnel into St. Pancras station. Week by week it used to run up as far as the signal-box, but it never got any further. The engine-driver used to offer de la Touche a couple o fnice bits of coal and as much hot water as he wanted, and the guard used to offer him a nice new green flag to play with, if only he would let them through that once. But, no: de la Touche, who, mark you, fas as fond of a green flag as any of us, would never give I nand as regular as clockwork that poor old train had to turn round and go dismally back to St. Albans."

"But surely," said I, "that tale, though as homely and as pathetic and in its way as poignant as any I ever heard, cannot be true?"

"Ah, well!" said James, closing his eyes again. "If it cannot be true, it probably isn't."

I see that the reader is surprised to learn that two such liars as George and James ever existed. To tell the truth, they never did.—Punch.

POTTING BULBS

Bulbs Forced to Bloom Too Soon Become Weakly

The majority of amateurs do not attempt to induce bulbs in pots to flower till well into spring. Much the greatest number bloom in March and April. The advantage of this is that no expense is gone to in forcing, and when the flowers do appear at that season they are in the best possible form and profuse in huge blooms, brilliant colors, and lovely fragrance. Bulbs that are forced to bloom at Christmas and mid-winter under the not first-rate conditions owned by amateurs are usually weakly but retard them to the spring and every quality they possess will be got out of them gloriously. They are all best done before any growth begins. They ought to be kept cool and quiet previously. Hyacinths are often potted singly in three, four or five inch pots. Tulips, narcissi, and others are generally potted in groups. Their style of growth and blooming adapts them to this arrangement. One tulip or daffodil in a small pot is not attractive, but have them in little clusters and they are charming. The pots should all be drained, filled closely up with somewhat rich, gritty soil, the bulbs pushed in till only their crowns are peeping, and then make the soil very firm between them. They should then be placed in the open air or in a cool frame soaked with water. Keep cool and exposed for a week, and then cover over with fine coal ashes to the depth of a foot. Sand may be used in the place of ashes or cocoanut fibre, but ashes are generally obtainable, and suit quite well. They must not be exposed to frost, but they should be kept cool.

CHILDHOOD'S OPPORTUNITY.

No greater encouragement to thrift has ever been presented by any country than is offered to the people of Canada under the provisions of the Canadian Government Annuities Act, which was unanimously passed by both Houses of Parliament in 1908. While any resident of Canada may purchase, the Act was devised chiefly to enable wage-earners and others with limited incomes to make absolutely safe provision for the closing years of life in a way that would be impossible to make under any other conditions available. For example, a mechanic, whose weekly wage is but a little larger than his weekly expenditure, is, by paying $1.00 a week purchasing Annuities for his two boys aged 5 and 7, the Annuities to become payable at 60. From that time as long as they live a yearly income of $547.76 and $497.78 respectively will be paid them by the Government. If they die before they are 60, the money paid in will be refunded to their heirs together with 3 per cent. compound interest. So that for a total of $2,800 to be paid in an income combined of $1,045.54, or greater than the income to be derived from an investment of $20,000 at 5 per cent., would be received. The one thing is feasible for a man even with a very limited wage, while the other would be quite impossible for him. Taking advantage of the low rate to be obtained when the children are young is what parents should aim at—the children would carry the payments themselves as soon as they are able.

What a payment of 25 cents or 50 cents a week would purchase at any age may be ascertained upon application to S. T. Bastedo, Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage.

IF I WERE MAYOR

are a disgrace to the community. The police court and police offices are anything but suitable for the growing needs of the place, and the Clerk's office as well as the other departments of the city government, are crowded and cramped, and not fit for use.

I understand there is about $40,000 of Town Trust funds available, and I would at once take steps to secure the property south of the Public Library building, which is the proper place for a new city hall. This property can be secured to better advantage now than a year or two later. Our new City Hall would thus face Central Park, and would round off, as it were, the public buildings on the square.

If I were Mayor I would try my best to carry this idea through, and thus would my name be handed down to posterity.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON CONCERTS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If I were Mayor, I would endeavor to cultivate a taste for the Good, the True and the Beautiful in the community. I would, for instance, try and beget in the hearts of the people a love of music, which is one of the divine instincts implanted in human breasts. We have a very fine band, but it is seldom heard. Why not have this fine musical organization render a programme of high class sacred music on Sunday afternoons in Central Park? It would be enjoyed by thousands of our citizens, and would do more to uplift the hearts and minds of the people than a dozen pulpit sermons.

This is one of the things I would try and do if I were Mayor.

A Lover of Music.

WOULD PAVE STREETS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If I were the Mayor I cannot always do as he does, but as Chief Magistrate he would lead in everything in the direction of improvement. If I were Mayor, the very first thing I would do would be to have the tramway tracks on the city paved, say George Street from King to Murray-street; Hunter street from Water to Stewart Streets, and Charlotte, from Water to Aylmer. This would give our city a "boulevard" appearance, and would improve the property [illegible]

BASEBALL GAME YESTERDAY.

The Collegiate Teams Get Into the Game.

In the opening game of the Collegiate Baseball League yesterday afternoon at Riverside Park, the Cresswell nine succeeded in putting it over Craig's followers by the score of 18—4.

The fielding of the losers, however, was not quite up to the mark, but Hayes, did good work behind the bat and saved many runs.

For the winners, Cresswell was the star. His pitching was of the whirlwind style, fanning many of the disheartened Craigites. Taber at 2nd, played a good game as did Sheehy at short.

The Cresswell in the fourth tapped Armstrong for 10 hits abd some of the spectators were heard to whisper that it was a good game of cricket.

Mr. Ferguson umpired the game to the satisfaction of everyone.

WIND ON THE STOMACH

A Well Known Westerner Tells of Suffering, Misery and Pain That He Cured With "Nerviline."

"A few weeks ago I ate some green vegetables and some fruit that was not quite ripe. It first brought on a fit of indigestion, but unfortunately it developed into hiccoughs, accompanied by nausea and cramps. I was dreadfully ill for two days—my head ached and throbbed; I belched gas continually, and I was unable to sleep at night. A neighbor happened in to see me and urged me to try Nerviline. Well I wouldn't have believed that any preparation could help so quickly. I took half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in hot sweetened water, and my stomach felt better at once. I used Nerviline several times, and I was completely restored."

NERVILINE STRENGTHENS WEAK STOMACHS

The above is from a letter written by G. E. Braun, a well-known stock man and farmer near Lethbridge, Alta. Mr. Braun's favorable opinion of the high merit of Nerviline is shared by thousands of Canadians who have proved Nerviline is simply a marvel for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, nausea and stomach disorders. Safe to use, guaranteed to cure—you can make no mistake in keeping Nerviline for your family remedy. Large 25c bottles; five for $1.00. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co. Kingston, Ont.

Calgary Lots

UNIVERSITY SUB-DIVISION

We are placing upon the market a sub-division of Calgary, known as UNIVERSITY, from the fact that it is located close by the University site.

I am anxious to interest you in Calgary property, because of the fact that I feel that we can satisfy you in the sub-division, and thereby retain you as a customer when desiring Western investments. We have opened an office in Toronto permanently, for the purpose of handling Western Canada property.

This sub-division is situated just outside the city limits. It is high, dry and level. In fact, we guarantee every lot to be that, or we will refund the money at any time, with interest at 8 per cent. from the date we receive it.

The situation of this sub-division is unique in many respects. First, it commands a beautiful view of the Bow Valley, overlooking the city; also an excellent view of the Rockies to the West. It is a residential Western Annex, and the city of Calgary is growing very rapidly in that direction. By way of illustration: Sunalta, a Western sub-division was put on the market two years ago at from $100 to $200 per lot. To-day you cannot buy one single lot in Sunalta for less than $800 per lot and the majority of it is bringing prices as high as $2,000. Again, this property will be served by a car line, running from the City, West, which the Company building it guarantees to commence building by June 1st.

The Shouldice Park line on the opposite side of the River, will be completed by August 15th, and in operation. This runs to within half a mile of our property. A bridge is now in course of construction, costing $70,000, being arranged for street car service. A subway is being built under the C. P. R. in order that a line may be run from the Shouldice Park line to the line to the University, thus making a Belt Line around, and passing through the property.

We have been selling this property at $125 and $150 per lot; $125 for inside and $150 for corner lots, and, among the purchasers have been several Calgary builders who have bought as high as from ten to twenty lots each. A Toronto commercial traveller, after seeing this property, bought twenty lots; another ten, and later taking a whole block, so that you will know that the property is considered valuable by those who have seen it.

I need say nothing further regarding this property, as I am satisfied that it is an excellent proposition—a good money maker—and, in six months' time, will doubtless have tripled its present value.

Possibly you are not acquainted with the City of Calgary. I might say that four years ago, the population of Calgary was $17,000. To-day it is over 60,000 and, in two years' time, it will be over 100,000, and only then in its infancy. Fortunes have been made there recently in but a short time.

The C. P. R. has now six lines running from Calgary. The Grand Trunk Pacific will be into Calgary in two months' time, as they are now within half a mile of the City with their grade, and they will be running nine branch lines from the city. The C. N. R. has its grade within five miles of Calgary, and will be running seven branch lines out. The C.P.R. is adding six more lines to what it already has. This will give you some idea of the railway facilities.

The C. P. R. is also building an hotel costing $2,500,000; the Hudson Bay Company is erecting a department store to be completed by October 1st, costing $2,000,000; the Pryce-Jones Co. already has a large store employing about one thousand hands, and there is talk besides of the Harrods' of London, and Eatons' of Toronto, extending their operations to Calgary.

The C. P. R. shops will be located there next year, and will employ from three to four thousand hands; besides many manufacturers are coming in because of the cheap power and the many advantages that the railway facilities are giving. Natural gas has been found in very great quantities at Bow Island, and will be piped into the city at a cost of $3,500,000; being sold to the consumer, for domestic purposes at a cost of 30c, and for power at 20c.

These few facts will give you some idea about Calgary. We are selling this sub-division on easy payments; $10.00 cash per lot, and $10.00 per month per lot, until paid for, with interest at 6 per cent., or we will allow a discount of 5 per cent. for cash.

We give Government deeds for this property, immediately it is paid for, and allow you to make your payments at your own bank, after your first cash payment is made.

We will be pleased to hear from you, if you are at all interested in this money maker, and would show you maps and blue prints, if you would call at this office or write us.

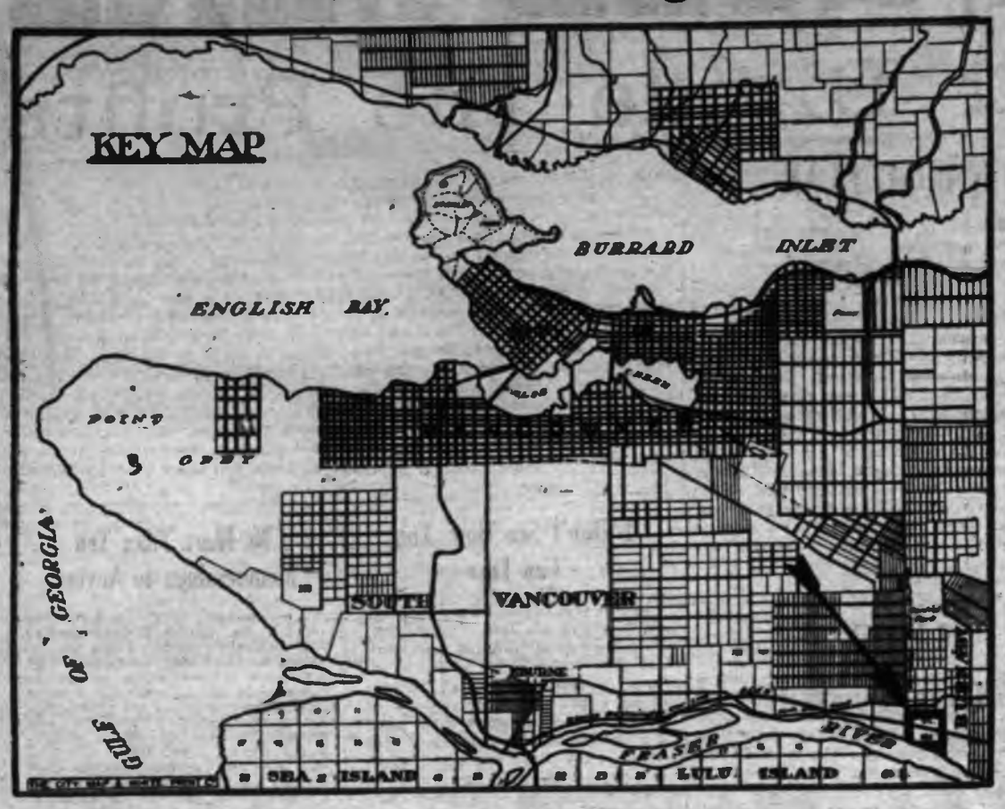
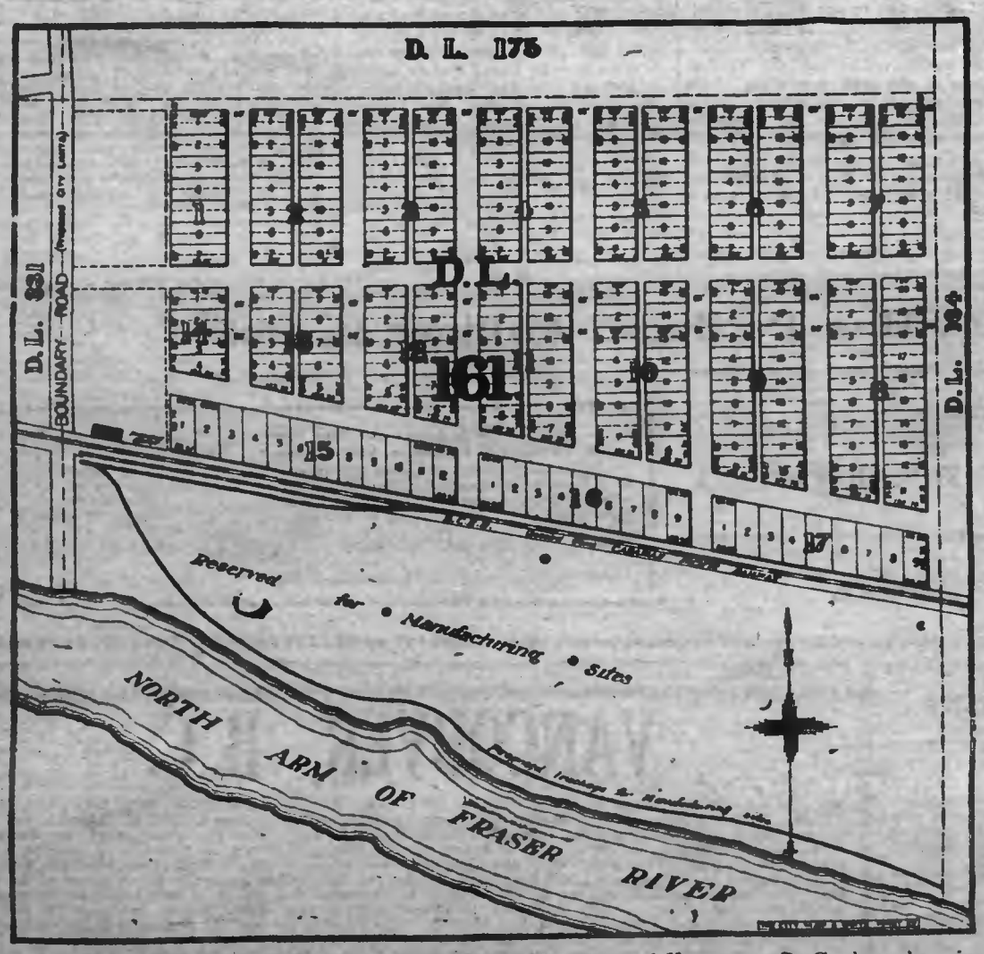
Notice to the Citizens of Peterborough

Great Opportunity to Purchase Vancouver Building Lots





The undersigned, representing the Scott Brokerage Company of Vancouver, B. C., have been instructed to dispose of a quantity of valuable Real Estate, situated in the City of Vancouver. This property is very valuable, and is certain to increase in value very rapidly. The lots sell for prices ranging from $450 each, upwards, with only a small deposit down.

$50 Invested in a Lot in D. L. 161 means $50.00 judiciously invested, because the price is low, the terms easy, the lots are all cleared and ready for building. All the Roads to the property are open. The Car Service is good, as the Tramline runs through the property. Electric Light and Water are available. An indefeasible title is guaranteed to every Lot. However the real intrinsic value of property is determined by its surroundings, its existing and possible industrial developments and density of population, in short the visible means of inducements for rapid advances in values. We will show you that District Lot 161 has all these attributes.

RESIDENCES

Varying from $1,000 to $30,000 in value surround D. L. 161. A $30,000 Mansion adjoins it on the east side while a $5,000 residence is under construction on the northwest side.

INDUSTRIES

The Dominion Carboleneum Works, a plant in full operation was installed at the initial cost of $75,000.00 and adjoins District Lot 161 on the Southwest side. The Waterfrontage is all reserved for additional Manufacturing Sites.

FOR THE SUM OF $135,000

A St. Louis Car Corporation purchased a Factory Site in D. L. 163 and 165 on the Southeast side of D. L. 161. It was announced on February 24th, 1911, that work would commence shortly. The plant is to cost $2,000,000. The British Columbia Electric Railway Company established at an enormous cost an elaborate siding on D. L. 161 for the purpose of loading and discharging merchandise, and a commodious depot will be here erected soon. The North Arm of the Fraser River adds a high commercial asset to a lot in D. L. 161. Already Steamers are wending their way up and down the stream. In order that large ocean liners may have egress to the proposed fresh water harbors "near D. L. 161" the Dominion Government has definitely decided to proceed with the dredging of the North Arm of the Fraser River. When this is completed a lot in D. L. 161 will not only double but treble in value.

DOMESTIC SERVICE PROBLEM.

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—I see, Mr. Editor, you are devoting some space to the domestic service problem, and I am constrained to write a few lines in regard to this subject. If you think my poor effort worthy of a place in your paper, I will be pleased and if not, there is no harm done.

There are few problems in our social life that so threaten the integrity and happiness of the home as the servant problem; the problem of securing efficient and adequate domestic service. There is something in the Canadian character which makes work about a house distasteful to Canadian working girls, and, strangely enough, Scandinavian and English girls who come over here avowedly to enter domestic service, and are very glad at first, to work at the high rate of wages paid in this country, become imbued also with the Canadian idea and forsake domestic service for the more poorly paid and harder work of the factory or the shop.

So many solutions have been sought for this difficulty in securing help that it will be welcome news to the householder that a new remedy that promises well has been put forward by the suburbanites of Chicago. Those who have organized and established the new plan propose to put domestic service on an entirely different basis from that which it has hitherto occupied. In seeking a solution, they propose that no more shall the hired help live in the house in which they work. They propose that servants be treated exactly as any other laborers that work by the day or the hour, as the case may be, and their hours of work shall be as well defined and as strictly adhered to as those in other fields of labor.

It is proposed to make domestic servants as independent in their lives, in their incomings and outgoings, as any factory or shop girls. Another feature of the plan is that as the girls do not occupy rooms in the house where they work, their wages will be correspondingly larger than they are at present.

It really does seem as if there were hope for a solution of the servant problem in some such plan as this. It would, of course, if put into general operation, involve a rather radical change in the plans of housekeeping, but I imagine that employers and housekeepers would soon be accustomed to this, and would hardly find it as great an inconvenience as the one they have to undergo now of constantly being without any help at all.

I am one who believes that there is considerable justice in the complaints of domestic servants. It cannot be denied that there is a menial aspect attached to domestic service that does not attach itself to work in the factory or the shop. It is also true that in the house system that has prevailed until now the domestic servants have a right to complain that their hours of service were interminable while they were under the roof of their employers.

Should this plan of the Chicago suburbanites prove successful and spread throughout the country, we in Canada would soon follow suit. It would only be putting the business of housekeeper on a par with any other business. System is the watchword to-day; the watchword that has made for greater efficiency and larger economy, and as it has succeeded so admirably in all lines, there is not the least doubt but that it would meet equal success if applied to the home.

(Mrs.) C. H. Arnold.

ENGLISHMEN ARE SAID TO HAVE STOLEN ARK OF THE COVENANT

Jerusalem, Palestine, May 3.—The inhabitants have been aroused to the point of rioting by the operations of a party of English archaeologists, who are accused of having excavated beneath the inviolable Mosque of Omar and removed relics reputed to include the Ark of the Covenant, the Censer, and other sacred vessels which belonged to the tribes of Israel.

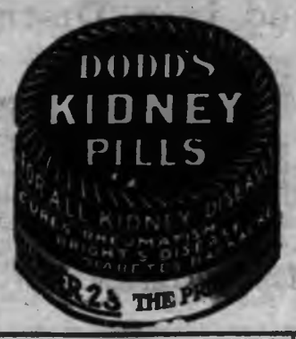
Azmy Bey, the Turkish governor, was mobbed on the streets for supposed complicity in the profanation and hooted as a "pig."

The mosque has been closed and is closely guarded, pending the arrival from Constantinople of officials of the Government, who will make an investigation. The expedition worked for two years on a large scale, beginning at the village of Siloam, which lies at the south east end of Jerusalem on the southern slope of the Mount of Olives overlooking the valley of Kedron and Pool of Siloam.

The explorers are credited with having excavated a passage from the Pool of Siloam toward the place where once stood Solomon's Temple, built in 1020 B.C., pillaged and destroyed and finally destroyed by Titus A.D. 70.

Failing to reach the relics sought in this manner the explorers, according to the alleged confessions of the guards of the mosque, bribe the guards, entered the mosque and after digging on six nights, spirited away the treasurers, "the whereabouts of which," says an Arabic paper, "none knew except God and these English."

Mystery surrounds the expedition, whose operations have been of such magnitude as to make evident that a large sum of money was invested.



Aeroplane to Pole.

New York, May 3—Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary's name has been added to the list of those who think that the important work of polar exploration in the future will be done by means of the aeroplane. Speaking at the annual dinner of the Aeronautical Society, Rear Admiral Peary said: "In my opinion the aviator is destined to conquer the two remaining unknown areas of the globe, viz., the regions surrounding the north and south poles. The balloon will not serve the purpose—the work of exploration in the future will be done by aeroplane."

CLEAN THE LANES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have a complaint to make regarding the lanes of the city. The streets are kept fairly clean, thanks to our road inspectors, but the lanes are a disgrace to the community. I have noticed that when people vacate a house they have a custom of throwing everything they don't want into the lane—old, dirty underwear, bedding, medicine bottles, etc. Children come along, get hold of these articles and scatter them all over the place. What's more, just the other day three little boys were playing with bottles marked "poison." Now that cleanliness has been proven to be a preventative of disease, I think, in view of the warm weather approaching, it is the health department's business to get around and make these dirty people obey our sanitary laws. I don't blame our city officials, for we have a very good system.

I think, Mr. Editor, we could all help burn up our refuse by throwing a lot of this stuff into our own furnaces and stoves. Then, by united effort we will have clean streets and clean lanes. Hoping some of your readers will be interested in bringing this to a successful issue.

PORCUPINE NEWS

The information concerning the new Townsite 'Porcupine City' is still holding the interest of the Camp. The lots are 30 ft. x 132 ft. and there is not one of them that is not desirable. Of course those farthest from the centre are only $200.00, but even these are a good investment, when you think that only 10 per cent. is called for as a deposit and the balance in equal monthly payments without interest, until paid, with possibilities of increase. You cannot afford to wait to long until everything is taken up.

Watch for our next news item, it bids fair to interest every person who has heard of porcupine.

FURTHER PAYMENTS REQUIRED

The First $5.00 Pays It All

THIS IS TO BE A QUICK-ACTION PROPOSITION. You pay $5.00 with your subscription. That is all. You will be called upon for no more. This membership entitles you to a vote in all the affairs of the syndicate, and to participate pro rata in all the benefits. It is a small amount, but I don't need very much to accomplish all I am going to try for. I made the price $5.00 so as to allow everyone to get in. In order to keep any one individual from acquiring control I have limited the subscription of any one person to no more than ten memberships. We are all going to get the same fair, square deal. There are to be no favorites and no special privileges. When money enough has been raised to do the work the members will be notified, and THEY will decide whether it will be necessary or not to incorporate a company and, if so, for how much. THEY will elect their own officers and direct the affairs of the company. I will have no time to fool away in doing office work. I am a miner, not a bookkeeper, and as soon as I get this thing organized the officers of the company will have to dictate the business policy. Now it is not very often that you have an opportunity of investing as small an amount as $5.00, and especially where it has such splendid chances for making a big profit in a short time. It can't be beat, and the proposition offers more for the money than anything of its kind in the market. I want you to help me in this and I promise you won't be disappointed if you do.

THIS IS MY MONEY-MAKING PLAN

I have secured a lease on the famous EMMA MINE OF EMPIRE, COLORADO. I used to work in this mine, and I know there is ore there. I feel sure that a few dollars expended in developing the vein already opened will give us a big body of rich ore. I am the man to do it. Of course I will need a little help in a financial way. I am organizing a syndicate to handle this proposition. I invite you to join me. We will all club in together and push the development work as hard and as fast as possible, and as the ore is taken out and marketed we will divide the profits. Memberships in this syndicate will be sold for $5.00 each and no more than ten will be sold to any one individual. I will own no more myself. I am determined to make this a small investor's enterprise, and it will be run by the membership holders and for their benefit alone. The amount is so small that anyone can afford to go in, and I am so sure in my own mind that it will be a success—a big success, and earn enormous profits for us—that I am willing to go back to the camp, take off my coat and go in and work from early in the morning until late at night to get the ore opened up and ready for the mill. I am satisfied that we can produce results in less than a year. All I want you to do is to let me have your immediate subscription for one or more memberships, and I will buy a stock of powder, go back to the mine and get to work. May I count upon your co-operation?

NOW. I will do my best to make money for both of us.

A large amount of rich ore has already been taken out of this mine, and a nice little streak of it is in sight now. The mine is all wired for electrical power and a power line passes only a few feet from the portal of the tunnel. Give me an electric power drill and I will go after that vein of ore in a way that will surprise the membership holders, and there will be no fooling around waiting for this, or for that, BUT I WILL PRODUCE RESULTS. I have to get my profits in this enterprise from the same source that you do: FROM THE ORE PRODUCED, and you may be assured that I will not lay around doing nothing until our money is all used up. Opening up the pay streak means as much to me as to any other membership holder: and I am going into the proposition to make it pay. If nothing unforseen occurs I will do it, too. Our profits should be very substantial, for there will not be many to divide the earnings among. I know all about the veins of ore in this camp; I know the character of the ore, and I know the quickest way to reach the ore bodies. If you will come into the proposition with me now, when I need your co-operation, I will give you your share of all I take out.

Something About Myself

I am a practical mining man; have had years of experience in the business, and have never made a failure of anything I have taken up. For over four years I have worked in the mines in and about Empire, Colorado. Being familiar with the location of the mineral veins of this district, knowing the character of the ores, etc., I have been on the lookout for a good property that I could operate under lease for some time. It was only recently that I found the big lead veins in the famous Emma mine, and I immediately took action in an effort to secure a long-time lease from the company owning the property. Well, to make a long story short, after a deal of negotiating I was successful and secured a lease on this splendid property which runs until 1915. The company was anxious to have a certain amount of development work done and I was lucky enough to catch them at just the right time and secured just what I wanted. This is the proposition I am now inviting you to join me in—the development of this lease on the RICH EMMA MINE.

The Small Investor's Opportunity

Usually a small investor has but little show to earn more than a very ordinary profit on his investment. I conceived the idea of making this a company of small investors. Just a few of my friends, and their friends. I am so confident of the outcome that I am taking no more big capital in with me, and instead of having a company controlled and dominated by a few big stockholders, I want to make it more of a family affair. We will all put in a small amount. With the money thus subscribed I will begin work at the mine and, following the present vein, I am sure I will be able to cut the big American lode within a distance of a few hundred feet. If my plans are successful I will be into a big ore body in less than three months, and that means a small fortune for us all. There are all kinds of tools at the mine to work with except, perhaps, a power drill, and that will be one of the first things that I will buy. After that it will be easy to drive the tunnel, and I expect to make good progress.

QUICK RETURNS ON YOUR MONEY

THIS IS THE DAY OF QUICK ACTION. No man wants his money tied up in a proposition that only has a promise of paying out in the sweet bye and bye. Get your money in and your profits out. That is my idea, and I think I am right. I feel pretty sure that I can give you your money back and your share of the earnings inside of a year. Possibly sooner. In any event, you may be assured that I will not delay a minute longer than is necessary. I want my share as soon as I can get it, and you will get yours at the same time. I believe that these memberships will be snapped up in a hurry, and so I advise you to not delay your order. Better be a little early than too late. Your certificate will be forwarded to you upon receipt of your order and remittance. There will be no delay at this end. Frequent reports will be sent to the membership holders telling of the development at the mine, and if you have any suggestions to offer send them along. I am a miner, a practical miner, and know the business as well as any of them, but I am not fool enough to think I know it all. I am always anxious and willing to learn, so if you think you can give me any pointers that will help me I will thank you to let me have them. Now I have given you about all the important details in regard to the proposition. It is now your move. If you want something in our investment that looks a little bit better and a little bit quicker than anything else in the market, I want to hear from you. If you are a pessimist, and believe that you are doing well enough, you will just be wasting your time and mine in writing to me. Otherwise, clip and send in the attached coupon to-day—

I Don't See How You Can Lose

In this proposition I honestly don't see how you can lose. In the first place the amount invested is so small and the promise of big profits so exceptional that only a small amount of ore would have to be produced to at least get your money back. But if I thought getting my money back would be the best I could do I would not waste a minute's time on it. In other parts of this mine former operators took out large amounts of ore, and they never acquired any depth to speak of. Now, every miner in the Empire District knows that as depth is attained the ore bodies enlarge, and the values increase. The American lode that I have mentioned before is known to be very rich, and from on top of the hill, just a little ways north of this property, it dips directly towards us and down into the mountain. I think by driving the tunnel straight in that we will cut it in less than 200 feet. The vein now uncovered in the tunnel is evidently a stringer of the American lode.

No More Than Ten Memberships to Anyone

A square deal, fairness and equality for all. An honest disbursement of the syndicate's funds. Those are the principles and basic standards of this enterprise. I am going in upon the same basis as yourself. If I make any big money out of the proposition I will have to get it from the same source that you do—THE EARNINGS FROM THE MINE. I will only own ten memberships, the limit for any one individual, and when the proposition is financed the membership holders shall say whether or not we shall incorporate. If so, for how much; and they shall elect their own officers from among their own number. The enterprise shall belong to the membership holders and they shall run it to suit themselves. All I want to do is work the mine. That is as much or more than one man can attend to properly, and I don't want to be bothered with any office work. Now, my friends, if you have faith in me and my proposition, I want your co-operation, and I will ask you to send me your subscription. If you haven't, you won't do me any good and I can't do anything for you.

MARITIME BRIDGES

And Other Railway Improvements Under Consideration

The C.P.R. has had several surveyors overlooking the Joggin and other bridges between Digby and Annapolis, N.S. Several of these bridges are not constructed sufficiently heavy to allow the passage of large locomotives, and it is necessary that they be rebuilt in the near future. It is contemplated to abandon the two bridges that span the Joggin, and possibly a third, and erect a steel bridge at the first location made by the Western Counties Railway a short distance beyond Digby town. This bridge will be much longer than either of the present structures spanning the Joggin, but will do away with both of them, and the approaches will be greatly improved and much easier than at present and make the road five miles shorter. Other improvements are contemplated, which, when completed, will afford a more rapid trip from Yarmouth to Halifax.

THE PLATELAYER

A certain big railway company had occasion to advertise for a platelayer. The day after the advertisement appeared, the candidates were waiting outside, when a well-dressed man, in high hat, etc., rushed up to see the manager.

He was shown in, and was asked his business. The manager was abashed when he was informed that the man had come in answer to the advertisement.

"But what experience have you?" asked the manager.

"Oh, ten years as waiter in a city restaurant," coolly answered the man.

He was politely ordered out.

OVERDID IT

Mrs. Passay: "Mary, wasn't that gentleman asking for me?"

The New Maid: "No, mum. He described the lady he wanted as being about forty, an' I told him it couldn't be you."

Mrs. Passay: "Quite right, Mary! And you shall have an extra afternoon off to-morrow."

The New Maid: "Yes, mum! Thankee, mum! Yes, mum! I told him it couldn't be you, as you was about fifty."

Mrs. Passay: "And while you're out taking your afternoon off you'd better look out for a new place."

MYSTERIOUS ACCIDENT

Railway Employe's Substantial Compensation

Of a singular character was an accident on the London and North-Western Railway which was described at Wigan in a claim for compensation made by a linesman named William Beswick, of Rockroad, Latchford, Warrington. Judge Bradbury, in giving judgment, said that after repairing a defect on the line applicant left Bryan Junction by train to return to St. Helens. He was alone in a third-class compartment, and he put his head out of the window to look at the line wires. Something happened—applicant did not know what it was, but he became unconscious. That was the only evidence to show how the accident did happen. At another station applicant was found hanging out of the carriage window on the left-hand side. The injuries were of a most serious character. The only defence set up was that the injuries were not caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of applicant's employment. In his Honor's opinion it was clearly an accident arising out of the man's employment, and there must be judgment for applicant for £44 11s. arrears of compensation and 4s. 6d. a week.

TOURIST TALK IN NILELAND

Mrs. Grey met her young friend Maude Murray shortly after the return of the latter from a circular trip to the Mediterranean and the Nile with a party of girl students, "personally conducted."

"So you are just back from Egypt, Maude. Well, well! I know the sort of conversation you heard amongst your fellow tourists there. It would run something like this:

"'Isn't it lovely? Cleopatra lived here, and Moses, and Pharaoh. It makes your head swim, doesn't it?'"

BIRTH-RATE LOWER

In Great Britain—So is the Death-Rate—Latest Figures

An official return shows that the birth-rate and the death-rate in England and Wales during the quarter ended September 30th were the lowest ever recorded.

Births numbered 237,346, or 24.9 per 1,000 of the population. That is 2.6 per 1,000 below the average for the ten preceding third quarters. Deaths totalled 104,188, or 11.4 per 1,000, which is 2.8 per 1,000 below the average.

In the whole of the United Kingdom 282,519 births and 135,015 deaths were registered, the birth-rate being 24.7 and the death-rate 11.6 per 1,000 of the population. The population thus increased by 147,504.

During the quarter ended June 30th the marriages of 122,006 people were recorded, or 12.5 per 1,000, against an average of 16.8 per 1,000 in the corresponding quarter of the preceding ten y

A NEW ENDORSEMENT

"I want this cheque cashed," said a fair young matron at the window of the paying teller.

"Yes, madam. You must endorse it first," exclaimed the teller.

"Why, my husband sent it to me! He is away on business," she said.

"Yes, madam. Just endorse it—sign it on the back so we will know, and your husband will know, that we paid it to you."

She went to the desk and in a few moments presented the cheque triumphant, having written on its back, "Your loving wife, Edith"!

Great laughter and applause, and Mr. Muddlehead sits down, a wiser, though not a happier man.

TOO LATE

"Hands up!" exclaimed the Western train robber. "Gimme your money."

"Too late," replied the tourist. "I get off at the next station, and I've already tipped the porter."

VANCOUVER, B. C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

Charged With Being Insane.

Edward Robins, of Smith Township, appeared before his worship Magistrate Edmison on a charge of being insane and dangerous to be at large. He was remanded until Saturday. He was arrested by High County Constable Cochrane last Friday, and brought to the city. The prisoner was examined in the cells by two medical men and on second report, they pronounced him insane.

Mr. Might's Gratitude.

Fire Chief Howard is in receipt of a very complimentary letter from Mr. F. J. Might, of the J. C. The department recently had a run to Mr. Might's residence.

A Clever Architect.

We notice that in the Guelph Mercury that Mr. W. Tanner, jr., supplied the plans and specifications for the new Isolation Hospital, which it is proposed to build in Guelph, at a cost of $15,000. According to Government Estimates

$100,000,000.00

Was Made in Western Town Property During the Year 1909

Did you anticipate in these huge profits or did you "pigeon-hole" the propositions submitted to you by your western friends for future consideration? In short, are you the man who made a profit or the unfortunate one who had the chance but did not possess sufficient judgment to recognize the opportunity or sufficient courage to close a deal? The man or woman entitled to sympathy is the one who says: "Five or ten years ago I had the chance to buy this or that property at $100 or $500, and now it is worth $10,000." The average person sneers at the person who makes such a statement and says: "I would have bought and made that money." Are you going to say five years from now that you had a chance to buy a lot at Poe, Alta., at from $50 to $100 each, or are you going to be the man who will have from $1,000 to $10,000 in cash as a result of having bought property in this town in this year of grace, 1911?

POE A COMING COMMERCIAL CENTRE

Poe is located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Saskatoon. It is located in one of the finest farming districts in Western Canada. The surrounding country is settled by a progressive type of farmers and consequently will become the market centre for Northern Alberta. Poe district possesses rich coal mines, is close to rivers and lakes and large forests are easily accessible from this point. These natural resources insure for the residents of the town, first, low cost of living, and second, great commercial activity, two essentials in the upbuilding of a large town, thus creating valuable real estate.

POE AS A MANUFACTURING CENTRE

This townsite and contiguous territory has the requirements outlined by large manufacturing concerns for the location of large factories or large enterprises of any kind employing large numbers of people. The rivers and lakes furnish water, the coal fields and forests furnish fuel and cheap building material, the fine farming lands furnish farm products, enabling the residents to live at a low cost.

The town is located on the main line of a transcontinental railway, assuring the necessary transportation facilities. These combined conditions will furnish cheap labor, one of the most important features of a manufacturing centre.

Poe townsite was recently placed on the market and already over 200 lots have been sold and many of these lots have already changed hands at a substantial increase in price. Most of these lots were purchased by representative business men throughout Canada who are now profiting by their foresight.

The townsite is high and dry and very suitable for building purposes.

OPPORTUNITY

is useless unless you possess the courage to act. You might possess great wisdom, you might read a good deal or travel much and thus see all kinds of opportunities to make money, but unless you have the courage to act on your judgment and wisdom all of these desirable qualities are entirely useless.

Lots in Poe are a good investment at present price. The town is bound to grow rapidly. Owing to the easy terms of payment you have the ability to buy and if you do not buy now it is because you are lacking in courage, and the chances are you will never be like the man you now admire most, rich, courageous and wise.

TORRENS TITLE.

Poe townsite is held by us under the Torrens system of title. Under this system the title is guaranteed by the Government, therefore absolutely safe.

PRICES AND TERMS.

Prices of lots range from $50 to $100 each, and they can be purchased on terms of one-tenth cash, balance in eighteen equal monthly payments; or quarter cash, balance in six, twelve or eighteen months.

INFORMATION

We have issued an attractive circular giving full information pertaining to the town and its prospects, together with map showing lots for sale. If you wish to receive this attractive circular cut out and fill in the attached coupon and mail it to us to-day.

NEW C.P.R. LINES.

Engineers have been instructed to begin at once on the location of the Canadian Pacific Railway line from Glentay, sixteen miles west of Smiths Falls, to Toronto, and it is expected that this railroad will be in operation in about two years. The location will extend from Glentay southwest to Belleville, thence along the lake shore, touching all the lake shore towns, to a point east of Leaside Junction. It would work up to Leaside. The company will have a grade of about four-tenths of one per cent. per mile.

The new C.P.R. line between Guelph Junction and Hamilton has been located and the bulk of the right-of-way bought.

Grading is progressing on still another C.P.R. line—that on the Victoria Harbor route from a point six or seven miles from Orillia to Bethany. The haul from Victoria Harbor will be on the dead level.

FAST TRAINS AND SAFETY.

There is timeliness as well as value in the declaration of Chief Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, that "the United States as a nation has gone stark, raving mad on the question of speed." The recent fatal railroad accidents emphasize this charge and show the peril that exists despite many excellent improvements made by our leading lines in the last few years. This also applies to Canada.

Not all railroad accidents, of course, are due to a craze for speed, but it is evident from the remarks of Chief Stone that the evil of which he complains has indirect as well as direct results inimical to public safety. "That speed craze requires flouncy men who are willing to take chances," he told his fellow engineers. "If they pull through on schedule time, it is all right; if they don't they must make room for the man who will."

Some of the fastest trains in the country are the freest from accidents, but this is because, being few and conspicuous, every possible precaution is thrown around their operation. It is the fast running of less carefully guarded trains to which Chief Stone's remarks apply with greatest force. Recklessness is a characteristic bred of pioneer conditions. But those conditions no longer exist, and the public and railroad managers should be satisfied with less speed if it means the proper safeguarding of human lives.

The membership fee of $1.00 entitles members to all the privileges of the Horticultural Society and also their choice of twelve bedding plants, twelve window box plants, or one large Boston fern, in addition to a fall distribution of bulbs and a subscription to The Canadian Horticulturist. From present indications a membership of 500 seems assured. With such a membership great good can be accomplished towards beautifying our city. We would urge citizens of Peterborough to join the Horticultural Society and participate in the benefits to be derived, as well as help along the movement to make Peterborough the most beautiful city in Ontario.

A Good Appointment.

The many friends of Major Geo. W. Bennett will be pleased to learn that he has been appointed chief inspector of submissions under for Ontario. The duties are similar to the work he has been doing in the past, having to supervise the work being done by the inspectors throughout the several districts. He has been for many years township clerk of North Monaghan, and the new position will likely necessitate his giving up the office, much to the regret of many residents of that township.

Horses Leg Swelled

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around a stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P.O. "I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline and it worked like a charm; in fact that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

NERVILINE IS A TRUSTY LINIMENT

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large 25c bottles of Nerviline, five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Company, Kingston, Ont.

CANADA AND NEGRO IMMIGRATION.

The Ottawa government, though urged to act in the matter of restricting negro immigration, has been reluctant to do so. Indeed, within the past fortnight the Dominion authorities have made it clear that, in their view, the time has not yet come for definite action. However, a line of procedure which may have its effect in bringing the question forward as a practical issue was indicated the other day at Washington in a conference between representatives of the State Department and the United States consul general at Winnipeg.

At this conference there was brought forward a memorandum from the Canadian immigration officials giving grounds upon which the American negro might be barred from the Dominion. These are comprised in the simple representation that the negro, by reason of race and previous environment, would probably be unsuccessful in adapting himself to the rigors of a northern climate and might, therefore, in many cases, become a public charge.

Steps necessary for the avoidance of such a condition are authorized by the Canadian immigration act, and may be taken on the grounds here indicated. All this offers an interesting example of the degree of discretion which the Canadian system gives to purely administrative officials in their enforcement of statutes couched in general terms.

MORMON IMMIGRATION.

From over seas come echoes of indignation over the active propaganda that is being carried on there by the Mormon missionaries. These are not content to make converts to the Church of the Latter-Day Saints, the converted ones are urged by various means and tempted to various inducements to emigrate to the United States and to settle in Utah.

In the great cities of England, London, Liverpool, Birmingham and Manchester these Mormon missionaries are particularly active and as Mormonism is so distinctively American these Mormon missionaries are thought of first as Americans and only secondly as Mormons, a fact that is not doing much credit to the American name in the minds of the Britishers.

It is said that in England the Mormon workers publicly repudiate the polygamous feature of their religion while, at the same time, it is this tenet of their faith that they most strongly dwell upon in private efforts at "conversion." Whether this is true or not the fact remains that so eager is the Mormon church to secure new converts from England that it has funds for the assistance of such emigrants as can be induced to come to this country.

We have come to be unusually careful about the admission into our ports of undesirable immigrants and this news from England of Mormon activity in adding to the numbers of our immigration should put our immigration authorities on their guard.

CANADA'S PEAT SUPPLY.

Government statistics on the peat supply say: The Provinces of Ontario and Quebec send $20,000,000 a year to the United States for coal. The development of some of our extensive peat bogs will help to keep some of this money at home and to furnish additional employment to Canadians in Canada. Canada has 37,000 square miles (23,680,000 acres) of known peat bogs, but these form probably but a small fraction of the total, constituting a potential national asset of enormous value. Some idea of the possibilities may be gained from the estimate that 25 acres of peat, 9 feet deep, should yield 50,000 tons; enough to supply 100 families for twenty-five years allowing twenty tons per annum to each family, or enough to furnish a power plant of 100 horsepower, such as steam engines, with fuel for more than 25 years of 300 ten-hour days, allowing 12 pounds of fuel per horse power hour developed. The fuel, is used in a suitable gas producer, would last the same plant about 100 years.

VANCOUVER

THE METROPOLIS OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Where fortunes are being made by investment, which cannot be equalled anywhere else in Canada. The position that Vancouver occupies, the same on the Pacific, as Montreal occupies on the Atlantic, also the fact that Vancouver is an open port the whole year round, means beyond a possible doubt, that Vancouver will be the greatest city in the Dominion.

Vancouver is the only gateway to the Orient from the whole of Canada, which demonstrates that this will be the greatest Canadian shipping port, owing to the enormous development of western Canada. This together with the fact that the immense wealth of the natural resources of the province of British Columbia, its timber, fisheries, fruit, coal and other minerals, must make it clear, that you can invest your money here to better advantage than elsewhere.

Vancouver offers to-day, the opportunity of a life time for both the small and the large investor, and if you will act on our advice we will positively guarantee to make returns for you that will surprise you. We have a reputation that we are proud of, and can furnish the very best references. Do not delay, write us at once.

Good Health Week! Special Sale of "Sunkist" Oranges

Begins Next Monday

"GOOD HEALTH" Week begins next Monday and, in honor of the event, the people of this city will be given the greatest opportunity ever known to buy fresh, luscious fruit at reasonable prices.

Millions of "Sunkists" Arrive

Five millions of the famous "Sunkist" oranges have just arrived from California by special fast freight. On Monday morning, when the great orange sale begins, every fruit dealer in the city will be supplied with "Sunkists."

Most Luscious Fruit Grown

Unless you have eaten a "Sunkist" orange, you do not know the delicious taste of a California orange right off the tree. "Sunkist" oranges are the fancy crop of TEN MILLION orange trees. Only the most select part of this total crop are "Sunkists"—only the perfect oranges—those which are hand-picked, tree-ripened, sound and solid. No fallen, bruised or otherwise damaged orange wears the "Sunkist" wrapper.

"Sunkist" oranges are thin-skinned, seedless and fibreless. Never pithy, sour or tasteless. There is so little waste that they are the most economical oranges one can buy.

"Sunkist" means the highest quality of oranges. Big "Sunkists" cost more than small ones, but all are sold at fair, modest prices, as you will see at your fruit dealer's.

Oranges Build Health

Physicians everywhere are pointing out the health-giving properties of oranges and the demand for fresh, ripe, luscious oranges is simply astounding. During Good Health Week fruit dealers are always on the jump from morning till night. For this is the season of the year when "spring fever" is epidemic; when nerves and blood need toning up; when the system demands a change from heavy foods to the kind that increase bodily vigor and vitality.

Save Your "Sunkist" Wrappers!

Most people know the "Sunkist" orange at once by its ruddy, deep tint which shows that it was tree-ripened. Yet the sure mark of identification is the tissue paper wrapper labeled "Sunkist," in which each individual "Sunkist" orange is packed. An orange not packed in the "Sunkist" wrapper is not a "Sunkist" orange, but an inferior fruit. The wrapper identifies the orange and is valuable, too. Save all your "Sunkist" wrappers and get, free, as many of the beautiful Rogers Table Silver Premiums as you want. See list and description at right.

To Whom It May Concern.

No less than three couples have called at the residence of the managing editor of the great family journal during the past week or ten days, in search of a minister, the object apparently being matrimony. This is the result of our chief's environment. A parson to the right of him, a Canon not very far to the left of him and a parson in front of him, to good company all right enough, but it is not without its drawbacks, as our readers will doubtless observe. The great family journal now gives notice to all whom it may concern, that if this is to continue he will in future refuse on binding the bride (to be) as a reasonable tribute for his advice and distraction.

HOW WILL UNITED CONTRIBUTIONS OF CITIZENS TO PEOPLE'S CHIMES BE PERPETUATED IN MEMORY?

With the advent of a "Peoples Chimes" for Peterborough, it might not be out of place to enquire what provision is in the minds of the Committee for perpetuating in the memory of future generations the fact that the inauguration of said chimes in St. John's church tower was made possible by the munificient donations of citizens in general, irrespective of church or creed. The chimes are to be formally handed over on Coronation Day by His Worship Mayor Morrow, in behalf of Peterborough citizens to the authorities of St. John's by whom they will be held in trust for all time to come. A hundred years hence the mere fact of these chimes ringing merrily from the ancient tower of beautiful old St. John's church will offer no indication that they are in reality citizens' property, a living memento of indefatigable enthusiasm and work, and generous contribution on the part of a united community. The Times, would, therefore, respectfully submit that in the porch of St. John's church there be placed a brass tablet containing in brief text the information that the splendid set of chimes above were subscribed by the public in general and formally dedicated by the Bishop of Toronto on George V's coronation day, as "The Peoples' Chimes." We would also suggest that the written laws of St. John's provide that on each recurring anniversary of the chimes' inauguration these bells peal forth those same three tunes that are to follow their dedication, as a means of, in a measure, perpetuating in memory not only their inauguration, but also the coronation of the beloved King of a mighty empire.

STREET RAILWAY EXTENSION TO EAST CITY IMPERATIVE

ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY ARE WILLING TO CROSS RIVER IF NEW BRIDGE IS PROVIDED.

The Electric Power Company has no intention of building a line to East City by way of Auburn, as suggested by a local contemporary. What they do want is a crossing on Hunter street, would be of some use to the people on both sides of the river. What The Times proposes is that the present Hunter street bridge be removed altogether, and a new structure erected, and built sufficiently high to allow the tracks into the Quaker Oats Company's plant to pass underneath, thus doing away with the present highly dangerous condition of things at this point.

PRESENT BRIDGE TOO LIGHT.

The present bridge, which has been in use for about 30 years, is made of wrought iron, and not of steel, from which all this class of structures are now made. It has therefore, served its day, and owes the city nothing. It is too light and too narrow to accommodate the enormous traffic it has to carry. Indeed, it is an open secret that engineers do not regard it as entirely safe at all times, when heavy loads are passing over. The suggestion of The Times, made a few days ago, that the new floor which is required and which must be provided should be of cement, like other bridges, was regarded by the City Engineer as too risky, on account of its weak condition.

A NEW BRIDGE NECESSARY.

That a new bridge is necessary is therefore, obvious. It will have to come and the sooner the Council and those interested make up their minds to this the better. The old structure might be taken down and removed to some other point on the river.

WHO WILL PAY FOR NEW BRIDGE?

The question of who should pay for a new Hunter-street bridge is of course, a matter of importance. A bridge of this kind would cost in the neighborhood of $200,000. We believe the Dominion Government should put up half the cost, the balance to be borne in equal proportions by the city, the Street Railway and the Quaker Oats Co. The reason why we think the government should bear the larger proportion of cost is because of the fact that a new overhead bridge is necessary and will have to be built in order to make the river navigable in the upper reach above the present bridge. That the government is connected to this is shown by the fact that it has spent thousands of dollars in improving and deepening the channel at this point. To make this of any use whatever, a high bridge will be necessary.

The Street Railway, we imagine, would be willing to pay its share for the privilege of securing a crossing, and the Quaker Oats Company ought to also contribute on account of the advantage it would be to them to have a dock at their door.

THE FIRST STEP.

The first step would be to have the Council take the matter up, by appointing a strong committee who would arrange a conference with the interested parties. It goes without saying that our member, Hon. Mr. Stratton, would join heartily in the work and would give his influence and active support in securing the necessary government aid.

VOL XXXIV NO. 107 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, MONDAY MAY 8 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

BIG BUSH FIRES RAGING NEAR TOWN OF KENORA

Kenora, Ont., May 6.—A big bush fire is raging near the east end of Clearwater Bay, about 16 miles from here, and, with the dry conditions that are at present existing, it may spread over considerable territory.

East of here between Tashe and Ignace, and four miles from the latter point, a fire is raging, and there are also fires in some portions of the country very close to the main line of the C.P.R.

Fire rangers started for Clearwater Bay several days ago, and men have also been sent east along the line to battle with the serious outbreak there. Conditions are regarded as serious.

MRS. HENDERSON CONVINCED DR. DOUGLAS WAS MURDERED

Hamilton, May 6.—Newspaper men to-day located the party who disclosed the sensational story about Dr. James Douglas to the police. She is Mrs. C. Henderson, Merrick street, a rich Englishwoman, and she confirmed the information given out by the police yesterday.

Mrs. Henderson declared that she was firmly convinced that Dr. Douglas, who, she says, was stationed at Wolsley Barracks, London, was drugged and thrown into the Thames. She also stated that the man who was supposed to have sat on the river bank and watched two others cast the body into the river, was the owner of baths in London at the time. She could not give the exact date of the alleged murder, and she was not positive that an inquest was held.

ESTATE WORTH MILLIONS.

Mrs. Henderson told the police that the estate which she and several other people were prevented from obtaining through the drowning of the Doctor was Alton Towers, Staffordshire, England. Other valuable property, she claims, is involved in the case and she estimates that it is worth millions.

Mrs. Henderson said that she had not made public the details of the case as she was afraid her life would be taken. She told newspaper men to-day that recently several attempts were made to kill her and that not long ago men climbed up the porch of her home and were caught looking in the windows. She believes they were frightened away by a dog. Since then she has been afraid to go out on the street after dusk.

Chief Smith said to-day that the woman had spoken to him a couple of times about the case, but that the local police could not take it up as there would be no end to the expense.

PUBLISH THE ASSESSMENT ROLLS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would like to see the Assessment Roll of the City published, as suggested by a correspondent in your paper some time ago. It would give those who furnish the money an opportunity to check values. I hope, when the present assessment is completed, that this will be done.

G.F.S.

THE DUTY OF PARLIAMENT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In view of the fact that a public meeting is likely to be held to discuss the reciprocity matter. I think, Sir, that prompt action regarding Mr. Taft's utterance in New York a few days ago.

On that occasion the President spoke of his reciprocity agreement with Mr. Fielding as an attempt on the part of the United States to check the growing integrity of the British Empire. This trade arrangement, he said, was the republic's last chance to prevent Canada and the rest of the Empire being bound together by an Imperial commercial band, "reaching around the world from England and back to England again."

Could anything be bolder? Could the members of Parliament wish for any clearer declaration of American intentions than this from the very author of the Washington bargain?

As the News correctly puts it, whatever some Liberal members may think themselves, they should not blink at the fact that Mr. Taft's declaration is one with which the great mass of Canadians have no sympathy whatever. This the members will find when they go back to their constituencies for re-election. Once the President's words become common property in this country they will prove the final death blow to reciprocity. Parliament will accurately reflect popular opinion if it forthwith places its veto on Mr. Taft's deep laid scheme. Without further delay the Government should join the Opposition in denouncing the whole Washington arrangement, and in repudiating all complicity in Mr. Taft's design.

Public Opinion.

THE RECIPROCITY FACT.

Canadian Action is Not Worrying Senators.

Washington, May 8—That the United States will go forward to vote upon the reciprocity measure without regard to the possible recess of the Canadian Parliament was the practically unanimous opinion of Senators to-day. They do not think the enforced absence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier from Ottawa can be used to influence adversely the demand of the President for action by the Senate, even though it takes a vote on the measure at Ottawa over until the autumn.

Action by Canada on the pact is thus far having very little to do with what the Senate will accomplish with reciprocity. Only a few Senators appear to be following closely the course of the bill in the Canadian Parliament.

That there might be delay in action by Canada as a result of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's absence seemed not to worry the Senators.

BIG BILL FOR THE REX THEATRE THIS WEEK

The bill that will be put on at the Rex Theatre the first three days of this week is an exceptionally strong one. Gladys Van and Arthur Pearce, in "Get a License" come direct from the Plaza Theatre, Buffalo, and the "Two Georges" Acrobatic merrymakers, come direct from Watertown, N.Y. Nat Goetz, novelty rings, and the Marshalls, colored entertainers come direct from Shea's Theatre, where they held down the boards last week to crowded houses. Many of the local citizens witnessed Goetz and the Marshalls perform at Shea's and speak in glowing terms of their performance. All these acts are working for the United Booking Office of America, which is the Keith and Proctor time, Suffice, etc., etc. There will be a matinee each day at 3.30 and two shows at night, starting at eight o'clock.

SOME BIG NUGGETS.

Famous Chunks of Gold Found at Various Times.

The largest mass of gold ever found free from quartz, of which there is any record, was that taken out of the Byer & Haltman mine, Hill End, N. S. W., May 10, 1872. It was embedded in blue slate, 250 feet from the surface. It weighed 640 pounds and was 57 inches long, 30 inches wide, and averaged 4 inches thick. It was valued at $146,000. The Welcome Stranger Nugget was found on Mt. Molingel, Australia, February 9, 1869. It weighed 190 pounds, and was valued at $45,000. The Welcome nugget was found at Bakery Hill, Australia, June 9, 1859. It weighed 184 pounds, 9 ounces, and was valued at $44,356. The nugget found August 19, 1869, in the Monumental quartz mine, twelve miles north of Downieville, Sierra county, California, was the largest piece of gold ever found in the state up to that date. It weighed 1,142.25 ounces or 95¼ pounds, cleaned, and was worth $21,156.52. It was found in decomposed quartz twenty-five feet from the surface. A pocket was discovered in the Bonanza mine, at Sonora, Tuolumne county, California, in the early days of the mine about 250 feet from the surface. This pocket produced $300,000 and the central mass of solid gold was worth $40,000. It is claimed that nearly $3,000,000 was taken from a hole on the Morgan mine, 20 by 20 by 30 feet, on the summit of Carson hill, Calaveras county, California, in 1851. This latter has probably been exaggerated somewhat, though there is no doubt that a large amount of gold was taken from that place.

INSURGENTS NO LONGER OPPOSED

Washington, May 5.—With an agreement that the general debate on the free list bill will come to an end to-morrow night, the House resumed its 10th day consideration of that measure to-day.

It is said that the bill will be put upon final passage, after it is read under the five minute rule for amendment.

COMPROMISE IN SIGHT.

Washington, May 5.—Democratic leaders now believe that they see their way clear to bring about a compromise on the proposed bill providing for a revision of the wool schedule of the tariff law, especially relating to free raw wool.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, and Senator Lafollette, of Wisconsin, are said to be willing to vote for the reciprocity bill regardless of whether the Cummins amendments are added to the measure or are thrown into the discard.

It is now practically certain that the farmers' free list bill, under general debate in the house, will not pass the Senate. The insurgents, it can be stated, will not vote for it.

FIGURES WERE CORRECT.

Washington, May 5.—"The statement that the tariff board has made an error of 33 per cent. in its figures of Canadian farm wages in its Canadian reciprocity report" is entirely untrue, declared chairman Henry C. Emery to-day.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Yesterday was anniversary Sunday at St. Andrew's and Rev. Jas. G. Potter, previous pastor of the church preached at both services. His addresses, which were interesting in the extreme were listened to by vast congregations. At night the management was forced to put chairs in the aisles to accommodate the overwhelming numbers.

Master Wilfrid Morrison, the ever-popular boy soprano, sang at both services in a rich and excellent voice and won the admiration of all present.

The Rev. Mr. Potter will remain for the young men's Guild concert to-night, and will then return to his home in Montreal, where he is pastor of St. Vicar Memorial Church.

HON. ADAM BECK TO GIVE AN ADDRESS

His Worship, Mayor Morrow informed the Times on Saturday, that the Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, will deliver an address in this city on Wednesday evening next. The meeting will take place in the Collegiate Assembly Hall, and will begin at 8 o'clock. The subject of his remarks will be the power question.

Mr. Beck's visit to Peterborough was in compliance with an invitation from the City Council. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance of citizens. Mayor Morrow will take the chair at o'clock.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Rev. Prof. Eakin, of Toronto, Delivers Powerful Discourse.

Large congregations were present at St. Paul's Church yesterday morning and evening. Professor of Divinity in Toronto University, occupied the pulpit at both services.

Dr. Eakin, besides holding a chair in the University, is also pastor of St. Andrew's church in that city.

The sermons were scholarly, powerful and eloquent. The text in the morning was taken from St. John's Gospel, 20 chapter and 25th verse, in which the preacher showed that in order to wear the crown, sacrificial effort was necessary. The scars of the nails of the cross must be visible.

The splendid choir under the leadership of Mr. Crane, rendered special music of a very high order, Miss Helen Davies, the talented soloist, excelling as usual in the sweetness of expression and tone in the leading parts.

GIRLS DON'T WANT ROCKEFELLER GIFT

Petition for Return of Cash Gift for the Heating of Wellesley College.

Wellesley, Mass., May 6—The Wellesley College girl students are circulating a petition to-day asking the trustees to return the $150,000 presented to the college by John D. Rockefeller to be used for the installation of a steam-heating plant.

It was duly accepted, but the agitation for return of money was started among members of the lower classes, and it has spread to all other classes.

A committee of five drew up a petition asking the trustees to return the gift, and after being signed by a large number of the members of the class of '14, it is being circulated among the higher classes and being freely signed. Almost 300 names are now attached to the petition.

BOUGHT BIG COAL AREAS IN CANADA

German Capital Coming to Canada Amounting to $7,000,000.

Ottawa, May 8—An immense sale of coal territory in the northwest, has just been completed here. Two square miles of coal areas are said to have changed hands at a very large sum. The purchasers are the German Developing Company, who already hold large coal properties in the west Mr. Martin Nordegg, managing director of the company, made the purchase for the company. The leases were held by a syndicate of Ottawa men.

According to Mr. Nordegg, this purchase is a continuation of the company's policy of acquiring properties at every point which will eventually be accessible to the railroads. The property in question is close to the C. P. R. main line on the Kananskas River in Alberta.

This company holds extensive coal areas lying between the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Pacific lines, a distance of over two hundred miles. The most important of these fields is situated on the South Brazeau River The Canadian Northern also have coal interests in the Brazeau and these two companies are building a railroad from Seattle to the Brazeau at a cost of $4,000,000. The German Development Company is financing the road and the Canadian Northern Company is building it and will operate it. The Brazeau Collieries Co. is erecting a plant which is costing $2,000,000.

The German Developing Company, according to Mr. Nordegg, has already invested in Canada, $1,000,000 in economic minerals, and has properties in all parts of the Dominion.

When these new ventures have been completed, this company will have invested $7,000,000. All this capital comes from Europe, and illustrates the deep interest which foreigners are taking in the natural resources of Canada.

PLANNING BIGGEST REVIVAL THAT WORLD HAS EVEN SEEN

"MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT" TO BE LAUNCHED THIS FALL.

Object to Gather in 3,000,000 Men in Canada and United States Into the Fold of the Church.

What is called "The Men and Religion Forward Movement," but which in reality is simply the placing of religion on a business basis, and teaching it to the classes in a sensible, reasonable way, is in process of being launched from New York City. By next fall it will be in full swing, and Ontario pastors will be more or less actively engaged in it. It promises to be the most impressive religious movement ever organized in America. It is certainly the most thoroughly organized and carefully planned, and assuredly this greatest of all revivals will be carried on from man to man, and it is expected that not only will Christianity be strengthened but that the exact balance of the sexes in the churches will be restored. At present there is a great preponderance of woman over men, and it is proposed to cure this one-sided condition by bringing more men into the Church. Placing religion "on a business basis" is expected to bring about this result.

"The masculine element in the Christian Church is much less developed than the feminine," said Roy B. Guild, Executive Secretary of "The Men and Religion Forward Movement." "At the smallest calculation there are 3,000,000 less men and boys in the Christian Churches of North America than of the other sex. This would be equally sad if the order was reversed. All are agreed that the men and boys should share equally with the women and girls the responsibilities and blessings of the Christian life. To find and properly affiliate with the Church these missing three millions of North American manhood is an undertaking for men, and is the object in view of the greatest religious movement that this country has ever seen, and which is now about to be brought to the attention of the public.

"The movement is the best equipped best planned, and the most promising campaign that has ever been attempted in this country to restore to the religious life the men and boys who have drifted away. It is a co-operative attempt of all the religious organizations working especially among men and boys to make the year 1911-12 a year of special emphasis. The genius of it is that all the men's organizations of the leading denominations, the International Sunday School Association, with its adult membership of nearly a million, the Brotherhood Association of Travelling Salesmen, who place Bibles in hotels, and the International Committee of the Y.M.C.A. are banded together. Mr. James E. Cannon, president of the Fourth National Bank of New York, is president of a committee of ninety-seven progressive men, representing all parts of the continent, which has the campaign in hand. It is the intention that by fall there shall be a movement toward the bringing back to the Church of the manhood of this country that will stir the nation.

WILL DIRECT THE MOVEMENT.

Mr. Fred. B. Smith, religious director of the Y.M.C.A., is the campaign leader, and has associated with him Fayette L. Thompson, who is the general secretary of the Methodist Brotherhood. Mr. James Whitmore is the promotion secretary having to do with the establishment of the campaign in different cities.

The Metropolis of the West is Undoubtedly

VANCOUVER

BRITISH COLUMBIA

The City of Vancouver, Canada's most westerly commercial and industrial metropolis, is situated on a promontory of the mainland of British Columbia, overlooking the waters of Burrard Inlet, the Gulf of Georgia, with their perennially fascinating wealth of scenic beauty, and the north arm of the Fraser.

Although the city was founded as late as 1886, it now boasts of a population of 180,000 souls, and it is admittedly one of the most important commercial centres on the Pacific Coast. Its commercial standing is founded on the fact that it is the terminal of three transcontinental railways, and the home port of several fleets of trans-Pacific steamship companies. Besides the railway lines already entering the city, two others are rushing construction to Vancouver, while several lines to connect the various parts of the interior of the Province with Vancouver are being surveyed.

Vancouver enjoys an ideal location being particularly well adapted for business purposes, and at the same time possessing the best possible conditions for a place of residence. The business section of the city, together with the older residential portion, is situated on a peninsula with gentle elevation, sloping both northward and southward to the salt water channels which all but surround it.

The inland waterways connecting with Burrard Inlet afford splendid facilities for short excursion trips to nearby camping grounds and pleasure resorts. Across the Inlet, close to the City of North Vancouver, are fishing streams, mountain trails and splendid roadways leading to scenic features of remarkable beauty.

Vancouver is about 150 miles north of Seattle, and there are very efficient transportation connections between the two cities, both by sea and land. The sea trip is through scenery of surpassing grandeur and beauty, and for a large part of the journey by land, the shore land of the Sound is skirted, affording charming views of wooded islands and distant mountains.

A trip to the coast would be certainly incomplete that did not include at least a week's stay at Vancouver.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

Vancouver was incorporated in 1886. In the same year it was destroyed by fire. In June of the year following, the first railway train arrived. Since that time Vancouver has grown to a city of 180,000 people. Civic works valued at nearly $90,000,000 have been carried out. Of this amount, two and three quarter millions are for sidewalks and streets; $800,000 for sewers and drains; $134,393 for fire halls and equipment; $386,000 for bridges and $1,386,406 for schools.

The value of assessable property in the City grew from $1,639,077.00 in 1887 to $17,442,358.00 in 1897, and to $54,727,910.00 in 1907. It is now $91,768,905.00, and the assessment just made adds $10,000,000.00 to the latter sum.

An investor cannot find a better and safer proposition than the acquisition of property in a growing and prosperous community. The Scott Brokerage Company of Vancouver, B. C., have opened a branch in this city and will supply the citizens of Peterborough with any information regarding British Columbia and principally Vancouver property.

The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has made it a favorite everywhere. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all dealers.

The Icelandic parliament has passed a bill giving the women of Iceland the right to vote after they have arrived at the age of 25 years. The women will probably not object to the age stipulation if they are merely required to explain that they are old enough.

BELINDA'S SCRUPLES

By Derek Vane

Belinda is nothing if not superstitious. I have found her in Morgana's sumptuous rooms in Bond Street with her pretty pink palm turned up on a velvety cushion. I have also known her to visit an ancient sibyl in Shepherd's Bush, who, after opening the door in a pronounced deshabille, returns half an hour later in black satin, acknowledging no connection with her previous appearance.

I was not in the least surprised, therefore, when on calling on Belinda early one morning I found her still in bed, with dream-books, palmistry-books, and other books of fate and the future scattered all over the eider-down. She carefully turned down a page in the book she was reading before responding to my greeting.

"What is the matter?" I asked. "Have you had a bad dream or do you want to know which hat it would be advisable to wear to-day?"

"Please don't be flippant," she said patiently. "This is really a serious matter. I am quite unhappy."

She looked so pretty in her pink wrapper, with her hair tied up in the ridiculous way she affects for the night that I found myself kissing her instead of saying how foolish and wrong and altogether reprehensible it was to waste her time in this way—which is what I fully intended doing.

"What have you got there?" I asked severely, to make up for the lapse, as I looked at the turned-down page. It was headed "The Line of Heart."

"Oh!" I said meaningly, "it is your own heart you are doubtful about, or somebody's else?"

"Morgana told me," she said rather irrelevantly, "that I should marry a sailor, so, as you know, I accepted Dick. But when I went to see Mrs. Sprigg at Shepherd's Bush the other day, she said, 'Beware of wind and water. Beware of that which comes and that which goes. Pause before it is too late.' What could she mean?"

"I haven't the least idea," I replied. "She seems to be as cryptic as the old Roman oracles, which were always taking people in. There is so much 'Beware' that I should pay any attention to it if I were you. If you escape that which comes, you must fall a victim to that which goes. I don't see any chance for you."

"I'm so afraid it means Dick," Belinda said, half crying. "Somehow I can't help believing in Mrs. Sprigg, she is so dirty. Wasn't it curious her saying, 'Wind and water? And then a sailor comes and goes, doesn't he?"

"Yes, and so do many other people; indeed, most of us. Not many people are stationary. Only prisoners and invalids and others who can't help themselves." But she was not to be comforted.

"There's such a curious mark on my hand just over the heart line," she said. "I was looking at it when you came in. You see I may have done it at hockey, but if not it means a broken engagement. I've been looking in the crystal to try if that would help me," taking up the big glass ball, "but I can't see anything this morning. It only looks dark and threatening. I wonder if that is a bad omen?"

"Of course it looks dark," I said prosaically. "You forget it is November. Why should a crystal hope to escape the fog any more than anything else?"

"Please go away," Belinda said petulantly. "You are really no use today. I shan't get up until I have settled what to do. I wonder if Dick is to be trusted? Don't they say that a sailor has a sweetheart in every port? It's perfectly disgraceful such a state of things should be allowed. The Admiralty ought to look after them better."

She slid down in the bed until only the top of her head was visible above the eiderdown, and I took my departure rather abruptly. I was really annoyed with Belinda. Downstairs I met Dick, hurrying in with chocolates and other offerings in the generous nautical way. I had an idea. I took him into the morning-room and after a little conversation we went away together and I was in possession of the chocolates.

What followed I learnt afterwards. Belinda came down to see Dick that afternoon in a grey frock with a bunch of violets in her belt and a pensive expression. (Half mourning. Belinda always dressed her parts). Dick, accustomed to reading the weather, was quick to take his cue. He met Belinda with her own expression intensified fifty-fold, so that she stopped and stared at him in horrified amazement.

"What's the matter?" she said, forgetting her own part. "You look dreadful. What have you done?"

"Don't ask me," he replied, with every sign of acute distress.

"But I must. Poor boy, what is it? Come and sit down and tell me all about it?" and she led him gently to the most comfortable armchair (Dick said me he felt inclined to chuck it all up, then).

"Don't be kind to me," he said, burying his face in his hands. "I don't deserve it. I'd better go and drown myself, then perhaps you can forgive me. You can't otherwise; it's quite impossible—I shouldn't ask it."

No woman cares to be told that she can't do anything, and Dick—who must really have had rather a wide experience—evidently knew that.

"But what have you done?" Belinda said, patting the top of his head tenderly. "Don't keep me in suspense. You know it is your duty to tell me everything. If you're really sorry—and I am sure you are—that will atone for a great deal."

"Nothing can atone for what I have done. I've behaved like a brute—a perfect monster. I ought to be taken to a desert island and left there. Then when I'd lived on fish and—and the vegetation of the island for years—perhaps I should begin to feel more comfortable."

"You're not going to do anything of the kind," Belinda said decidedly. "You seem to forget that you belong to me and that I have a say in the matter. I have no wish to live on a desert island, and, of course, if I don't you can't."

"But that's just the trouble," he said desperately, "—the 'belong' I mean, you know. I don't exactly know whom I do belong to."

"Don't you want to be engaged to me any longer, Dicky?" Belinda said with a little quiver in her voice. She quite forgot that when she came down she had intended to put Dick on probation. She would answer all his entreaties kindly but firmly. He must prove his worthiness before she definitely accepted him.

"Of course I do; it's that what makes me so miserable. You see—how shall I tell you?—you see, there's somebody else."

"Somebody else?" Belinda repeated, sitting up very straight.

"Yes, she calls me Dick and writes to me every mail. I can't read the letters, they're in Spanish, you know, but I'm afraid they're rather affectionate from the length. It happened when we called at Gibraltar. There was a fete in the Spanish quarter, and I'm afraid I danced with her a lot. She looked rather nice with a rose behind her ear, and I may have had more Rioja than was good for me. You know what those Spaniards are—proud as Lucifer and so ready with their knives. It may be a Spanish custom that if you dance a certain number of times with a girl that means an engagement. That's the worst of not knowing the custom of a country."

"Dick, who do you want to marry? This—this extraordinary Spanish person, or me?"

"You, of course. I've never wanted to marry anybody else and never shall. But if we should happen to call at Gib. on the next voyage out, I don't know what may come of it. You see, I don't know their laws and customs and Juanita—"

"I suppose even she wouldn't want to marry you if you were married already?"

"I should think not."

"Then we'll be married next month," Belinda said decidedly. "I can't let you run the risk of meeting such a designing person without any protection."

And that is how Dick came to give me another box of chocolates.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

SOMETHING LIKE COMFORT

Oh, it's mighty comforting, when your hair is getting thin,
And the wrinkles in your face have come to stay,
Just to feel her little hand smoothing
out each silver strand,
While you meet her loving look and hear her say:—

"John, my dear, it seems as though every day you live you grow
Handsomer than in the olden days";
And you smile back at your wife,
while you think in all your life,
You never heard a sweeter word of praise.

Then somehow the teardrops rise to your dim, old fading eyes,
While you kiss the tender hand,
still white and small,
And you try to tell her how you loved her then—you love her now,
But, bless me, if the words will come at all!

For just then it comes to you to think of trials she's gone through
And borne without a murmur for your sake;
You can only bow your head at the loving things she's said,
And your poor old heart can only ache and ache.

But she knows what ails you then,
and she kisses you again,
While you hear her gently whisper,
sweet and low:—
"Life has brought more hopes than fears; we have known more smiles than tears;
You're the dearest of dears, John
Anderson, my Jo!"

So it's comforting, I say, when your hair is getting grey,
And you're slipping down life's hill
a-mighty fast,
Just to feel her little hand stroking
back each silver strand,
While she whispers that she loves you—to the last.

PASSION PLAY PROFIT

£58,230 Earned by Village Players—Salaries in Proportion

According to an official statement, the gross receipts of the Passion Play of 1910 at Oberammergau were £58,230. After defraying the costs of production and other incidental expenses the proceeds, £44,830, remain to be distributed, and the sum of £33,360 will be divided among the 360 performers. The managers of the play, the musical directors, the chief cashier, and the portrayers of Christ, Pilate, Caiaphas, Herod, and the speaker of the prologue will receive £126 each for their six months' services. Other salaries will be in proportion to the importance of the respective roles. The men and women who played so vividly as members of the crowds in the streets of Jerusalem will receive £6 each, and the school children 30s. each; £535 will be given to the poor, and, says the Mail, the balance of £31,750 will remain in the village treasury for communal purposes.

RIGHTS OF HOSPITALITY

Dr. Johnson, in his tour through North Wales passed two days at the seat of Colonel Middleton, of Gwynnaggan. While he remained there the gardener caught a hare from among some potato plants. He brought it to his master, who was engaged in conversation with the doctor, and received from him an order to carry it to the cook. As soon as Johnson heard this sentence he begged to have the animal placed in his arms, which done, he hurried to the half open window, and restored the hare to her liberty, shouting after her to accelerate her speed. "What have you done?" cried the colonel. "Why, doctor, you have robbed my table of a delicacy, perhaps deprived us of a dinner." "So much the better, sir," replied the humane champion of the condemned hare, "for if your table is to be supplied at the expense of the laws of hospitality, I envy not the appetite of him who eats it. That, sir, was a hare which had placed itself under your protection; and savage, indeed, must be that man who does not make his hearth an asylum for the confiding stranger."

A KITE-FLYING COMPOSER

Sir Edward Elgar, whose violin concerto has aroused so much interest in the musical world, numbers kite-flying amongst his hobbies, but has devoted himself more of late years to chemistry and cycling. He spends much of his leisure time in the laboratory. In writing for the violin Sir Edward is returning to his early love, for he was a fine player himself in his youth. Indeed, it would be difficult to name an instrument which he cannot play. For five years he was bandmaster at the Worcester County Lunatic Asylum, the band being formed by the asylum attendants, and it was thus that he became familiar with instruments, ranging from a French horn to an organ. In those days—and it is not so many years ago—England's greatest composer wrote polkas, waltzes, etc., for which he received 5s. a set, while for minstrel ballads for the use of the asylum inmates he received 1s. 6d. each.

SOME SMOKE

Mistress (to maid):—"I understand that you had company yesterday afternoon, Mary. Who was it?"

Mary:—"Only my Aunt Nelly, mum."

Mistress:—"Well, when you see her again, Mary, kindly tell her that she left her tobacco-pouch and matches on the piano."

VERY GOOD REASON

Two young men were lunching together when one of them mentioned a mutual acquaintance.

"Brown is a good fellow, no doubt," said the other a little stiffly, "but somehow or other he never appealed to me."

"I suppose he knew it wouldn't be any use," murmured the first speaker. "You are usually broke!"

CONVICTS HAUNT HOUSE

A Ghost Story From an Australian Township

Just a hundred years ago, outside one small Australian township, now the capital of one of the States, a clearing had been made, and the work of building a large residence was in hand. The Government official in charge of the convicts who were employed to do the work, was most inhuman in his treatment of his laborers. Hampered as they were by their heavy chains, which bound one to another, they might work as hard as they could, but they never satisfied him.

He was a sullen, cruel tyrant, and on the slightest excuse, and sometimes absolutely without provocation, he would order the convicts to chain one of their fellow-prisoners to a tree, and then compel them to watch while he thrashed the helpless man with a leather-thonged whip. Fatigue alone would stop the inhuman brute from wielding the lash.

At last the house was finished, and was tenanted for the first time. But those occupants soon left, and no one since has remained for long; for the anguished cries of the tortured men and the sounds of their clanking chains haunt the house, sounding out in the stillness of the night at irregular periods, and proving more than a match for the most strong-minded man or woman. To-day that great house stands desolate, haunted by the restless spirits of those men who were tortured in the building of it.

BEDROOM ON FIRE

Boarder Proceeded to Extinguish It With Cups of Water

His great hobby was lying in bed. For weeks together he would never rise from his downy nest. One day, however, his landlady was surprised to see him—garbed in a heavy dressing-gown, with the collar turned up—walk slowly into the dining-room and, in a half-dazed, half-sleepy fashion, fill a glass with water and carry it carefully upstairs.

Five minutes later he returned again and repeated the performance. Still the landlady made no comment, for, when engaging his rooms he had requested that he should not be spoken to, because the noise of the human voice was apt to disturb the train of his thoughts. However, when, a few minutes later, he returned once more she felt constrained to ask him why he was indulging in this sudden fit of energy, for, like the good soul she was, she feared that he might be ill—and might die, in which case she would lose a good-paying lodger. Landladies are always disinterested.

"What is the matter, sir? You're not ill, I hope?" she asked, as, with eyes half closed, and walking as slowly as the chief mourner at a funeral, he filled the glass for the third time and turned to leave the room.

"No!"—and he yawned sleepily. "No, I'm not ill; but my bedroom is on fire! That's all."

ELEPHANT WOULDN'T PLAY

Recognized in the Piano Keys its Mother's Tusks

The other day an itinerant circus announced, as the chief attraction on its programme, a performing elephant who, amongst other accomplishments, played the piano. The hour of the performance arrived; the docile animal was led into the arena and conducted to an open piano, when suddenly he wheeled round, uttering lugubrious cries. After a brief conference with the elephant's valet, the proprietor of the show came forward and said that until another piano could be procured that part of the programme could not be carried out. The elephant, a most sympathetic and affectionate creature, had recognized in the ivory keys of the instrument the tusks of its mother!

THE CHAMPION COW

The champion milch cow of the world is now supposed to be Chief Josephine, the prize cow of the University of Missouri. Eight months ago the keepers of the animal began a race for the record of one year. In the time that has elapsed since the start her milk yield has been greater by 2,100 pounds than that of any other cow that has ever lived. Josephine's daily yield has been 99 pounds. Her best record for a single day is 110.2 pounds. The cost of feeding her is about 25 cents a day.

PARLIAMENT REFRESHMENTS

How the late Parliament refreshed itself is told in the report just issued of the Select Committee appointed to control such arrangements. From February 15th to August 3rd, 24,982 meals were served, made up as follows: 18,162 luncheons, 27,592 dinners, 216 suppers, 45,706 teas, and 2,377 meals at the bar. The receipts amounted to $60,000. There was spent on provisions $36,000; cigars, $3,200; wines, etc., $21,000.

CORONATION DIAMONDS

The coronation of King George will see the Cullinan diamond take its place among the Crown regalia for the first time. Since it was quite impossible to cut this wonderful stone as a whole, it was split into two main portions, each of which is considerably larger than any other diamond the world has ever seen. The larger of the two has just been placed in the centre of the front of the crown that the King will wear next June.

A Sneezing Epidemic

It's Not Influenza—But Catarrh that Comes With Change of Season.

Every second person that you meet seems to have a severe cold and stuffed feeling in the forehead and nostrils. To cure promptly, say half an hour, there is nothing worth using except Catarrhozone. You inhale its balsamic vapor, and feel as if you were among the Norway Pines. This is because Catarrhozone contains a healing medicine, light as pine air, which is breathed straight into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Away goes the cold, sneezing and catarrhal cough cease, bronchial irritation stops; in short, you are cured of catarrh by a pleasant, simple remedy free from sedative and irritants. Catarrhozone is a good safe, family remedy for coughs, colds, croup, sore throat, that may be taken by young and old with absolute certainty of swift permanent cure. Try "Catarrhozone," but beware of the substitutor who may try to induce you to take something instead of "Catarrhozone." Large size lasts two months. Price $1.00. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c. Sold by all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE COST OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

General observations on what the attitude of the United States towards Mexico means in terms of regiments and battleships have not been lacking in the British and European press. For the most part they have indicated a tolerant satisfaction, not untinged with a lively curiosity as to what was to come next, for it is the consensus of outside opinion that the Taft administration has signed and sealed an acknowledgment of responsibility which has hitherto been very carefully evaded. In touching on this point, The Spectator says:—

We want to make the American people understand that it is impossible to maintain the Monroe Doctrine and all of the gigantic possibilities that are involved both in regard to the maintenance of law and order in the South American republics and with regard to saying "Hands off!" to Europe without an adequate military and naval preparation.

A very powerful navy may be able to do the work of saying "Hands off!" to Europe, but the duty of seeing that law and order are maintained must very largely depend upon an adequate military force. We say without hesitation that America does not possess that force, and if she be wise she will either make provision for it or abandon the Monroe Doctrine.

The Monroe Doctrine has been for nearly a century the one proud and glittering diplomatic jewel which Uncle Sam could wear when he mingled with other countries diplomatically. It now appears that the jewel has never been paid for and that its price has gone up, year by year, and will continue to rise until the millennium. A standing army of thirty thousand men, one-quarter of whom cannot be mobilized in six weeks in spite of the frantic efforts of the whole War Department, is not much of a weapon with which to threaten a belligerent Latin-American republic There is some significance in the fact that the Transvaal, the Orange Free State and the disaffected part of Cape Colony together only comprise an area about half that of Mexico, that the geographical and climatic conditions are not dissimilar, and that the population of Mexico is some fifteen times that of South Africa. And it took nearly 400,000 men to cope successfully with the South African trouble.

SEED-TIME AND HARVEST.

The school children of Toronto had at their credit on the 10th of March last in the Penny Savings Bank $164,364.85; of which amount it is said one boy deposited the tidy sum of $560. This splendidly illustrates the advantage of a convenient means of depositing small amounts. But what is of greater importance to our young people, and to older people also, is that they should have some plan of investment for their savings that may be of permanent advantage to them, a plan that, when old age arrives and their earning days are over, will furnish an income that will enable them to live in comfort, happiness and dignity for the remainder of their lives. Such a plan is provided by the Canadian Government by its Annuities Act. If, for example, the lad referred to, who we will assume for the purpose of illustration is 16 years of age, will avail himself of this plan, and will deposit with the Government one-half of the amount which he has already saved, or $280, he will receive at 60 an Annuity of $154.85; and if he will add to his $280, $20 a year from 16 to 60, he will receive a further sum of $945.70, or a total income of $1100.55 a year for life, payable in quarterly instalments. If he should die before 60, all his payments would be returned to his estate with 3 per cent. compound interest; though the same payments would secure for him a larger Annuity if he did not wish to provide for this return.

If the pennies of the ... had not been deposited in the Savings Bank, there is little doubt that in the majority of cases they would have been spent on trifles; but while the custodian of their savings is the Savings Bank, the temptation to withdraw will constantly recur. If deposited with the Government for the purchase of an Annuity, they cannot be withdrawn, for if they could be the object aimed at would probably in 99 cases out of 100 never be attained. The advice of Sir Walter Raleigh: "Use thy youth so that "thou mayest have comfort to re"member it when it hath forsaken "thee, and not sigh and grieve at the "account thereof; use it as the spring "time which soon departeth and "wherein thou oughtest to plant and "sow all provisions for a long and "happy life," is good advice still, though given over three hundred years ago; and you can now plant and sow where the harvest will be sure and abundant, for the Annuities plan is positively the only plan open to you that will enable you to spend your principal and interest without your income becoming smaller no matter how long you may live.

In youth, life seems limitless and boundless, but before middle age is reached the shortening process becomes daily more real. There is no time to sow "wild oats." Statistics show that at 45, 97 per cent. of men meet with reverses and lose their entire accumulations; that at 60, 35 per cent. are dependent upon their daily earnings or on their children for support; and that of those who fail at 45 only 2 per cent. ever recover their financial standing. The advantages, therefore, which the Annuities system presents as a means of making provision for old age should be apparent to everyone. In an interview a few days ago with an old lady of 90, who is an inmate of a poorhouse, she said she frequently cries for hours at a time at the thought of having to end her days in such a place. But no one who has purchased a Canadian Government Annuity need ever be afraid of ending his or her life there, as no process of law can deprive him or her of it. The wolf will never enter their door.

Anyone of the age of five or over who is domiciled in Canada may begin, and may receive the Annuity at 55 or any age thereafter; and any person now of the age of 55 or over may purchase an Immediate Annuity. For a small addition to the ordinary rate an Annuity may be continued for a certain number of years though death occurs before the number of years expires.

Literature explaining all about this most provident system may be obtained at the post office or on application to S. T. Bastedo, Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage. He will be glad to give you all information if you will write to him.

THE COMMON DRINKING CUP.

There is no difference of opinion among medical men about the desirability of doing away with the common drinking cup. It is a common carrier of disease germs and cannot be regulated by a commission like other common carriers. The transfer of such germs from one person to another doubtless could be prevented if the cup were antiseptically cleaned after each using, but who will do the cleaning.

The individual drinking cup is a safe-guard for those who seek to avoid the peril that lurks in the common cup, and the only satisfactory means of taking a drink for the fastidious. It can easily be provided by each person, for there are collapsible pocket cups of several patterns on sale. Only the careful, and thoughtful, however, are likely to use such a cup, and children especially are apt to drink wherever they find a cup.

It would be well, therefore, to abolish by law, so far as it is possible to do so, the common cup. The Toronto Board of Health has forbidden the use of a common cup in any public institution, hotel, theatre, factory, hall, school, railroad station or ferry-house. The common cup in railroad cars can be prohibited by State laws. In the country the way side spring or well, with its rusty tin dipper, has given a draught of cold water to innumerable wayfarers and has poetic associations. Can it be abolished?

While the law-makers are about this matter they should provide for the proper cleansing of glasses in which any drink is sold. At many soda fountains and behind many bars the glasses are merely dipped in a pool of dirty water and allowed to drain, or are used again before they have drained. The practice is dangerous and filthy, yet few people care to complain about it.

Sick headache, results from disordered conditions of the stomach, and can be cured by the use of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Try it. For sale by all dealers.

How Would You Like to Have Your Savings Earn the Running Expenses?

Sounds Good, Don't It?

Most Too Good to Be True

We Can Do That for You

Right now there are over 3,000,000 people in the great north-west relying strictly on Canned Fruits and Vegetables. They are a necessity. The people MUST have them.

Right now there are TONS and TONS of the best fruits and vegetables that Mother Earth produces going to waste every season in the Okanagan Valley and with the steady influx of settlers in the valley coming to till the fertile soil it is simply natural that the products will doubly increase.

What's to become of this increase with a 40 per cent. waste staring the growers in their very eyes right now?

JUST MORE WASTE, THAT'S ALL. That is, unless a feasible remedy is immediately adopted.

CANNERIES ARE THE REMIDY

Now, then, we have the Cannery situation to a point where we will step right in, take ALL the products the grower can supply and besides converting that gigantic waste into a yearly gain offer an incentive for a still greater output.

THE OKANAGAN CANNERS, LTD., are a co-operative institution.

Not only do we ask the fruit grower to join issues with us to protect his own industry, but invite keen investigation from the investing public.

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners, Ltd., from doing the same?

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—eight of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

Now, then, be up and thinking.

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realising handsomely on and term him lucky.

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when chances like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

Although capitalised at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

This is a gilt-edged bona fide, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

Prospectus can be had at Times office, Peterborough, or Head Office, Vancouver, B. C.

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

Our Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Wesley A. Blair, cashier of the Vancouver Customs, is one of the most trusted men in Canada and handles on an average of $30 000.00 every commercial day of the year for the Dominion Government.

Calgary Lots

UNIVERSITY SUB-DIVISION

We are placing upon the market a sub-division of Calgary, known as UNIVERSITY, from the fact that it is located close by the University site.

I am anxious to interest you in Calgary property, because of the fact that I feel that we can satisfy you in the sub-division, and thereby retain you as a customer when desiring Western investments. We have opened an office in Toronto permanently, for the purpose of handling Western Canada property.

This sub-division is situated just outside the city limits. It is high, dry and level. In fact, we guarantee every lot to be that, or we will refund the money at any time, with interest at 8 per cent. from the date we receive it.

The situation of this sub-division is unique in many respects. First, it commands a beautiful view of the Bow Valley, overlooking the city; also an excellent view of the Rockies to the West. It is a residential Western Annex, and the city of Calgary is growing very rapidly in that direction. By way of illustration: Sunalta, a Western sub-division was put on the market two years ago at from $100 to $200 per lot. To-day you cannot buy one single lot in Sunalta for less than $800 per lot and the majority of it is bringing prices as high as $2,000. Again, this property will be served by a car line, running from the City, West, which the Company building it guarantees to commence building by June 1st.

The Shouldice Park line on the opposite side of the River, will be completed by August 15th, and in operation. This runs to within half a mile of our property. A bridge is now in course of construction, costing $70,000, being arranged for street car service. A subway is being built under the C. P. R. in order that a line may be run from the Shouldice Park line to the line to the University, thus making a Belt Line around, and passing through the property.

We have been selling this property at $125 and $150 per lot; $125 for inside and $150 for corner lots, and, among the purchasers have been several Calgary builders who have bought as high as from ten to twenty lots each. A Toronto commercial traveller, after seeing this property, bought twenty lots; another ten, and later taking a whole block, so that you will know that the property is considered valuable by those who have seen it.

I need say nothing further regarding this property, as I am satisfied that it is an excellent proposition—a good money maker—and, in six months' time, will doubtless have tripled its present value.

Possibly you are not acquainted with the City of Calgary. I might say that four years ago, the population of Calgary was $17,000. To-day it is over 60,000 and, in two years' time, it will be over 100,000, and only then in its infancy. Fortunes have been made there recently in but a short time.

The C. P. R. has now six lines running from Calgary. The Grand Trunk Pacific will be into Calgary in two months' time, as they are now within half a mile of the City with their grade, and they will be running nine branch lines from the city. The C. N. R. has its grade within five miles of Calgary, and will be running seven branch lines out. The C.P.R. is adding six more lines to what it already has. This will give you some idea of the railway facilities.

The C. P. R. is also building an hotel costing $2,500,000; the Hudson Bay Company is erecting a department store to be completed by October 1st, costing $2,000,000; the Pryce-Jones Co. already has a large store employing about one thousand hands, and there is talk besides of the Harrods' of London, and Eatons' of Toronto, extending their operations to Calgary.

The C. P. R. shops will be located there next year, and will employ from three to four thousand hands; besides many manufacturers are coming in because of the cheap power and the many advantages that the railway facilities are giving. Natural gas has been found in very great quantities at Bow Island, and will be piped into the city at a cost of $3,500,000; being sold to the consumer, for domestic purposes at a cost of 30c, and for power at 20c.

These few facts will give you some idea about Calgary. We are selling this sub-division on easy payments; $10.00 cash per lot, and $10.00 per month per lot, until paid for, with interest at 6 per cent., or we will allow a discount of 5 per cent. for cash.

We give Government deeds for this property, immediately it is paid for, and allow you to make your payments at your own bank, after your first cash payment is made.

We will be pleased to hear from you, if you are at all interested in this money maker, and would show you maps and blue prints, if you would call at this office or write us.

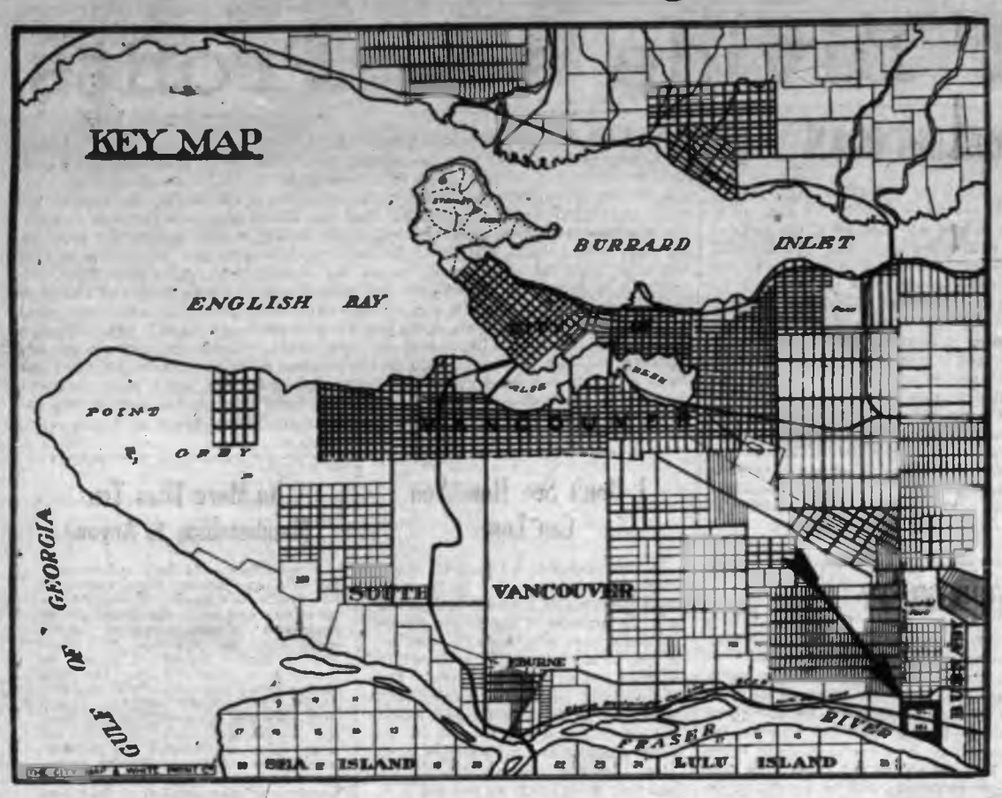
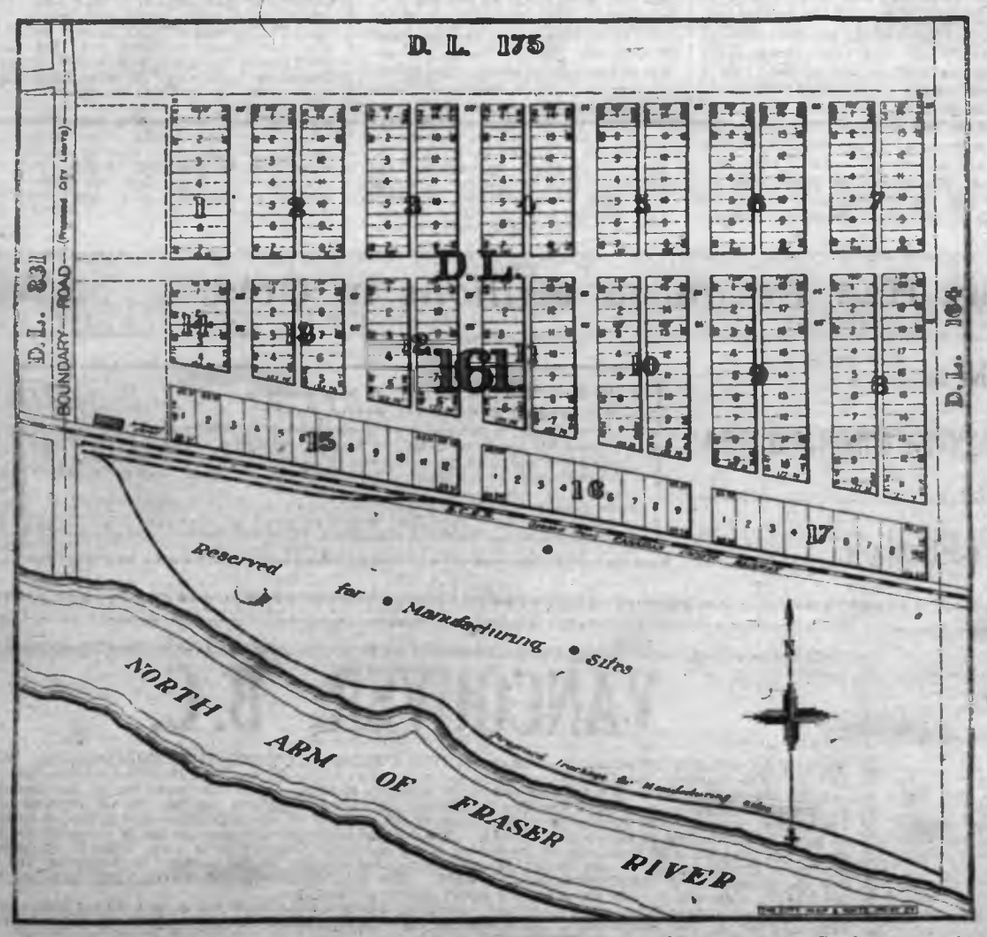
Great Opportunity to Purchase Vancouver Building Lots





The undersigned, representing the Scott Brokerage Company of Vancouver, B. C., have been instructed to dispose of a quantity of valuable Real Estate, situated in the City of Vancouver. This property is very valuable, and is certain to increase in value very rapidly. The lots sell for prices ranging from $450 each, upwards, with only a small deposit down.

$50 Invested in a Lot in D. L. 161 means $50.00 judiciously invested, because the price is low, the terms easy, the lots are all cleared and ready for building. All the Roads to the property are open. The Car Service is good, as the Tramline runs through the property. Electric Light and Water are available. An indefeasible title is guaranteed to every Lot. However the real intrinsic value of property is determined by its surroundings, its existing and possible industrial developments and density of population, in short the visible means of inducements for rapid advances in values. We will show you that District Lot 161 has all these attributes.

RESIDENCES

Varying from $1,000 to $30,000 in value surround D. L. 161. A $30,000 Mansion adjoins it on the east side while a $5,000 residence is under construction on the northwest side.

INDUSTRIES

The Dominion Carboleneum Works, a plant in full operation was installed at the initial cost of $75,000.00 and adjoins District Lot 161 on the Southwest side. The Waterfrontage is all reserved for additional Manufacturing Sites.

FOR THE SUM OF $135,000

A St. Louis Car Corporation purchased a Factory Site in D. L. 163 and 165 on the Southeast side of D. L. 161. It was announced on February 24th, 1911, that work would commence shortly. The plant is to cost $2,000,000. The British Columbia Electric Railway Company established at an enormous cost an elaborate siding on D. L. 161 for the purpose of loading and discharging merchandise, and a commodious depot will be here erected soon. The North Arm of the Fraser River adds a high commercial asset to a lot in D. L. 161. Already Steamers are wending their way up and down the stream. In order that large ocean liners may have egress to the proposed fresh water harbors "near D. L. 161" the Dominion Government has definitely decided to proceed with the dredging of the North Arm of the Fraser River. When this is completed a lot in D. L. 161 will not only double but treble in value.

WEALTHY FARMER CHARGED WITH MURDER

Fowler, Ind., May 4.—John Poole, a wealthy farmer, who is guarded in jail here by deputy sheriffs, to-day confessed that he killed accidentally, while shooting rabbits, Joseph Kemper, a farm hand, and then cut his body to pieces and burried with the refuse from a killing of hogs, according to the police.

The body was found buried on his farm here, by farm near here, by his son, who accused him of the murder and intimated that the elder Poole was guilty of murders which rival those committed on the famous "murder farm" of Belle Guinness, at Laport, Ind.

Poole said he had killed Kemper, December 12th. Fearing public opinion was against him because he had shot a man several years ago, he said he cut up the body and buried it.

OTHERS MISSING.

Two other farm hands who recently worked for Poole, vanished in a similar manner, and searchers are digging up the farm, searching for the bodies. Those men were Chas. Clark and Chas. Mack.

The exposure of Kemper's murder was made by Poole's 18-year-old son, Emery, who says his mother and his sisters have some cognizance of Poole's connection with the disappearance of Kemper, but have been retained by threats of death from making their knowledge public. The daughter, Grace, is a student in Chicago.

It is believed now that Poole is not only guilty of the killing of Joseph Kemper and two other farm hands, Chas. Clark and Chas. Mack, who disappeared from the Poole farm two years ago, but for the last 20 years he had been hiring farm hands and killing and robbing them after paying them for their labors.

JAPAN PLACES WREATH ON RUSSIAN HEROE'S GRAVE

St. Petersburg, May 5.—General Nogi, the Japanese hero of Port Arthur, arrived here to-day on a special mission of placing a wreath upon the tomb of Major-General Kondratenko, commander of the Seventh East Siberian Rifles, who was killed at battle of 203-metre Hill, in 1904, during the Russo-Japanese war. The Novoe Vremya will say to-morrow that the mission of General Nogi affords new proof of Japan's amicable feelings for Russia. General Nogi later will proceed to London, being one of the Japanese Coronation party.

ABOUT $300,000 PROFIT TO THE FORESTERS

Toronto, May 5.—At the meeting of the I.O.F. this morning the officers were installed by the Rev. Alexander MacGillivray.

Presentations were made by the Supreme Chief Ranger, assisted by Mr. A. H. Backus and Mr. Powell, on behalf of the delegates of the western High Court to Mr. C. H. Merryfield, superintendent of Western Ontario, and Mr. Geo. A. Mitchell, of Central Ontario, of solid gold watches and chains with locket and jewels, in recognition of distinguished services.

Mr. Thomas Ball, D.S.C.R., of western Ontario, Mr. Geo. E. Bailey, of central New York, and Mr. Bernard were decorated with Grand Cross of Merit.

An English delegate was quarantined in Quebec, and was unable to attend.

Many of the delegates intend to visit the orphans' home this afternoon.

This will conclude the Supreme Court session.

PROFITS OF $300,000.

During the evening session the Supreme Chief Ranger reported that $1,500,000 of the capital stock of the Union Trust Company returned to the order on the reduction of the capital of that company had, after allowing interest of 5 per cent. per annum, realized a net profit to the order of over $300,000.

WOMAN MAYOR DEMANDS THE REMOVAL OF COUNCILMEN

Hunnewell, Kas., May 5.—Mrs. Ella Wilson, America's only woman mayor, has proved herself of the militant brand by demanding that Governor Stubbs remove from office the five town councilmen who have refused to meet the mayoress or to confirm the appointment of Mrs. Alice Hilton as city clerk, or Mrs. Rose E. Osborne, as city marshall, the head of the Police Department. The councilmen—all men—declare they do not fear that the State's Chief Executive will remove them.

Mrs. Wilson has complained to the Governor that her administration in office is being hampered by the obstructive attitude of the council members. The suffragette mayor possesses the town records and no business can be transacted unless she will surrender them. This she refuses to do until she is assured that her wishes will be carried out. There is to be an adjourned meeting of the City Council Monday night, but Mrs. Wilson has notified the councilmen that she will not appear with the records unless they "be good." To "be good," they must confirm the appointments of the city clerkess and the chiefess of police.

SUGGEST A CHARGE OF MURDER AFTER LAPSE OF TWENTY YEARS

Hamilton, May 5.—The police received information to-day what they believe may possibly lead to the disclosure of one of the most atrocious crimes in the annals of Ontario, and which may result in revelations disclosing a chain of murders to prevent rightful heirs from obtaining possession of a valuable estate in England.

About twenty years ago the body of Dr. James Douglas, an army doctor, was found in the Thames river, a short distance from London, Ont. An inquest was held and a verdict of death by drowning was returned.

To-day the local police were informed that a prominent man in London sat on the bank of the river and watched two men row up and lift the body of Dr. Douglas from the bottom of the boat and throw it into the river.

INFORMATION WITHHELD.

For a number of reasons, it is claimed by those who are now asking for an investigation, the man who sat on the bank did not tell what he had seen to the authorities, but some time ago spoke of it to a friend, and they subsequently learned of it.

It is charged that the motive of the crime was to get possession of papers Dr. Douglas had that would have given a valuable estate in the Old Country to people who are now residing here. All the information the police will divulge about their informant is that the party claims he can show proofs of direct descendancy from one of the oldest houses in England, and that he is the rightful heir to a large estate.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley has withdrawn his objection to the Toronto harbor bill.

Farquhar Dewart, a resident of Kenyon township since 1833, is dead, aged 84 years.

PORCUPINE NEWS

The Ontario Government have decided to extend a Railway line into Porcupine, but at the same time comes the news that two other Railway lines besides the T. & N. O. Railway are making an effort to reach the District as soon as possible. It has also been decided to run the line into Porcupine City on account of this being the safest, cheapest and best route to take. Of course this will immediately boom the prices of Porcupine City Townsite lots and the chances are that lots for $800.00 the largest priced lots near the station will advance many hundreds of per cent before fall.

PORCUPINE NEWS

The Ontario Government have decided to extend a Railway line into Porcupine, but at the same time comes the news that two other Railway lines besides the T. & N. O. Railway are making an effort to reach the District as soon as possible. It has also been decided to run the line into Porcupine City on account of this being the safest, cheapest and best route to take. Of course this will immediately boom the prices of Porcupine City Townsite lots and the chances are that lots for $800.00 the largest priced lots near the station will advance many hundreds of per cent before fall.

FURTHER PAYMENTS REQUIRED

The First $5.00 Pays in All

THIS IS TO BE A QUICK-ACTION PROPOSITION. You pay $5.00 with your subscription. That is all. You will be called upon for no more. This membership entitles you to a vote in all the affairs of the syndicate, and to participate pro rata in all the benefits. It is a small amount, but I don't need very much to accomplish all I am going to try for. I made the price $5.00 so as to allow everyone to get in. In order to keep any one individual from acquiring control I have limited the subscription of any one person to no more than ten memberships. We are all going to get the same fair, square deal. There are to be no favorites and no special privileges. When money enough has been raised to do the work the members will be notified, and THEY will decide whether it will be necessary or not to incorporate a company and, if so, for how much. THEY will elect their own officers and direct the affairs of the company. I will have no time to fool away in doing office work. I am a miner, not a bookkeeper, and as soon as I get this thing organized the officers of the company will have to dictate the business policy. Now it is not very often that you have an opportunity of investing as small an amount as $5.00, and especially where it has such splendid chances for making a big profit in a short time. It can't be beat, and the proposition offers more for the money than anything of its kind in the market. I want you to help me in this and I promise you won't be disappointed if you do.

THIS IS MY MONEY-MAKING PLAN

I have secured a lease on the famous EMMA MINE OF EMPIRE, COLORADO. I used to work in this mine, and I know there is ore there. I feel sure that a few dollars expended in developing the vein already opened will give us a big body of rich ore. I am the man to do it. Of course I will need a little help in a financial way. I am organizing a syndicate to handle this proposition. I invite you to join me. We will all club in together and push the development work as hard and as fast as possible, and as the ore is taken out and marketed we will divide the profits. Memberships in this syndicate will be sold for $5.00 each and no more than ten will be sold to any one individual. I will own no more myself. I am determined to make this a small investor's enterprise, and it will be run by the membership holders and for their benefit alone. The amount is so small that anyone can afford to go in, and I am so sure in my own mind that it will be a success—a big success, and earn enormous profits for us—that I am willing to go back to the camp, take off my coat and go in and work from early in the morning until late at night to get the ore opened up and ready for the mill. I am satisfied that we can produce results in less than a year. All I want you to do is to let me have your immediate subscription for one or more memberships, and I will buy a stock of powder, go back to the mine and get to work. May I count upon your co-operation?

NOW. I will do my best to make money for both of us.

A large amount of rich ore has already been taken out of this mine, and a nice little streak of it is in sight now. The mine is all wired for electrical power and a power line passes only a few feet from the portal of the tunnel. Give me an electric power drill and I will go after that vein of ore in a way that will surprise the membership holders, and there will be no fooling around waiting for this, or for that, BUT I WILL PRODUCE RESULTS. I have to get my profits in this enterprise from the same source that you do: FROM THE ORE PRODUCED, and you may be assured that I will not lay around doing nothing until our money is all used up. Opening up the pay streak means as much to me as to any other membership holder: and I am going into the proposition to make it pay. If nothing unforseen occurs I will do it, too. Our profits should be very substantial, for there will not be many to divide the earnings among. I know all about the veins of ore in this camp; I know the character of the ore, and I know the quickest way to reach the ore bodies. If you will come into the proposition with me now, when I need your co-operation, I will give you your share of all I take out.

Something About Myself

I am a practical mining man; have had years of experience in the business, and have never made a failure of anything I have taken up. For over four years I have worked in the mines in and about Empire, Colorado. Being familiar with the location of the mineral veins of this district, knowing the character of the rock, etc., I have been on the lookout for a good property that I could operate under lease for some time. It was only recently that I found the big lead veins in the famous Emma mine, and I immediately took action to secure a long-time lease from the company owning the property. Well, to make a long story short, after a deal of negotiating I was successful and secured a lease on this splendid property which runs until 1916. The company was anxious to have a certain amount of development work done and I was lucky and ought to exhibit them at just the right time and secured just what I wanted. This is the proposition I am now inviting you to join me in—the development of this lease on the RICH EMMA MINE.

The Small Investor's Opportunity

Usually a small investor has but little show to earn more than a very ordinary profit on his investment. I conceived the idea of making this a company of small investors. Just a few of my friends, and their friends. I am so confident of the outcome that I am taking no more big capital in with me, and instead of having a company controlled and dominated by a few big stockholders, I want to make it more of a family affair. We will all get in a small amount. With the money thus subscribed I will begin work at the mine and, following the present vein, I am sure I will be able to cut the big American lode within a distance of a few hundred feet. If my plans are successful I will be into a big ore body in less than three months, and that means a small fortune for us all. There are all kinds of tools at the mine to work with except, perhaps, a power drill, and that will be one of the first things that I will buy. After that it will be easy to drive the tunnel, and I expect to make good progress.

QUICK RETURNS ON YOUR MONEY

THIS IS THE DAY OF QUICK ACTION. No man wants his money tied up in a proposition that only has a promise of paying out in the sweet bye and bye. Get your money in and your profits out. That is my idea, and I think I am right. I feel pretty sure that I can give you your money back and your share of the earnings inside of a year. Possibly sooner. In any event, you may be assured that I will not delay a minute longer than is necessary. I want my share as soon as I can get it, and you will get yours at the same time. I believe that these memberships will be snapped up in a hurry, and so I advise you to not delay your order. Better be a little early than too late. Your certificate will be forwarded to you upon receipt of your order and remittance. There will be no delay at this end. Frequent reports will be sent to the membership holders telling of the development at the mine, and if you have any suggestions to offer send them along. I am a miner, a practical miner, and know the business as well as any of them, but I am not fool enough to think I know it all. I am always anxious and willing to learn, so if you think you can give me any pointers that will help me I will thank you to let me have them. Now I have given you about all the important details in regard to the proposition. It is now your move. If you want something in an investment that looks a little bit better and a little bit quicker than anything else in the market, I want to hear from you. If you are a pessimist, and believe that you are doing well enough, you will just be wasting your time and mine in writing to me. Otherwise, clip and send in the attached coupon to-day—

I Don't See How You Can Lose

In this proposition I honestly don't see how you can lose. In the first place the amount invested is so small and the promise of big profits so exceptional that only a small amount of ore would have to be produced to at least get your money back. But if I thought getting my money back would be the best I could do I would not waste a minute's time on it. In other parts of this mine former operators took out large amounts of ore, and they never acquired any depth to speak of. Now, every miner in the Empire District knows that as depth is attained the ore bodies enlarge, and the values increase. The American lode that I have mentioned before is known to be very rich, and from on top of the hill, just a little ways north of this property, it dips directly towards us and down into the mountain. I think by driving the tunnel straight in that we will cut it in less than 200 feet. The vein now uncovered in the tunnel is evidently a stringer of the Americus lode.

No More Than Ten Memberships to Anyone

A square deal, fairness and equality for all. An honest disbursement of the syndicate's funds. Those are the principles and basis standards of this enterprise. I am going in on the same basis as yourself. If I make any big money out of the proposition I will have to get it from the same source that you do—THE EARNINGS FROM THE MINE. I will only own ten memberships, the limit for any one individual, and when the proposition is financed the membership holders shall say whether or not we shall incorporate. If so, for how much; and they shall elect their own officers from among their own number. The enterprise shall belong to the membership holders and they shall run it to suit themselves. All I want to do is work the mine. That is as much or more than one man can attend to properly, and I don't want to be bothered with any office work. Now, my friends, if you have faith in me and my proposition, I want your co-operation, and I will ask you to send me your subscription. If you haven't, you won't do me any good and I can't do anything for you.

KINGS AND QUEENS IN EXILE

"I am a beggar and a tramp, but one that receives no sympathy. Instead of a throne I am given a dinner, and instead of my people, the ridicule of my conquerors."

Such were the pitiful words spoken to a friend, a few years ago, by Ranavalo, ex-Queen of Madagascar, who, from the position of ruler of a kingdom as large as France, had sunk to the obscurity of an exile in a foreign land. At the time she was lodged in a mean apartment in a third-rate Paris hotel, and allowed to go out only very occasionally. Her only friend was an attendant, whose chief duty was to fetch the ex-Queen's meals from a neighboring restaurant.

A few weeks earlier Ranavalo had arrived at the Gare de Lyon one cold, foggy morning. No red carpet upon the platform, no [illegible]ors in white kid gloves, no [illegible]-decked waiting-room, no band, no flags, not a soldier, not a cheer greeted her arrival. She descended shivering from her carriage, was unceremoniously hustled into a station-cab by two detectives, and driven away, none noting, none caring, to her dreary home of exile.

Well might Napoleon say, "The lot of a dethroned king must be dreadful." The pomp of the throne, the powpaws which surround him from his cradle, and which accompany him step by step throughout his life, become a necessary condition of his existence.

It was on a bleak, March morning in 1848 that a respectably-dressed elderly gentleman, accompanied by a lady equally advanced in years, landed at Newhaven from the Express steamer from Havre. They had travelled under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and none who hustled the insignificant couple dreamed that they were Louis Philippe and his queen, who but a few weeks earlier had been the splendid rulers of France. For a little more than two years "Mr. Smith" lived in obscurity, until death claimed him at Claremont on the 26th August, 1850.

Very different was the reception on our shores of the dethroned Napoleon III., when he landed at Dover on March 28th, 1871, welcomed by an immense crowd shouting "Long live the Emperor!" Not the flicker of a smile lit the sallow, deep-lined face of the broken monarch. To the dense, clamorous crowd he sought eagerly two faces, those of his queen and his son; and in a few moments he had clasped them again and again to his heart.

At Chislehurst, where Napoleon spent the brief remainder of his days in close retirement, racked by frequent pain and comforted by his beloved wife and son, he was visited, among others, including Queen Victoria, by Lord Malmesbury, who says: "His quiet and calm dignity and his resignation were the grandest examples of human moral courage that the severest Stoic could have imagined."

The same calm resignation and dignity have marked the long exile of Napoleon's Empress, Eugenie, since the far-away day when, after a perilous flight from Paris, she landed at Ryde from Sir John Burgoyne's yacht. She has drunk deep of the cup of sorrow, and has learnt to "weigh against a grain of sand the glories of a throne."

When Louis VIII. was driven from his throne in 1807 he found a refuge in England, and purchased a residence, Hartwell, in Buckinghamshire, where he remained for seven years, until Napoleon's downfall opened the way again to the throne of France. But, although the British Government offered Louis an asylum, he was not recognised as a king, and as the Comte de Lille, was condemned to lead a secluded life in the country, being soundly [illegible] by the Government when, on one occasion, he went to London without permission.

But the kings of France have had long familiarity with flights and exile for during the last 150 years only a single Sovereign, Louis XVIII., has died possessed of the crown.

In the last century and a half Spain has sent four of her kings packing and Queen Isabella, grandmother of the king of to-day, had to fly for her life one September morning forty-two years ago. The spectacle she presented was too pitiable for comedy. With her round face swollen from sleeplessness and tears, surmounted by a little straw hat with a nodding red feather, with her dress in disorder, her hands without gloves, her skirts distended by a swinging crinoline, she reached the station, accompanied by the King Consort, on her way to France, where Napoleon III. had placed the Castle of Pau at her disposal.

MISS BRADDON'S FIRST EFFORT

When Miss Braddon, who lately celebrated her seventy-third birthday, was asked some time ago as to her first appearance in print, she replied, "To the best of my recollection, the first thing of mine that ever appeared in print was a song, in the seventeenth-century style, that was published in the 'Beverley Recorder' in May, 1857." This first printed effort of the prolific and popular authoress, which was entitled "Rest," and signed "Mary Seyton," consisted of four verses, and opened thus:—

All joys on earth have we,
All fears on earth we see,
All cares on earth there be,
But never rest.

A KISS IS——

A thing of use to no one, but much prized by two.

The baby's right, the lover's privilege, the parent's benison, and the hypocrite's mask.

That which you cannot give without taking, and cannot take without giving.

The flag of truce in the petty wars of courtship and marriage.

The acme of agony to a bashful man.

The only known "smack" that will calm a storm.

The only really agreeable double-faced action under the sun—or the moon, either.

The thunder-clap of the lips which inevitably follows the lightning glance of the eyes.

That in which two heads are better than one.

VANCOUVER, B. C.

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $150,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

According to Government Estimates

$100,000,000.00

Was Made in Western Town Property During the Year 1909

Did you anticipate in these huge profits or did you "pigeon-hole" the propositions submitted to you by your western friends for future consideration? In short, are you the man who made a profit or the unfortunate one who had the chance but did not possess sufficient judgment to recognize the opportunity or sufficient courage to close a deal? The man or woman entitled to sympathy is the one who says: "Five or ten years ago I had the chance to buy this or that property at $100 or $500, and now it is worth $10,000." The average person sneers at the person who makes such a statement and says: "I would have bought and made that money." Are you going to say five years from now that you had a chance to buy a lot at Poe, Alta., at from $50 to $100 each, or are you going to be the man who will have from $1,000 to $10,000 in cash as a result of having bought property in this town in this year of grace, 1911?

POE A COMING COMMERCIAL CENTRE

Poe is located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Saskatoon. It is located in one of the finest farming districts in Western Canada. The surrounding country is settled by a progressive type of farmers and consequently will become the market centre for Northern Alberta. Poe district possesses rich coal mines, is close to rivers and lakes and large forests are easily accessible from this point. These natural resources insure for the residents of the town, first, low cost of living, and second, great commercial activity, two essentials in the upbuilding of a large town, thus creating valuable real estate.

POE AS A MANUFACTURING CENTRE

This townsite and contiguous territory has the requirements outlined by large manufacturing concerns for the location of large factories or large enterprises of any kind employing large numbers of people. The rivers and lakes furnish water, the coal fields and forests furnish fuel and cheap building material, the fine farming lands furnish farm products, enabling the residents to live at a low cost.

The town is located on the main line of a transcontinental railway, assuring the necessary transportation facilities. These combined conditions will furnish cheap labor, one of the most important features of a manufacturing centre.

Poe townsite was recently placed on the market and already over 200 lots have been sold and many of these lots have already changed hands at a substantial increase in price. Most of these lots were purchased by representative business men throughout Canada who are now profiting by their foresight.

The townsite is high and dry and very suitable for building purposes.

OPPORTUNITY

is useless unless you possess the courage to act. You might possess great wisdom, you might read a good deal or travel much and thus see all kinds of opportunities to make money, but unless you have the courage to act on your judgment and wisdom all of these desirable qualities are entirely useless.

Lots in Poe are a good investment at present price. The town is bound to grow rapidly. Owing to the easy terms of payment you have the ability to buy and if you do not buy now it is because you are lacking in courage, and the chances are you will never be like the man you now admire most, rich, courageous and wise.

TORRENS TITLE.

Poe townsite is held by us under the Torrens system of title. Under this system the title is guaranteed by the Government, therefore absolutely safe.

PRICES AND TERMS.

Prices of lots range from $50 to $100 each, and they can be purchased on terms of one-tenth cash, balance in eighteen equal monthly payments; or quarter cash, balance in six, twelve or eighteen months.

INFORMATION

We have issued an attractive circular giving full information pertaining to the town and its prospects, together with map showing lots for sale. If you wish to receive this attractive circular cut out and fill in the attached coupon and mail it to us to-day.

RAILROAD GARDENS

Flower Scheme of Canadian Pacific Complete Success

The inauguration of the flower scheme by the Canadian Pacific Railway sixteen years ago, has resulted in there now being over 1,500 gardens on the whole system. Railway-stations, round-houses divisional offices, section houses, watchmen's gates, interlocking plants, area dorned with flowers, which the men take care of in their spare time. These employes are naturally amateurs, but their taste and example have spread to the communities across the continent, with astonishingly beneficent results. Enthusiasm and success this year have been greater than ever, showing the good use there has been made of the thousands of packages of seeds, plants and shrubs, which are distributed yearly in the spring. A number of prizes were awarded all over the system for the best gardens, and the winners' names will be announced shortly.

Now the company is sending out over half a million bulbs for fall planting and early bloom next spring. The company purchases all new varieties of flowers procurable and the markets of the world are sought for seeds and bulbs. Travelers over the C.P.R. are delighted with the green lawns, brightened by flowers, which greet their eyes, and it is a common occurrence for some flower lover from Europe or the United States to drift into the company's offices with a carefully pressed flower plucked in some station garden, to ask the name and how to cultivate it.

To Whom it May Concern.

No less than three couples have called at the residence of the managing editor of the great family journal during the past week or ten days, in search of a minister, the object apparently being matrimony. This is the result of our chief's environment. A parson to the right of him, a Canon not very far to the left of him and a parson in front of him, is good company all right enough, but it is not without its drawbacks, as our readers will doubtless observe. The great family journal now gives notice to all whom it may concern, that if this is to continue he will in future insist on kissing the bride (to be) as a reasonable tribute for his advice and distraction.

Horses Leg Swelled

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around a stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P.O. "I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline and it worked like a charm; in fact that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

NERVILINE IS A TRUSTY LINIMENT

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast, it is a wonderful liniment."

POPULAR PHRASES

How Some of Them Originated—Common Expressions

Who first gave utterance to some of the popular phrases of to-day it is practically impossible to say, but it is not so difficult to trace the origin of the sayings. Cheshire cats, for instance, are no different from those of other counties, but because Cheshire cheeses used to be made in the shape of cats with fixed, broad grins, the phrase "Grinning like a Cheshire cat eating cheese," arose.

The phrase, "He's a brick," originated from an Eastern ruler, who, while visiting a neighboring principality, asked his host to show him the fortifications. Waving his hands towards his troops, which were drawn up in soldierly array, the Prince said to his guest: "These are my fortifications; every man is a brick."

The phrase, "Mad as a hatter," really means as venomous as a viper. "Mad as a hatter" is simply a corruption of an ancient form, "Mad as an atter, or adder." Mad in this case is generally synonymous with poisonous.

The clause "It suits to a T," meaning it fits exactly, is as old as the familiar instrument, the T-square, or T-rule (so called from its resemblance to the letter T), used by mechanics and draughtsmen for making angles true and for obtaining perpendiculars. The expression was in common use in the time of Dr. Johnson, who is quoted by Boswell as saying of Warburton, "You see they have fitted him to a T."

VANCOUVER

THE METROPOLIS OF THE PACIFIC COAST

Where fortunes are being made by investment, which cannot be equalled anywhere else in Canada. The position that Vancouver occupies, the same on the Pacific, as Montreal occupies on the Atlantic, also the fact that Vancouver is an open port the whole year round, means beyond a possible doubt, that Vancouver will be the greatest city in the Dominion.

Vancouver is the only gateway to the Orient from the whole of Canada, which demonstrates that this will be the greatest Canadian shipping port, owing to the enormous development of western Canada. This together with the fact that the immense wealth of the natural resources of the province of British Columbia, its timber, fisheries, fruit, coal and other minerals, must make it clear, that you can invest your money here to better advantage than elsewhere.

Vancouver offers to-day, the opportunity of a life time for both the small and the large investor, and if you will act on our advice we will positively guarantee to make returns for you that will surprise you. We have a reputation that we are proud of, and can furnish the very best references. Do not delay, write us at once.

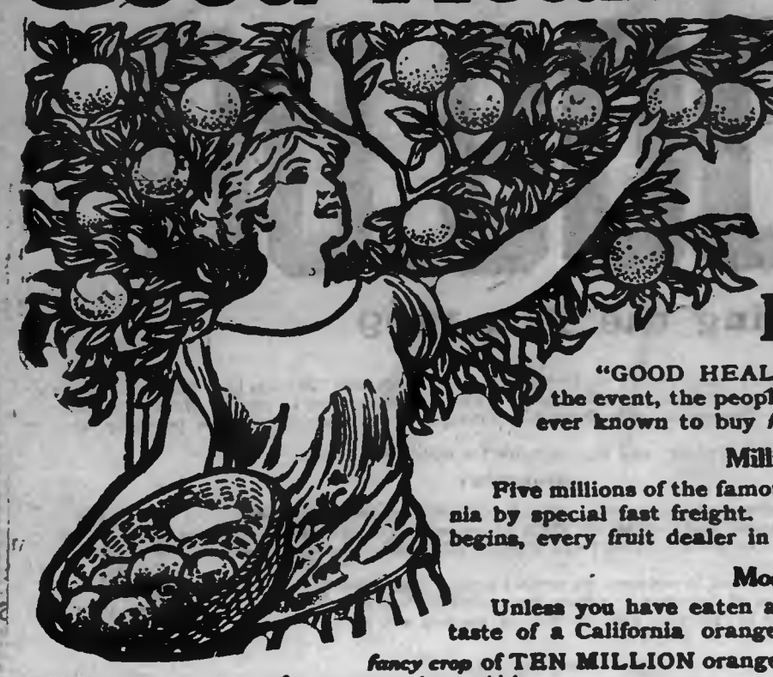
HOW WILL UNITED CONTRIBUTIONS OF CITIZENS TO PEOPLE'S CHIMES BE PERPETUATED IN MEMORY?

With the advent of a "Peoples Chimes" for Peterborough, it might not be out of place to enquire what provision is in the minds of the Committee for perpetuating in the memory of future generations the fact that the inauguration of said chimes in St. John's church tower was made possible by the munificent donations of citizens in general, irrespective of church or creed. The chimes are to be formally handed over on Coronation Day by His Worship Mayor Morrow, in behalf of Peterborough citizens to the authorities of St. John's by whom they will be held in trust for all time to come. A hundred years hence the mere fact of these chimes ringing merrily from the ancient tower of beautiful old St. John's church will offer no indication that they are in reality citizens' property, a living memento of indefatigable enthusiasm and work, and generous contribution on the part of a united community. The Times, would, therefore, respectfully submit that in the porch of St. John's church there be placed a brass tablet containing in brief text the information that the splendid set of chimes above were subscribed by the public in general and formally dedicated by the Bishop of Toronto on George V's coronation day, as "The Peoples' Chimes." We would also suggest that the written laws of St. John's provide that on each recurring anniversary of the chimes' inauguration these bells peal forth those same three tunes that are to follow their dedication, as a means of, in a measure, perpetuating in memory not only their inauguration, but also the coronation of the beloved King of a mighty empire.

Good Health Week! Special Sale of "Sunkist" Oranges



Begins Next Monday

"GOOD HEALTH" Week begins next Monday and, in honor of the event, the people of this city will be given the greatest opportunity ever known to buy fresh, luscious fruit at reasonable prices.

Millions of "Sunkists" Arrive

Five millions of the famous "Sunkist" oranges have just arrived from California by special fast freight. On Monday morning, when the great orange sale begins, every fruit dealer in the city will be supplied with "Sunkists."

Most Luscious Fruit Grown

Unless you have eaten a "Sunkist" orange, you do not know the delicious taste of a California orange right off the tree. "Sunkist" oranges are the fancy crop of TEN MILLION orange trees. Only the most select part of this total crop are "Sunkists"—only the perfect oranges—those which are hand-picked, tree-ripened, sound and solid. No fallen, bruised or otherwise damaged orange wears the "Sunkist" wrapper.

"Sunkist" oranges are thin-skinned, seedless and fibreless. Never pithy, sour or tasteless. There is so little waste that they are the most economical oranges one can buy.

"Sunkist" means the highest quality of oranges. Big "Sunkists" cost more than small ones, but all are sold at fair, modest prices, as you will see at your fruit dealer's.

Oranges Build Health

Physicians everywhere are pointing out the health-giving properties of oranges and the demand for fresh, ripe, luscious oranges is simply astounding. During Good Health Week fruit dealers are always on the jump from morning till night. For this is the season of the year when "spring fever" is epidemic; when nerves and blood need toning up; when the system demands a change from heavy foods to the kind that increase bodily vigor and vitality.

Save Your "Sunkist" Wrappers!

Most people know the "Sunkist" orange at once by its ruddy, deep tint which shows that it was tree-ripened. Yet the sure mark of identification is the tissue paper wrapper labeled "Sunkist," in which each individual "Sunkist" orange is packed. An orange not packed in the "Sunkist" wrapper is not a "Sunkist" orange, but an inferior fruit. The wrapper identifies the orange and is valuable, too. Save all your "Sunkist" wrappers and get, free, as many of the beautiful Rogers Table Silver Premiums as you want. See list and description at right.

The Sheffield Choir.

Mr. Walter Stenhar, who had to do with bringing the Sheffield Choir to Peterborough a short time ago, called on The Times on Saturday in reference to the statement that the receipts had been attached. The Choir's tour was a magnificent success, financially as well as in other respects.

A Coming Lecture.

Circulation Growing.

The Times is pleased to state that its circulation is just now enjoying a period of rapid growth. New subscribers are being added daily and almost hourly. We want at least a thousand additional patrons, and mean to secure them during the next few weeks. We are planning to put in a new Goss newspaper press in the near future, which will be the only one of its kind in Canada. As these machines cost upwards of $6,000, it is quite a good-sized proposition. This machine will print and fold a 6, 8, 10 or 12 page paper at the rate of 5,000 copies per hour. We therefore, in the meantime appeal to the public to accord The Times the measure of support which they think it deserves.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Rev. Dr. Fakin, of Toronto, is the guest of Rev. Robert Pogue, at St. Paul's manse.

We are pleased to note that Mrs. Wm. Croft's condition has somewhat improved during the past few days.

Rev. H. Steers, of Roslin Presbyterian church, Roslin, Ont., was last week the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. Jackson, Charlotte street.

Mrs. A. Deremo, accompanied by her son, Bert, of Buffalo, N.Y., are visiting with Mrs. Deremo's brother Mr. W. Jackson, Charlotte street.

Capt. Thompson, formerly of Otonabee, a South African war veteran, is visiting his parents in Otonabee for a few days. Capt. Thompson arrived from India on Saturday.

Mr. Merritt, formerly of the Collegiate Institute staff, but now principal of the Newmarket High School, spent Sunday in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McWilliams will leave this week for Stoney Lake, where they will occupy their cottage till November.

Mr. John Wood's condition last night was much about the same as it has been for some days. He is resting comfortably, but on account of his age the physicians in attendance hold out little hope for his recovery.

Mr. Wm. Thompson, of Orillia, spent a few hours in town last week, in connection with the sale of his steamer to local parties. What Mr. Thompson does not already know regarding steamboating, he will soon learn here. The awakening will probably come too late, however.

Miss Weir of the Collegiate Institute staff, who was suddenly called to London on account of the illness of her sister, Miss Jennie Weir, returned home last night, her sister having sufficiently recovered to allow her to do so.

Miss Emily Hazlitt, the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hazlitt, is seriously ill at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Frank Sanderson, Smith, and no hope of her recovery is entertained.

Mrs. John Dickson, of Quill Lake, Sask., arrived in town on Saturday, having been summoned home on account of the serious illness of her sister, Miss Emily Hazlitt. She is accompanied by her young son, Master John Dickson.

Miss E. Warren, left on Saturday for her home in Smith's Falls, en route for Calgary, where she will reside in future. Miss Warren was tendered a complimentary banquet in Knox church by the members of her class and teachers of the Sunday School, on Friday night, where she was presented with a group photo and an address.

The many friends of Dr. A. J. Robertson will regret to learn that his condition is still quite serious, although his physicians say that he will recover. Dr. and Mrs. Robertson are stopping with Mrs. David Briese, Aylmer street.

Mr. Wilfrid Morrison, the popular boy soprano, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. McClelland, Bowell avenue.

Want Commissioner Retained.

There appears to be some dissatisfaction over the action of the Council in regard to the Industrial Commissionership, and it is not unlikely that the Retail Merchants' Association will hold a meeting to discuss it. Mr. D. O'Connell, chairman of the committee of the Board of Trade, having to do with the securing industries for Peterborough, is understood to be strongly in favor of retaining Mr. Duggan. Mr. Thomas Barrie, president of the Retail Merchants' Association, is of the same opinion. But, unfortunately for these gentlemen, the members of the Council are of unfavorable to further expense along this line, and unless they can be persuaded to change their views, the Commissioner will have to go.

LOST AN ARM AT HAVELOCK SATURDAY

Wm. Davidson, employed by the C.P.R. as car repairer, while on duty in the C.P.R. yards at Havelock, was seriously injured when attempting to get on the rear of a moving van. He missed his hold and fell under the wheels of yard engine No. 2145 which was attaching the van to a train. His arm was severed at the shoulder. The patient was attended by Drs. Holdcroft and Kindred and taken to Mrs. Smith's private hospital, where he is doing as well as can be expected.

A WIDOW'S LUCK.

Quit the Thing That Was Slowly Injuring Her.

A woman tells how coffee kept her from insuring her life:

"I suffered for many years chiefly from trouble with my heart, with severe nervous headaches and neuralgia; but although incapacitated at times for my housework, I did not realize the gravity of my condition till I was rejected for life insurance, because, the examining physician said my heart was so bad he could not pass me.

"This distressed me very much, as I was a widow and had a child dependent upon me. It was to protect her future that I wanted to insure my life.

"Fortunately for me, I happened to read an advertisement containing a testimonial from a man who had been affected in the same way that I was with heart trouble, and who was benefited by leaving off coffee and using Postum. I grasped at the hope this held out, and made the change at once.

"My health began to improve immediately. The headaches and neuralgia disappeared, I gained in flesh, and my appetite came back to me. Greatest of all, my heart was strengthened from the beginning, and soon all the distressing symptoms passed away. No more waking up in the night with my heart trying to fly out of my mouth!

"Then I again made application for life insurance, and had no trouble in passing the medical examination.

"It was seven years ago that I began to use Postum, and I am using it still, and shall continue to do so, as I find it a guarantee of good health." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Horses Leg Swelled

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around a stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Marchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P.O. "I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline and it worked like a charm; in fact that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. OIL FOR STREET PURPOSES IS GIVING SATISFACTION

BUT THE STREET COMMISSIONER IS AFRAID THAT OUTLYING STREETS WILL HAVE TO BE WATERED.

The Oil Now Being Used, Whilst Less Odorous Than That of Last Year, Needs More Frequent Application.

Ald. Graham offered last night to the Board of Works that one of the confectioners, who had been a big kicker against the use of oil on the streets remarked to him yesterday, that he'll raise no more objection to oil. "We have a beautiful road now on George street," this converted citizen claimed.

Street Commissioner Evans remarked that he was afraid that according to present indications, it will be necessary to water some of the outlying streets, as the use of oil generally will run into more expenditure than allowed for in the appropriations. The oil at present used, whilst less odorous than that applied last year, and a trifle less in cost, seems to require more frequent application. The water carts were out yesterday in some districts.

Ald. Anderson said the dust in the neighborhood of Douro street, East City, is these days an unbearable nuisance. The road never sees a scraper, and water and oil are an unknown quantity.

Chairman Ald. Metheral replied that oil was being shipped here as rapidly as possible. The Board ordered the Street Commissioner to have recourse to water at once if the supply of oil is not equal to present dust-laying needs.

CITY PROPERTY COMMITTEE WILL CONTRIBUTE TO BEAUTIFYING CITY

FENCE TO BE REMOVED FROM PARK AT CORNER OF PARK AND CHARLOTTE STS.

The City Property Committee met last night. There were present:—Chairman Ald. Duncan, Aldermen Brown and Bradburn.

The continuation of Smith street across the river will be known as Smith street east.

The street running from Water street, as the boundary, to the Isolation (Queen Mary) Hospital has been named Langton Avenue.

TO BEAUTIFY PARK.

The Chairman and Ald. Brown were authorized to remove the fence from the park at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets and have one or two trees removed if found necessary. Two or three seats will also be furnished.

The Mayor and Chairman were authorized to procure the necessary trees and shrubs for planting in the King Edward Park and the Isolation Hospital grounds.

TENDERS FOR CEMENT FENCE.

Tenders will be invited for a cement block fence for the Public Library, running east and west of the grounds, south side.

The committee decided not to permit any permanent covered stand to be erected on the Market Square.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents . . . . . .

MEANS MORE EXPENSE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The idea of separating the Police Court and Station from the City Hall, means more expense. At the present time our capable City Clerk also fills the position of Clerk of the Police Court. If the buildings were several blocks apart, a Police Court Clerk would have to be employed. I wonder if this is what some of those who advocate separation are working for? It looks like it to me.

Let us consolidate our public offices instead of separating them, if we are to practice true economy.

Low Taxes.

WATER IN OIL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would like to ask Mayor Morrow and the members of the Council if they have ever examined the stuff they are buying to put on our streets. It is supposed to be oil, but it is really largely composed of water—I believe fully half water.

Now, we have plenty of water in Peterborough without buying it at so much per gallon, and paying freight on it besides. I would therefore, in the interests of our over-burdened taxpayers, suggest that before this stuff they call oil is paid for, that it be examined by a competent party, and let us know exactly how much water it contains. If the members of the Council are as sincere in their professions regarding the proper performance of their duties as they claim to be, they will do this without further urging.

Thanking The Times for the opportunity of calling public attention to this important matter, I am, &c.

Wm. Snowden.

PUBLISHING ASSESSMENT ROLL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I notice that considerable discussion is going on these days through The Times in regard to publishing the Assessment Roll of the city. I happen to have been a resident of Ottawa and am more or less familiar with what is going on in that city. Recently by a vote of twelve to five the Council of that city has rescinded the publication of the 1911 assessment roll of Ottawa. The controllers were hardly so unanimous as to the desirability of undertaking this expense, they having divided two to two on this question. The casting vote of the Mayor will be required to decide the controllers tie.

There has been a considerable agitation in the past few months, coupled with certain charges of unequal assessment, for the publication of the assessment rolls of Ottawa. In view of the expense of this publication it is well to recall the fact that several years ago, in answer to a similar agitation, the city assessment rolls were published, at a cost of many hundred dollars.

What was the result. By the time of publication the agitation ceased to be of interest by changes of personal assessment, had died down, and less than half a dozen of the published rolls were ever applied for at the City Hall. The public costly publication lay in the city hall for years till the recent clean up, when, in all probability, they were burned.

This does not altogether mean that the present proposal may not be a good one. There are several ways in which the publication of the Ottawa assessment rolls could be made of advantage to the city, and which would apply to Peterborough. For one thing, from such publication, many a moral could be pointed in favor of the land tax assessment principle. Doubtless, too, a very general scanning of the rolls might reveal assessment inequalities, the public notice of which would cause a readjustment. Nevertheless, if the assessment rolls are published this year in Ottawa, and if the public do not avail themselves of the information to a considerably greater degree than on the last occasion, the chances are that any future demand for such publication will be met with a practically unanimous refusal on the part of the City Council.

Then you see, Mr. Editor, how it stands in Ottawa, which is somewhat analogous to Peterborough in this respect.

Frank S. Hayes.

COUNCIL'S ACTION UPHELD.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Aldermen of the city are being criticised over their actions in connection with the Fire Department and Industrial Commissioner, and instead of criticism I consider they are deserving of great credit for showing they have the courage to do what they believe to be right and in the interest of the city, and will not be influenced by any outside clique. I don't know either Mr. Grange or Mr. Thomas, the two firemen whose resignations have been asked for, and have a very slight acquaintance with Chief Howard, so judge the whole business by newspaper reports. Is there a business man in Peterborough who would retain any man in his employ if he found him writing letters against him in papers or to any private individuals? And if not, why should the Aldermen not have the same privilege for they, acting as the agent for the people, engage the firemen? It would be a nice state of affairs if every official of the city could rush into print and attack an Alderman for doing what he considered right. If a fireman has that right every other official would be in the same position. I consider the Aldermen who would put up with such conduct would have very little spirit and be unworthy of the position he occupies. Besides the letter writing, it is reported there was an organized effort of the firemen to defeat Mr. Metheral. Thirty or forty years ago we had experience of the Fire Company interfering in both municipal and political elections, and

WILL BE PROSECUTED.

Mr. W. S. Dodd, local agent of the C.P.R., has been instructed to prosecute all trespassers on their property in future. This step has become necessary on account of the large number of personal accidents which are taking place on the tracks of the company. This means that so long as will the public be permitted to use the C.P.R. bridge over the Otonabee as a means of crossing the river, or will they be allowed to take "short cuts" along the tracks. The need of energetic action will be seen when it is known that out of a total of 123 casualties on the Eastern lines of the company, 76 per cent. were trespassers.

TO PROTECT CITY'S RIGHTS TO PROPERTY BEING USED BY PRIVATE PARTIES

PIECE OF LAND IN ELBOW OF LAKE AND CRESCENT STS. NOW IN QUESTION.

Agreement Between Auburn Power Company and City Confirmed Last Night by Board of Works.

The City Board of Works met last night. There were present Chairman Ald. Metheral, Aldermen Anderson, Graham, Duncan and Brown.

The question of the agreement between the city and the Auburn Power Co. again came up. Since the inception of agreement, Council concluded that the company are requiring more land than the city was aware of. At the meeting last night, Mr. Munro, of the Auburn Power Co., contended that the company is asking no more land than Mr. Hay reported on and what Mr. Langford appraised—about 7,400 square feet.

This is the property previously reported in these columns, at Water street north, which the city proposes to convey to the Auburn Power Co., on which to build a retaining wall for their power canal in return for the latter paying the cost of furnishing a water pipe across the company's dam to provide fire protection to Auburn. This would need the laying of 400 feet of pipe.

The decision reached was that any misunderstanding that may have arisen concerning the land in quest on was not worth disputing. It appears however, that the base of the company's retaining wall will run underneath a portion of the land retained by the city, east of the present highway—and for the use of this underground encroachment the company will pay the city a nominal rental of $1 a year to assure the latter's proprietory rights.

The company will guarantee the city against liability for any accident to water main or to people using the road during the company's operations.

On motion by Ald. Duncan, seconded by Ald. Brown, the agreement heretofore reached was confirmed, and the land is to be conveyed to the company free of charge according to description.

The company will purchase and lay the water pipe across the river in their dam, up to the extent of a six-inch pipe. Should a 10-inch pipe be needed, and from present indications it will, the city is to pay the difference between a 6 and 10 inch pipe. The city will pay a nominal rental of $1 a year for the use of the dam.

This incident is now closed.

LOOKING AFTER CITY'S RIGHTS

City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall reported on the city limits of Crescent and Lake streets. It appears that according to survey, Lake street is shown as running easterly to the Little Lake. But at the elbow of Lake and Crescent streets, south of the MacDonald Estate, and where the steam fire engine used to be backed down to the lake, a small house is standing on what the survey is said to call city property, and Mr. L. LaPlante is alleged to be filling in what is claimed to be the city's land at this point.

On motion of Ald. Duncan, Mr. LaPlante and the MacDonald Estate will be notified in accordance with the foregoing and such steps taken as are necessary to secure to the city its proprietory rights to the land in question.

THE HILLITES MEET DEFEAT IN P.C.I. LEAGUE

A large number of spectators witnessed a very good game of baseball yesterday afternoon at Riverside, when Dixon's nine put it over the Hillites by the score of 5—3.

The work was much better than the previous game. For the winners M. Huycke pitched a rattling good game, and made old timers sit up and take notice. Howe, Hill and Gilbert also played well. Harold Hill and D. Huycke were the pick of the losers. Following was the line-up:

—Dixons—

Phelan c., M. Huycke p., Dixon 1st b., Howe Hill 2nd b., Corkery 3rd b., Knapman ss., Gilbert rf., B. Lane cf., Christopher lf.

—Hillites—

Church and State are now separate bigious bodies. In Canada, however, it is different. The Roman Catholic Church is receiving special privileges not accorded to other denominations. Portugal is giving Canada a much-needed lesson in equal rights.

OTONABEE POWER COMPANY HAVE NOT SOLD OUT

The Examiner received a despatch from Toronto yesterday, stating that the following report was current in that city:

"Reported here to-day that there has been an important change in the ownership of a power plant in the Midland district. It is stated that the Otonabee Power Company property has been purchased by the Electric Power Company, Limited. Mr. R. B. Hall, ex-M.P., of Peterborough, is here to-day completing the transaction."

The Times called up the office of Hall, Medd & Davidson last night and was informed that the report was unfounded. Mr. R. B. Hall and W. G. Ferguson were in Toronto yesterday, but their business had nothing to do with the sale of the Otonabee Power Company's property. They returned on the midnight.

MERCHANTS TALK IT OVER

Last night The Times received a telephone message to the effect that a few of the members of the Merchants' Protective Association were to meet last night and have a little supper, and incidentally discuss the power situation and the Industrial Commissionership. A strong resolution was passed in favor of retaining Mr. Duggan as Commissioner. The meeting took place at Hooper's, and was attended by about 14 persons.

STONY LAKE RESORT UNDER A NEW HEAD

Tourists and others to Stony Lake this summer will learn with pleasure that Mr. and Mrs. Pammett, sr., have leased Glenwood Cottage, at Stony Lake, which was formerly managed by Mr. Breese.

The new proprietors of Glenwood need no introduction to the public as their efficient and capable services which they rendered in the management of the hostelry at McCracken's Landing last summer was all that could be desired.

Mr. Pammett, who takes possession this week will have the house refitted, new fixtures installed, etc., and in the course of a week or two he will be prepared to cater to and accommodate the most fastidious.

The yacht Wazzetta will also be placed at the disposal of tourists who are disposed to select this beautiful summer resort as a place where they might spend their vacation and yet be in touch with the outside world.

SPLENDID BILL AT THE REX THEATRE

Yesterday afternoon and evening the Rex Theatre was crowded to the doors with eager spectators who witnessed some of the best shows on the road this season.

The curtain rose to Nat Goets, novelty ring balancer, who came direct from Shea's Toronto. His work was well performed and was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Then came the Marshalls, the colored entertainers, also from Shea's. Their musical act was well rendered, and Mr. Marshall's rendering of a banjo solo on the piano simply took the house.

Gladys Nan and Arthur Pearce, in "Get a License," was acted to perfection, and their singing, dancing and talking, being excellently rendered.

The final act was given by the Two Georges, the world famous acrobatic merrymakers, who come from Watertown, N.Y. Their roll was also wonderfully enacted and was exceedingly funny.

The Rex Theatre management are putting on a class of entertainment that cannot help but appeal to the threatre goers and will no doubt will have the support it deserves, viz., crowded houses. All the acts presented to the public at the Rex come from the best vaudeville theatres.

OBITUARY

Death of Lady Ritchie.

Lady Ritchie, mother of Mr. Hazen Ritchie of the C.G.E. Co., of this city, passed away in Ottawa on Sunday last, in the 76th year of her age. The deceased was known as one of the most prominent women in the Capital. She was born in St. John, N.B., in the year 1836, and was the daughter of the late Mr. T. L. Nicholson. In the year 1856 she married Sir William Ritchie in St. John, and came to Ottawa in 1875, where her husband was appointed as Judge on the Supreme Court Bench, and she has lived there ever since. Mr. Hazen Ritchie's many friends will sympathize with him in his bereavement.

Miss Lila Gertrude Gilpin.

Many in Peterborough will sincerely regret to learn of the death of Miss Lila Gertrude Gilpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gilpin, which occurred on Sunday last at the family residence, 250 Carlton street, Toronto. Miss Gilpin was a niece of Mrs. (Dr.) Eastwood, Brock street, with whom she spent some weeks each season. She has been in poor health for a couple of years, and her demise therefore was not unexpected. Of a bright and lovable disposition, she made many friends in Peterborough, who will deeply sympathize with the bereaved family in their great loss. The funeral took place yesterday and was private.

Maurice Mead.

Mr. Maurice Mead, a well known resident of Indian River, aged 64, died on Sunday night after an illness of three years from paralysis. The funeral service will take place at St. Joseph's church this morning at nine o'clock, and the remains will be interred in St. Joseph's cemetery.

The wife of the deceased passed away eight months ago.

He leaves six children, four sons, Michael of Michigan, James of Peterborough, Maurice and John of Douro and two daughters, Mrs. John O'Toole of Otonabee, and Mrs. John Herr, of Asphodel, Ireland was the place of his birth.

Death of Mrs. Kennedy.

Winnipeg Free Press: The numerous friends of Mrs. Mary Anne Kennedy, [illegible] of Mrs. Mary A. Kennedy, will regret to learn that her death took place at New York City on Saturday. The deceased lady, who was 71 years of age, had been in ill health for some time, and decided last November to spend the winter in California. While there she recovered considerably, and was on her way back to Winnipeg when she was taken ill again and died of heart failure shortly after New York was reached.

Deceased was the daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Chambers, of Peterborough, Ont., and married Col. Wm. Nassau Kennedy, who in 1870 joined the expedition under Lord Wolsley to quell the rebellion in the West. Later Col. Kennedy commanded the Canadian Voyageurs in the Gordon relief expedition, and it was when on his return from the Soudan that he died at London, Eng., in 1885. She was a lady of a retiring disposition, but was well known among a very large circle of friends, and deeply respected by them. She is survived by four sons, Major Kennedy, of the Royal Engineers, who is at present in London, A. H. N. Kennedy, who is also in London, and Messrs. C. W. N. and F. C. Kennedy, who are in Winnipeg; and one daughter, Mrs. Stanley Adamson, of New York.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon from the residence of her son, Mr. C. W. N. Kennedy, 179 Spence street.

A Kidnapping Case.

A kidnapping case is reported to have occurred in the vicinity of Peterborough a day or two ago, and caused no little stir in the neighborhood. It appears that a husband and wife separated about four years ago, and their two children were left in the hands of the mother, who took them to Toronto. The woman is said to have been living a unquestionable life, and the knowledge of this coming to the husband, he had the children brought to Peterborough and placed with his mother near the Locks Bridge. The mother of the children subsequently followed, and on learning their whereabouts took them away. It is altogether likely that the matter will be aired in the Police Court.

Improving the Style.

From the Boston Globe.

"I don't like my new gown very well," said the lady. "The material is awfully pretty, and the style is all right, but it needs something to improve the shape of it."

"Why," suggested her dearest friend, "don't you let some other girl wear it?"

FOOD IN SERMONS.

Feed the Dominie Right and the Sermons are Brilliant.

A conscientious, hard-working and successful clergyman writes: "I am glad to bear testimony to the pleasure and increased measure of efficiency and health that have come to me from adopting Grape-Nuts food as one of my articles of diet.

"For several years I was much distressed during the early part of each day by indigestion. My breakfast seemed to turn sour and failed to digest. After dinner the headache and other symptoms following the breakfast would wear away, only to return, however, next morning.

"Having heard of Grape-Nuts food, I finally concluded to give it a trial. I made my breakfasts of Grape-Nuts with cream, toast and Postum. The result was surprising in improved health and total absence of the distress that had, for so long a time, followed the morning meal.

"My digestion became once more and the old feeling of energy returned. Since that time I have always had Grape-Nuts food on my breakfast table.

"I was delighted to find also, that whereas before I began to use Grape-Nuts food I was quite nervous and became easily wearied in the work of preparing sermons and in study, a marked improvement in this respect resulted from the change in my diet.

"I am convinced that Grape-Nuts food produced this result and helped me to a sturdy condition of mental and physical strength.

"I have known of several persons who were formerly troubled as I was, and who have been helped as I have been, by the use of Grape-Nuts food, on my recommendation." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

MR. FIELDING PROTESTS AGAINST ADJOURNMENT

MANY OTHER LIBERALS OPPOSE ANY RISING OF HOUSE—PARLIAMENT MAY ADJOURN MAY 19.

Imperial Conference May Effect Reciprocity—Sir Wilfrid Sails on Thursday—Government Supporters Welcome Proposal of Election in November.

Ottawa, May 8.—This promises to be another most interesting week in the House of Commons. Despite the announcement that an agreement had been reached between the two parties for an adjournment over Sir Wilfrid's absence, there still exists a very strong opposition to such an arrangement among a very large number of Liberal members.

It is stated by his friends that Hon W. S. Fielding is putting up a very strong protest against any adjournment at all, asserting that he is quite able to look after the business while the Premier is away, that his health is now all right, and that there need be no anxiety as to his condition. Other members of the party, however, take the view that Mr. Fielding is too good an asset to be even subjected to the trials of a summer session, and that he can do better work later on if he takes a rest in June and July.

Thus far no actual dates have been arranged for the adjournment. As stated last week in these columns, the Premier's original proposition was that the recess should commence on June 19th, and end on July 18th. Next the proposal was that it should commence on June 23, and end July 25, and now the suggestion is put forward that the House should adjourn on May 19, the Commons to come back on the first of August and the Senate towards the first of September.

NOT AFRAID OF BORDEN.

As the Premier leaves on Thursday afternoon some definite arrangement will doubtless be come to by that time. This will involve further conference between the leaders before the dates are finally arranged.

Some of the Conservatives have been chortling over the circumstances that the adjournment would give Mr. R. L. Borden a chance to go into the West and attack reciprocity at a good time in the year, when the farmers are not busy, and thus sow the seed for the harvest of the general election, which was predicted on Friday as likely to come along in November. But the Western Liberals, on the other hand, say that "Borden can do us no harm." The more he goes out there and preaches protection the better it will be for us."

FAVOR EARLY ELECTION.

Undoubtedly the feeling in favor of an early appeal to the people is growing among the Liberals. Their calculation is that the census figures by constituencies can be secured by September 1, at latest, that a redistribution can be had in a month by agreement between the parties, and that this would allow of a general election in November. There are, of course, some members of the party who do not like the idea of the Parliamentary terms being cut short by $2,500 worth, but they will be probably be overruled.

Concert at St. Andrew's.

There was a large attendance at the Young Men's Guild Concert in St. Andrew's Church Monday night. Master Wilfrid Morrison, who sang so sweetly at St. Andrew's on Sunday, delighted the audience with his sweet solos and was loudly applauded at every appearance. The Rev. J. G. Potter, former pastor of St. Andrew's, gave a short address.

At Newark, N. J., a lawyer charged his fair client $500 for reading a bundle of love letters, and she is complaining. She should have hired a woman lawyer and had them read for nothing.

A BREAKFAST TRAGEDY

By F. R. Parsons

The harsh, discordant shrieks of the neighboring "bo'sun's mates" hooters, vibrator, and pier-head cut through the morning mists as I came up with him, huddled in a depressed heap on a seat, fronting the river. His sunken chin dropped on his breast; his arms hung limply; one leg was drawn up under the seat, the other stretched across the pathway.

At the sound of my voice he lifted his face—such a face, too! I'll never be losing his memory.

"Is it ill you are, man?" I asked, concernedly.

"Ill!" Something like a laugh escaped him. It was a harsh, mirthless, eerie effort, and it seemed to crack his parchment-brown face as it burst through.

"Then you tell me something about it," I said, regardless of the fact that the barges grimy dungeons of yonder [illegible] were streaming past to [illegible] a hurried breakfast. I sat me down beside him.

"Smoke?" I said, as I handed him my pouch, thinking its soothing influence might calm his jangled nerves. He snatched at it like a starving dog at a dainty; extracted and mouthed a lump with hungry avidity.

"D'you know what it is to have something y'love an' worship just a-slidin' away from ye; 'cause ye ain't got nothin' in th' 'ouse to keep life in it?"

He had turned upon me fiercely, savagely.

"Y'don't, maybe! Then, I do! I've a kid at 'ome what's dyin' just like that; 'cos I can't get work to find the kid a meal—to keep life an' soul in his little body.

"I'm a fitter. Tried all them shops o'mornin'"—nodding his head in the direction of the tall chimneys that indicate the industrial zone, where men toil and sweat in dingy workshops. "Same old tale—no hands wanted; short time, an' no orders; thinkin' of shuttin' down.

"But this ain't the worst, mate. Maybe if I tell ye, ye'll feel like kickin' me; an' the worst of it is I know I'd deserve all of it—aye, deserve 'agin'!"

He hung his head again in the old dejected attitude.

"I stole the kid's breakfast t'oo p'mornin', before I come out; I did!"

The words were jerked from him as he shot up from his seat, and strode drunkenly a pace or two until he reached the railings, on which he leaned, burying his head in his arms.

Presently he lifted his head and went on:

"God knows I was hungry enough, an' wanted it; but the Devil took it off the table an' tempted me mouth with it. 'Twas a bite o' bread an' a drop o' milk I bought with th' last penny over-night. Mother an' me saved it for th' kid's breakfast s'mornin'; but when I gets up an' sees it there, temptin' like, I couldn't keep me hands off it, nowhow. An' I tried, God in heaven knows I did; I even put me old cap over it so's I shouldn't see it while I had a wash—blut 'twas no use! An' I'd had nothin' to eat all yesterday!"

His voice trailed off into a hoarse whisper.

"Show me where you live!" I said.

He looked up into my face; his own growing whiter under a spasm of faintness.

Then, without a word, he tottered along beside me; over the bridge, past frowning warehouses, smoke-grimed foundries and untidy wharves; thence into the western quarter of the city. At a little shop I bade him wait whilst I made a few purchases. Then down a noisome alley-way, and so to a door which he pushed open.

A woman, careworn, pale, and emaciated, rose from a stool as he entered, and seeing me behind her husband, with hurried, shaking fingers drew together the folds of a thin blouse wherewith to cover her naked breast. Her eyes looked a mute inquiry, traveling from her husband to me, and then to an empty table, devoid of anything eatable or drinkable; then to a little, single bedstead in one corner of the room.

My eyes followed hers, and I noticed, partly concealed by a few dingy bed coverings, the fair-haired head of a sleeping boy. By the bedside was a pair of crutches. The face was partly turned to me, and a something in the peaceful look, the placid stillness, the marble whiteness of the skin caused me to drop the parcels I held in my arms.

I bent over him for, perhaps, ten seconds. Then I laid my fingers on his forehead.

"He isn't hungry, now!" I said, quietly.

LIGTHNING YARNS

Superstitions Regarding Thunder Storms—Fallacy as to Scissors

A fallacy of many men is that small steel objects, such as scissors or knives, will "attract lightning." Now, the destructive flashes which need be feared range anywhere from 200 feet to a mile in length and are commonly of 50,000 horse-power, while their cross sections are like those of iron bars heated to whiteness. It is therefore, silly to suppose that such an insignificant thing as a pair of scissors would attract such a force out of its path, and it is equally silly to believe that a plate of glass or a few inches of feather bedding would bar its progress once it were started toward you.

A further superstition—in which nearly every housewife believes implicitly—is that "lightning sours milk." True, milk will often quickly decompose when a thunderstorm is brewing, but it is the closeness of the atmosphere which does the mischief, never the lightning, and the milk would turn on an equally sultry day when there was not a thunderstorm within a hundred miles.

Then, too, there is the wise saw which says that "lightning never strikes twice in the same place." Yet objects which have been struck once frequently offer themselves again and again as targets.—Girls' Own Paper and Woman's Magazine.

SOME ANCIENT DOGS

It is impossible to say when dogs were first domesticated, but some of the earliest traces are found on Egyptian monuments, with figures of dogs, somewhat of a Greyhound type, which date back to at least 3,500 B.C. Even in these remote days the dog was highly esteemed. Coming down a little later, we read that Ulysses, 3,000 years ago, was recognized by his dog Argus after his substance had failed to do so. Plutarch tells of Alcibiades, who cut off the tail of his dog, and Myron, the sculptor, immortalized the animal by chiseling his image in marble. The Romans valued their dogs, and kept them for the chase and also as pets. Alexander the Great owned a veteran dog.

ARTFUL EVASIONS OF ALIENS ACT

How "Undesirables" Enter England—Non-Immigrant Steamers Dump Many There

Whatever may be the legislative outcome of the amazing slegs of Stepney, says an English paper, there is no gainsaying that at present our immigration laws are more ineffective than those of any other country in the world. Any alien with the brains of a rabbit, however black his history or blighted his health, can easily enter England against the will of the authorities, and can, in fact, snap his fingers at them.

The latest method of evading the Aliens Act is to come to this country with the return half of an excursion ticket, which can always be purchased on the Continent or obtained by post from London or from a confederate who has used the other half. Not long ago a Frenchman well-known in Leicester Square, thinking it politic to leave his usual haunts for a short time, went to Paris by a day excursion. While there he gave the return half of his ticket to an old comrade in crime, who with it came to London, giving a false name and address to the purser as he crossed the Channel.

Just Below the Limit

But there are many other dodges for evading the Aliens Act. One which results in hundreds of "undesirables" entering this country is systematically practised on some steamers. It is keeping the number on a ship just below the limit allowed for exemption from inspection. Originally a steamer which carried fewer than twenty steerage passengers was not, for the purposes of the Act an immigrant ship, and was not, therefore, liable to inspection. Then the number of third-class passengers allowed for exemption was reduced to twelve, and now it is again twenty. Mark how matters have been adjusted accordingly. Some captains used regularly to bring over seventeen or eighteen third-class passengers, then nine or ten, and at present they are back again to the old number, except when they cut things very fine and arrive in the Thames with nineteen!

It is not uncommon for the aliens thus "scraped through" to include at least one who has been refused leave to land. He or she previously came to England in an immigrant ship, and was turned back owing to lack of means or for some other reason. No fewer than four rejected aliens were about a year ago dumped in a batch at Hull from a (technically) non-immigrant steamer.

Second-Class Passengers

The same steamers bring over many "undesirables" as second-class passengers, and thus defeat the object of the Aliens Act in another way. No sooner were second-class passengers exempted from inspection than such companies lowered their second-class fares till they were only a little higher than the steerage rates, and ever since many immigrants unable to pass inspection, as well as not a few of those refused permission to land, have triumphed over the authorities by coming to England in the intermediate class.

Shipping agents in Continental ports also have many tricks whereby they dump "undesirables" on us. About eighteen months since, for instance, some of those at Bremen kept in stock letters of invitation written by people in this country. These they supplied—for a consideration—to aliens for showing to the inspectors when they reached England as conclusive proof that there was not the remotest chance of their becoming burdens on John Bull.

The Yellow Peril

A moderately wide-awake immigrant, however, requires no assistance to enable him to enter England without even a "By your leave." What is to prevent him from shipping as a cattleman or sailor and landing at one of our ports as such? Nothing. As a fact, this game is played on us thousands of times every year. Out of the total number of cattlemen who arrived in this country in 1909 no fewer than 2,309 did not return on the cattle ships. Some may have left as ordinary passengers, but the majority doubtless remained in England. Whether they are likely to become good citizens may be gauged from the fact that thousands of cattlemen who have landed in this country have straightway sought the hospitality of the casual ward.

The ranks of Chinese residents in this country are steadily recruited in the same way. Of late years many "sailors" from the Celestial empire have married English girls and settled in our large ports, particularly Liverpool, where laundries "run" by their compatriots absorb some of them. Six or seven years ago an attempt was made to establish Chinese laundries in London, with the result that the promoters got such a fright from hostile crowds that the enterprise faded away. But in Liverpool, Birkenhead, and the Wallasey district there are many such laundries, and a few have recently been opened in towns so far inland as Stockport.

"Me Wash Clothes"

They compete strenuously, not only against our native laundries, but against one another. An Ah Sing at Liscard, according to local report, described himself, with a fine eye to business, as a "Christian Chinaman," whereupon his rival, whose place of business is in the same street, boldly announced, "Me no religion; me wash clothes"!

Still more undesirable immigrants work a passage to this country. One of the men responsible for the twenty-five or twenty-six casualties at Tottenham undoubtedly came to England as a fireman on a steamer, and probably the other desperado evaded the Aliens Act in a precisely similar manner. Both, at all events, were nominally sailors when they landed.

MISS BRADDON'S FIRST EFFORT

When Miss Braddon, who lately celebrated her seventy-third birthday, was asked some time ago as to her first appearance in print, she replied, "To the best of my recollection, the first thing of mine that ever appeared in print was a song, in the seventeenth-century style, that was published in the 'Beverley Recorder' in May, 1857." This first printed effort of the prolific and popular authoress, which was entitled "Rest," and signed "Mary Seyton," consisted of four verses, and opened thus:—

All joys on earth have we,
All fears on earth we see,
All cares on earth there be,
But never rest.

POTTING BULBS

Bulbs Forced to Bloom Too Soon Become Weakly

The majority of amateurs do not attempt to induce bulbs in pots to flower till well into spring. Much the greatest number bloom in March and April. The advantage of this is that no expense is gone to in forcing, and when the flowers do appear at that season they are in the best possible form and profuse in huge blooms, brilliant colors, and lovely fragrance. Bulbs that are forced to bloom at Christmas and mid-winter under the not first-rate conditions owned by amateurs are usually weakly but retard them to the spring and every quality they possess will be got out of them gloriously. They are all best done before any growth begins. They ought to be kept cool and quiet previously. Hyacinths are often potted singly in three, four or five inch pots. Tulips, narcissi, and others are generally potted in groups. Their style of growth and blooming adapts them to this arrangement. One tulip or daffodil in a small pot is not attractive, but have them in little clusters and they are charming. The pots should all be drained, filled closely up with somewhat rich, gritty soil, the bulbs pushed in till only their crowns are peeping, and then make the soil very firm between them. They should then be placed in the open air or in a cool frame soaked with water. Keep cool and exposed for a week, and then cover over with fine coal ashes to the depth of a foot. Sand may be used in the place of ashes or cocoanut fibre, but ashes are generally obtainable, and suit quite well. They must not be exposed to frost, but they should be kept cool.

KINGS AND QUEENS IN EXILE

"I am a beggar and a tramp, but one that receives no sympathy. Instead of a throne I am given a dinner, and instead of my people, the ridicule of my conquerors."

Such were the pitiful words spoken to a friend, a few years ago, by Ranavalo, ex-Queen of Madagascar, who, from the position of ruler of a kingdom as large as France, had sunk to the obscurity of an exile in a foreign land. At the time she was lodged in a mean apartment in a third-rate Paris hotel, and allowed to go out only very occasionally. Her only friend was an attendant, whose chief duty was to fetch the ex-Queen's meals from a neighboring restaurant.

A few weeks earlier Ranavalo had arrived at the Gare de Lyon one cold, foggy morning. No red carpet upon the platform, no police-officers in white kid gloves, no palm-decked waiting-room, no band, no flags, not a soldier, not a cheer greeted her arrival. She descended shivering from her carriage, was unceremoniously hustled into a station-cab by two detectives, and driven away, none noting, none caring, to her dreary home of exile.

Well might Napoleon say, "The lot of a dethroned king must be dreadful." The pomp of the throne, the gewgaws which surround him from his cradle, and which accompany him step by step throughout his life, become a necessary condition of his existence.

It was on a bleak, March morning in 1848 that a respectably-dressed elderly gentleman, accompanied by a lady equally advanced in years, landed at Newhaven from the Express steamer from Havre. They had travelled under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and none who hustled the insignificant couple dreamed that they were Louis Philippe and his queen, who but a few weeks earlier had been the splendid rulers of France. For a little more than two years "Mr. Smith" lived in obscurity, until death claimed him at Claremont on the 26th August, 1850.

Very different was the reception on our shores of the dethroned Napoleon III., when he landed at Dover on March 20th, 1871, welcomed by an immense crowd shouting "Long live the Emperor!" Not the flicker of a smile lit the sallow, deeply-lined face of the broken

"I want this cheque cashed," said a fair young matron at the window of the paying teller.

"Yes, madam. You must endorse it first," exclaimed the teller.

"Why, my husband sent it to me! He is away on business," she said.

"Yes, madam. Just endorse it—sign it on the back so we will know, and your husband will know, that we paid it to you."

She went to the desk and in a few moments presented the cheque triumphant, having written on its back, "Your loving wife, Edith"!

BETTER LEFT UNSAID

Scene: A wedding breakfast.

Mr. Muddlehead (who has been asked to propose the health of the bridesmaids, thinks he sees an opportunity of distinguishing himself in his character of a would-be wit): "In conclusion, ladies and gentlemen, allow me to express the fervent hope that the charming sisters of the bride—the Misses Green—may be evergreens."

Great laughter and applause, and Mr. Muddlehead sits down, a wiser, though not a happier man.

How to Tell Bronchitis

Always Recognized by Dry Hacking Cough and Rough Breathing.

Any doctor will tell you that only by a remedy carried by air direct to the affected parts can bronchitis be cured. The very reason why Catarrhozone cures is because it contains a healing medicine lighter than air, which is breathed through the bronchial tubes and lungs, carrying soothing balsams and essences as it goes. No wonder after twenty years of awful suffering, Capt. James Dunlop, of Kingston, commander of the R. & O. str. "Bohemian" was cured thoroughly by Catarrhozone. "I suffered 20 years, and although I took treatment all that time permanent relief was not obtained till I used Catarrhozone, which is the best known cure for Bronchitis on the face of the globe, pleasant to use, quick to relieve, and sure to cure." A truly wonderful treatment for Catarrh, Asthma, Throat Trouble and Bronchitis is Catarrhozone—thousands it has cured, say so.

Get a large dollar outfit of Catarrhozone; it contains a beautiful polished hard rubber inhaler and medication to last two months. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c, at all reliable dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

PRESIDENT DIAZ'S OPPORTUNITY

President Diaz of Mexico is apparently in a position to do his country one more great and lasting service by sacrifice his pride and making peace with honor possible by resigning the presidency. Great as have been the value of Diaz's services, personal sacrifice has not, heretofore, been included among them. In this case, the sacrifice would be of the shadow, not the substance, for no matter who occupied the presidential chair, Diaz and his close-knit political family would lose none of their legitimate influence and probably but little of their real power. On the other hand, the appearance of victory is almost as important to the party of General Madero as the initial victory itself. Their plans for the political regeneration of Mexico are largely based on the demonstration that Mexico is a Republic in substance as well as in form and capable of governing itself quite as well under a President not of Diaz's choosing as under Diaz himself.

President Diaz is eighty-one years old, and every one of the last sixty of them has been spent in the midst of active intrigue and acute political disturbances. For thirty-four years he has occupied the presidential chair—a far longer period than the average reign of the kings of the world. During that time, the prosperity of Mexico has greatly increased, foreign capital has been attracted to the country by its wonderful natural resources, and welcomed with the assurances of protection and safeguards against political brigandage. It may fairly be said that President Diaz has done as much for his country as any of his contemporaries have done for theirs, yet the axidepcy has been unmistakeable during the last few years that a firmer hand and a clearer eye would have obviated some of the scandals which have stained Mexico's recent history.

MANUEL'S CHARACTER

The Ex-King Said to be Cast in a Lofty Mould

King Manuel has not been given much chance of showing the mettle of which he is made. But those who profess to know, describe him as a youth of high character and affectionate disposition, anxious to do his duty as a constitutional sovereign. "Veracity," says a writer in the Star—"I would almost call truthfulness personified—is a good description of the king. He is too courageous to prevaricate even. He is a sincere friend of his friends; most liberal in religious matters; no bigot, and respects all who live up to their religion. In this he is exactly like his mother, the Queen. His tastes are decidedly artistic; literature, music and painting he revels in. In personal habits he is most simple, scrupulously methodical and punctual, an early riser, a keen observer and reader of character. He has an unfailing memory, and recalls faces and names marvellously. I believe him to be pure-minded, moral, straightforward, amiable and affable. He is lovable and amiable, and no one I know comes nearer to my definition of 'a perfect gentleman.'"

A SPORTING CHANCE

The sun was just rising above the eastern horizon when Thomson imagined his latchkey in the front door. Slowly and carefully he picked his way upstairs, but his efforts at quiet-ness were of the loudest possible description, and the inevitable occurred. Mrs. Thomson thrust her head over the bannisters. "Well," she said, with deep sarcasm, "are you just coming home from the club, or going out to business?"

"I'm not sure, myself," replied the erring one, "but—this—I'll toss you for it."

In cases of rheumatism relief from pain comes sharp and quick. Permanent relief may be obtained by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all dealers.

SWORD SHEATHED FOR A CENTURY

What Some Canadians Say as to Proposed Centennial in Honor of Peace

The anniversary of a great national achievement, namely peace for a century between Canada and the United States, is proposed for this year. Here is what some Canadians say of it:

Hon. A. G. MacKay

"If two nations can, with ease and with advantage to both, live at peace for the one hundred years next succeeding the War of 1812, with all its somewhat exasperating recollections," said Hon. A. G. MacKay, Owen Sound, "how many century marks may they not pass with no other result than ever-increasing friendship and good-will? The celebration of a century's peace between these two great Anglo-Saxon nations means more in prospect than in retrospect. Who can estimate the momentum of the force that would make for the peace of the whole world if the British Empire and the United States of America, two of the greatest of national world-forces, were unambiguously to signify their joint and unalterable determination to accept, nay, to enforce, the message with which the Prince of Peace Himself has heralded: "On earth peace, good-will toward men." If two nations such as Canada and the United States, with practically an ungarrisoned and non-fortressed four thousand mile frontier, make the Century mark as brother nations should, such an event should be fittingly celebrated in order that, if possible, certain other nations may learn and realize the fact that public moneys might be better spent on that which would work for the longevity of the people rather than in costly preparations for their immediate destruction. The time seems fast approaching when, by the force of public opinion the world over, international differences must be submitted, not to the arbitrament of the sword, but to that of an unbiased judicial tribunal. When this is accepted as international law, then, and not till then, will the nations act as if they really believed and realized the undoubted fact that 'War is Hell.'"

Hon. Richard McBride

"After living peacefully side by side for a century," said Hon. Mr. McBride, Premier of British Columbia, "it is inconceivable that any international question should arise between Canada and the United States that cannot be solved by peaceful means. Recalling the success that has attended the submission to arbitration of important questions affecting both nations, it does not appear with the range of possibility that war should ever again be waged between the Empire and our kindred nation the United States. Our countries stand as an example to the world of the highest type of civilization yet attained. Our ideals, our love of true freedom and desire for the advancement of mankind, are similar and our friendly relations so interwoven, that wisdom, moderation, and a sense of our tremendous responsibilities can be relied upon to settle our difficulties by peaceful means. We Canadians have no warlike aspirations; we desire to live alongside the United States as good neighbors and friends; and the proposed celebration of one hundred years' peace between the two countries should be an object lesson and an example to the world at large."

How Would You Like to Have Your Savings Earn the Running Expenses? Sounds Good, Don't It? Most Too Good to Be True We Can Do That for You

Right now there are over 3,000,000 people in the great north-west relying strictly on Canned Fruits and Vegetables. They are a necessity. The people MUST have them.

Right now there are TONS and TONS of the best fruits and vegetables that Mother Earth produces going to waste every season in the Okanagan Valley and with the steady influx of settlers in the valley coming to till the fertile soil it is simply natural that the products will doubly increase.

What's to become of this increase with a 40 per cent. waste staring the growers in their very eyes right now?

JUST MORE WASTE, THAT'S ALL. That is, unless a feasible remedy is immediately adopted.

CANNERIES ARE THE REMIDY

Now, then, we have the Cannery situation to a point where we will step right in, take ALL the products the grower can supply and besides converting that gigantic waste into a yearly gain offer an incentive for a still greater output.

THE OKANAGAN CANNERS, LTD., are a co-operative institution.

Not only do we ask the fruit grower to join issues with us to protect his own industry, but invite keen investigation from the investing public.

Remember we belong to no combine, have no opposition, and are pioneers in this field.

Just think of it, The Dominion Fruit Canners cleared $400,000 last year, approximately 51 per cent. What's going to prevent the Okanagan Canners, Ltd., from doing the same?

It's a matter of record that the Kelowna district—sight of our Cannery—proved positively at all the recent fruit shows that the Okanagan valley is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

Now, then, be up and thinking.

We are incorporated for only $100,000.

We are only going to let 60,000 shares out of our treasury.

Not one of our shares has gone for promotion purposes, every share being represented by its equivalent.

We have no salaried officials, in fact no leakages of any kind.

A Premium of 25 per cent. will be put on this stock as soon as our cannery at Kelowna is completed, which will be at an early date, as we will handle this year's crop.

You undoubtedly have stood silently aside and seen other opportunities vanish that your neighbor has grasped and is now realising handsomely on and term him lucky.

It's not luck, but JUDGMENT when chances like this present themselves and one takes advantage of them.

Our land is bought and paid for, and we hold a receipt in full for our wharf for Cannery No. 1, which is completed at Kelowna.

Although capitalised at $100,000, divided into 100,000 shares at one dollar each, we are going to offer for public subscription but 60,000 shares, and the remainder will positively stay in the treasury.

This is a gilt-edged bona fide, conservative investment and it is not reasonable to believe will be on the market long, consequently act NOW before it is too late.

Prospectus can be had at Times office, Peterborough, or Head Office, Vancouver, B. C.

Terms of purchasing securities are one dollar per share; 25 per cent. cash, balance, two, four and six months without interest.

Our Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Wesley A. Blair, cashier of the Vancouver Customs, is one of the most trusted men in Canada and handles on an average of $30,000.00 every commercial day of the year for the Dominion Government.

Calgary Lots

UNIVERSITY SUB-DIVISION

We are placing upon the market a sub-division of Calgary, known as UNIVERSITY, from the fact that it is located close by the University site.

I am anxious to interest you in Calgary property, because of the fact that I feel that we can satisfy you in the sub-division, and thereby retain you as a customer when desiring Western investments. We have opened an office in Toronto permanently, for the purpose of handling Western Canada property.

This sub-division is situated just outside the city limits. It is high, dry and level. In fact, we guarantee every lot to be that, or we will refund the money at any time, with interest at 8 per cent. from the date we receive it.

The situation of this sub-division is unique in many respects. First, it commands a beautiful view of the Bow Valley, overlooking the city; also an excellent view of the Rockies to the West. It is a residential Western Annex, and the city of Calgary is growing very rapidly in that direction. By way of illustration: Sunalta, a Western sub-division was put on the market two years ago at from $100 to $200 per lot. To-day you cannot buy one single lot in Sunalta for less than $800 per lot and the majority of it is bringing prices as high as $2,000. Again, this property will be served by a car line, running from the City, West, which the Company building it guarantees to commence building by June 1st.

The Shouldice Park line on the opposite side of the River, will be completed by August 15th, and in operation. This runs to within half a mile of our property. A bridge is now in course of construction, costing $70,000, being arranged for street car service. A subway is being built under the C. P. R. in order that a line may be run from the Shouldice Park line to the line to the University, thus making a Belt Line around, and passing through the property.

We have been selling this property at $125 and $150 per lot; $125 for inside and $150 for corner lots, and, among the purchasers have been several Calgary builders who have bought as high as from ten to twenty lots each. A Toronto commercial traveller, after seeing this property, bought twenty lots; another ten, and later taking a whole block, so that you will know that the property is considered valuable by those who have seen it.

I need say nothing further regarding this property, as I am satisfied that it is an excellent proposition—a good money maker—and, in six months' time, will doubtless have tripled its present value.

Possibly you are not acquainted with the City of Calgary. I might say that four years ago, the population of Calgary was $17,000. To-day it is over 60,000 and, in two years' time, it will be over 100,000, and only then in its infancy. Fortunes have been made there recently in but a short time.

The C. P. R. has now six lines running from Calgary. The Grand Trunk Pacific will be into Calgary in two months' time, as they are now within half a mile of the City with their grade, and they will be running nine branch lines from the city. The C. N. R. has its grade within five miles of Calgary, and will be running seven branch lines out. The C.P.R. is adding six more lines to what it already has. This will give you some idea of the railway facilities.

The C. P. R. is also building an hotel costing $2,500,000; the Hudson Bay Company is erecting a department store to be completed by October 1st, costing $2,000,000; the Pryce-Jones Co. already has a large store employing about one thousand hands, and there is talk besides of the Harrods' of London, and Eatons' of Toronto, extending their operations to Calgary.

The C. P. R. shops will be located there next year, and will employ from three to four thousand hands; besides many manufacturers are coming in because of the cheap power and the many advantages that the railway facilities are giving. Natural gas has been found in very great quantities at Bow Island, and will be piped into the city at a cost of $3,500,000; being sold to the consumer, for domestic purposes at a cost of 30c, and for power at 20c.

These few facts will give you some idea about Calgary. We are selling this sub-division on easy payments; $10.00 cash per lot, and $10.00 per month per lot, until paid for, with interest at 6 per cent., or we will allow a discount of 5 per cent. for cash.

We give Government deeds for this property, immediately it is paid for, and allow you to make your payments at your own bank, after your first cash payment is made.

We will be pleased to hear from you, if you are at all interested in this money maker, and would show you maps and blue prints, if you would call at this office or write us.

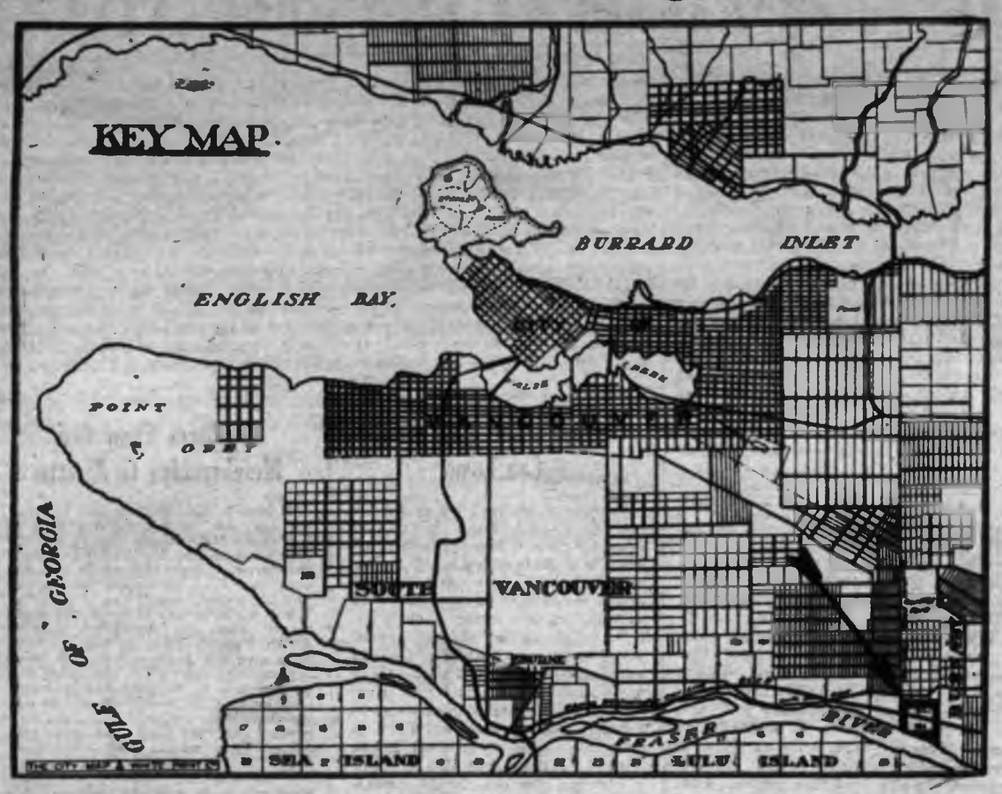
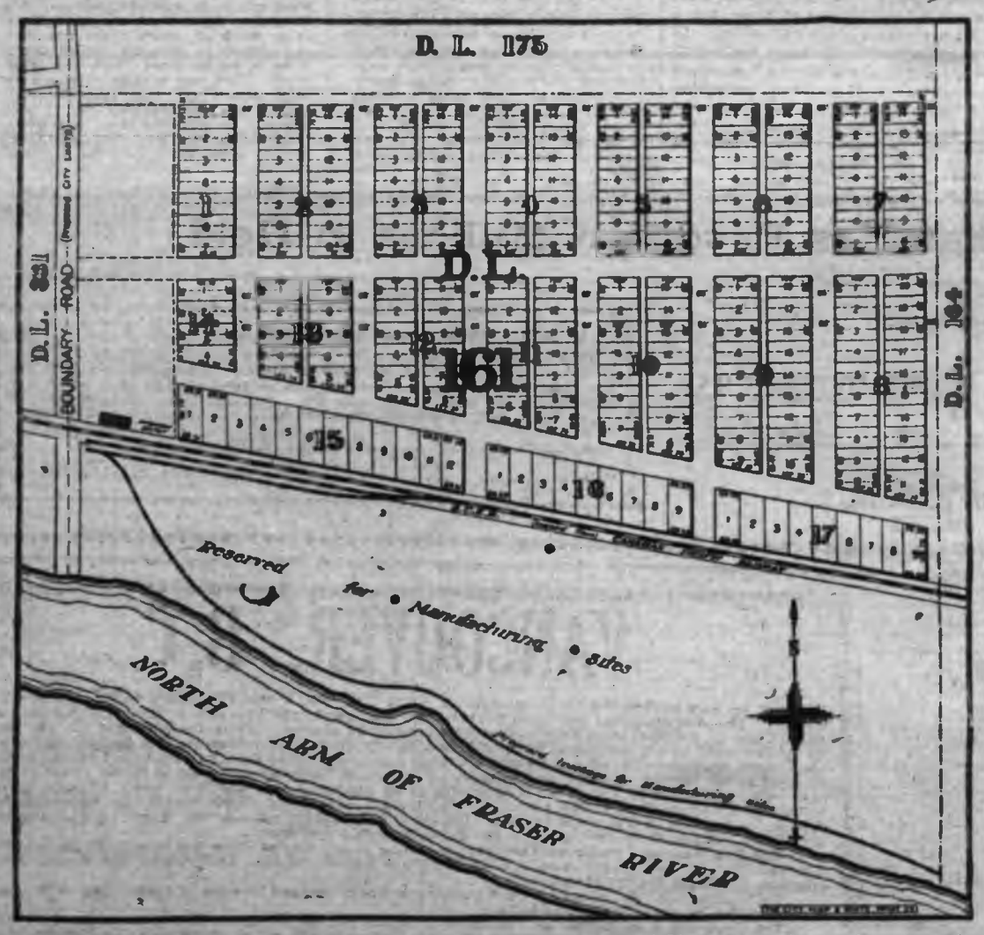
Notice to the Citizens of Peterborough

Great Opportunity to Purchase Vancouver Building Lots





The undersigned, representing the Scott Brokerage Company of Vancouver, B. C., have been instructed to dispose of a quantity of valuable Real Estate, situated in the City of Vancouver. This property is very valuable, and is certain to increase in value very rapidly. The lots sell for prices ranging from $450 each, upwards, with only a small deposit down.

$50 Invested in a Lot in D. L. 161 means $50.00 judiciously invested, because the price is low, the terms easy, the lots are all cleared and ready for building. All the Roads to the property are open. The Car Service is good, as the Tramline runs through the property. Electric Light and Water are available. An indefeasible title is guaranteed to every Lot. However the real intrinsic value of property is determined by its surroundings, its existing and possible industrial developments and density of population, in short the visible means of inducements for rapid advances in values. We will show you that District Lot 161 has all these attributes.

RESIDENCES

Varying from $1,000 to $30,000 in value surround D. L. 161. A $30,000 Mansion adjoins it on the east side while a $5,000 residence is under construction on the northwest side.

INDUSTRIES

The Dominion Carboleneum Works, a plant in full operation was installed at the initial cost of $75,000.00 and adjoins District Lot 161 on the Southwest side. The Waterfrontage is all reserved for additional Manufacturing Sites.

FOR THE SUM OF $135,000

A St. Louis Car Corporation purchased a Factoty Site in D. L. 163 and 165 on the Southeast side of D. L. 161. It was announced on February 24th, 1911, that work would commence shortly. The plant is to cost $2,000,000. The British Columbia Electric Railway Company established at an enormous cost an elaborate siding on D. L. 161 for the purpose of loading and discharging merchandise, and a commodious depot will be here erected soon. The North Arm of the Fraser River adds a high commercial asset to a lot in D. L. 161. Already Steamers are wending their way up and down the stream. In order that large ocean liners may have egress to the proposed fresh water harbors "near D. L. 161" the Dominion Government has definitely decided to proceed with the dredging of the North Arm of the Fraser River. When this is completed a lot in D. L. 161 will not only double but treble in value.

KILLED HER HUSBAND TO SAVE HIS SOUL, SHE SAYS

New York, May 8.—"I killed my husband to save his soul, and I am ready to take whatever punishment man may mete out to me. I know God does not blame me," said Mrs. Francis O'Shaughnessy, wife of a year, when Coroner Holtzhauser held her this afternoon without bail on a charge of shooting her husband at her home, 85 East 113th street, because he told her he was going to leave her for another woman.

"I can't say that I am sorry I killed George," she told the policeman. "All the time for the last three weeks I knew he was going to desert me, and I had to think of the disgrace that he was going to put on our child not yet born. I thought first I would kill myself. Then I thought if I did George would damn his soul, and I did not want that. So after he told me he did not love me any more I just had to kill him. As he lay upon the floor after I shot him, I fell on his body and kissed his lips. Then I gave myself up, and I want them to punish me before my child was born."

"COAL PARTY" MAY CAUSE MORE TROUBLE AT CORDOVA

Cordova, Alaska, May 8.—The dock of the Alaska Steamship Company are under a heavy guard of deputy marshals to-day to prevent further disorder when the steamer Edith with 2000 tons of British Columbia coal arrives here to discharge her cargo.

Excitement exists throughout Alaska as the result of the coal party, when merchants dumped 300 tons of foreign coal into the bay as a protest against the failure of President Taft to open the Alaska coal lands.

The men who participated in the "coal party" are openly threatening to-day that the Edith's cargo will be dumped into the sea.

Application has been made for aid. It is reported that arrangements have been made to rush troops from Fort Liscum at the first sign of rioting. The authorities have received orders from Washington that disorder will not be tolerated.

OHIO GRAFTERS ARE WILLING TO GIVE STATE'S EVIDENCE

Columbus, Ohio, May 8.—Excitement reigns in this city over the indictments of several members of the legislature for bribery. A rumor has it that other arrests are soon to follow.

Col. R. A. Marting, a manufacturer of Ironton, was one of the largest contributors to the fund used to employ the Burns detectives who uncovered the bribery scandal. Representative Lowry of Ironton is one of the indicted men. He is a son-in-law of Col. Marting, while Senator Andrews, another of the accused, is an old personal friend of Col. Marting and was induced to accept the nomination for the Senatorship through the offers of assistance from Col. Marting.

Prosecuting Attorney Turner declared that he had received several offers from legislators willing to turn State's evidence if assured of an immunity bath. In every case the offer was refused.

Mr. Turner was called from the Grand Jury room yesterday afternoon by a legislator who was waiting to testify if granted immunity. When the offer was refused the Representative tearfully begged for the privilege of turning State's evidence. This member has not yet been indicted.

The wife of a Senator not yet indicted wrote to the prosecutor offering to testify and explain a meeting in the apartments of the family during the session here if her husband were permitted to testify and be granted immunity. The offer was refused.

Columbus is full of rumors, many of them sensational. One reason given for the partial report of the Grand Jury, was the fear some of the accused members would attempt to leave the city. Those indicted in the first batch were those whose names have already been published in connection with the bribery scandal. They have been absent from the sessions most of the time since the first report of the Burns detectives was given out.

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter R. Somerset relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very nervous and didn't care whether I married or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Sometimes dreamed at night I was bound and—my back, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, knees were shaky, eyes blurred, hair began coming loose, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, even an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

LONG TELEPHONE LINE

G.P.R. Completing One in Northwest 1,500 Miles in Length

The telephone will soon be available for use from Cartier, Ont., to Broadview, Sask., a distance of 1,500 miles. The Canadian Pacific Railway new telephone service for dispatching trains is being installed and only the connecting link for the east and west, that portion between Fort William and Winnipeg, remains to be completed. At present the service is being operated between Cartier and Fort William, and from Winnipeg to Broadview, and has been found to be a decided success. The installation of the service will not reduce the staff, but will greatly improve the facilities for work, which is rapidly increasing.

PORCUPINE NEWS

The Ontario Government have decided to extend a Railway line into Porcupine, but at the same time comes the news that two other Railway lines besides the T. & N. O. Railway are making an effort to reach the District as soon as possible. It has also been decided to run the line into Porcupine City on account of this being the safest, cheapest and best route to take. Of course this will immediately boom the prices of Porcupine City Townsite lots and the chances are that lots for $800.00 the largest priced lots near the station will advance many hundreds of per cent before fall.

FURTHER PAYMENTS REQUIRED

The First $5.00 Pays It All

THIS IS TO BE A QUICK-ACTION PROPOSITION. You pay $5.00 with your subscription. That is all. You will be called upon for no more. This membership entitles you to a vote in all the affairs of the syndicate, and to participate pro rata in all the benefits. It is a small amount, but I don't need very much to accomplish all I am going to try for. I made the price $5.00 so as to allow everyone to get in. In order to keep any one individual from acquiring control I have limited the subscription of any one person to no more than ten memberships. We are all going to get the same fair, square deal. There are to be no favorites and no special privileges. When money enough has been raised to do the work the members will be notified, and THEY will decide whether it will be necessary or not to incorporate a company and, if so, for how much. THEY will elect their own officers and direct the affairs of the company. I will have no time to fool away in doing office work. I am a miner, not a bookkeeper, and as soon as I get this thing organized the officers of the company will have to dictate the business policy. Now it is not very often that you have an opportunity of investing as small an amount as $5.00, and especially where it has such splendid chances for making a big profit in a short time. It can't be beat, and the proposition offers more for the money than anything of its kind in the market. I want you to help me in this and I promise you won't be disappointed if you do.

THIS IS MY MONEY-MAKING PLAN

I have secured a lease on the famous EMMA MINE OF EMPIRE, COLORADO. I used to work in this mine, and I know there is ore there. I feel sure that a few dollars expended in developing the vein already opened will give us a big body of rich ore. I am the man to do it. Of course I will need a little help in a financial way. I am organizing a syndicate to handle this proposition. I invite you to join me. We will all club in together and push the development work as hard and as fast as possible, and as the ore is taken out and marketed we will divide the profits. Memberships in this syndicate will be sold for $5.00 each and no more than ten will be sold to any one individual. I will own no more myself. I am determined to make this a small investor's enterprise, and it will be run by the membership holders and for their benefit alone. The amount is so small that anyone can afford to go in, and I am so sure in my own mind that it will be a success—a big success, and earn enormous profits for us—that I am willing to go back to the camp, take off my coat and go in and work from early in the morning until late at night to get the ore opened up and ready for the mill. I am satisfied that we can produce results in less than a year. All I want you to do is to let me have your immediate subscription for one or more memberships, and I will buy a stock of powder, go back to the mine and get to work. May I count upon your co-operation?

Something About Myself

I am a practical mining man; have had years of experience in the business, and have never made a failure of anything I have taken up. For over four years I have worked in the mines in and about Empire, Colorado. Being familiar with the location of the mineral veins of this district, knowing the character of the ores, etc., I have been on the lookout for a good property that I could operate under lease for some time. It was only recently that I found the big lead veins in the famous Emma mine, and I immediately took action in an effort to secure a long-time lease from the company owning the property. Well, to make a long story short, after a deal of negotiating I was successful and secured a lease on this splendid property which runs until 1915. The company was anxious to have a certain amount of development work done and I was lucky enough to catch them at just the right time and secured just what I wanted. This is the proposition I am now inviting you to join me in—the development of this lease on the RICH EMMA MINE.

The Small Investor's Opportunity

Usually a small investor has but little show to earn more than a very ordinary profit on his investment. I conceived the idea of making this a company of small investors. Just a few of my friends, and their friends. I am so confident of the outcome that I am taking no more big capital in with me, and instead of having a company controlled and dominated by a few big stockholders, I want to make it more of a family affair. We will all put in a small amount. With the money thus subscribed I will begin work at the mine and, following the present vein, I am sure I will be able to cut the big American lode within a distance of a few hundred feet. If my plans are successful I will be into a big ore body in less than three months, and that means a small fortune for us all. There are all kinds of tools at the mine to work with except, perhaps, a power drill, and that will be one of the first things that I will buy. After that it will be easy to drive the tunnel, and I expect to make good progress.

QUICK RETURNS ON YOUR MONEY

THIS IS THE DAY OF QUICK ACTION. No man wants his money tied up in a proposition that only has a promise of paying out in the sweet bye and bye. Get your money in and your profits out. That is my idea, and I think I am right. I feel pretty sure that I can give you your money back and your share of the earnings inside of a year. Possibly sooner. In any event, you may be assured that I will not delay a minute longer than is necessary. I want my share as soon as I can get it, and you will get yours at the same time. I believe that these memberships will be snapped up in a hurry, and so I advise you to not delay your order. Better be a little early than too late. Your certificate will be forwarded to you upon receipt of your order and remittance. There will be no delay at this end. Frequent reports will be sent to the membership holders telling of the development at the mine, and if you have any suggestions to offer send them along. I am a miner, a practical miner, and know the business as well as any of them, but I am not fool enough to think I know it all. I am always anxious and willing to learn, so if you think you can give me any pointers that will help me I will thank you to let me have them. Now I have given you about all the important details in regard to the proposition. It is now your move. If you want something in an investment that looks a little bit better and a little bit quicker than anything else in the market, I want to hear from you. If you are a pessimist, and believe that you are doing well enough, you will just be wasting your time and mine in writing to me. Otherwise, clip and send in the attached coupon to-day—NOW. I will do my best to make money for both of us.

A large amount of rich ore has already been taken out of this mine, and a nice little streak of it is in sight now. The mine is all wired for electrical power and a power line passes only a few feet from the portal of the tunnel. Give me an electric power drill and I will go after that vein of ore in a way that will surprise the membership holders, and there will be no fooling around waiting for this, or for that, BUT I WILL PRODUCE RESULTS. I have to get my profits in this enterprise from the same source that you do: FROM THE ORE PRODUCED, and you may be assured that I will not lay around doing nothing until our money is all used up. Opening up the pay streak means as much to me as to any other membership holder: and I am going into the proposition to make it pay. If nothing unforseen occurs I will do it, too. Our profits should be very substantial, for there will not be many to divide the earnings among. I know all about the veins of ore in this camp; I know the character of the ore, and I know the quickest way to reach the ore bodies. If you will come into the proposition with me now, when I need your co-operation, I will give you your share of all I take out.

I Don't See How You Can Lose

In this proposition I honestly don't see how you can lose. In the first place the amount invested is so small and the promise of big profits so exceptional that only a small amount of ore would have to be produced to at least get your money back. But if I thought getting my money back would be the best I could do I would not waste a minute's time on it. In other parts of this mine former operators took out large amounts of ore, and they never acquired any depth to speak of. Now, every miner in the Empire District knows that as depth is attained the ore bodies enlarge, and the values increase. The American lode that I have mentioned before is known to be very rich, and from on top of the hill, just a little ways north of this property, it dips directly towards us and down into the mountain. I think by driving the tunnel straight in that we will cut it in less than 200 feet. The vein now uncovered in the tunnel is evidently a stringer of the American lode.

No More Than Ten Memberships to Anyone

A square deal, fairness and equality for all. An honest disbursement of the syndicate's funds. Those are the principles and basic standards of this enterprise. I am going in on the same basis as yourself. If I make any big money out of the proposition I will have to get it from the same source that you do—THE EARNINGS FROM THE MINE. I will only own ten memberships, the limit for any one individual, and when the proposition is financed the membership holders shall say whether or not we shall incorporate. If so, for how much; and they shall elect their own officers from among their own number. The enterprise shall belong to the membership holders and they shall run it to suit themselves. All I want to do is work the mine. That is as much or more than one man can attend to properly, and I don't want to be bothered with any office work. Now, my friends, if you have faith in me and my proposition, I want your co-operation, and I will ask you to send me your subscription. If you haven't, you won't do me any good and I can't do anything for you.

NAN'S YOUNG MAN

"Oh, mum, here's Miss Nan's young man comin' up the walk. Will I show 'im in?"

"Miss Nan's young man! What do you mean, Mary Ann?"

"I mean the young chap she's been knockin' about wi' ever since we came to Portobello. I thocht she wud write an' tell ye."

"No, indeed; I've heard nothing. That's what comes of letting one's family go off by themselves on holiday. I haven't arrived a day too soon. Nan is a giddy girl, and her father will have been giving her carte blanche."

"I dinna ken, mum. I canna say I've noticed 'im glein' her onything in partecklar. But there's the bell."

"I think I had better interview him. Show him in, Mary Ann."

The next minute Mary Ann ushered into the drawing-room a tall, lank young man with long hair and eyeglasses. His appearance leaned to the shabby genteel.

He made a profound bow to the lady, who eyed him with a coldly critical air.

"Pray be seated, sir," she said icily.

"I presume, madam, that Miss Smythe has acquainted you with the object of my visit," he said bashfully as he seated himself gingerly on the extreme edge of a fragile chair.

"My daughter has told me nothing," stiffly.

"Oh—ah—that is strange. I proposed to her last night—"

"Goodness gracious! And what did she say?"

The young man looked mildly astonished.

"She seemed quite agreeable, madam, and referred me to you," he answered.

"Thank goodness she had the sense. I only arrived this morning, and not before time. Excuse me. I must make a few inquiries into your circumstances and family."

He blushed and fidgetted uneasily on his chair.

"Yes, madam, but—but—" he stammered, "I don't really think it is necessary."

"Not necessary! It is just what I am most particular about. My grandmother had blue blood in her veins. Family is everything. What is your father?"

"An honest man, madam. But I can't understand—"

He professes to raise flowers and vegetables. His is a gardener."

"A what? A common workman! And what on earth are you?"

"Had we not better cease personalities, madam, and get to the business in hand?"

"Get to business! Get to the door, rather. How dare you presume to approach my daughter?"

"Your daughter, madam, is a very charming young lady. She was exceedingly kind to me when I offered—"

"She is a fool. I am ashamed of her. I suppose she never inquired about your position at all. What is your means, really?"

"I—I rather think that is a rude question, madam."

"You're ashamed to tell, and yet you had the presumption to think about a wife."

"I've buried a wife already, and I am quite able to bury another—I—I mean to keep another."

At that moment the door opened and Miss Nan herself entered the room, followed by her father and a tall, aristocratic looking young man wearing eye-glasses.

The young lady immediately approached her mother's visitor, with outstretched hand.

"Oh, Mr. Robertson, I am so sorry," she exclaimed. "I quite forgot to tell mamma you were coming."

"Nan," shrieked her mother, "do you know who that man is?"

"Why, of course, mamma. He was the singing master in Miss Jay's Seminary in Glasgow when I was there. He lives here now, and we have met several times. Yesterday we happened to meet in the Marine Gardens, and he asked me if I would sing at the charity concert they are getting up. So I asked him to call here this afternoon and see you about it."

"Nan, are you trying to deceive me? You have been gadding about with this man for a month I hear, and he tells me he has asked you to marry him."

"Mamma, have you lost your senses?" shrieked Nan, on the verge of hysterics.

"Madam, you are—excuse me—you are—distorting facts," stammered the luckless singing master.

"Oh, Miss Nan, it's a' my fault," cried Mary Ann at that moment putting her head inside the door. "I thocht it was him," indicating the strange gentleman, who, with Mr. Smythe, was watching the scene with lively astonishment. "So I telt yer maw, an' she's been interviewin' him, speirin' a' about his pearents an' his pey, an' a' that. Ye see, they baith wear specs—

that's how [illegible]

For one awful moment silence reigned. Then Mr. Smythe subsided into a chair, and roared till his sides shook and the tears rolled down his cheeks. The strange gentleman, looking very much embarrassed, fidgetted about uneasily. Nan burst into tears.

Then Mrs. Smythe found her tongue.

"Mary Ann," she cried, "go down stairs immediately. I'll talk to you later on. Mr. Smythe you ought to be ashamed of yourself. Nan, don't be a fool. Mr. Robertson, it seems there has been a misunderstanding—"

"Don't mention it, madam, don't mention it—a mere case of mistaken identity. I think—in the meantime—I shall bid you all good-day," and with a low bow the singing master hurriedly departed.

"Marie, my dear, you've put your foot in it this time," chuckled Mr. Smythe and then went off into another prolonged fit of laughter, while Nan continued to weep, and Mrs. Smythe and the stranger eyed each other apprehensively.

"My husband hasn't had the sense to introduce us," she began hesitatingly.

"My name is Algernon St. Clair."

SNEEZING SUPERSTITIONS

The Ancients Had Some Queer Notions About the Practice

Many superstitions have gathered around the practice of sneezing.

The Jewish Rabbis say that in the first ages of the world sneezing was considered a thing of evil omen, and even a presage of death, and that this terrible state of things lasted until the coming of Jacob, when that astute patriarch, anxious lest he should himself perish from such an insignificant cause, besought the Almighty to endow sneezing in future with more beneficent attributes!

Among the ancients sneezing was considered lucky or unlucky according to the circumstances of time and place.

For instance, it was considered lucky to sneeze between noon and midnight; also when the moon was in the signs of Taurus, Leo, Libra, Capricorn, and Pisces.

But if, on the other hand, you sneezed during any of the hours between midnight and the following noon, or while the moon happened to be in the signs of Virgo, Aquarius, Cancer, or Scorpio—above all, if, unhappily, you were just getting out of bed or rising from the table—then

[illegible] anyone [illegible] was of good [illegible] and the Greeks [illegible] had sneezed at her birth

We offer for sale $100,000.00 worth of stock of THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION, LIMITED. This Company has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia and its objects are to purchase good City lots and erect buildings thereon. It is the intention of the Company to confine itself to the erection of dwelling houses for the immediate future, as this line of building offers the largest returns. The operations of the Company are confined to safe, legitimate and profitable business. It aims to fill the law of supply and demand. The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. The population of Vancouver is increasing at an enormous rate and it is very difficult to procure houses or living quarters of any kind. In 1905 there were scarcely 60,000 people in Vancouver and today the population of Vancouver is about 150,000. The building permits for March, 1911, exceeded $2,500,000.00, surpassed by few cities on the North American continent.

The Los Angeles Investment Company, operating along similar lines, has earned 40 per cent. annual dividends for the last fifteen years. THE COLUMBIA PROPERTIES CORPORATION should also earn excellent dividends for its shareholders.

THE DIRECTORS are men of good standing in Vancouver and Western Canada and will carefully safeguard the interests of the shareholders.

The Company is capitalized at $250,000.00 in shares of $50.00 each. The above issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market at $55.00 per share; terms $10.00 per share payable on application and $10.00 per month. The shares are non-assessable. There is no personal liability. An issue of $100,000.00 is being placed on the market in Vancouver and a considerable amount has already been taken up.

A Coming Lecture.

The citizens of Peterborough will have an opportunity on Tuesday next of hearing a fine address in the council chamber by Dr. Samson, Lecturer in Chief on Government Annuities. This national enterprise is giving promise of becoming a matter of immense public interest and such a lecture should call out a large attendance of our people.

The last of the series of popular band concerts by the 57th Regimental Band will be given at the Armories, Friday evening, May 12th. A very excellent programme is being arranged. The band is to be assisted by Miss Edna Pringle, soprano soloist.

There are many complaints being made regarding the dust. It is understood, however, that oil is being procured as rapidly as possible.

According to Government Estimates

$100,000,000.00

Was Made in Western Town Property During the Year 1909

Did you anticipate in these huge profits or did you "pigeon-hole" the propositions submitted to you by your western friends for future consideration? In short, are you the man who made a profit or the unfortunate one who had the chance but did not possess sufficient judgment to recognize the opportunity or sufficient courage to close a deal? The man or woman entitled to sympathy is the one who says: "Five or ten years ago I had the chance to buy this or that property at $100 or $500, and now it is worth $10,000." The average person sneers at the person who makes such a statement and says: "I would have bought and made that money." Are you going to say five years from now that you had a chance to buy a lot at Poe, Alta., at from $50 to $100 each, or are you going to be the man who will have from $1,000 to $10,000 in cash as a result of having bought property in this town in this year of grace, 1911?

FOR A COMING COMMERCIAL CENTRE

Poe is located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Saskatoon. It is located in one of the finest farming districts in Western Canada. The surrounding country is settled by a progressive type of farmers and consequently will become the market centre for Northern Alberta. Poe district possesses rich coal mines, is close to rivers and lakes and large forests are easily accessible from this point. These natural resources insure for the residents of the town, first, low cost of living, and second, great commercial activity, two essentials in the upbuilding of a large town, thus creating valuable real estate.

FOR AS A MANUFACTURING CENTRE

This townsite and contiguous territory has the requirements outlined by large manufacturing concerns for the location of large factories or large enterprises of any kind employing large numbers of people. The rivers and lakes furnish water, the coal fields and forests furnish fuel and cheap building material, the fine farming lands furnish farm products, enabling the residents to live at a low cost.

The town is located on the main line of a transcontinental railway, assuring the necessary transportation facilities. These combined conditions will furnish cheap labor, one of the most important features of a manufacturing centre.

Poe townsite was recently placed on the market and already over 200 lots have been sold and many of these lots have already changed hands at a substantial increase in price. Most of these lots were purchased by representative business men throughout Canada who are now profiting by their foresight.

The townsite is high and dry and very suitable for building purposes.

OPPORTUNITY

is useless unless you possess the courage to act. You might possess great wisdom, you might read a good deal or travel much and thus see all kinds of opportunities to make money, but unless you have the courage to act on your judgment and wisdom all of these desirable qualities are entirely useless.

Lots in Poe are a good investment at present price. The town is bound to grow rapidly. Owing to the easy terms of payment you have the ability to buy and if you do not buy now it is because you are lacking in courage, and the chances are you will never be like the man you now admire most, rich, courageous and wise.

TORRENS TITLE.

Poe townsite is held by us under the Torrens system of title. Under this system the title is guaranteed by the Government, therefore absolutely safe.

PRICES AND TERMS.

Prices of lots range from $50 to $100 each, and they can be purchased on terms of one-tenth cash, balance in eighteen equal monthly payments; or quarter cash, balance in six, twelve or eighteen months.

INFORMATION

We have issued an attractive circular giving full information pertaining to the town and its prospects, together with map showing lots for sale. If you wish to receive this attractive circular cut out and fill in the attached coupon and mail it to us to-day.

POPULAR PHRASES

How Some of Them Originated—Common Expressions

Who first gave utterance to some of the popular phrases of to-day it is practically impossible to say, but it is not so difficult to trace the origin of the sayings. Cheshire cats, for instance, are no different from those of other counties, but because Cheshire cheeses used to be made in the shape of cats with fixed, broad grins, the phrase' "Grinning like a Cheshire cat eating cheese," arose.

The phrase, "He's a brick," originated from an Eastern ruler, who, while visiting a neighboring principality, asked his host to show him the fortifications. Waving his hands towards his troops, which were drawn up in soldierly array, the Prince said to his guest: "These are my fortifications; every man is a brick."

The phrase, "Mad as a hatter," really means as venomous as a viper. "Mad as a hatter" is simply a corruption of an ancient form, "Mad as an atter, or adder." Mad in this case is generally synonymous with poisonous.

The clause "It suits to a T," meaning it fits exactly, is as old as the familiar instrument, the T-square, or T-rule (so called from its resemblance to the letter T), used by mechanics and draughtsmen for making angles true and for obtaining perpendiculars. The expression was in common use in the time of Dr. Johnson, who is quoted by Boswell as saying of Warburton, "You see they have fitted him to a T."

PECULIAR BAZAAR

Vegetarians, who are organizing a bazaar to be held in London, are making a feature of a stall upon which every article displayed resembles leather, but has been obtained in reality from a vegetable product. Among the articles made from this substance are boots and shoes, bags, music-cases, bound Bibles, pocket-books, and despatch-boxes.

GIRLS DON'T WANT ROCKFELLER GIFT

Petition for Return of Cash Gift for the Heating of Wellesley College.

Wellesley, Mass., May 8—The Wellesley College girl students are circulating a petition to-day asking the trustees to return the $150,000 presented to the college by John D. Rockefeller to be used for the installation of a steam-heating plant.

It was duly accepted, but the agitation for return of money was started among members of the lower classes, and it has spread to all other classes.

A committee of five drew up a petition asking the trustees to return the gift, and after being signed by a large number of the members of the class of '14, it is being circulated among the higher classes and being freely signed. Almost 300 names are now attached to the petition.

Bishop-elect Clark of Niagara diocese will likely be consecrated June 24th.

PENSIONS ROMANCE

Love in a Workhouse Ends in Marriage of the Parties Concerned

Many a romantic union has been brought about by the old age pensions. It was reported at a meeting of the Huntingdon Board of Guardians that a man named Daniel Peacock, who had been in the workhouse since 1897, and would now become entitled to an old-age pension, intended to leave in order to marry another inmate, who would also be entitled to a pension. He wrote thanking the board for the kindness he had received, and said he would like a small memento of the happy time he had spent in the workhouse. The chairman said he thought the men and women were kept separate in the workhouse. The master of the workhouse stated that they were kept separate. A hope was expressed that the man would send the board a piece of wedding cake, and it was decided to subscribe to give him a wedding present. Peacock, who is a widower, was formerly a saddler, and while in the workhouse he has assisted the porter in charge of the door. His bride-elect, a widow named Susannah Wright, first entered the workhouse in 1903. The officials are puzzled to know when the courting was done. Peacock had his periodical day's leave and went to give the necessary notice of the marriage. The registrar, who is also clerk to the guardians, promised to marry the couple for nothing.

LONG TRAMP IN VAIN

Man of 98 Who Walked Nearly 3,000 Miles on Vain Errand

The London Telegraph tells the story, which comes from Mobile, Alabama, of a man of ninety-eight who has tramped nearly 5,000 miles on a vain errand. Frank Schrom, the hero of this feat, at the beginning of the year, received a letter from his daughter living in San Francisco asking him to go to them. Schrom had been wealthy, but his business had failed, and he had lost all his possessions. Too proud to ask for assistance, he set out to walk from New Orleans to the Californian city. Arriving there, he found his daughters, who, in the absence of any word from the old man, had come to the conclusion that he was dead, had left the city, and that their whereabouts was uncertain. Schrom, being disappointed and almost heart-broken by his failure, turned his face eastward again and walked back to New Orleans, covering altogether a distance of 2,800 miles. Now he is housed in a home for aged men.

TO PUT DOWN DUELLING

Abbe Lemire has introduced in the Paris Chamber a Bill to make duelling a punishable offence. The penalty varies from imprisonment for six days to five years and fines from $20 to $2,000, according to the gravity of the offence. The severest punishment is for the duellist who kills his man; the lightest for taunting a man for not fighting.

This Times has received two letters for publication in connection with the chimes inauguration, but they do not bear the signatures of the writers and therefore cannot appear.

VANCOUVER

THE METROPOLIS OF THE —PACIFIC COAST—

Where fortunes are being made by investment, which cannot be equalled anywhere else in Canada. The position that Vancouver occupies, the same on the Pacific, as Montreal occupies on the Atlantic, also the fact that Vancouver is an open port the whole year round, means beyond a possible doubt, that Vancouver will be the greatest city in the Dominion.

Vancouver is the only gateway to the Orient from the whole of Canada, which demonstrates that this will be the greatest Canadian shipping port, owing to the enormous development of western Canada. This together with the fact that the immense wealth of the natural resources of the province of British Columbia, its timber, fisheries, fruit, coal and other minerals, must make it clear, that you can invest your money here to better advantage than elsewhere.

Vancouver offers to-day, the opportunity of a life time for both the small and the large investor, and if you will act on our advice we will positively guarantee to make returns for you that will surprise you. HOW WILL UNITED CONTRIBUTIONS OF CITIZENS TO PEOPLE'S CHIMES BE PERPETUATED IN MEMORY?

With the advent of a "Peoples Chimes" for Peterborough, it might not be out of place to enquire what provision is in the minds of the Committee for perpetuating in the memory of future generations the fact that the inauguration of said chimes in St. John's church tower was made possible by the munificient donations of citizens in general, irrespective of church or creed. The chimes are to be formally handed over on Coronation Day by His Worship Mayor Morrow, in behalf of Peterborough citizens to the authorities of St. John's by whom they will be held in trust for all time to come. A hundred years hence the mere fact of these chimes ringing merrily from the ancient tower of beautiful old St. John's church will offer no indication that they are in reality citizens' property, a living memento of indefatigable enthusiasm and work, and generous contribution on the part of a united community. The Times, would, therefore, respectfully submit that in the porch of St. John's church there be placed a brass tablet containing in brief text the information that the splendid set of chimes above were subscribed by the public in general and formally dedicated by the Bishop of Toronto on George V's coronation day, as "The Peoples' Chimes." We would also suggest that the written laws of St. John's provide that on each recurring anniversary of the chimes' inauguration these bells peal forth those same three tunes that are to follow their dedication, as a means of, in a measure, perpetuating in memory not only their inauguration, but also the coronation of the beloved King of a mighty empire.

Deathly Cramps Stomach was Bloated

A Bad Case That Proves Cramps and Stomach Disorders are Cured Fast by Nerviline.

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. R. Emerson, of Guys Hill P.O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangement disappeared entirely."

For cramps, flatulence, diarrhoea, and disorders of the stomach and bowels, Nerviline knows no equal—one million bottles used every year—fifty years on the market, that's proof enough of its merit. Large 25c bottles, five for $1.00. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Reporter Wanted.

We require the services of a bright young man as reporter. This is a good chance for a lad with a fair education to go into journalism. Apply at The Times' Business Office.

COAL OIL.

We have opened a depot for the sale of Coal Oil at 169 Charlotte Street, near corner of George Street, from which place we are now prepared to supply our oil customers at the old price delivered to any part of the city. Orders left at China Hall, (telephone No. 121), or left at the new address 169 Charlotte street, will receive immediate attention.

MACFARLANE WILSON.

New C.G.E. Building.

The construction of another fine building for the C. G. E. Co., has been begun. This building will be used for the new lamp department. It will make a substantial and imposing addition to the Company's splendid array of buildings already in existence.

Should Be Looked Into.

Our old friend, Mr. Wm. Snowden, writes The Times in regard to the poor grade of oil which is being used on the streets. Mr. Snowden's letter appears elsewhere, and speaks for itself. This should be looked into without delay, and we are sure it is only necessary to call the Mayor's attention to it to have the matter investigated.

County Maps.

The Times has almost ready for delivery a very fine wall map of the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. This map is printed in four colors, and will supply a long felt want. Last year we issued a very fine map of Victoria County and also one of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham. Copies of any of these maps may be had at The Times office.

A Child Lost.

The little three year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, 474 Donegal street, wandered away from its home, and caused quite a commotion in the neighborhood. After a long search by the anxious parents for the little one, it was rounded up about six o'clock, none the worse for its long tramp.

Lift Lock Now Open.

The lift lock was opened yesterday for the season, and works like a charm.

Low Water in Lakes.

Minden Echo: We have been informed on good authority that there will be no great rush of water this year, as a result of the melting snow, in fact the lakes out north are not full, and the snow is all gone. There was no frost in the ground, and much of the water was taken up by absorption. The creeks are low and unless rains make up the deficiency the water will be practically all gone when the drives are through.

Dr. Sampson Will Speak.

The subject of Government annuities, which has received much attention since the introduction of the scheme, will be discussed by Dr. Samson, Lecturer-in-Chief, in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall, this evening, and an interesting address may be expected. The lecture will be free and ladies are especially invited. The system is the result of careful and impartial investigation as to the best means of enabling people of moderate income to provide for old age, and is meeting with a large expression of public approval.

The New Tax on Hotels.

Hotelkeepers are busy coming over circulars sent out by the provincial license department. These circulars explain in great detail the new five per cent. tax on all bar receipts. The hotelmen will receive some blank forms with a separate blank for each day of the month. These they must fill in and return to the department at the end of the month with an affidavit as to the correctness of the figures. Hotelkeepers failing to make returns by the tenth of each month will be liable to a fine. When the returns are in and cleared up, the hotelmen will get notice of what their taxes are to be.

Power in Demand.

The Lindsay Post thus discusses the power question: Power! power! power! That seems to be the slogan of the hour. Ever since the visit of Hon. Adam Beck on Thursday evening there has been nothing else talked about. The consensus of opinion seems to favor the purchase by the town of the local power plant. You cannot block the onward march of municipal ownership, and the desire of municipalities to secure cheap power. However, this question as it affects this town should receive careful consideration, and the suggestion of the Post to discuss the question by its columns is a good one.

don't want any more of that kind of business. Chief Howard may be a very good fireman, but honest men who read the reports of the first investigation into his actions in regard to the pay Hats will remember all the different stories told in connection with that matter, and will therefore be suspicious. That was the time that the Council made a mistake in not acting promptly. It has always been my impression that the Old Fire Brigade had been very badly treated, for they had given good service to the city for years and for very little recompense. We hear a great deal about the efficiency of the present brigade, and I have no doubt they are a good company, but we would understand the proposition a great deal better if the Council would ask the City Treasurer to prepare a statement showing what the present Brigade has cost the city since its formation, and the cost of the old brigade for the same length of time, previous to the change.

As to the disposing with the Industrial Commissioner, I consider the Council deserve great credit. What has he done in the past year for the large expense the city has been put to, but even outside of that he is deserving of dismissal for his action in connection with the power question. What right has he to take the Hon. Mr. Beck to any hole and corner meeting with any little clique, instead of having the report made to the Council who had asked for the information? I am told this little clique call themselves the "Improvement Society," and would like to know what improvement they are anxious to make except to their own bank account and some of them are quite capable of that. One in particular might be asked to deliver an address before the Board of Trade and give full particulars of the cost of the railway siding into the Canadian General—how he received his information as to when the siding would be placed, what the original owners received and what the city had to pay and how much his share of the rake-off amounted to. Also, let the people know if active membership in the church has changed his opinions as to what is right or wrong in public business, or if he is still of the opinion that he would be doing right if he received private information from the Industrial Commissioner as to some property the Council wanted to purchase to give some friend a pointer and have him secure an option and hold up the city for a largely increased price.

If it had not been for the influence of some Aldermen and a clique of outsiders in the past, Peterborough would not be in its present deplorable position with regard to power, but would have had the Burleigh Falls power and Nos. 4 and 5 dam at less than $5,000 of an outlay. We have a Council that we may well be proud of, although they may not all be anxious or eligible for membership in the Peterborough Club in the eyes of some of the members of that Club, yet they have all been successful men in their own businesses, and have the courage to do what they think right, and not like some former Councils, decide in committee room downstairs on a certain course and in the Council Chamber an hour after change their votes. The present Council want to show that they have more confidence in the people of Peterborough than past Councils, and when any new official was required they would pass over their own city with its 17,000 population and run all over the Dominion to some other town for some person to fill the position whose best and only recommendation was a good city tongue.

MANUFACTURERS AND MERCHANTS TALK IT OVER

At a meeting of the leading manufacturers and members of the Merchants' Association of the city held last night, the following resolution was passed:

We, the manufacturers, members of the Retail Merchants' Association and members of the professions of the city of Peterborough, having taken into consideration the action of the City Council in respect of the office of Industrial Commissioner, and after considering the importance of the office and the service performed during the past year by the present incumbent of the office, wish to formally express our opinion that it is in the best interests of the City of Peterborough that the office be continued and that the services of the present officer be retained.

Therefore, be it resolved that we do hereby express that in our opinion that it is most important in the best interests of the city that this office be continued and that we are strongly of the opinion that it is also in the best interests of the city that the services of the present officer be retained for at least one year and that a committee consisting of the following names: Messrs. W. H. Denham, D. O'Connell, E. A. Peak, Andrew McFarlane, Thos. Barrie, J. J. Turner, Jr., Ryerson Ritchie, E. G. Patterson, Dr. Greer, T. F. Matthews, Walter Oke, J. H. Conmal, G. A. Gillespie, V. Eastwood, G. C. Wainwright, B. F. Ackerman, W. E. Conway, R. G. Kingan, Jas. English, A. W. Cressman, L. A. Turner, Jas. Kendry, Wm. Harstone, G. Walter Green, A. E. Coulthard, Atwood, J. Boyette and Jas. Hamilton, be appointed for the purpose of interviewing the members of the City Council to discuss the office generally and the advisability of engaging the present Commissioner for at least one year. And that Mr. W. H. Denham be appointed to the position of convenor of the committee and to make an appointment with the City Council in order that the views of the committee may be expressed with a view of having the office continued and of having harmonious relationship between that office and the City Council.

GOVERNMENT SYSTEM OF ANNUITIES DISCUSSED

DR. SAMSON, OF OTTAWA, TELLS OF ITS MANY ADVANTAGES AT PUBLIC MEETING.

The public meeting held last night in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute was not as largely attended as it should have been.

The Government Annuities system, which was clearly described last evening by Dr. Samson, is a simple and straightforward proposition. Before it was introduced in the Senate the House of Commons had discussed a resolution respecting old age pensions It was left undecided whether the citizens of Canada call for a general Pension Act, or whether in case such a system should be introduced it should be wholly supported from the public revenues, as in New Zealand and lately in Great Britain, or should follow the German plan, where the Government, the employer and the prospective pensioner jointly contribute. Nothing was done about the pension scheme in Canada, but the Annuities Act was one of the results of the various parliamentary discussions.

This is not a Pension Bill. The Government does not pay an allowance out of the treasury to old people. But the Government contracts to take deposits from any person at any age and convert them into annuities payable at such an age as the applicants desire. The same thing is done by insurance companies, but there are the following advantages of the Government plan for persons with moderate means:

The whole wealth and credit of the nation is behind the contract.

All the cost of securing subscribers, of administering the funds, and carrying on the business, is borne by the Government, and the investor escapes this charge.

The Government pays four per cent. compound interest on all the premiums or investments, fixing the annuities on that basis, and, in case of death before the annuity period, returns the amounts paid with three per cent. interest.

There is the largest conceivable liberty allowed as to the amounts, methods and intervals of payment, and as to the time when annuities are due. There are no forfeitures, no penalties, no lapses. Whether payments are large or small, regular or variable, the final adjustment is made on the basis of the agreement, the returns, of course, corresponding to the actual amount paid.

The investment is free from all claims, creditors and incumbrances. It is an actual and certain net income.

To give the above advantages the system involves a considerable Government outlay, in the cost of management and promotion, and in an interest charge rather larger than the Government pays on its other borrowings. This represents the Government contribution towards a scheme for the general benefit. If the scheme were made general and open to all capitalists to purchase annuities of any amount, it would attract large investors and interfere seriously with insurance corporations. These cannot do business on terms giving them nothing for salaries and expenses, no dividends for stockholders, and no prospect of gain. But the Government of Canada is not going into competition with companies in the sale of large or speculative annuities. The idea is not investment but protection. These annuities are intended for those of moderate means, and do not provide more than a sum required to provide the the annuitant with the necessaries of life. The largest annuity that can be bought is $600 a year. He who wishes to provide for a larger income must go elsewhere and pay for the accommodation given him. Those who wish to be sure of an income of from $60 to $600 a year can make their arrangements with the Government, which is looking for no profit, and is taking no pay for transacting the business.

While the Act was a Government measure, as all Bills involving public expenditure must be, Sir Richard Cartwright invited the co-operation of Senators from both parties and the system as it stands is the result of a careful, non-partisan examination and revision of the original scheme. It is a system which family men of moderate incomes, all young men and women wage-earners, and working people of all classes ought to consider.

DEATH HOVERING OVER PALACE OF THE ARCHBISHOP

HIS GRACE IS VERY LOW AND DOCTORS ARE NOT HOPEFUL OF RECOVERY.

In Very Weak Condition—Improvements in Health Have Not Been Maintained—A Recent Relapse.

Toronto, May 9.—Most Reverend Fergus Patrick McEvay, Archbishop of Toronto, is slowly sinking, and his end may come at any time. His Grace has been ill for about a year, and though at times, during that period he appeared to be showing improvement, it did not last long.

To-day his grace is in a very low condition, and though his medical attendants, Drs. R. J. Dwyer and his assistants, hope to be able to report a better condition later in the day. At present the state of his health is anything but assuring.

In view of this condition, the Catholic Register and Canadian Extension the official organ of the archdiocese, will publish the following on Thursday, if the end does not come before that time:

"It becomes our painful duty to announce another serious turn in the illness of the Most Reverend Archbishop, who has been gradually losing strength for some days back, and is now in a very unfavorable condition. His diocesans and friends are urgently requested to renew their pious prayers to the God of all goodness on his behalf. He is perfectly resigned, and blesses from a full heart his priests and people."

The present sinking spell under which His Grace is laboring commenced a few days ago. No improvement has been shown since then, but on the contrary a gradual decline. Anaemia is the cause of the trouble.

It is less than three years since His Grace came to Toronto, being raised from the dignity of Bishop of London to that of Archbishop.

His Grace is but fifty-nine years of age, having been born at Lindsay in 1852.

THE DISTINGUISHED VISITOR WILL LECTURE ON THE LIVE QUESTION OF POWER—ALL ARE INVITED—MEETING AT EIGHT O'CLOCK

The Reception Committee of the City Council met last night to arrange a reception for the Hon. Adam Beck to-day.

There were present Mayor Morrow, Chairman Ald. Graham, Aldermen Monaghan, Anderson, Edgar and Bradburn. Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., for West Peterborough, was also present.

It is uncertain whether the Honorable gentleman will arrive at noon or in the evening. Should he arrive at noon, the city authorities will give the distinguished visitor a trip over the Lift Lock to Lakefield, in the "Bessie Buller," which Mr. J. H. McClellan has placed at Council's disposal, and back, to town again by auto, when he will be shown through the factories. Lunch will be served on the boat. If Mr. Beck cannot reach Peterborough till this evening, Council will dine him at the Oriental Hotel after his address in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute.

POWER! POWER!! POWER!!!

Hon. Adam Beck, the distinguished Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, is to give an address on power in the above Hall, at 8 o'clock. Power is the live question with Peterborough to-day, and a big attendance of citizens is cordially invited by the City Council.

The Times is given to understand that Mr. Beck will avail himself of this opportunity to explain to Council in person exactly upon what understanding he was induced to read the report of his engineer, on Peterborough's available power, before a committee of private citizens. Through Mayor Morrow, the honorable gentleman has stated that he had no intention of ignoring the Council and will be glad to straighten matters out in this connection. The report in question was prepared by request of the City Council, to whom Mr. Beck had promised its submittal at his earliest convenience. Hence the surprise of the City Fathers that it should have been read first at the meeting in question. And at a recent meeting of the Council, gentlemen who were present at that citizens' meeting, denied any knowledge of Mr. Beck's intention to read to them the power report on the evening their presence at Dr. Morrison's house was invited. The inference is in some high quarters, that Mr. Beck was expressly invited to bring down the report on the evening in question and read it. Notwithstanding the absence from town of the City's Power Committee. However, quite a tangle has arisen over this incident, which the honorable gentleman will unquestionably unravel to-day. Consequently his visit will be of double interest.

But the main purport of Mr. Beck's visit is to give Peterborough citizens a talk on our power possibilities, and surely no authority can have greater weight with the public in general than that of the Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, through whose instrumentality cheap power has been made possible for so many Ontario municipalities. We bespeak for the distinguished visitor a capacity audience.

ROLLER RINK AND PEA FACTORY WERE DESTROYED BY FIRE

The Howdry Pea factory, the Roller Rink and a number of boat houses were burned to the ground last night at about 12.15

At 12.15 an alarm was sent in from Box 18, at George and C.P.R., and almost before the last sound of the alarm had died away, the whole factory, which is a large frame building, burst into flames. The reflection illuminated all the southern part of the city and brought out a large number of citizens who thought the business section of the city was afire. The brigade responded to the alarm in good time. Chief Howard at once sized up the situation and set to work to save the adjoining buildings, viz—T. Kinnear's wholesale grocery, the Peterborough Hardware Co's store-house and the Canadian Canoe factory buildings, and Wilson's machine shop and surrounding houses which were in great danger owing to the intense heat.

Several times the roof of these buildings caught, but the firemen kept streams pouring on them.

A number of cars standing on the siding were demolished by the flames. It is also stated that a number of automobiles stored in the building were burned.

The firemen did splendid work and were ably assisted by the police.

The origin of the fire is unknown. At 11.45 Nightwatchman Finney's assistant, Mr. Rose, passed alongside of the buildings and there was no sign of fire.

THE C. P. R. CARRIED OVER A THOUSAND EACH DAY

Montreal, May 9.—It is stated by C.P.R. officials that the month of April just passed has broken all records for immigration by over 3,000 people. At the same time, the rush through Montreal with the opening of navigation to Montreal has started in at a rate that bids fair to make May even exceed the figures for April.

During the month just ended the Canadian Pacific Railway carried from St. John to Montreal and thence Westward no fewer than 28,321 immigrants, not counting small children or over a thousand a day, exclusive of Sundays. This is an increase of over 10,000 on the figures for March, when 18,000 immigrants were brought through.

During the sixty days of March and April this year, the C.P.R. carried 50,000 immigrants through to the new lands of the West, a number far in advance of any previous immigration statistics.

THE OIL USED ON STREETS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Your correspondent Mr. William Snowden, has stated in to-day's issue of your paper that the "stuff being put on the streets is half water."

It is well known that oil and water will not mix, and the oil while being drawn from the tanks has been carefully examined by the Street Commissioner who reports that there is no sign of mixture with water.

The company supplying the oil has been written to and on the receipt of the reply it will be given you for publication.

THE ROMAN CHURCH AND MARRIAGE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Permit me to say a few words through the medium of your valuable paper on the utter inconsistency of the Roman Catholic Church in regard to marriage. The Roman Catholic Church strives to sanctify marriage by forbidding divorce for any reason. It quotes as its authority the text, "Whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder," and contends that it has supernatural power to refuse to dissolve a marriage, but it is extremely generous in annulling those which it has not performed. It quotes Scripture, but is itself the object of no little scandal because of its easy breaking-up of homes as certainly, if not as wisely, as the divorce court.

Common Sense.

NAME THE FARMS.

Editor Morning Times.

Tir, — Every farm should have a name, and the name of both the farm and the farmer should be posted on a sign at the farm gate. It is very difficult for a stranger driving along the road to know just where to turn off into the farm he wants to visit when there are no sign posts up. It is as bad as a town or a city would be without streets named or without names on the stores. Farmers who try to find a house in a city where the names are not posted can realize what it means to have a country district with farms and roads unnamed. It is even worse than a city with street names omitted, because on the streets are people to direct one, while in the country often are nothing but sky, road, and beasts of the field or birds of the air—rather unsatisfactory pilots.

I hope the local Councils will take this matter up, and start the movement.

SUNDAY STREET CARS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see some one writes to the press, suggesting that the Public Library be kept open for a few hours Sunday afternoon. I would say, Sir, that this is only getting in the thin end of the wedge. If the Library is to be used on the Lord's day, it will not be long until there will be a demand for street cars also on Sunday, and later on moving pictures may be suggested. No knowing where this thing would stop if once started. I say, let us live as Christians, and obey the Fourth Commandment.

BORDEN'S TOUR OF WEST WILL LAST THREE WEEKS

OPPOSITION LEADER WILL VISIT MANITOBA, SASKATCHEWAN, AND ALBERTA DURING THE NEXT MONTH.

With Departure of Premier the Scene of Battle Will Change From the Capital to the Country—General Election in the Autumn is Latest Prediction.

Ottawa, May 10.—With the departure of Sir Wilfrid Laurier this week for England, the scene of the political battle will change in a very short while from the Capital to the country. Members are arranging for meetings in their constituencies and leaders are arranging for more or less ambitious tours.

Mr. R. L. Borden, the conservative leader has definitely arranged this western tour. He will leave Ottawa on June 17, and his first meeting will take place in Winnipeg on Monday, June 19. From there he will go to Regina, taking in all the places possible on the way, thence he will proceed to Calgary and Edmonton, and pay a visit to Red Deer. He will not visit British Columbia. The tour will conclude at Portage la Prairie on July 7. Not fewer than two meetings will be held each day. Mr. Borden will have a special train, and wherever a meeting can be arranged along the route the train will stop to give him an opportunity to address the people.

While the other speakers have not been decided upon, it is certain that Andrew Broder, of Dundas, the well-known agricultural expert of the commons, will be one of them. There is no more popular member of the Canadian parliament, and as a speaker on the stump he has probably no superior in the Dominion.

The programme for the tour will probably be formally sanctioned by the Opposition leader to-night.

There is every prospect now that there will be a general election in the autumn. It will probably take place about the end of November, after the redistribution bill has passed the House.

There have been rumors that the government, after parliament adjourns will prorogue. This may be dismissed as mere speculation. It is altogether improbable that the Opposition will allow enough supply to pass the House to loose their hold of the situation. The Conservatives are unanimous in declaring that parliament will not adjourn, but that the reciprocity agreement will be fought to a finish. They have set out to defeat it on national and imperial grounds, and prorogation would only stall off the fight. They want the fight now, and would not have suggested adjournment had it not been to remove every excuse the premier might have for not going to the coronation and imperial conference.

The provincial fight in Nova Scotia will be of very great importance. It is believed that the result will have considerable bearing on the federal issue.

A FINE NEW WHARF FOR PETERBOROUGH

Supplimentary estimates providing for an appropriation of $20,000 for a new wharf for Peterborough, and $2,500 for a wharf at Mount Julian, Stony Lake, is the Dominion estimates.

It is proposed to build a wharf south of the Matthew's Company's packing house, provided this property can be purchased from Mr. G. W. Hatton, who is the owner. If this cannot be done, the probabilities are that the wharf will be built above the C.P.R. bridge, a swing being put there for the purpose of letting boats through. A wharf is badly needed here, and therefore is not coming too soon.

A CURIOUS REQUEST BY A N. Y. MINISTER
